

FINE RECORD

BEING MADE BY FLORENCE BASKET BALL TEAMS UNDER GUIDANCE OF COACH C. G. LAMB—NIGHTINGALES HAVE LOST BUT ONE GAME SO FAR THIS SEASON

While basket ball is not a new sport to students and patrons of the Florence school, yet the way it is being played there this winter is entirely new to them.

Basket ball has been played at Florence on an outdoor court about as long as it has been played anywhere else in the county, but this winter they have the advantage of a fine new indoor court and they are making the best of it.

Then Florence teams never before had a coach to instruct them in the intricacies of the hardwood game. But this year they have one in the person of C. G. Lamb, for two years mentor at Burlington High School, where he proved his worth by turning out well trained and aggressive teams.

That Coach Lamb has worked wonders with his proteges at Florence is evident in the record, especially of the Nightingales, the girls team, which has lost but one game and that to Crescent Springs early in the season. Crescent Springs always turns out one of the best teams in this section of the state. In this girls team the Florence fans have a fine chance for district, if not state, honors this season.

Although the boys have not made such a sparkling record as have the girls it must be borne in mind that they have played their far without the services of their captain "Red" Higgins. Coach Lamb says that his team will be strengthened immeasurably when Higgins becomes eligible at the close of the first semester. Johnnie Powell has been serving as acting Captain during Higgins' absence from the line-up.

Over Hebron and New Haven, two of the outstanding quintets in this section last year. Their tournament play last year branded them as finished, fighting fires that are a credit to any school. Therefore, Florence followers point with deserved pride to these two games.

A portion of the success of the team also is due to the "pep" and "push" of W. R. Davis, Florence's live-wire principal. Professor Davis has been behind the team with all of his dynamic force from the very start of the season and worked with Coach Lamb in a fruitful effort to procure new uniforms and equipment for both the teams. These new uniforms are very flashy and attractive and Burlington fans will be given an opportunity to look them over on Friday night of this week, when the two teams come on the local court for a pair of contests.

It will be interesting to note the outcome of the clash between the present cohorts of Coach Lamb and his former subjects in the Blue and White. Come out and see these games.

BANK STATEMENTS

A call has been issued for the semi-annual publication of the bank statements. Due to the fact that all of the statements had not reached this office at the present time we were unable to publish them in this issue. They will appear next week, however.

REDSKINS

WILL PLAY IN FLORENCE GYM ON THURSDAY NIGHT, JANUARY 21—FIVE TRIBES REPRESENTED ON INDIAN TEAM—TO PLAY COUNTY ALL-STAR FIVE

The First Americans basketball team, composed of six fast moving Indians from the West, will play in the Florence high school gym on Thursday night, January 21st.

The Indians have played three games at Burlington and have drawn splendid crowds each time. Last year they filled the local auditorium with the largest basketball crowd ever seen here. With the splendid facilities at Florence they should play to a record crowd there. Proceeds of the game will go to the Florence school, after the Indians have received their portion.

Several tribes are represented on the Indian team, including Seneca, Navajo, Cherokee, Quapaw, and Delaware.

C. G. Lamb, coach of the Florence team, will select a team of stars from different points in Boone county in an effort to hand the redskins their first defeat in this territory. They have defeated some of the strongest independent teams in the south and mid-west this season and have been defeated but very few times.

Don't miss this game. Even those who have seen the Indians perform on the local court should not pass up the opportunity to see the long sharpshooters on the redskin five drop them in from a distance, which is impossible on a court with a low ceiling.

The strong wind on Tuesday night razed another of the large maples in the court house yard here. One by one these ornamental old land marks are going and it won't be long until the court yard, once a shady rendezvous on hot summer days will be barren. What a story those old maples could relate if they could but speak.

Cards and letters from County Judge N. E. Riddell indicate that he is enjoying immensely his stay in sunny San Antonio. He probably will return about the last of the month.

Patrons of the Consolidated Telephone company may look for a new directory within a few days as the printing is almost finished. Manager Reaser is putting out a very attractive and useful booklet this season, one which will be useful to his patrons in many ways, as it not only gives the name and the phone number of each patron, but also lists the location of the home of each subscriber.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cornelius, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Brownfield, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Earl Easton and Cassius and William Sullivan spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sorrell, of the Petersburg road.

REPORT OF RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE FOR DECEMBER 1931

Two children were taken to the Children's Hospital for removal of tonsils the first of the month, and one little boy whose illness some time ago and general physical condition since has been rather puzzling was taken by me at the request of his physician to the Children's Clinic in Cincinnati for some tests and X-Ray pictures in order to make a more positive diagnosis of the case. All of this is a very definite measure in the promoting of the Health of the Public.

Eighty-five children of the Hamilton school were given physical inspection, finding seven to have had some physical defects corrected recently. I wish however, many, many more of them might have had, and hope with the influence of our Home Hygiene class there and the persuasion of the teachers that soon other needed corrections will be obtained by the children of this school.

The annual report of the services of the Nurses as directed by the Red Cross for 1931, was submitted to the Fiscal Court on December 10th at which time the officers of the local Red Cross together with the court members made provision for the continuance of the Nursing Service for 1932.

Although throughout the length and breadth of our land every one has felt the pinch of the times

RALLY

OF BURLINGTON BAPTISTS FALLS SHORT BY THREE POINTS AND HEBRON FIVE WINS BEST TILT OF EVENING IN SUNDAY SCHOOL LEAGUE

Some exciting games resulted in the weekly clash of Boone county church teams in the local gym last Saturday evening.

In the opener Bellevue had a first round defeat of 25-10 with Bucky and Bill Rogers leading the way in scoring, each with ten points. The Bullittsville team was unable to place their full five on the floor at game time and therefore forfeited the conflict to Bellevue, the game being played merely as an exhibition.

The league leading Petersburg five, while being held to a comparatively small score by the Burlington Methodists, again displayed their vast superiority and came out on the long end, 27-14. This game was featured by some rough play by both teams and considerable altercation between individual players and the referee, who seemed unable to cope with the situation properly. Deck again was the scoring ace for the victors, while Lamb, playing his first game with the Methodists, led in an offensive way for the losers.

In the aftermath on the program the fans were treated to a sensational rally by the Burlington Baptists, which almost wiped out a fine lead held by the Hebron Lutherans at the half. The score at the intermission stood 24-8 in Hebron's favor, but the Baptists came fast in the final quarter to narrow the count to 36-33 at the finish.

Next Week's Games
Burlington M. E. vs. Sand Run
Burlington Baptists vs. Bullittsville.
Petersburg vs. Bellevue.

MISS MARY FURLONG DEAD

Local citizens were sorely grieved when news reached here Sunday morning of the death of Miss Mary Furlong, who passed away at the St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington. She was 72 years of age and had lived in Burlington since she was a small child.

Miss Mary, as she was called by everyone, had gone to the hospital just a week before for treatment, as she had been in very poor health for the past few years. One sister and two brothers had preceded her to the grave, she being the last member of her immediate family.

Funeral services were held at St. Paul's church in Florence at eight A. M. (central time) Wednesday morning. Miss Mary had been a faithful member of the St. Paul congregation most of her life. The parents of the deceased were immigrants, coming to this side from Ireland during their early life. Miss Mary was known and loved by everyone who had an opportunity to know her and was a fine character and a splendid neighbor.

Second County Wide Meeting To Be Held Here Next Wednesday

FRANK REED

CAPTURED IN KENTON COUNTY AFTER BEING A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE ALMOST TWO YEARS—LODGED IN PENITENTIARY AT FRANKFORD ON SAME DAY—TO SERVE FIVE YEAR SENTENCE

A free man at 10 o'clock and at 1:30 just another "number" at Frankfort. That was the story that no doubt revolved over and over in Frank Reed's mind as he lay in his cell in the State Reformatory last Saturday night. And Frank will have ample opportunity to ponder over his fate as he will be there, barring unforeseen catastrophes, for the next five years.

Convicted of grand larceny at the April term, 1930, Frank Reed was released on bond in the Boone Circuit Court shortly after conviction and pending his appeal to the Court of Appeals. But Frank was not satisfied to leave his fate with the higher court and went into voluntary retirement from the sight of officers.

And it was well that he did for the Court of Appeals upheld the verdict and judgment of the Boone Circuit on October 24, 1930, and Reed's bondsmen were called upon to produce their principal. This, however, they were unable to do, for as we noted before, Mr. Reed had absented himself from public view.

So time went on. Frank became braver and braver until Uncle Sam's officers were informed that he, with his brother Floyd and a pal named Hilton, were operating a moonshine still near Dry Creek in Kenton County. Consequently Sheriff Snyder and Deputy Cotton were notified of the discovery and they repaired to Covington early last Saturday morning where they were joined by Government officers and, some ten or more strong, they swooped down upon the alleged liquor factory.

The result was that Floyd and Hilton were arrested by the U. S. men, while Frank was kindly turned over to the Boone county authorities for a ride to Frankfort. So it was that Frank was arrested at 10 A. M., and was in Frankfort at 1:30 P. M., for his delayed journey behind the stone walls. First, however, he was brought to Burlington to bid adieu to his old friend and benefactor Ben Riley, who had labored so diligently to remove Frank from the wiles and woes of the outside world, and also to have Deputy Circuit Clerk L. C. Weaver provide him with the necessary papers to obtain admittance to his new abode.

The charge upon which Frank was confined grew out of a theft of auto tires that took place at Myron Garnett's home near Hebron in 1929. The tires were found at Frank's home and he was indicted at the December term, 1929, following his apprehension by Sheriff L. T. Utz late one Monday night after a shooting affray had taken place on the Constance road. It will be recalled that three men attempted to steal certain gasoline belonging to the State Road Department near the home of Emmett Riddell and that Riddell and Lehman Goodridge had detected the theft before its fruition only to be shot at by the thieves as they ran away.

As an outgrowth of this affair Ben Jones and Walter Stang were indicted and sentenced at the same December term (1929) during which the offense transpired. Stang was caught at the time of the gasoline robbery on this side of the river, but Sheriff Utz, with the help of Cincinnati police, late that same night located Jones and Frank Reed, the driver of the car, in Cincinnati, from where they were brought to Burlington for trial.

Reed also was convicted at the December term, but the appeal was taken by his attorney, Stephens L. Blakely, of Covington, and the Court of Appeals on that occasion reversed the Boone judgment and the case was retried in April with the result mentioned in a preceding paragraph.

more or less, still Christmas came, and again the family who have been "Santa" to lonely cheerless fireplaces and folks for the past four years, felt that same Good Will which they said must not be empty this year. So we planned and fixed baskets, with those things that make a feast to cheer the hearts of people at this season, and to these there would have been on gifts this year had this generosity not been evidenced. Then in some cases suitable clothing was given with a piece of money in some instances. MONEY being a rare toy to some you know.

Again as last year, the GIRLS' Reserve Clubs of Burlington and Hebron supplemented this with toys and gifts that they had made for the children. Also our good women gave canned fruits and vegetables for the baskets of Christmas groceries. Another friend of children sent through me a lovely Doll, clothes and household doll set to a little motherless girl.

Throughout the year I can not do this active giving of things, so at Christmas my Happiness is great to be the channel through which the gifts of Love of Man for Man may pass to bring Happiness and Joy.

EUNIE B. WILLIS, Red Cross P. H. N.

Friends and relatives of Mrs. Olive Kelly, widow of the late B. T. Kelly, are very much concerned over her condition as we go to press. She has been very ill since last Sunday night with little sign of improvement.

SHALL WE HAVE STREET LIGHTS IN BURLINGTON?

The time has arrived when a meeting of the Citizens of Burlington is required to raise funds for our street lights for the coming year.

In accordance with above conditions all citizens of Burlington are hereby requested to meet at the Court House in Burlington on Friday night January 18th, 1932, at 7 o'clock P. M.

An effort will be made to have a representative of the Light Company present.

In previous years only a very few attended these meetings but this year it is important that every citizen of Burlington attend the meeting Friday night in order that a conclusion be reached as to whether or not Street Lights are desired.

It is not the purpose to place a burden upon any one in the matter of street lights as the cost is less than two cents a day for every family in Burlington and it is necessary that the cooperation of every one be had in this matter otherwise our town will have to be in darkness next year.

Come to this meeting and vote for or against street lights. If you stay at home it will be taken for granted that you are in favor of street lights and will pay your assessment, but it is to be hoped that a full attendance of every one, both for and against the lights be present.

Yours Truly, J. M. EDDINS

EQUALITY of taxation was one of the fundamental principles of the American government. The levying of special taxes is a serious departure from that principle.
Special taxes paid by fire insurance companies amount to more than 5 per cent of the premiums paid by policyholders.
Less than a million dollars of the 30 million dollars in special taxes is used by the states for the supervision of fire insurance.

COMPLETE 1931 FARM ACCOUNT RECORDS — BOONE COUNTY MEN ASSISTED BY R. E. PROCTOR FROM COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Sixteen Boone county farmers were assisted by R. E. Proctor from the College of Agriculture and the County Agent the past week to complete their 1931 farm account records. The records as a group were the best kept and the largest number completed of any year in the past.

Each farmer who completed a 1931 farm account record will receive a business analysis on each of his farm enterprises compared with individual enterprises from the average of the ten best and ten poorest farms of some fifty farmers in Northern Kentucky doing similar type farming. Each cooperator thru this comparison can see what return from each of his farm enterprises brings in compared with the other farms of his group.

Approximately twenty-five complete farm account records for 1932 have been started or will be started during the next few weeks. The farm account records are being started with only those farmers who agree to keep a complete record throughout the year.

PLAN TO ATTEND FARM AND HOME CONVENTION

Many Boone county farmers have discussed plans to attend the 30th Annual Farm and Home Convention held at the University of Kentucky, Lexington on January 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th. A splendid farm program has been planned.

Tuesday, January 26th will be devoted to discussions on weed control, land utilization, and economics; Wednesday to soils fertility, pasture improvement and dairying; Thursday to livestock production and community improvement; and Friday to beef cattle, sheep and bee keeping. A women's program is carried on in addition to the regular program. The county agent will be glad to make arrangements for a number of farmers to attend the Wednesday and Thursday meeting with a minimum of transportation expense. Those who are interested please call Burlington 411.

POULTRY SCHOOL WELL ATTENDED

More than fifty poultrymen attended the sixth annual Boone county winter poultry school held at Florence last Tuesday, January 13th. Those attending reported the school one of the best held to date.

Mr. Jim Humphrey, from the College of Agriculture led in the major discussions of the day. He outlined the recent experimental work of the University of Kentucky showing the increased egg production secured where range was available and the increased hatchability of eggs when the breeding flock was fed tested cod liver oil. A number of diseased birds were brought in for the disease discussion part of the program. Mr. Humphrey recommended vigorous culling of the flock where disease was causing trouble. By selling all but those birds showing signs of efficient production and giving these better attention will mean more dollars to the poultryman.

The success of the clean chick program in 1931 thru Boone county demonstrations was outlined by County Agent H. R. Forkner. Those poultrymen who followed all five points of the clean chick program raised from 90 to 95% of all chicks hatched until they were 12 weeks of age. Those who did not in many cases lose more than 50% of their chicks. Clean healthy pullets mean efficient winter egg production where diseased pullets to go in the laying house means low winter production and heavy poultry losses.

The clean chick program properly followed eliminates B. W. D. coccidiosis, worms and to a large extent roup.

The Boone county extension poultry committee met during the noon hour and recommended the following program for 1932:

1. Clean chick brooding demonstrations.
2. A summer field meeting to study the above.
3. A fall field meeting.
4. A winter poultry school.
5. Plan for one big meeting during the year to bring in a number of leading poultry authorities to discuss special poultry problems.
6. A basket dinner at the next winter poultry school.
7. One meeting for the discussion of poultry problems.
8. Five demonstration flock records.

Mr. Hubert Conner, Mrs. Virgie Sullivan and Mr. Robert Chambers were elected to serve as the county poultry extension committee for 1932.

George Miller, Junior, a student at Eastern Teachers College, Richmond, recently entertained at a meeting of the Lions Club, of that city, with a series of humorous readings. Young Mr. Miller is well known in this section as an accomplished speaker for one of his years.

Thomas Rice purchased a young horse in Indiana last week.

CAR CAPSIZES

AND OVERTURNS TWICE, LANDING RIGHT SIDE UP OVER STEEP EMBANKMENT — DRIVER AND WIFE UNINJURED

A broken wheel on a one-half ton truck almost caused two broken necks when Mr. and Mrs. Hesel Popham overturned in the east end of town here late Monday afternoon.

As Mr. and Mrs. Popham were leaving town for their home near Linburg Mr. Popham suddenly lost control of the car. It swerved over the steep bank into the school house yard, turning completely over twice before finally landing right side up. Strangely enough neither passenger was seriously injured, suffering only slight bruises.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

Friday night, Jan. 15, the Tomcats and Kittens won two basketball games from Florence Knights and Nightingales. The girls game was won by the Kittens 25 to 20 and boys' game 27 to 14 in favor of Tomcats. What is said to have been the outstanding game of the season was played by the Burlington Hi School Kittens when they held the strong Florence Nightingales to a 25-20 score. Florence girls have been playing well this season, winning from some of the strongest teams in Northern Kentucky. Naturally they expected to guard the Kittens up but the strong was what held the Nightingales back. In the first half the score was in Kittens favor 9 to 8, but in the last half the Kittens made sixteen points while Florence made twelve. Laubish, a blonde and running guard for the Florence girls, was their outstanding player. In the Tomcats and Knights game the Tomcats had no trouble and held the Florence boys 27-14. The high point maker for Florence was W. Aylor, making five of their fourteen points with Bill Greenup, captain of the Tomcats, leading his team with 9 of their 27 and Hensley close behind with 8 points. Hensley, a Florence High School player and captain of the Knights, will be seen in a uniform soon, as he has been ineligible the first semester. With him in the line-up Florence Knights will be no snap for any team and they promise it will be too sad for the Tomcats when they play at Florence.

The Hi-Y boys at the first of the week started on a job to improve the school grounds. A fence is being built along the walk from the school grounds to the end of it. This is being done in order to keep the people off the grass. When you come to the school building please stay on the sidewalks and do not get on the grass.

Rev. Pollitt, pastor of the local M. E. church, will be able to re-entire the pulpit next Sunday and will conduct both morning and evening services.

L. S. Beemon, one of Boone county's oldest citizens, and who has been ill for the past few weeks, was able to be out again last week. He was in Burlington last Friday.

During the past two weeks County Clerk McCallen has issued marriage licenses to the following couples: J. Lucien Orem, 24, of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, and Edna Probst, 22, of Aurora, Indiana; Phillip E. Henson, 21, of South Bend, Ohio, and Revery J. Winifred Huey, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Huey, underwent a second operation for mastoid trouble at a Cincinnati hospital Monday. A blood transfusion was made and the little fellow is said to be improving somewhat at this writing.

Wm. Bentler and Clint Gaines, both residents of Erlanger, were calling at the Recorder office Monday.

Miss Elizabeth Hensley, of Crescent Springs, spent the past week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hensley, of the Bellview farm near Petersburg.

DUCK MAKES BARE RECORD

A White Pekin duck belonging to Miss Isabelle House, of near Linburg, made a very unusual egg laying record during the past year. This duck was the only one on the place, according to Miss House, not even a drake grazing the premises. Yet the fowl laid exactly 300 eggs from January 14, 1931, until January 14th of this year. Now, don't say—"Believe it or not."

HEBRON HI SCHOOL NOTES

Friday night Jan. 15th, the Kentucky Cardinals went to New Haven. The girls game was very exciting although the Cardinals were defeated 34 to 23. The girls did not play with their usual force Friday night. Blanche Wohrley was the high point maker for H. H. S., Eva Mae Grant, Kathryn Ryle, Adella Riddell, and Helen Grant played a defensive game. We wish to compliment the New Haven girls for their speed on the floor.

The Hebron boys also met defeat with a score of 24 to 15. The Hebron Cardinals allowed the New Haven boys to gain 12 points lead before our team started.

Friday, Jan. 22, the Petersburg teams will come to Hebron. Come and share in the excitement and support your home team.

Friday afternoon the Girl Reserve Club had a very interesting program. The main feature was a playlet entitled, "Life Has Loveliness to Sell." This was followed by the singing of a number of Girl Reserve songs.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

Holy Sunlight Mission Sunday school classes are growing each week.

The Bible class taught last week by Mr. Clayton was very interesting.

We are glad to report that a young men's class has been started.

Sunday night's message was brought to us by Mr. Lawrence Rodamer and was enjoyed by a nice crowd.

We are missing the folks who are sick very much.

"We are sorry you are ill today, May this quickly pass away, And your life be ever after Full of happiness and laughter."

Tuesday night's services were led by Mrs. Clayton.

Smiles were plentiful seemingly each one had saved something amusing as well as helpful to tell us about.

Each Tuesday night a leader and a substitute are appointed for the next week.

Last week Mrs. Clayton had as her helper Mrs. Peeno.

The leaders for this week are Mrs. A. Perry and Mrs. Russ. Louis Brown from Pike street Covington, gave us an interesting talk Tuesday night which was greatly appreciated by all.

Friday night is our regular Bible Study Service.

A nice feature of the evening was a special song by three members of the Millson family.

FAIR FOUR

FOR 1935 ANNUAL FARM CONVENTION

The University of Kentucky at Lexington is making plans to entertain a large attendance at the 1935 annual Farm and Home Convention to be held at the Experiment Station Jan. 22-23, inclusive. The meetings during the course of the four days usually attract several thousand farmers, farm women and other persons interested in agriculture.

There will be separate sessions for women throughout the week, while breeders' associations, beekeepers, seed growers, veterinarians, the Farm Bureau and other organizations will meet. The sessions for both men and women will be held in the livestock pavilion.

A feature of the first day, Tuesday, Jan. 22, will be a discussion of the agricultural situation by Dr. H. B. Price, head of the department of markets and rural finance at the University of Kentucky. Dr. E. Reed of the United States Department of Agriculture will deliver two addresses on the opening day. The subject of both will be, "Will We Need More Farm Land?"

The land question will be discussed further on the second day by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture. A. F. Lever of South Carolina will represent the Federal Farm Board in an address on Wednesday, his subject being, "The Relationship between Government and Business." Other prominent speakers the second day will be Dr. O. E. Reed, chief of the bureau of dairy industry in the United States Department of Agriculture, and Prof. Geo. Roberts of the College of Agriculture. Prof. Roberts will discuss soil fertility and economic production.

R. W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture, Mrs. Clara Ingram Judson of Illinois, and Prof. C. C. Taylor of North Carolina will be the principal speakers on Thursday, Jan. 23rd. Mr. Dunlap will discuss the future of the livestock industry.

Marketing will be featured the closing day, when E. L. German, president of the Bourbon Stock Yard Company, Louisville, and P. O. Wilson, manager of the National Live Stock Marketing Association, Chicago, will speak. President Frank L. McVey of the University of Kentucky will make an address that day, his subject being, "The Educated Man."

Prominent among the speakers at the sessions for homemakers will be Mrs. J. H. Spilman of Burgin, Ky., widely known speaker; Mrs. Clara Ingram Judson, noted lecturer of Evanston, Ill.; Miss Grace E. Frysinger of the United States Department of Agriculture; Prof. C. C. Taylor of North Carolina, and Dr. Frank L. McVey of the University of Kentucky.

A. D. Zanzig of the National Recreation Association of New York will direct the singing and other music and recreational periods in the program for homemakers.

The recognition of five master homemakers will be a feature of the sessions for women. Friday afternoon will be devoted to a special program and luncheon, when five Kentucky farm women, selected for their devotion to their homes and interest in the welfare of their communities and the state will be awarded master homemaker medals. This feature will be sponsored by The Farmers' Wife, national farm woman's magazine of St. Paul, Minn.

FARMERS WHO PLAN MAKE MOST MONEY

Records obtained by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, indicate that farmers who make a definite long-time plan, in light of probable prices and conditions on their farms, and then follow these plans consistently make more money than those who are "in" and "out," trying to hit the top of the market.

As an illustration of this, the department of farm economics cites figures obtained from two farmers who have kept records for the last seven years. The farms are located within 10 miles of each other, products are sold on the same market, and soil and other conditions are similar. The farms contain approximately the same acreage of tillable land.

The farmer who had no definite program in mind had an average net return to labor and capital for the seven years, 1924 through 1930, of $224 a year. The other farmer, who has worked out a long-time plan, averaged in the same period $1,528.

The one farmer mapped out a definite cropping program which would fit his farm and at the same time planned a livestock program which would fit his cropping program. He provided for a five-year crop rotation and applied lime, fertilizer and manure, to his land. His livestock program was built around dairy cows as the largest source of income. By sticking to his plans consistently, in contrast with an "in" and "out" policy, he has grown into the new system with little expense either in time or money. His income increased steadily from $1,061 in 1924 to $2,150 in 1930.

WOMEN'S SUNDAY MISSION

Folks at the Holy Sunlight Mission of Constance, Ky., spent a very enjoyable time Sunday evening. The Gospel Trio favored us with two special songs.

A duet by two visiting boys was heartily appreciated by all.

Another special feature was an instrumental number. Mrs. A. Fogel gave a short talk which left with us some good thoughts.

Bro. Waters brought us the message of the evening.

We feel that we owe a great deal of appreciation to Bro. Waters for his untiring efforts in aiding us.

Tuesday evening, our praise service night, our subject being, "What do you intend doing for the good of the Mission in 1932?"

Due to the bad weather, the appointed leader Mrs. A. Fogel could not be with us.

Credit is due to Bro. Joe Klaser for his able leadership of the evening.

Little Alfred Perry recited a poem which was enjoyed by all.

Lawrence Rodemer gave a "Peace" Reading called "Die Mutter."

This reading left us a vivid picture of the horrors of war. Praise is due Mr. Rodemer for the way in which the reading was given, and we hope he will favor us with more readings in the near future.

Many wonderful thoughts were brought to us by different ones, as they told their intentions of aiding the mission in 1932.

Saturday night a prayer meeting was held at Mrs. Myrtle Reeves home.

Each one present felt that they had gained some new ideas on "Bible Verses" which were recited then explained.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend Sunday school services with us each Sunday afternoon at 2:45, and every other service during the week.

NIAGARA FALLS

Niagara, Niagara, thou mighty cataract!

Thou wonder of the ages, with beauty still intact;

We've heard thy ceaseless thunder of reverberating roar,

We've stood spell-bound and watched thy sparkling waters pour—

Adown the rugged precipice, so very high and steep;

We've watched thy crystal waters as they swirl and toss and leap,

We've looked upon the silver mist and spray so far below

And in thy shining depths we saw the beautiful rainbow.

We've felt the slight vibration of thy great and magic power,

As standing there in awesome mood, we gazed for hour and hour.

One hundred feet, then sixty more this cataract is hurled

And properly it has been called the wonder of the world.

Thru countless ages, on and on, thy music will cease never;

'Tis God's great organ playing on, forever and forever.

LULU C. HUEY

BACK TO THE FARM

There were 208,000 more persons living on farms in America at the beginning of 1931 than there were at the beginning of 1930, according to the annual report of the Secretary of Agriculture. From what we observed, we should say that the increase during 1931 has been even greater than that. This is a very significant movement of population away from industrial centers and back to the rural regions, where the problem of keeping out of the poor-house is nowhere nearly so difficult.

Perhaps the most interesting conclusion which Mr. Hyde draws from these and other figures is that the United States is approaching the stage of a stationary population. In all but four or five of the big cities the death rate today is higher than the birth rate. The coming generations in America must come from the farms. The Secretary believes that the prevention of an actual decline in the population of the nation calls for the development of governmental policies which will make it increasingly possible for a large proportion of our people to live in the country, even though not wholly dependent on farming for their livelihood.

We must say that we agree with Mr. Hyde that the dweller in the small town, or on the farm, is much more secure so far as the necessities and most of the real comforts of life go, than most of the people who live in the cities. When city folks talk as they do about the terrible distress and suffering of so many millions of their people who have no jobs and no way of feeding or housing their families, they are talking about something that we who live in the country

Advertising Kentucky Attractions Should Promote Tourist Business

Copyright Campbell & Beach

Breaks of the Sandy in Eastern Kentucky

Kentucky has literally a golden opportunity to develop within her borders during 1932 an "industry" which will put millions of dollars into circulation in all parts of the State. This "industry" is the tourist business, now highly profitable to many other states of the union and to Canadian provinces.

No other state has greater wealth in scenery than Kentucky, with its mountains, canyon rivers and lovely rolling country, and few have as much. No other state has greater wealth in historic spots. No other state has Kentucky's worldwide reputation for hospitality.

Now that Kentucky has developed an extensive modern highway system which is steadily growing, and is establishing state parks and state memorials, which add materially to the attractions of the commonwealth, the time has come for all forward-looking Kentucky agencies, such as the chambers of commerce, the automobile clubs and similar organizations, to get together and, with the co-operation of the Legislature, launch a campaign to bring tourists to Kentucky.

Judge Huston Quin, managing director of the Kentucky Progress Commission, says: "First sell Kentucky to Kentuckians with plenty of advertising in the State press. Then advertise outside the State to sell Kentucky to the world."

County Agent Edgar Rice predicts that Elliott county farmers will not grow more than half as much tobacco this year as they did last year. Many will grow none.

Whitney Cobb, a Madison county farmer, purchased a foundation flock of purebred Hampshire sheep at the recent Camden sale.

Planning Christmas Dinner Means Less Work Today

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Home Food Institute

THE Christmas dinner is a highlight of holiday festivities, rivaling in importance the tree and gifts. It's a joyful time of family reunions, when everybody gathers around the dinner table!

Decorations of dining room and table must be in keeping, and an idea, always lovely, is to have holly about walls, lights and pictures. Have, as a table centerpiece, a bowl of choice fruit with sprigs of holly stuck here and there; and at each place a bit of holly tied with red ribbon. The menu should not be overly elaborate but should stress good old-fashioned dishes, well prepared and attractively served. Women today are fortunate in that many good things can be prepared outside the home, so that while the dinner is as bountiful and delicious as ever, it is much less labor to prepare. Cocktails, soups, relishes, preserves and jellies, mince and old-time fig and plum puddings may be purchased ready for use, without endless days of preparation necessary in grandmother's time. For the dinner we suggest one of the following menus:

|---|--------------------------------|----------------------|
| Chilled Tomato Juice or Oyster Cocktail | Celery | Ripe Mission Olives |
| Roast Turkey or Goose or Chicken with Dressing | Mashed Potatoes | |
| Creamed or Buttered Brussels Sprouts or Cabbage | | |
| Cranberry Jelly | Fresh Cucumber Relish | |
| Malaga Grape and Pineapple Salad with French Dressing | | |
| Plum Pudding (ready to serve) with Hard Sauce | | |
| Coffee | Nuts | |
| Cream of Tomato or Cream of Pea Soup (ready to serve) | Celery | Spanish Queen Olives |
| Roast Stuffed Little Pig | Baked or Glazed Sweet Potatoes | |
| Baked Onions | Cold Salad | |
| Pure Apple Butter | Hot-Parkhouse Rolls | |
| Fig Pudding (ready to serve) with Ice Cream or Sauce | | |
| Coffee | Christmas Candles | |

Oyster Cocktail: Allow six oysters per person. Serve on half shells; arranged on cracked ice in deep plate; or mix oysters with cocktail sauce and serve in stemmed glasses. Prepare cocktail sauce as follows: 1 cup Tomato Ketchup; 8 tablespoons Cold Sauce; 2 tablespoons Pure Vinegar; 2 tablespoons Evaporated Horseradish, which has been soaked for ten minutes in 2 tablespoons cold water; few drops

Pepper Sauce: ¼ to 1 teaspoon salt; dash of pepper. Mix all ingredients thoroughly together. This makes about 1½ cups of sauce.

Turkey Stuffing: Crumb one loaf slightly stale bread. Season with salt and pepper to suit taste. Add ½ cup melted butter, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, if desired, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce and 1 tablespoon onion juice. Mix thoroughly. Press firmly into fowl.

SHARP SHARPENED BY HELP OF FARMERS' LEADERS

Now six Marion county farmers, interested in helping their neighbors help themselves to better times, have become leaders in developing sheep raising. It was by County Agent J. R. Summers' "sheep leaders" as the county agent calls them, have taken the lead in their communities in encouraging the use of purebred rams, proper feeding and better care of flocks in order that there may be not only more sheep but better sheep on the farms of Marion county.

When Mr. Summers went to the county in 1928 there were only 9,000 sheep there, and only five purebred rams. It was apparent that the region was adapted to sheep raising, and that sheep could readily be made to increase farmers' incomes. After studying the situation, with the aid of good farmers, Mr. Summers selected six men in as many communities to be leaders of the sheep development work.

The improvement program was launched in 1929, when 15 purebred rams were taken into the county. Twelve good rams were purchased in 1930. Great progress was made in 1931, when 24 purebred rams were shipped into the county to help improve the quality of the lambs. Demonstration flocks were established to show the value of good methods. Just how the leader and demonstration plan worked out is illustrated by the case of W. V. Tatum, in the Riley community. His efforts to improve his flock were so outstanding that 18 purebred rams were placed on farms in the community in 1931.

The sheep leaders who have rendered service to Marion county are W. V. Tatum, Riley; C. H. Lankford, Lebanon; Joe Beaven, St. Marys; B. E. Hickerson, Loretto; L. E. Bickett, Raywick; and J. C. Edeien, Holy Cross. County Agent Summers instructed and advised the leaders with their work, held meetings on sheep management and helped to locate suitable rams. These leaders feel that this work will add several thousand dollars to the income of Marion county farmers, and that self-help is the best help.

CIRCULAR DISCUSSES CLEAN MILK PRODUCTION

"Producing Milk of Good Quality," is the subject of a circular just published by the College of Agriculture, University of Ky. "The production of good, clean, wholesome milk is not a difficult task but one which requires strict attention to details," says Henry B. Morrison, the author. "The producer must be careful not only of the health of his cows and milkers but of the absolute cleanliness of everything with which the milk comes in contact. Also he should be careful to maintain the proper temperature of milk to be sold for human consumption. Elaborate equipment is not so essential in producing clean milk as close adherence to details. Instructions offered in this circular are for the purpose of producing milk of a desirable quality, a milk which will be in demand by the public and of which the dairyman himself will be proud." Copies of the circular may be obtained from county agents, or by writing to the College at Lexington. Ask for circular No. 249.

OUR COMMON ENEMY

In these days of air-tight living quarters it seems so much easier to "take cold" than it was in the days of more liberal circulation of out-door air. Of course people contracted colds then, many of them due to, or complicated by bacteria, but folks were harder in the early day, better able to stand the vicissitudes of climate.

Once when a nostrum-vendor announced "cure your cold in one day," everybody took notice—and rushed to buy the nostrum. I knew those who had been coughing half the winter, who went to work assiduously to cure themselves in one day provided by the quack. Of course the miracle didn't take place, but the quack grew rich just the same as if it had.

Let us not forget this advice: Go to work to break up your cold the moment its onset is felt. By just being prompt like that, you can cure your child in one day. Why not learn how to keep yourself rid of colds, better than any nostrum-vendor on earth can do it?

If you feel the cold coming on, with its sneezing, chilliness, slight sore throat, general depressed feeling, GO TO BED. Get yourself into a sweat as soon as possible. There will be a little fever following the chilly attack. Any family medicine cabinet should have the tablets provided by the family doctor, and these will reduce the temperature, relieve the congestion by getting the surface circulation active, the cold is broken right then! A five-grain tablet of aspirin every hour till three or four are taken—till free sweat occurs. Nothing else needed, except to see that the digestive tract is not overloaded—a gentle but effective laxative may be needed.

A quinine course three grains may be taken every four hours for two or three days. That's all that's necessary to break a common cold. No witchery about it, just promptness.

WHO ARE THEY?

A man stopped me on the street to say that he had some important information. They are going to put the market up in the next few weeks," he said.

"Who are they?" I asked him.

He looked at me scornfully, as though I ought to be ashamed to confess such ignorance. "Why they," he answered, "are the big sheiks, the insiders, the international bankers, the interests."

"Oh," I said, and thanked him and went on my way.

When I graduated from college I had a great deal of awe of the interests, and at that period they were indeed pretty powerful. Important corporations were comparatively few, and those few were small in comparison with today.

Their stock was controlled by a compact group of men who, by acting together, could often make or break the market. Morgan could get them all in a room and tell them what to do.

But times have changed. Corporations are enormous; shares are scattered among millions. They, the interests, are not what they used to be.

One time I served on a civic committee, most of whose members were bankers. The executive secretary was a bright young college graduate. He said to me: "I don't have to worry; when this job is over these big bankers will take care of me."

Well, the job was over, and I told him: "You are going to have a great shock as to the power of the International Bankers. They may control millions, but one thing they can't do is to get you a job. They may send you to the heads of certain corporations with letters of introduction, but they can't insist that you be hired. Those corporation managers will reply to the bankers, 'You hold us responsible; you must let us alone.'"

It turned out as I predicted. The young man finally secured a job, but not by any help of the interests.

I have seen several national elections, but never one in which the partners of any of the big international banking houses were agreed upon a candidate.

Two partners, sitting side by side, would offset each other's votes.

In the last analysis, who are they?

I'll tell you. You and I are they. We run things. A business may have millions of capital, big plants, and huge sales forces. But if you and I do not like its product, all these huge assets are merely liabilities.

Talleyrand said a shrewd thing when he remarked, "There is one person wiser than anybody, and that is everybody." You and I are everybody, and we decide.

Mr. Morgan does not awe me. Even the editor of this paper, who is my boss, does not fill me with any great alarm. But believe me, I care about you, my dear reader.

When you turn your thumbs down I'm through.

According to reports, the United States will not be represented by an observer at the conference on German reparations to be held about January 30. This means that a precedent of some years' standing will be broken, for an American representative has been present at every important reparations conference since the war. The word from Europe is that this conference will deal exclusively with reparations, without direct reference to the war debts. If such a limitation can be imposed, it will be far the wiser. In view of the attitude adopted by Congress on the matter of war debts, any action that is necessary with regard to this problem may, perhaps, be better left to the future, despite the uncertainty that is thereby created.

JESUS AND THE SAMARITAN WOMAN

John 4:1-42

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

To help establish the reality of this incident let the writer refer to his visit in the Samaritan Colony, where just a remnant of only a few score now remain of those who were so despised by the Jews in that day. The very ancient Samaritan Pentateuch was shown me with marked pride. Their history dates back to the destruction of the Northern Kingdom of Israel in 722 B. C. The Passover is still observed each year on Mt. Gerizim according to their own ancient rites. Often the Jews would go far out of their way so as to avoid this region in proceeding to Galilee, but this time "He must needs pass thru Samaria."

The complete humanity of Jesus is evidenced in the lesson setting as the tired man sits at the side of Jacob's well. As the woman comes to draw water Jesus enters upon the personal work in accord with His own "Win One" method of procedure. Let any teacher or preacher who is distressed by reason of an audience of one or even a few only note how Jesus acted. Seeking a favor is often a helpful approach to open the opportunity to render real service in turn. "Give me a drink" is commonplace, but it led to genuine salvation that day.

Just as soon as the woman sensed the divinely spiritual relationship of this passing Jew she was canny in seeking His answer to the vexations problem which kept Jews and Samaritans apart. "Where is the place to worship," she queried. Place is only an incident, for the vital fact is the Person Who is worshipped and how the approach is rightly made. She was informed that "God is a Spirit," and approach to His throne of mercy that can be made from anywhere. Observe that the woman gave answering belief and proclaimed the truth.

STOPPING WAR

My friend Admiral Samuel McGowan was purchasing agent for the Navy during the World War. He saw something of the fine idealism and sacrifice which war calls forth. But he saw, also, how greed and profiteering and the basest sort of selfishness wrap themselves in the cloak of patriotism and proceed cold-bloodedly to exploit the public necessity.

He sends me his plan for preventing war, to which I am glad to give wide publicity.

"Amend the Constitution," he urges, "so as to require that before war can be declared, or participated in (except only in the event of attack or invasion) there shall be a Referendum:

"That if a majority of the votes cast be for peace, the matter ends; if for war, every able-bodied male citizen between the ages of 18 and 35 shall be drafted, and

"That from the day war is declared until peace is finally concluded, no price or wage shall exceed what it was 90 days prior to such declaration.

"That all profits in excess of 5 per cent shall be forfeited to the Government, and that no person, firm or corporation shall in peacetime be received as a contractor who is not a manufacturer, or a regular dealer, in the articles to be supplied—regular dealer being none other than one who, at the time the offer is submitted, either owns outright the articles offered or dependably controls their source of supply."

I cannot see how any intelligent patriotic person can object to that proposal. If we had the sense and courage to write it into the Constitution as expedients are inevitable are expedients for no one would be so foolish as to spend money on propaganda when no money could possibly be made from war.

We should entirely remove the present premium on war and in its stead impose a very heavy penalty.

The silliness of war, modern conditions of destructiveness, is almost as appalling as its horror.

Napoleon like to tell the story of the Dey of Algiers who, on hearing that the French were fitting out an expedition to destroy the town, sent word that if the king would give him half the money that the expedition would cost he would burn the town down himself.

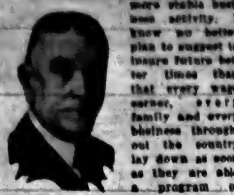

Our experience with war costs and war debts ought to have taught us that the Dey was a pretty wise old owl!

GIVES NATIONAL ECONOMIC PLAN

BORNE C. STEPHENSON
Former President American Bankers Association

We hear much of future economic planning to save the nation from a repetition of depression and promote more stable business activity. I know no better plan to suggest to insure future better times than that every wage earner, every family and every business throughout the country lay down as soon as they are able a program of proper savings as the foundation of their financial policy.

B. C. STEPHENSON

I know of no better plan than to build for the nation as a whole a stronger economic situation, that is, through a common structure of individual working, earning and saving. And I know of no better plan to revive activity in a depression than to spend a proper volume of past savings to keep the momentum of business going. But unless there are savings in prosperity there cannot be spending during depression.

Those who practiced this plan during the past period of prosperity have a security and a protection against present adversity that could be provided in no other way. Those who did not are the ones who are now most dependent upon others. If there had been more preaching of this doctrine when it was more feasible to put it into effect than it is now, there would be less depression and less financial insecurity today.

However, while there should have been more emphasis on savings during prosperity, a measure of the emphasis today might properly be the other way—at least to the extent that those who can safely do so may well increase their spending instead of overdoing their saving. While many have seen their earnings fall, there are millions who have not suffered so seriously in respect to the real purchasing power of their incomes. If we listened to all the scare stories of the day, one might get the impression that everybody was out of a job and nobody's business was earning anything. Many of our people who are able to continue a normal program of prudent buying are curtailing their expenditures beyond reason.

A Business Stimulus

The sum total of this unreasonable curtailment of spending is an economic influence contributing to the stagnation of trade. By the opposite token, I believe the resumption of normal spending on the part of those who are able to do so would be an important tonic toward the stimulation of trade. I do not mean by this that we should have indiscriminate spending merely for the sake of spending, but the very motive power of our economic life is the interchange of goods, and unless we have that we cannot have prosperity.

I strongly believe that we are at that point in the depression stage of the business cycle that any sound stimulating influence will start a real movement in the direction of a return toward prosperity. So much of the weakness of the old state of affairs has been liquidated, so many maladjustments corrected and such large volumes of our consumers' goods have been used up or worn out that the pressure of necessities purchases must sooner or later be felt. When that time definitely comes we may consider it the first impulse of a new era of normal business.

When Government Aids Agriculture

Demand for relief, agricultural or otherwise, comes naturally from those who feel most keenly the impact of economic pressure. Those most affected by quickly to government for aid. But too frequently agencies set in operation by governments simply postpone inevitable adjustments. The basic laws of supply and demand have never been permanently and successfully set aside. So in general governmental intervention that artificially stimulates prices or even maintains them when the prevailing economic situation obviously shows that readjustments are inevitable are expedients that yield only temporary relief rather than permanent cure. Porous plasters may relieve pain for the moment but they rarely get at the seat of the real trouble.—H. L. Russell.

When army worms threatened the crops of Marshall County, Tennessee, information concerning the pests was made available by the College of Agriculture, and farmers immediately took steps to organize a war against the common enemy, calling mass meetings in their communities where complete facts and helpful recommendations for eradication could be put before the greatest number of people possible. This timely action saved the destruction of many fields of crops.

Rich Country Awaits Invitation To Spend Millions In Old Kentucky

Indian Lake On Paducah-Louisville Highway

A very wealthy gentleman is waiting for an invitation to visit Kentucky. He wants to bring along his wife and children, get acquainted with us, travel from one end of the State to the other, look at our mountains, rivers and parks, and he is itching to spend a large amount of genuine cash money while he is here.

This gentleman is Mr. American Tourist. He is enormously rich. He goes places and does things, and is well worth cultivating. Florida, California, Arizona, New Mexico, New England, the Northwest, and the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec know him well and smile contentedly every time his name is mentioned. Their contentment is readily explained. He has helped a lot to make them prosperous.

Take the province of Quebec, for example. The Ministry of Highways reports that 1,261,000 members of the American Tourist family spent more than $65,000,000 in that province during the summer of 1931. For the province of Ontario the Ministry of Highways reports that 4,164,000 members of the same family spent more than $125,000,000 in a similar period.

For the most part Mr. Tourist and his family have never been to Kentucky. They have heard more or less vaguely about us for a good many years. They've gone sentimental when the band played "My Old Kentucky

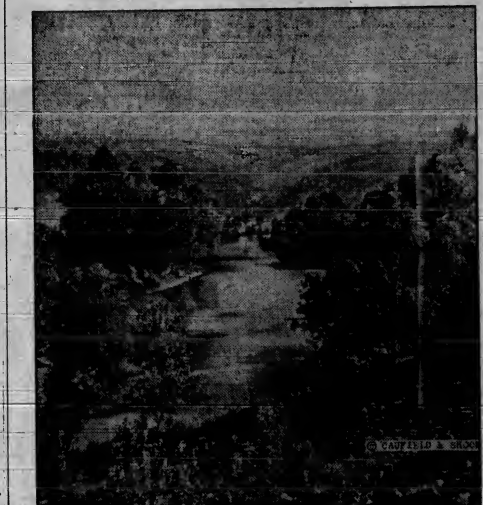

Fulton county farmers are con-

What A Famed Writer Thinks of Kentucky and Kentucky Charms

A Cumberland River Valley in Kentucky

Mrs. Nina Wilcox Putnam, internationally famed author, seems to be rather keen about Kentucky. She recently made a motor trip from New York to California and then described her experiences in a popular weekly magazine of large circulation.

Of Kentucky, Mrs. Putnam, herself a New Englander, said in part:

"As for Kentucky . . . the roads, impassable in most sections five years ago, are now magnificent. . . . And Kentucky is taking its inevitable development in a placid sort of way which has failed to disturb its indigenous charm."

"The new highway (Midland Trail) has all the allure of a detour with all the comforts of modern road building. And nobody can help being struck by the extraordinary courtesy and good manners of the people there."

"I saw a lot of hand-kissing and waist-bowing in Europe; and I only wish that some of those birds who clicked their heels so formally and so stiffly at American manners could attend a Kentucky race meeting just once and get a lesson in manners which are something more than a surface coating."

Mrs. Putnam went into raptures over a layer cake in a Mt. Sterling restaurant; and, she says, she almost

With the approach of the Presidential primaries, the leaders here on "stepping stones" are now doubling their efforts to prevent the New York Governor taking the Democratic nomination virtually by default. The movement in opposition to the New York Governor has progressed to a point where the opposition has undertaken to canvass the states to checkmate the claim that Mr. Roosevelt already in answer a majority in the Democratic Convention.

While the revival of third-party talk is not being taken very seriously by veteran observers, it is significant of the determination of the Republican insurgents to go to any lengths to defeat Mr. Hoover for re-election. Several of them are openly favorable to Governor Roosevelt. His nomination by the Democrats would settle the question of their political allegiance in 1932. Nomination of a Democratic conservative for President would make somewhat more likely the formation of a third party. It could have no real hope of electing its candidate. The object would be to split the Republican party.

Congress returned to work to remain in virtually continuous session until June, when the national party convention will take place. Of the two houses the Senate promises to set the pace in promoting legislation of the most pressing nature. Early in the week it will receive favorable committee reports on the emergency measures that have been urged by President Hoover, including the plan for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to provide credit for industry, agriculture, the railroads and the banks also, should it be

A TRAGEDY

About three years ago, a housewife began to feel unable to perform her usual duties; she consulted a physician, who found a small tumor of the uterus. She was about 46. The doctor kept her under observation, saying "I can remove the thing at any time, but will try to cure without operation, if possible."

He observed that the tumor grew rapidly, in spite of his palliative measures. The patient grew dissatisfied, and changed doctors. The new one paid no attention to the tumor, and said she had diabetes, placing her on a strict diet at once.

Not feeling any better as time went on, the patient had the "staff chemist" of a quack institution make a urinalysis; this self-styled "expert" discovered that the patient had Bright's disease. Time went on—dragged on Haemorrhages set in, which with the diet, greatly weakened the poor woman. A third doctor said it was "the change" and that "all women were troubled that way."

On advice from her second physician, she went to a hospital in the nearby city. Here she was subjected to a clinical diagnosis, and was told that it was not advisable to do anything radical at that time. She returned home and kept on dieting—and losing.

She applied to me about one week ago a this writing. I found absolutely no diabetes or Bright's disease. A search for the source of the bleeding revealed cancer, involving nearly every organ within the pelvis, and long past the stage when operation could do more than to hasten the end! She has no prospect of living over 6 months, if that long.

Had this growth been removed PROMPTLY by the first physician—and he was capable—she might be well today; but the vitally precious interval has passed, and by neglect and utter ignorance of conditions

Unless one knows that it is NOT a malignancy, it is better to operate than to take chances. Remember that.

With a record of five consecutive victories, four of them overwhelming, Kentucky's undefeated Wildcat basketball team are in the far South this week-end, meeting Southern Conference foes.

Coach Rupp and his squad left Lexington Tuesday on a trip which was to find them meeting Clemson and Tennessee and possibly South Carolina. A game with Georgia Tech was cancelled by Tech at the last moment because a suitable floor could not be obtained, the Tech gym having been destroyed by fire.

The final game of the trip will be played at Knoxville Saturday night with the traditional rivals of the Wildcats, the Vols of Tennessee, will be met. The Blue defeated the Vols twice last season, and the Wildcat foot ball team beat the Vols on Thanksgiving, while the track carried away another victory last spring.

Coach Rupp's men will make this trip without the services of De-

The demand in Congress for direct appropriation of Federal funds for relief of the unemployed is one over which there promises to be a bitter fight. Advocates will insist that because funds raised by agencies in the States are inadequate the Government's duty is to take care of the starving. Opponents will raise the issue of the debt.

It was amusing to hear the demand that Congress should stay in session during the holidays to hasten by a few days the passage of certain bills. Ordinarily the critics, when it is in session, clamor for its adjournment. Its very presence in Washington is invoked against it as if ruinous to the country. And recently the same critics have been crying out to Congress to save the country. Of course, in this case these persons may have a necessary evil, it being unfortunately required by our system of government that legislation should pass through Congress. If a mere executive decree were sufficient to make laws, a lot of time might be saved.

President Hoover's unexpected special message to Congress emphasizes the extreme urgency of the passage of the relief measures suggested by the Administration. These measures, as he points out, are non-partisan in character, drawn after consultation with the leaders in various phases of the national life. They may not be the only possible plan for ameliorating the prevailing unfortunate situation, but they constitute the only plan yet presented which would be calculated to have that effect.

Molsey, star center who came to the University from Walton. DeMolsey, six foot four inches in height, is ineligible until the latter part of this month because of a scholastic difficulty. Sale, forward of Lawrenceburg, will probably be shifted to center in most of the games, with Johnson and Worthington at guard; and Darby and Kreuter at forwards, with Hughes Little, Blair, Kleiser and George being listed as reserves.

Ellis Johnson, brilliant star from Ashland, is leading the Wildcats this season. George Yates, captain-elect, being lost to the team because of illness. Johnson is declared by basket ball followers to be one of the best guards ever developed in the South.

Kentucky 4-H Club girls figured prominently in a national canning contest, sponsored by the Hazel-Atlas Glass Company and held in Chicago during the International Live Stock Exposition. The Junction City 4-H Club from Boyle county won fourth as a club, and received $40 as a prize, while Martha Ewing, a member of the Junction City Club, exhibited the best jar of vegetables in the entire show of several thousand jars. Pauline Waggoner, a Fulton-co., 4-H girl, won five prizes, including second on canned pickles and relishes.

Approximately 1,275,000 tons of limestone and marl have been spread on the land in the past eight years in Kentucky counties having farm agents, according to a summary made by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Of this amount 1,250,000 tons were ground limestone. Less was used last year than in most recent years, probably due to the drought of 1930 and the depression. "Now is the time to build up the land and be in position to reap profits when good times return," comments the agronomy department of College.

Lawrence county farmers who produced their own feeds, are making money from their dairy cows. County Agent J. E. Parsons believes. Two new dairy barns have been built and two more planned. Most herds are being given good care.

Raspberry growers in the Parkville community in Boyle county are planning a larger acreage. Approximately 75 acres should produce fruit this year, with 100 or more acres for 1933. There also is a considerable acreage owned by non-members of the cooperative marketing association.

Jessamine county produced 65,000 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed last year. Dr. H. C. McLean of the Wilmore community produced 13,000 pounds, all of which he plans to sow back on his farm. Newton McCounthy produced 3,900 pounds of seed on six acres of lespedeza.

J. H. Thomas has added 12 purebred cattle to his Pike county dairy herd.

A HOPEFUL LOOK AHEAD

Already we see signs that 1932 is going to be a better year for most everybody than 1931 was. Perhaps the most encouraging sign is the hopeful outlook that most people seem to have. The human mind is a curious thing. It has to have, for most of us, symbols of milestones to focus upon. The end of 1931 and the beginning of 1932 was such a milestone. Everywhere we hear people speak with thankfulness of the fact that the year 1931 is dead. They are sure that 1932 cannot be any worse and, therefore, must be better.

There is nothing logical, of course, about such reasoning; in fact, it is not reasoning at all. But human affairs are seldom, or never, governed by reason by sentiment. And if this sentimental belief that, somehow, 1932 is going to be better, reflects a widespread hope, then 1932 certainly will be better.

There is more than mere emotion, however, on which to base the belief that we are going to "get pretty nearly out of the woods before this year is over." Probably there never has been so much painstaking, intelligent research into economic conditions as has been going on during the past year. And now the reports are coming in from the people who have been studying the situation much more closely than any individual editor can study it, and they are all encouraging. Business is showing more stability in many lines, industry is beginning to pick up, there is ground for expectation that the Debt Conference in Europe and the International Disarmament Conference will relieve the war depression in some way.

Even if the rest of the world does not find quick relief from its troubles, however, nothing can be more certain than that we in the United States are beginning to pull out of the Slough of Despond and that is the first step toward planting our feet firmly on the road back to prosperity. At the very worst, we are and always have been better off in America than ordinary folks like us could ever hope to be in Europe. When we come right down to it, we have gone farther in this country toward solving the major problems of living for the ordinary man than any other nation has ever done since the beginning of time.

Comment Cauliflower

Break the head into four-fifths as soon as it is cooked and season it with half a teaspoon of salt and a third of a teaspoon of oil and a ready, too every kind of cauliflower cream sauce made from a tablespoon of butter, half a tablespoon of flour and two cups of milk, seasoned with half a teaspoon of salt. The sauce should be cooked for about twelve minutes until it is smooth and thick.

Creamed Cauliflower can be served plain or on slices of toast. Chopped parsley or lemon juice can be added to the sauce just before it is poured over the cauliflower.

Boiled cauliflower can be served with lemon juice, pepper, salt, grated butter and melted butter.

Cauliflower au gratin is made from cauliflower, broken in large pieces before it is boiled, and then cooked for about twenty minutes. Put the pieces in a baking dish and sprinkle them with grated cheese—Parmesan is the best. Then sprinkle the dish with fine breadcrumbs and small pieces of butter.

Four over the whole a sauce made from 3 beaten egg yolks, to which is added a tablespoon of salt, a teaspoon of lemon juice, two tablespoons of grated cheese, a tablespoon of melted butter and a little pepper. Brown in the oven.

Marshmallow Sweet Potatoes
3 large sweet potatoes.
½ tsp. salt.
1-2 cup sugar.
½ cup butter.
8-10 marshmallows.
1-3 cup water.

Wash and peel potatoes, cut in halves or pieces one inch crosswise and add salt, sugar, butter and water. Bake in casserole or baking dish. When tender, uncover and put marshmallows on top to melt and brown in oven.

Individual Shortcake
There is no way of serving short cake quite so dainty as serving an individual shortcake to everyone at the table. And there's no more delicious or time-saving way of making these individual shortcakes than with appetizing little fingers of light, fluffy sponge cake.

To make a shortcake, all you need to do is split the finger, fill with crushed fruit or berries sweetened to taste, then cover with whipped cream and top off with slices of fruit or whole berries.

Cauliflower Dumplings
Cauliflower dumplings can be made from left-over cauliflower. Put the pieces of cauliflower thru a vegetable ricer and add a little salt, pepper, meat, melted butter and milk. Add a beaten egg and enough farina to make the mixture firm. Mould into small balls and boil them for six minutes.

Form this batter into rolls about five inches long, roll in greased paper and bake moderately for an hour. They should be served hot. According to the government report it was the custom of the Indians to bake these cakes by rolling them in husks of corn, a practice which is recommended to campers.

Indian Bread
Mix thoroughly the following ingredients: One cup of white corn meal, one cup of yellow corn meal, one teaspoonful of cayenne and one cup of chopped suet. Add a cup of cold water and stir thoroughly. Form this batter into rolls about five inches long, roll in greased paper and bake moderately for an hour. They should be served hot.

Staffed Cauliflower
Stuffed cauliflower is made of a head of cauliflower, boiled whole until it is tender. It should then be dropped in cold water to blanch and then the head should be cut out and chopped with half a dozen mushrooms and some cayenne pepper. Put the stuffing in the cavity in the head and put the whole on a hot dish, covered with a piece of cheesecloth, in the oven for a moment to heat. Do the work quickly so that the cauliflower will not need much heating. Serve with white sauce.

Big Business in Mammoth Cave

"Ruins of Karnak" in Mammoth Cave

Kentucky has greater wealth than most states in scenic beauties and historic places. Its hospitality is world famed. It has hundreds of miles of the highways in all sections and this mileage is steadily and rapidly increasing.

With these attractions, Kentucky is beginning to draw motor tourists from other states far and near. These tourists spend money with us—a surprisingly large aggregate sum—and they return home to tell their friends of the charms of Kentucky and Kentuckians.

As California, Colorado, Florida, Canada and other states and nations can testify, the tourist business is highly profitable in several ways. The visitors not only spend money themselves. Some of them in time return to live among us, bringing new blood.

BULLETIN REPORTS
SOIL EXPERIMENTS
Soil fertility investigations upon the outlying experimental fields of the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, from the time they were established thru 1930, are reported in a recent bulletin issued by the Experiment Station.

The fields, which include the principal soil types in the state outside of the Bluegrass region, are located as follows: Berea in Madison county, Fariston in Laurel county, Campbellsburg in Taylor county, Greenville in Muhlenberg county, Mayfield in Graves county, and Lone Oak in McCracken county.

A field maintained at Hopkinsville was discontinued in 1929, and a report of the investigations there was made in bulletin No. 299. Results of the work at the Experiment Station farm at Lexington will be reported in a later bulletin. The bulletin just published relates of the soil fertility, drainage, and other data which are of great value to the farmer and the student of soil science.

Writer Suggests Government Adopt Retrenchment Policy

BY FRED HOLMES

Washington Cor. for The Boone County Recorder

It has not infrequently happened that when a private business enterprise found itself in serious difficulties the president, or the proprietor, called the employees together and addressed them, in substance, as follows:

"Boys, for nearly three years we have been operating at a loss. We are reaching the bottom of our well. There seems to be little if any hope of early improvement. Unless expenses are materially cut we will be unable to meet the interest on our bonds this year. That would mean foreclosure, and possibly the end of the business and of our jobs. Only with your help through temporary sacrifice can we hope for rehabilitation and continued business existence. Will you help?"

And if there is no reason to doubt the veracity and sincerity of the boss, the "boys" usually will—and do.

All governments should be, and popular governments are, nothing more than big business enterprises in which every citizen holds a share of stock. The business is that of selling the right to "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," of selling protection in the exercise of such rights; of selling service—postal, medical, informative, advisory and supervisory.

During an era of prosperity when practically everyone possessing even a modicum of brains and business ability is making money, very few consider it worth while to combat even moderate tax increases to meet governmental extravaganzas. And with a bulging treasury and a comfortable surplus few are inclined to demand governmental economy, the abolishment of surpluses, the refusal of petitions for undeserved and unearned increases in pay to a horde of political sap-suckers.

But the most strange of all things is the real or simulated blindness of a vast majority of the recipients as well as the dispensers of our government's favors to the fact that government is a business, just as amenable to the rules of business and just as much subject to bankruptcy as any other kind of business. Do they learn anything from the lesson of Chicago's present financial plight? Of course not. Do they appreciate the effects of the major surgical operation which Philadelphia is now undergoing? Certainly not. The treasury may be empty, we may be facing a deficit of billions, already burdensome taxes must be increased, future generations will have to be saddled with enormous payments for dead horses, we are in the midst of an unprecedented period of business depression, unemployment is developing proportions which give substance to that heretofore political catchphrase "we view with alarm."

No, in one or another daddy can raise the money, and "we gotta live, ain't we?"

There has been and is a great deal of agitation here in Washington over reports that all Government salaries above $2,000 per year are to be cut ten per cent during the present session of Congress. Uncle Sam was quite generous in the matter of pay increases during a period of prosperity. Why should not his beneficiaries respond to his appeal for assistance during a period of serious depression? There are many hard-working federal employees who are concededly under-paid under present schedules, but there are also a vast number who not only are overpaid but whose services could be dispensed with altogether with increased efficiency in the service.

Of course it will hurt; the farmers are being hurt, business is being hurt, all taxpayers are being hurt, this newspaper and its correspondent are being hurt, but so far advised they are all manfully "standing the gaff." In fact, the only ones unwilling to "stand the gaff" would seem to be communists, the voluntary idlers and the political appointees to soft governmental berths.

And now Representative Joseph W. Byrns, of Tenn., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, is quoted as saying that Speaker, John N. Garner favors a cut in congressional salaries of ten per cent. But Congressmen and Senators are being bombarded with memorials, letters and telegrams protesting against the reduction in pay.

Washington newspapers are taking up the cudgels against the cut, a large proportion of their readers being Federal employees. And the local merchants and real-estate dealers of Washington are disturbed by the threat of less spending money in the city. Up to the present Washington has felt the depression less probably than any other city in the country, its chief industry being governing the U. S. which goes right on, panic or no panic.

No one begrudges tiding over the worthy victims of depression with a loan of five or ten billion dollars. But it does not seem to occur to anyone to inquire where that five or ten billions is coming from. No one begrudges to the boys who went over seas a few years ago a full measure of compensation for their sacrifices. But under present conditions it is somewhat startling to learn that in spite of mounting deficits, the necessity for heavily increased taxation and the huge amounts of Government grants to veterans, a drive is about to be started by the Veterans of Foreign Wars for payment of the bonus in full.

In advance of this drive officials of the organization boldly assert that despite the opposition of the administration to immediate redemption of the adjusted service certificates, "the veterans, their friends and those who will benefit from the cashing of the certificates will force Congress to support the legislation."

Announcement of the drive was made by the vice chairman of the National Legislative Committee of the Veterans or Foreign Wars. He asserted a canvass recently disclosed that many of Congress previously neutral or opposed to liquidation of the certificates were now committing themselves to support of a measure introduced by Representative Patman, of Texas, calling for payment.

What price patriotism?

Lee county farmers believe there is more money in grapes than in tobacco.

Logan Chapman made $365 from an acre of grapes, Dr. A. H. Hoskins $302 from two acres. Albert Steele $57 from a fourth of an acre. Several other farmers reported good returns from small acreages of grapes or other fruit.

Many phases of farming and homemaking will be discussed at the 20th annual Farm and Home Convention at the Experiment Station at Lexington Jan. 28-29. Speakers, both from within and without the state, will have their say about problems confronting the farmer. Sessions will begin at 10 o'clock and continue to 3 each day, which means that persons living within 100 miles of Lexington can drive in for each day's program, or for any program in which they may have particular interest. Those who travel by train will pay a fare and a half for the round trip.

CARD OF THANKS

Words fail to express our sincere thanks and deep appreciation to each and everyone who were so kind and helpful during the illness and death of our dear mother, Mrs. Ollie M. Kelly. Especially do we thank Bro. Cummins for his comforting words, Dr. M. A. Yelton for his untiring efforts, Mrs. Miller, the nurse, and Undertaker C. Scott Chambers. There are many others far too numerous to mention who did many things to lighten our burden.

GARDEN PLANNING I

By John S. Gardnet, Kentucky College of Agriculture.

With the seed catalogues coming in numbers, it is not strange that our minds are beginning to run to gardening, the cool weather and the calendar notwithstanding.

Although it is obviously too early to begin planning, it is not too early to begin planning, so that, when the season finally comes, the work may move forward with dispatch.

Garden planning includes many things. To begin with it should be decided just what is to be expected of the garden, whether the entire year's vegetable food requirements are to be met, or whether only part, and what part. The size of the garden space will go far in determining just how many vegetables it is possible to grow, although the amount grown in past years may not necessarily be a guide, for it is possible that that amount may be increased by utilizing space-saving cropping schemes. It is here that planning will help, in that opportunity is given for fitting in such cropping systems.

Garden planning will benefit those gardeners who annually have difficulty in raising tomatoes and cabbage, because of the soil disease that affect these crops, and whose sole relief is through using special varieties that resist these diseases. These special varieties are not handled regularly by most seedsmen, but if their attention were called to the matter early enough, they would get them. But, more of this, later.

Even those gardeners who need only the standard varieties will find better if they make out their seed orders early, before the spring rush for garden seed begins. No seed list can be made out without a plan.

Garden planning could reasonably include the planning of the summer insect campaign. The proper insecticides could be arranged for, or actually purchased in advance, while prices are still relatively low. In this connection, it would be well to see to the apparatus to be used in applying insecticides, so as not to be caught unaware when the time for using it is at hand, for insects do not grant moratoriums.

The cultivating tools might also be inventoried, and it might be well to go into a study as to whether the adoption of additional tools, as for example, a wheel hoe, or "garden plow" might not expedite matters.

But, now, to the garden plan itself. The way to begin is to measure up the garden spot and make an exact map of it on paper. If the garden is of odd shape, this should be shown. So should low spots, rows of perennials, trees, walks, and any other features that might affect the vegetable planting. On this plan should be shown, too, the vegetable rows of last year, in order that their replanting to the same vegetable in 1932 may be avoided, and thus the risk of accumulating diseases that follow unless crop rotation is practiced, lessened.

The space allotted for this week's article is filled, but in the next few weeks, discussions of the details for complete garden planning will follow. These discussions, it is hoped, will enable all gardeners to live up to their slogan, or rather, the slogan any gardener might well adopt: "Even Better Gardens in 1932."

The possibility of the county purchasing a limestone crusher is being discussed in Harrison county.

COLLEGE FURNISHES DAIRY HOUSE PLANS

Plans for milk houses and dairy barns, designed by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, are being furnished to farmers in the 17 counties affected by the new milk ordinance of Louisville.

The ordinance made necessary the remodeling of milk houses, barns and other equipment on many farms. Approximately 2,200 milk shippers live in the Louisville milkshed, according to a survey, and approximately 1,000 new milk houses, 100 new dairy barns, and 1,000 remodeled barns may be required.

To help farmers meet the requirements of the new ordinance, the department of agricultural engineering of the College of Agriculture and Experiment Station designed a two-room milk house 12 x 14 feet that meets the approval of the State and Louisville boards of health.

Plans for this milk house, including a bill of materials, together with plans for new dairy barns or remodeling of old barns, can be secured from the College at a nominal charge to cover postage. Two hundred plans already have been supplied farmers in the Louisville milkshed.

Many Letcher county farm women are canning beef, pork and poultry, following canning demonstrations sponsored by the county agent.

Members of the strawberry growers' association in Pulaski and Lincoln counties expect to set 500 acres of berries this spring.

The Washington County Poultry Association has contracted to sell eggs to a hatchery at a premium over market prices.

A Boyd county farmer paid $35 for a cow that produced, the first year after she was purchased, 325 pounds of butterfat.

Mrs. Evan Agee, of Owen county, who owns a profitable poultry flock, sold $350 worth of turkeys last year.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and neighbors who so generously aided in any way during the illness and death of our dear beloved father Mr. John Deck. Especially do we wish to thank the nurses for their tender care, Dr. Love for his kind attention, Bro. Smith and Bro. Dunaway for their consoling words, and Mr. C. Scott Chambers for the way in which he conducted the funeral.

The Family

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means to publicly thank the many friends for their many kind words and acts of sympathy shown in our great bereavement in the death of our beloved husband and father Marion Francis Bruce, especially do we thank Mrs. Ella Acra, who stayed with us, and Rev. Dunaway for his consoling words. Mr. Williams for the efficient manner in which the funeral was conducted. May God bless each and every one who remembered us in our time of affliction as our prayer.

Mr. Joe Ellen Bruce and Family

A. L. Nichols, who lives near Burlington, brought to this office Wednesday a fire plant that had buded out. California has nothing on us in the matter of weather.

Freed From Pain After Suffering Two Years

"For two long years I was in agony, the pains were so severe I lost much sleep and became very nervous, my limbs were swollen—I carefully followed advice rendered me by people who were supposed to know, I took medicine daily, but none seemed to affect my condition."

"As time went on I became desperate, my kidneys were bothering me more than ever, my bladder had become weak, and I was compelled to arise many times during the night. Karnak was recommended, and I decided to find out just what it would do. I have used several bottles and just what a glorious change, no one can ever realize. I have no pain whatever, my system is gradually becoming normal and I feel better than I have in years, I shall always praise and advise Karnak to anyone suffering from rheumatism."

"THE CROSSROADS NEWSPAPER"

BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, Jan. 24, 1932

NUMBER FIVE

WITHDRAWALS

FROM BANKS CAUSING FAILURES — CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS THAT THOSE WHO "BOARD" PRIVATELY WOULD BE NO BETTER OFF IN EVENT OF FAILURE OF BANKING AS A SYSTEM

Life is a gamble.

Although Calvin Coolidge, a penurious New Englander, may not be given to gambling as a form of vice, yet he has a full realization that life after all is nothing more than a gamble itself.

While some of us may not believe in many of Mr. Coolidge's theories of politics and government it must be admitted that many of his theories are sound. He certainly makes use of some very commendable arguments in a recent article in the American Magazine relative to the present dilemma in which he frankly admits that we find ourselves enmeshed.

The article by Mr. Coolidge contains many theories regarding our present stress and advances some sound ideas in regard to methods and means by which we might attempt to extricate ourselves. However, his ideas along the lines of banking crises particularly appeal to our sense of reasoning.

We do not own a dollars worth of stock in any bank. Therefore, we could have no ulterior motive in circulating some of the ideas of the ex-president, which tend to condemn the idea of withdrawals from banks for self protection in times of stress. Along this line Mr. Coolidge has this to say: "If all the people attempted to draw their money from the banks, all commerce would be reduced to barter, and universal bankruptcy would prevail."

Many of the closed doors of banks in this part of the country would be open today had not depositors become unduly frightened and withdrawn deposits. It is deposits that make banks. And at the same time it is banks that make deposits. You deposit your money so that someone else may borrow, in fact so that you may borrow yourself.

Mr. Coolidge says further: "While particular banks may become unsound, we can feel adequately certain that the banking system as a whole will not become unsound. If it ever did, (and here is where the taciturn Vermontor hits the nail squarely on the head) we would find that the money we had hidden away had become unsound also. It would not be possible to buy anything with it."

In many instances it had not been possible for you to have borrowed some sort of capital you would not have been enabled to have gained what you now have. In other words, if the bank had not "gamble" with you then you might have had nothing to withdraw.

Quoting again from Mr. Coolidge: "Those who are engaged in hoarding currency are probably no safer as a class than those who keep their funds in banks. They are injuring themselves and everybody else. They are in a position of not taking their part of the risks of life and are trying to make themselves safe by letting others carry the risks for them."

After all "life is a gamble."

WARNING, AUTOISTS!

Covington and Cincinnati police have been warned to cite all auto owners with improper license after February 1st. The time was extended until that time to allow delinquent autoists ample time. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hickman and Ray Hickman and family spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. McCauley at Florence.

Geo. Long, of Grant county, has moved to the farm of Cad Sullivan near Bullittville where he will farm the coming season.

Lawrence Pope, overseer of state roads in this section is making a much needed improvement on the Florence road leading from Burlington. The turn near the residence of Hubert Beaman long has been a very dangerous one, especially in wet and slippery weather. The turn is now being banked on the outside and, when the job is completed, greatly will enhance the safety of motorists traveling this road.

UTOPIA CLUB PLANNING FOR A BIG YEAR IN 1932

Boone County Utopia Club No. 3 is planning a big year for 1932. Increased membership and greater economic and educational service to members is the goal of the club. A study on important farm problems with debates between members will be conducted at each of the meetings.

The question, "Whether or not farm records are of value to the average farmer" will be debated by Kirtley McWethy and John Cox on the affirmative, and Dr. Stephens and Wilton Stephens on the negative at the next meeting.

A special recreational program will be conducted at each meeting. The club has been divided into groups and each group is responsible at one time or another for the program. Burlington group will be in charge of the February program.

CONSTANCE MAN

ELECTED ON EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF KENTUCKY, INDIANA AND OHIO TRUCK AND FRUIT GROWERS — MEETING HELD AT CINCINNATI

Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio truck and fruit growers met in Cincinnati last Friday and perfected the first step in the organization of fruit and truck crops growers selling on the Cincinnati market. More than sixty delegates from the Cincinnati territory counties were present at the meeting.

Each county was allowed five growers and the county agent as delegates. Mr. C. L. Hemphing, of Taylorsport, Mr. Luther Rouse, of Hebron, Mr. Frank Dolwick of Constance, Mr. Sterling Rouse, of Florence and Mr. F. H. Rouse of Burlington were elected Boone county committeemen. Mr. Frank Dolwick was selected by the Boone county delegation to represent them on the executive committee to decide on the organization activities during the coming season.

The organization proposes to represent the growers in the protection and marketing of their products on the Cincinnati market. Four possible improvements are being studied: (1) The standardization of products sold, (2) the organization of a cooperative marketing or stock company, (3) the employing of one special commission company to sell the members products and (4) the improvement in the present market set up.

W. W. MAGILL TO ATTEND FRUIT MEETINGS

Mr. W. W. Magill, field worker from the College of Agriculture will meet with Boone county fruit growers at their annual winter fruit meeting to be held next Wednesday, February 3rd. The winter meetings serve each year to help growers brush up and plan their years orchard program.

The meetings will be held at the following places on Wednesday, February 3rd: 9:15 A. M. — J. W. Goodridge's near Burlington. 1:00 P. M. — Emmett Riddell's near Hebron.

Good orchard demonstrations will be seen at both places but the big benefit from these meetings will be from the discussions brought from the discussions they wotkow out by the growers themselves. Everyone interested in the fruit work of the county is invited to attend. It is hoped there will be a good turnout at both places.

Strawberry and raspberry production will be given special discussion on the afternoon program. Grapes as a possible cash crop for Boone county will also be discussed. Apple and peach production will receive the principal discussions in the morning meeting.

BARN BURNS

A barn on the farm of Charles L. Elly, of the Waterloo neighborhood, was destroyed by fire about six o'clock last Wednesday evening. Before neighbors could reach the scene the flames had acquired such headway that it was impossible to check them.

Mr. Kelly said that the barn was used principally for the storing of apples in the harvest season. The barn contained, however, several tons of hay and about 75 shocks of fodder at the time of the fire, all of which was destroyed. The loss was covered by insurance in the Boone County Mutual Insurance Company.

Origin of the fire was unknown.

INDIANS

HAND DEFEAT TO BOONE CO. ALL-STAR IN CLOSE GAME — RALLY OF BOONE CO. BOYS FAILS TO REACH BY NINE POINTS

The First American basket ball team, better known as the Indians, was victorious over the All-Star team captained by Coach C. O. Lamb, of Florence High School, last Thursday night at Florence. The crowd that witnessed the game was said to have been one of the largest that ever witnessed a basket ball game in the county.

The following players played for the All-Stars: Maurer, Scott, Aylor, Hartman, Ritsfield, Lamb, Hickman, Bradburn, Williamson, and Rice. Hartman was the leader in the scoring with eight points, while Maurer was second with six. Bearpaw and Lightfoot each scored nine for the Indians. The final score was 30-27, the All-Stars making a great rally in the last quarter.

Approximately 100 Boone county farmers demonstrated their interest in farm problems through eight community program of work meetings held during the past two weeks according to county agent H. R. Forkner. The interest in these meetings varied from farm taxes to farm organization and from potatoes to cows.

The high spots of these meetings which have been held each winter for the past three years and in most communities for the past seven years were as follows:

Florence — Potatoes thru demonstrations have shown that this crop can be made locally as important cash crop as tobacco. The present acreage per farm is too small to employ efficient machinery. Eight acres estimated as the most efficient working unit.

Hebron — The production of proper home grown feed necessary for profitable milk production. A dairy feeding school and crops meeting planned for February to study these problems. A dairy organization to study present marketing problems. A dairy organization to study present marketing problems. Orchard field meeting planned.

Constance — Strawberries and grapes offer new cash crop possibilities. Plan for fruit meeting to study further possibilities. Stronger 4-H club organization planned.

Taylorsport — Interest in small fruits and new truck crops to be developed.

Petersburg — Tobacco root rot and disease control demonstrations planned. Potato seed treatment and heavy fertilizer demonstrations planned.

Hamilton — Plan for larger 4-H club organization and a community fair in the fall. Three root rot control tobacco demonstrations planned.

Grant — Balancing of the farm business according to what the farm produces. The production on the farm of the maximum amount of feed fed to livestock and food for the family. Stomach worms in sheep control demonstrations planned with use of Eubacterin solution with regular monthly treatment from May to November.

Walton — Use of economical dairy rations properly balanced for lowering cost in milk production. A clean chick program for the elimination of disease and demonstrations in the production of Korean lespedeza.

WILL NOT GO INTO POOL, ACCORDING TO REPORT — NOT ENOUGH TOBACCO LEFT TO JUSTIFY — EFFORT WILL BE CONTINUED TO COMPLETE ORGANIZATION FOR 1932

Information has reached this office that not a sufficient amount of the 1931 crop of tobacco has been signed up to warrant the declaration of a pool of that crop.

This was learned at a state wide meeting at Lexington last week after all contracts had been turned in. However, it was learned at the same time that a large proportion of the burley growers had signed for 1932 and that a strenuous campaign will be waged in an effort to perfect an organization in time to market next year's crop.

About 150 growers attended the meeting at Burlington last Wednesday night when it was learned that about 300 Boone county farmers had signed contracts. Petersburg proved to be the banner precinct in signing up the 1931 crop when they turned in contracts for 60,000 pounds.

County Judge N. E. Riddell, sporting a fine Texas coat of tan and divers and numerous pictures of himself taken while picking oranges, arrived in Burlington last Saturday night after six weeks spent with relatives in San Antonio. Judge Riddell looks to be much improved in health and immensely benefited by his stay in the lone Star state.

F. A. Harrison, former county judge of Grant county, and now a prominent Williamstown attorney, was looking after the interests of a client in county court here Monday morning of this week. Judge Harrison is one of the most able attorneys in the Fifteenth Judicial district and enjoys a large and lucrative practice.

County Road Overseer A. O. Rouse has been ill at his home this week. Arch's friends will be glad to see him return to his work at an early date.

It was announced thru these columns some time ago that James Welsh, well known showman, had disappeared from his Covington home. This information was received on good authority and may have been true at the time. However, Mr. Welsh is not now among the missing as the writer saw him in Cincinnati last week. We did not ask him any particulars about the report.

NOTICE

The P. T. A. of New Haven Consolidated School will have a prayer meeting Friday Jan. 28th, 1932, at 2:30 P. M. All members are asked to be present. Important business.

Publicity Chairman

It has been announced that M. S. Winder, Executive Secretary of the American Farm Bureau, will speak at the Kentucky Farm Bureau meeting, which will be held in Room 201 of the Agricultural Engineering Building in Lexington on January 29th, at 1:40 P. M. All Farm Bureau members in this county are urged to attend and hear him.

Mrs. W. B. Cotton has been at the bedside of her mother in Verona for the past few days.

RIGHT UTOPIA CLUB MEMBERS KEEP RECORDING

Eight Boone County Utopia club No. 3 members are keeping complete farm account records on their farms or their fathers' farms during 1932. These complete records involve beginning and closing inventories and a complete record of all expenses and receipts from the farm. A business analysis is supplied by the College of Agriculture after the records are completed at the end of the year.

Three Utopia club members completed farm account records for 1931. They are Ben C. Stephens, Wilton Stephens and Grant Maddox. The new records started this dox. The new records started this year are kept by Wm. Cox, George Worley, Robt. Hafer, Lloyd Siskman, and Kirtley McWethy.

SUNDAY MAIL

TO CONTINUE AT BURLINGTON — GRANT ALSO TO HAVE 13 MAILS PER WEEK, IS REPORT — FOURTEEN BIDDERS FOR STAR ROUTE JOB

A number of letters from Congressman Brent Spence, at Washington, which were received here recently report that it is practically assured that Burlington will continue to have a Sunday mail and that the recommendation to do away with that service was made "under misapprehension."

Mr. Spence further said that bids would be advertised soon calling for thirteen trips weekly from Grant to Erlanger and return, thus assuring Grant of a Sunday mail also, as well as two mails each of the other days in the week. Congressman Spence certainly is to be heartily commended for his efforts in behalf of the patrons of at both offices.

Bids already have been received at Washington for the Star Route from Burlington to Erlanger. Master Everett Hickman, of Burlington, states that the greatest number were received for the job since he has been postmaster here. A total of fourteen applied, he said, but the successful bidder has not been learned as yet. The successful bidder on his job probably will be awarded the Grant to Burlington to Erlanger job on a mileage basis, it is said.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Siskman and daughter spent Sunday with H. L. Crigler and family near Hebron.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rouse and son, Dudley, spent Sunday with Karl Rouse and family on the Bellevue pike.

R. E. Berkshire, Master Commissioner, will conduct five sales of real estate at the court house door next Monday at 1 o'clock. One sale advertised for that day will not be held inasmuch as the defendants settled the case early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Rogers spent Friday with Ed. Burris and family of the Bellevue pike.

Misses Thelma Politt and Ruth Kathleen, spent Sunday with Rev. Politt and family.

Ed. Lamkin, editor of the Gallatin County News, and Wm. Connelley, both of Warsaw, were Burlington visitors Wednesday morning. Mr. Connelley is the manager of the Stolls Golden Tip basketball team, which boasts an enviable record in this section.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

A nice crowd attended the Sunday school services at Holy Sunlight Mission.

We were favored by an instrumental trio by Avalon Hood, Evelyn Milson and Vivian Hood. Another special was a recitation called "Recessional" recited by Ella Weber.

We were glad to have Bro. Patterson from God's Bible School with us for Sunday night service.

Several of the folks from the Mission visited Pike St. church last Sunday morning.

Tuesday night services were led by Mrs. A. Perry.

We enjoyed the story she read to us, and we feel that credit is due her for the able way in which the services were led.

Many were the smiles of approval cast on Louis Brown and Bro. Joe Milson for the special songs which they sang.

JAIL EMPTY

FOR FIRST TIME IN MANY MONTHS — THIRTEEN GREATEST NUMBER EVER CONFINED IN LOCAL BASTILLE — NUMBER OF CONVICTS FROM BOONE SHOWING INCREASE

In going over some of last year's files we find that when the Boone Circuit Court opened on the second Monday in April last year that Jailer Elmer Kirkpatrick had under his care just thirteen prisoners. That was a record number at that time and still is, so far as we have been able to learn.

The jail holds twelve prisoners comfortably, so that Mr. Kirkpatrick was forced to "stretch" the walls somewhat on that occasion. However, there is no cause for "stretching" this week. For the first time in many years the jail is absolutely empty.

Old residents of Burlington recall such times many years ago, but during the past ten years there has seldom been a time when there were not from two to eight prisoners confined here. Years ago it is said that when a prisoner was lodged in jail it was quite an event, while at times it became necessary to cut down big weeds that had grown so large and hard in front of the door that it was impossible to open it.

How times do change? During the past two years there have been 23 prisoners sentenced to the State Reformatory from Boone county, while during the four years immediately preceding there were only 11 convicted of penitentiary offenses. Who will be the next?

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

Last Friday night, Jan. 22, the Tomcats and Kittens journeyed to Sanders where they marked up two more victories to their credit. The boys defeated the strong Warsaw boys by a score of 28 to 1, and the girls won by a score of 15 to 1.

The Kittens and Sanders game was a defense game from the beginning to end. One team was just as apt to have the ball as the other. In the first half Sanders made 7 points while the Kittens made 15. Also in the last half both teams came back with plenty of fight, but this time the Kittens allowed the Sanders girls to get but 7 points, while they fell down two points themselves, making thirteen points. The Sanders girls were the proud owners of new uniforms which showed up very well.

Some time the Tomcats are going to walk too long to win a basket ball game and it looked like it going to be that way Friday night when they neared out the fast Warsaw High School boys at Sanders by a score of 23 to 9. In the beginning of the first half until the half was over the Tomcats were kept from getting but 3 points, which was a free shot from foul line and a crib by Hensley. The Warsaw defense could not be broken. When the last half began the Tomcats seemed to pick up. Sebes, who substituted for Rouse, who was injured in the first of the last half, seemed to have started the ball rolling when he made a crib which was followed up by William Cook with a long shot from near the center. This seemed to put new life in the Tomcats and they soon marked up 19 of their 22 points before the game ended. Cook was high point maker, making eight of the Tomcats 22 points. Richards, for Warsaw, tied with Cook also, making 5 points.

Next Saturday night, January 30th, there will be an Old Fiddlers Contest held at Burlington High School Auditorium. The proceeds will go to the six lower grades. The committee is working hard to have some of the best fiddlers in northern Ky. who will try for the prizes which are: 1st prize—$5.00; 2nd prize—$4.00; 3rd prize—$3.00. Admission 25c and 15c.

Beginning next Friday there will be a change in school chapel program. The six lower grades will have their program one week and the High School the next. This is being done in order to give more students a chance to participate in the programs. We were glad to see a number of the parents at the last one. Come often and bring some one with you.

The Kittens sweat shirts were received Monday morning and are very satisfactory. They are of the upper type with white trimmings. With a large "Kitty" on the front.

Another Added To This Family

A daughter put in its appearance at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Cress early Tuesday morning, January 24th. This is the 14th child at the Cress home, the eldest of which is 22 years of age. All of the Cress family appear to enjoy health and happiness. A picture of this family, taken on July 4th, 1930, is shown above. One daughter, Mrs. A. C. Taylor, was not present at the time the photo was taken. The father of this large family is 48, while the mother is 48.

WHAT WILL THE GROUND-HOG SEE?

Next Tuesday will be Candlemas Day. For some reason or other this ancient church holiday has long been associated with weather forecasts. A very old English folk rhyme runs thus:

If Candlemas be overcast,
Then the heft of winter's past.
If Candlemas be clear and bright,
Then winter 'll take another flight.

Out of the belief that if the sun shines on Candlemas Day we are in for six weeks more of cold weather has arisen the American myth of the ground-hog which is supposed to come out of his hole on Feb. 2nd and pop right back again if he sees his shadow.

These are, of course, purely northern myths, from the regions of ice and heavy snow. There is usually, about this time of the year, in the northern latitudes, what is called locally "the February thaw." Several deceptively mild days do often bring woodchucks and even bears out of their winter hibernation, and once in a long time mild weather continues right into spring. So far as we can find out, nobody ever caught the ground-hog in the act of looking for his shadow, and nobody has even proved that the condition of the skies on Candlemas Day determines how much longer we may expect cold weather.

There seem to be some indications that the January and economic skies will seem a good deal brighter on Candlemas of this year than they did last year, and we only hope that people will stop being scared of their shadows about February 2nd and put themselves and their money back to the sort of honest, hard work which is the only road back to prosperity.

STEVENS' NEW CRANE
Stevens' new crane weighing 2,112 pounds when 100 days old won the 1931 Kentucky ten-horse championship for Harry Stephens, a Utopia club boy of Taylor county.

Records were collected on the raising of 35 litters. Their weight averaged 1,500 pounds when they were 150 days old. Fifteen litters averaged a ton or more. Second place went to Bertha Clopper on 11 pigs weighing 2,800 pounds. B. O. Lowry, Fulton county, was third on a litter of 13 pigs which weighed 1,961 pounds.

The champion litter returned a profit of $43.08. The fact that all feed had to be purchased, due to the drought of 1930, increased the cost. Corn cost 24 cents a bushel, only old corn being fed. Mr. Richardson received a gold medal from the Cincinnati Union Stock Yard, a pitcher from Earl & Daniel and a side of bacon from E. Kahn's Sons, both of Cincinnati.

The contest was conducted by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, and county agents for the purpose of encouraging more profitable feeding methods.

Being the same land conveyed to Harry H. Brown by deed from T. J. Brown and wife, dated November 4, 1922, and recorded in Deed Book 63, page 463 in the office of the Clerk of the Boone County Court at Burlington, Kentucky.

For the purchase price, the purchaser must execute bond, with approved security—bearing legal interest from the day of sale, until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale—$2,614.33.

FALSE RUMORS

ABOUT BANKING INSTITUTIONS WILL BE CURBED BY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS—EVEN IN-NOCENT RUMORS MAY BE DAMAGING.

An editorial in the Kentucky Times-Star last week bears upon the topic of rumor mongers and states that the Government agencies are attempting to trail persons guilty of starting false rumors about banking institutions in Northern Kentucky.

It is a well known fact that a heavy penalty awaits any person guilty of making derogatory statements about a bank. Tremendous times exist at the present and every statement in regard to a bank is literally packed with dynamite.

In many instances now a person might make what to him a very innocent remark, but it might be misinterpreted and start a damaging run on some institution. Even a "run" of small proportions no matter how strong a bank may be hurts right now. It is at least a timely warning to keep "your trap shut" about a bank no matter how you may feel about it.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

The Burlington Hi School Tomcats and Kittens marked up another victory against the Petersburg teams. The Kittens winning by a one-sided score 72 to 2 and the Tomcats winning from the Petersburg boys 24 to 19.

The Kittens had the Petersburg girls scoreless until the last quarter when Edwards made a field goal, this being the only point that the Petersburg team made. Every player on the Kittens squad had a chance to play in the game some time, and every one shared equally in making a large score. The Tomcats and Petersburg Bull Dogs played one of the best games that has been played here this year. With both teams playing a man to man defense it was hard for any one to make more than 12 points which was not done in this game—nine being the highest made. These were made by Hensley, who was put out on fouls, and was substituted by Vossell, who showed up well. Although the Tomcats were the best goal shooters, the fast passing and pivoting of the Petersburg boys was what held the score down.

In the first quarter the Tomcats made 7 points while the Petersburg boys made 5, but in the last half Petersburg made 14 to the Tomcat's 17. The game ended with the Tomcats victorious, 19 to 24.

Bill Cook was absent from school Monday on account of illness. Bill having had the misfortune of having a nervous break down after the game Friday night, which he was able to play in. Members of the teams and his classmates wish him a speedy recovery.

EASY MEAT!

An easy way for an officer to locate stolen property is to have the guilty party leave it in front of his door. At any rate that is what happened to Deputy Sheriff W. R. Cotton early Monday morning. A Chevrolet coupe had been reported stolen from its parking place in front of the Liberty Theatre in Covington last Friday night. Local officers had been on the look out for the car and Saturday morning Mr. Cotton awoke to find the car parked in front of his home in Burlington.

WILL HANDLE MAIL LEAVING BURLINGTON ON RURAL ROUTES AFTER APRIL 1—A. H. JONES AND ELLIAH STEPHENS WILL BE RETAINED, POSTMASTER STATES

Postmaster Everett Hie/ van announces that he has received notification from the postal department at Washington that a change has been decided upon in rural route delivery from the Burlington office.

Mr. Hickman says that the change will be effective April 1st and will eliminate route three entirely and that patrons on that route will be served by carriers now serving routes one and two. A. H. Jones, present carrier on route two, and Elliah S. Stephens, now carrying on route three, will be the carriers, thus retiring Mrs. Pearl Hughes, widow of the late W. O. Hughes, who died last fall, from the service. Mrs. Hughes had been serving the route vacated by her husband since his death.

Mr. Hickman also stated that new bids will be received soon for the transporting of the star route mail from Grant to Erlanger, via Burlington. The bids already received for the carrying of the mail from Burlington to Erlanger will not be considered in connection with the new route, it is said, contrary to the report published in these columns last week.

Miss Minnie Baxter, our very efficient correspondent from Nonpareil Park, was a caller at this office Tuesday morning. Miss Baxter has been on our staff for several years. She was accompanied by Charles Beall, dean of the Buellville precinct.

Alvin Stephens, Wallace Ryle and Thelma Aylor spent Sunday with Miss Virginia Stephenson, of Limasburg neighborhood.

LAST GAME

ON REGULAR SCHEDULE OF BOONE COUNTY BASKET BALL LEAGUE TO BE PLAYED THIS WEEK—ELIMINATION SERIES STARTS NEXT WEEK

Saturday evening of this week will find all of the teams in the Boone County Church basket ball league playing their last games of the regular league schedule. The following Saturday night the teams will start an elimination series for the championship which will occupy three weeks. The games this week will be played at Burlington.

Last week the leading Petersburg team found no difficulty in keeping their record clear although the Hebron five gave them some stiff opposition during the first half which ended in a tie. However, the "Pete" boys steamed up in the final half to win by a 35-23 score.

Bellevue defeated Sand Run, while the Burlington Methodists set back the local Baptist five. The score of the Bellevue game was 26-21, while the Burlington game was 34-18.

Games This Week

Petersburg vs. Buellville—Burlington M. E. vs. Bellevue. Sand Run vs. Hebron.

The Burlington Baptists have the bye. The standing of the teams finds Petersburg in first place, the Burlington Methodists in second, Hebron in third, Burlington Baptists fourth, Buellville and Bellevue tied, and Sand Run last. The games this week probably will not alter this standing.

PROF. GEORGE ROBERTS SPEAK ON SOILS FERTILITY

Prof. George Roberts head of the agronomy department of the College of Agriculture and leading soils authority in U. S. will discuss soils fertility and crop production at a community dairy feeding school in Hebron on Wednesday, February 17th. The dairy-feeding school in the morning will be followed by a discussion by Prof. Roberts on how the needed dairy crops can be grown.

The above school planned in Hebron community program of work offers one of the best combination crops and dairy schools to be held in the county today. It is hoped a large number of Boone county farmers will put the above date on their calendar and make plans to attend.

CASHIER ILL

C. E. McNeely, cashier of the Citizens Deposit Bank, Bellevue, is confined to his home with an attack of the gripe and since he has no assistant it became necessary to import some clerical assistance.

The Peoples Deposit Bank, of Burlington, was called upon by L. C. Beemon and G. S. Kelly of that institution drove down Tuesday afternoon to assume Mr. McNeely's duties until he is able to be back at his post. Either Mr. Kelly or Mr. Beemon will remain at the Bellevue depository until Mr. McNeely is entirely recovered and suffice it to say that the friends and customers of the Citizens Bank will be well cared for in either instance.

"GEORGENE"

IN TITLE OF PLAY TO BE GIVEN BY THE LUTHER LEAGUE OF HEBRON — REV. HARLOW HAAS IS AUTHOR OF PLAY

What promises to be a very interesting play will be given by the young folks of the Hebron Luther League at the Hebron and Florence high school auditoriums next week. The dates have been set for Tuesday evening, Feb. 9th, at Hebron and at Florence on Thursday evening, Feb. 11th. Rev. Harlow Haas, pastor of the Hebron and Hopeful Lutheran churches, is the author of the play and those who have read it claim that it is a very clever comedy. This is only one of several plays that Rev. Haas has written. He also is the author of a number of stories and books, the latest of which is just now coming off the press.

REV. HARLOW HAAS

The cast of this play will be found in an advertisement in other columns.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

When the lovely ones of earth are called to join the throng of the Blessed, we who are left feel a desolation that cannot be expressed in words and mingled with this is a gladness that she who is gone has entered into joy that cannot be disturbed.

Whereas, The Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Society has met with such a loss in the death of our beloved and faithful sister Mrs. Fannie Tanner, therefore

Resolved, That we desire to express our loving appreciation of the beautiful traits that made up her character and we offer our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family, who are deprived of her sweet presence and tender ministrations, and with them we shall await the reunion, where there are no tears, no pain, only the joy of the Redeemed.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her family, to the Boone County Recorder and entered in the Record Book.

Mrs. Alice McGlasson,
Mrs. Grace Graves,
Mrs. Grace Aylor.

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS MEETINGS

Community program meetings of farmers of Beaver, Big Bone, Union and Verona communities will be held during the next two weeks. The meetings in the above communities will be held as listed below:

Big Bone—Friday Feb. 5th, 7:00 p. m.
Union—Saturday, Feb. 6th, 1:00 p. m.
Beaver—S. B. Sleets, Tuesday, Feb. 9th, 7:00 p. m.
Verona—Bank, Feb. 13th, 1:15 p. m.

These meetings represent friendly gatherings of farmers interested in coming together to discuss their local farm problems and to plan agricultural community programs of work for the year. County Agent H. R. Forkner urges all who are interested to attend the meetings in their communities.

Esquire B. C. Kirtley, of the East Bend community, was a caller at the Recorder office Monday afternoon. Mr. Kirtley reports that the recent heavy rains have brought such a rapid rise in the river that he is unable to reach his home in an auto. This is difficult to understand knowing that he drives a "Ford." That's a "deep" one.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Traister, of Florence, were visiting relatives here over the week-end.

NAME CAR STOLEN

R. L. Crisler, of Goodridge Drive, Florence, reported to Sheriff Snyder early Sunday morning that a four door Nash car belonging to him had been stolen while he was eating a sandwich in a barbecue near the Boone county line on the Dixie Highway about 3 a. m. A bank book belonging to his mother and which contained $12.00 was lying on the seat. As we go to press no news has been learned of the car's whereabouts.

Local News

The will of the late Mrs. Carrie P. Riddell, deceased, was read and probated in county court here Monday, J. Howard Huey, of Petersburg, was named by the testator as executor of the estate and will proceed at once to settle the estate. Appraisal of the estate was begun by G. S. Kelly, D. R. Blythe and C. L. Cropper, appraisers.

Walton Dempsey, Jr., grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Marco Riddell of this place and who has been quite ill with pneumonia is reported to be improving.

Ivan Clements, formerly of the Union neighborhood and now a resident of Erlanger, was in Burlington on business Tuesday. Mr. Clements made the Recorder office a call while here and the editor scarcely recognized him as he has gained 80 pounds since we last saw him. Ivan evidently is not feeling the depression.

Col. R. S. Crisler, well known Burlington blacksmith, has a very interesting collection of old coins, which he was showing us last week. The "colonel" is very proud of his collection, which contains some pieces of very ancient coinage. He values them at about one thousand dollars, he said.

While driving toward Bellevue last Sunday evening a front wheel ran off the car belonging to the Maurer brothers, of Burlington, causing the auto to overturn completely, landing in a hollow several feet off the highway. The car was almost a complete wreck, although none of the occupants of the car were injured. The car was returned to the garage of Justin Dolph here Monday.

4-H CLUB

TO ENLARGE PROGRAMS FOR WORK IN 1932—PROGRAM TO BE DIVIDED INTO THREE PARTS, ACCORDING TO COUNTY AGENT

Plans for 4-H club work in Boone co., for 1932 call for the largest and most progressive 4-H club program conducted to date, according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The program will be divided into three parts, educational, economical and recreational to give club members the full advantage of a well rounded program.

The educational and economical part of the program are combined into the production of crops, livestock and poultry and home economic work with special study on the agricultural problems involved. Each project carried by members is to demonstrate more than ever before the most scientific methods of management and production with complete records of all expenses and receipts. Each 4-H'er will in turn be a demonstrator of better farm and home practices.

The recreational and social programs will be a reward for good work. Community contests, tours, picnics, community, county, district and state affairs, demonstration and judging teams and other important events will be of special interest. The Northern Kentucky 4-H Club camp scheduled to be held July the 26th to the 30th will probably again be the largest and most successful camp to be held in Northern Kentucky.

The 4-H Club training of the head, heart, health and hands helps to build strong and useful future farmers and citizens better equipped to meet the big problems of the next few years. Parents and leaders are urged to give their full support to the 4-H program. Every boy or girl between the ages of ten and eighteen is eligible for membership upon agreement to carry on supervised work.

MEET AT HEBRON TO FORM FARMERS ALLIANCE—PURPOSE IS TO RESIST ADVERSE LEGISLATION AND PROMOTE ADVANTAGEOUS LAW MAKING

Last Saturday night 100 farmers in the northern part of the county met at Hebron and formed a union of farmers. They adopted the name "The Farmers Alliance." The purpose of this organization is to resist any legislation that is injurious to the farmer and to encourage such legislation that is beneficial, and to devise ways and means by which the cost of distribution of the farmers products can be reduced so that they can get the share of the consumer's dollar and not a mere pittance which they are now receiving.

The farmers in this country number thirty million, unorganized they are the most helpless and oppressed people in all the land. United into one fighting militant organization for their common welfare and the preservation of their rights and with the determination and will to fight their common enemies to the last ditch, they can become and must become a potent powerful organization. The hard times have struck the farmers a terrific blow. They were hit first and hit the hardest of any class of people, unless they unite and fight for their common good, they will be the last to recover and their recovery will be very slow.

We will meet again next Saturday night, February 6th at 8:00 p. m., last time at the Movie Hall in Hebron. We want you there. We want 1000 there. Let us start the big ball rolling. Let our voice be heard throughout the land. Now is the time to act. Come with your neighbor, come with your grievance, come prepared to say your mind. As your cause is right, our cause is just, we want your help. Signed

WE'RE COMING BACK STRONG

The economic depression from which the United States is just emerging is the seventh major attack of "hard times" that this country has been through in less than a hundred years. The people who are scared almost to death for fear that America can't come back are not a bit worse scared than were the same type of timid-minded folk in each of these previous panics.

But, as we all know, America came back after every one of them, and came back stronger than ever. The first great financial crisis was in 1837, when practically every bank in the United States suspended payment, half of the property of the entire nation was sold in bankruptcy proceedings, and there was no work for anybody and nobody had any money. But we came back so strongly that in less than twenty years our national wealth had been multiplied by three.

We came back from the crisis of 1857, went through a terrific and devastating Civil War and again much more than doubled our national wealth in the course of sixteen years. Then we had the panic of 1873, and that was followed by another great revival that, again, doubled our national wealth, until the panic of 1893. We came back from that one richer than before, and we did the same thing after the crisis of 1907 and of 1920. Everybody knows how rapidly our wealth increased between 1921 and 1929, how prosperous everybody was in those fat years.

There is only one way to foretell the future, and that is by studying the past. It is as certain as anything can be that we are coming out of the present crisis toward a greater and more wide-spread prosperity than we have ever known. And if we have any sense we will take greater precautions against another depression than we did against this one.

TOWN AND COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Professor Thomas H. Reed, director of the Department of Political Science of the University of Michigan, has been making a study of rural local governments in the U. S. and has come to the conclusion that there are too many of them, that they are too expensive and that they are out of date and unnecessary.

In the early days, when it was a day's journey to go ten miles to the court house and back, and a hardship on children to send them more than a mile to school, the nation needed seats of government and of education close to or in every community. Professor Reed points out that it is no more trouble today to go sixty miles to the court house than it used to be to go ten miles, and believes that the answer is going to be found in the consolidation of counties and the elimination of superfluous township governments, all of which will tend to reduce local taxation.

The movement toward consolidating country schools and hauling school children from a radius of 10 or 15 miles to a good, centrally located, grade school, is growing all over the country. The little one-room school-house is survival from primitive times; it is picturesque, but on the whole inefficient, Prof. Reed thinks.

We don't expect to see such radical changes in our time as Prof. Reed thinks will come eventually, but we are inclined to agree with him that, taking the country as a whole, the cost to the taxpayers of local government is out of all proportion to the needs, and that one way of reducing this would be to reduce the number of local governmental units and make each one cover a larger territory.

The Family Garden

GARDEN PLANNING 11 BUDGETS

By John S. Gardner, Ky., College of Agriculture

Budgets have long been important to the industries in laying out production programs; take, for example, the motor car manufacturers. They decide first what their reasonable field of buyers is, and such details as spending power, the probable amount of old car replacement, the extent of new highways, and the effect of new-model appeal. This total is then distributed among the various price-fields and, having made allowance for some unforeseen new business, production is arranged for accordingly.

A gardener may well make his budget, both to save labor in producing what he ordinarily grows, and to increase that amount without increasing either his garden space or the extent of his endeavor, for both are possible if planning is done.

If garden space is fixed, the way to begin is to measure it, and make a map, in which are shown low, wet spots, trees, walks, rows of perennials and any other feature that is likely to affect the vegetables. Short rows and odd corners should be noted, for these may be used for radishes, lettuce, garden herbs and the like, leaving the long rows for the staple crops. Such a plan shows the gardener what is the size of his "factory."

Next, should be ascertained what will be the "demand." An ideal garden provides vegetables in correct amount, for each day in the year. Although there are "standard" specifications of how many times a week certain vegetables should be served, and though these are valuable guides to proper diet, the family's tastes should have some consideration, and each one may work out the fine details of his budget. Generally it is advisable to assume that during the time they may be served fresh, 21 servings a week is reasonable, and during canned-vegetable time, 12 servings.

To force in detail just how many of the lesser vegetables should be served the year through is difficult, but for the staples, cabbage, tomatoes, beans, and roasting ears, a reasonably close estimate is easily possible.

Cabbage, come first. Assuming that a head constitutes a serving, and keeping in mind that the first cabbage may reasonably be cut June 1, and that cabbage cutting may continue several weeks after frost, a quite exact number of plants to be set may be arrived at. The interval, June 1 to November 1, is 23 weeks. Allowing 4 heads per week, 92 heads are needed. Let's say 100.

As every gardener knows, however, setting 70 plants in the beginning of the season does not end the matter; he must have several ages of plants set, or he must use several varieties.

An ordinary "cabbage budget" the following is suggested: March 1 to 15, set 50 plants of the so-called "frost-proof" kind; of these 25 to be Early Jersey Wakefield, and 25 Copenhagen Market. This is simply for June, July and August.

About April 1, sow a packet of All Seasons or of Succession and one of Drumhead or of Glory, and when the seedlings are large enough to handle set 25 of each. These constitute the cabbage for the rest of the fresh cabbage season. Next week the balance of the year's cabbage requirement will be discussed, as also that of the other staples.

Low prices have caused a suspension of hog feeding in Fulton county. Many farmers are butchering hogs and offering to sell surplus meat.

More attention to fruit growing will be given in Boyd county this year, due in part to the good crop last year.

The county home agent, assisted by members of the homemakers' clubs, is making a survey of water systems and sanitary conditions on Clark county farms.

MIDLAND DISTRICT IN

A revival of interest in the annual county fair and the most recent is shown by County Ballards of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, who has been giving a series of demonstrations in butting and curing meat over the state. He has found more interest among farmers in home meat supplies than at any time in the 10 years that he has been giving these demonstrations as a part of the extension activities of the college.

Mr. Ballards reports the use this winter of at least 30 bacon boxes for the purpose of curing extra fancy country bacon. Use of these boxes makes possible the curing of prime bacon from hogs weighing 250 pounds or less. The common type of cure is used for bacon from heavier hogs.

There also is unusual interest in country cured hams, smoked sausage and the canning of meat. Meat is being canned on many farms this year for the first time. Canning is being favored by home demonstration agents as a method of preserving meat—that often becomes stale at butchering time, such as loin, spare ribs and neck bones.

FARMERS REPORT ON EXPERIMENT STATION VARIETY OF TOBACCO

Reports are being received from farmers who tried growing a new variety of tobacco called No. 5, developed at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. The particular merit claimed for this variety was its higher degree of resistance to black-root-rot than any of the other varieties previously introduced by the Experiment Station.

Returns from the tests made by farmers indicate that No. 5 frequently grows more rapidly in the plant bed, and becomes established in the field more quickly, frequently requiring less re-planting in soils infested with black root-rot. In other soils it gave about the same yield, or in some cases somewhat less than some other varieties.

Because of the regular stand and exceptional uniformity of type No. 5-35 growers reported it easier to grade, 14 equally easy, and 7 harder to grade than their own variety. Thirty-seven reported the quality of No. 5 better, 11 reported it equal to, and 10 reported it poorer than their own. Several farmers suggested that the cause of the poor quality was in cutting too green. Tests at the Experiment Station indicate that No. 5 should be ripe before cutting, to get the best quality and weight.

In answer to the question as to what variety they would grow this year, 51 of those reporting said they would grow only No. 5. Seven would grow it in part. Four were undecided and 11 preferred their own variety. Forty-five reported No. 5 as being satisfactory and 13 as unsatisfactory.

Seed No. 5 will be distributed to a limited number of tobacco growers who are willing to test the variety in comparison with their own and report to the Experiment Station. Seed may be obtained thru county agent, or by writing to the Department of Agronomy, Experiment Station, Lexington. A list of members of the Kentucky Seed Improvement Association who have Certified seed of No. 5 tobacco may be obtained by writing to the Association at Lexington.

FARMERS BUILDING PLAN DEMAND SHOWS

That improvements are going forward on the farmsteads of the state and nation, is indicated by the fact that the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky distributed, upon request, 569 building plans last year. These plans went into 79 Kentucky counties and 30 states and Canada.

County farm agents reported 1,001 Kentucky farms on which buildings other than dwellings were constructed or remodeled last year from plans furnished by the College of Agriculture. A total of 1,271 buildings were involved on the 1,001 farms, including 175 dairy barns, 83 hog houses, 626 poultry houses, 75 silos, and 308 other buildings. In addition, county agents assisted 104 families with house planning problems, and 33 new dwellings were built and 80 others remodeled according to plans furnished by the college.

The agricultural engineering section of the College of Agriculture has prepared 144 sets of all kinds of farm buildings and equipment plans, as an aid to farmers who desire to construct new buildings or remodel old ones. These include plans for dairy barns, hog houses, apple houses, tobacco barns, poultry houses, dwellings, silos, and other farm buildings and equipment.

COLLEGE TO PROMOTE BIG LEGUME ACREAGE FOR KENTUCKY FARMERS

Promoting the growing of at least 8,000,000 acres of alfalfa, lespedeza, sweet clover and soybeans on Kentucky farms, is the crops program of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. This includes a million acres of each alfalfa, sweet clover and soybeans, and five million acres of lespedeza.

Profitable farming in this state requires one acre of legumes to four acres of other crops, the agronomy department of the College points out. The 1924 census shows that there were only one acre of hay and pasture crops to 33 acres of other cultivated crops in Kentucky.

Unprofitable yields have caused a reduction of wheat growing to less than 400,000 acres in Kentucky. Nitrogen is primarily the limiting element in the yields of wheat and corn, and is at present determining the acreage of these crops. Experts believe that greater increase in crop yields and more wide-spread benefit will come with the adoption of new farm practices in the growing of legumes.

County agents report that approximately 500,000 acres of hay and pasture crops have been added in the state in the past five years. In 18 counties having farm agents, 162,000 acres of soybeans were grown last year. The sweet clover acreage in 65 counties totaled 42,964. Approximately 1,000 farmers sowed 5,000 acres of alfalfa last year. Large amounts of orchard grass, redtop, lespedeza and other seeds were sown in pasture mixtures.

There probably is more interest in Korean lespedeza than in all other legume crops combined. This is a profitable crop for pasture, hay and feed. It will grow in poor land and often makes a crop when nothing else will. It is now being grown in practically every county in the state.

The merits of the Sino-Japanese embargo is not a subject for discussion in this column. But a whole lot of us are indulging in a smacking idea that Nippon is developing a war to exterminate that ought to be exterminated—with application of a vibrating bootjack on the south end of her while she is looking north.

Four months of repeated and unsuccessful diplomatic pressure of Japan, during which she has occupied all of Manchuria and now threatens Shanghai, has caused the United States to propose to Great Britain some form of economic boycott of the Japanese Empire. This boycott might take the form first of cutting off all passports to American citizens visiting Japan. This could be done by the State Department immediately without Congressional approval. It would also take the form, provided Congress gave its sanction, or restrictions against Japanese trade.

Whether or not any such action will be taken is said to be dependent almost entirely on British cooperation. Secretary Stimson feeling that the United States could not act without the support of what is still the world's greatest naval power. The question has been discussed with Great Britain through the British Embassy. It also has been discussed in executive sessions of the League Council.

Huey Long, irrepresable new Senator from Louisiana, cast aside his restraint long enough to make his maiden speech in the Senate and upset senatorial traditions of long standing. As was to be expected, he commenced to upset senatorial traditions when he entered the Senate chamber with a lighted cigar in his mouth and back-slapped, hugged and breast-tapped with indiscriminate impartiality. The new Senator added his voice to the clamor made against repealment of William E. Humphrey, of the State of Washington, to the Federal Trade Commission. Humphrey, despite the objection, was confirmed, 53 to 28.

Undismayed by the reluctance of House leaders to permit a vote on prohibition during the present session, the Republican and Democratic wet blocs have laid plans for a test of strength on the question of legalized beer. A bipartisan committee of six members was named to study the various beer bills which have been offered by individual wet members and to formulate one measure upon which the entire wet strength can be concentrated. The idea of forcing a test vote on modification of the Volstead act to legalize beer is a supplement to the wet plan already announced for compelling the House to vote on a "home-rule" modification of the 18th Amendment.

Senator Jim Davis is about to fall off the water wagon. Confronted by an ultimatum that, if he continued to straddle or was merely "slightly damp," the Vore organization and the State machine would put up a wet candidate against him, reports have it that he has decided to take the plunge, declaring himself "wet enough to suit" all who as opposing him on the liquor issue.

With the passage of the $175,000,000 appropriation bill for the Department of Agriculture the House passed the billion dollar mark in appropriations after being in actual session less than six weeks. In addition to the agriculture bill, appropriation measures approved by the House so far this session are $500,000,000 for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; $126,000,000 in the first deficiency bill; $204,000,000 for veterans' loans; $390,000 for the expenses of the American delegation to the Geneva Disarmament Conference; and $120,000 for the Federal Employment Service in the Department of Labor; a total of $1,005,410,000.

In advance of its complete organization and before it has set up shop for operation, numerous applications for loans in varying amounts have been received by the Emergency Finance Corporation. This became known after President Hoover had signed the $500,000,000 appropriation as the Government's initial subscription to the capital of the corporation.

Responsible word comes to Washington that Alfred E. Smith, former Governor of New York, is not discouraging election of delegates favoring his recognition for President, and has no thought of endorsing Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt's candidacy, but will decline to file as a candidate in the Presidential preference primary states. The 1936 Democratic standard bearer is expected to state his position publicly in response to proposals that he permit the filing of his candidacy in certain states where otherwise no delegates may be pledged to him. His reported decision is regarded as complicating the "stop Roosevelt" movement in that it makes more difficult the election of Smith delegates over Roosevelt delegates in states where only the names of avowed candidates may appear on the ballot.

The judgment of politicians of both parties about Newton D. Baker, as a Democratic Presidential possibility is very clear. They think Mr. Baker was formidable before his statement this week, and they think his statement increases his formidableness. It increases his availability for the subsequent campaign between the Democratic and Republican nominees.

Declaring that all other agencies had failed to cope with the unemployment situation, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has urged the Federal Government to come to the relief of the unemployed, who, he said, numbered about 8,300,000 on January 1.

Two measures of prime importance to labor—one to restrict the use of injunctions and the other to bring about an investigation of the six-hour day for railway employees—moved forward with rapid strides in Congress. The Norris anti-injunction bill, evolved after more than two years of study, was reported favorably to the Senate after receiving an 11-to-5 vote in the Judiciary Committee. Among other things, it outlaws the "yellow-dog" contract forbidding employees to join labor unions.

THE WORLD'S MONETARY SYSTEM NEEDS CHEAPER MONEY AND INFLATION

While our big financiers balk at inflation or cheap money, they have failed to offer anything better. We cannot expect any relief as long as our U. S. A. and France own 60 per cent of the gold, and hold the big stick over the balance of the world. All the money powers and law-makers are offering is to issue more interest bearing bonds, which is only temporary relief, which is better than no relief; but, means more taxes on visible property, (omitting the invisible) making the burden fall on those that can least afford it. They are telling us they will have to increase postage on letters, put stamps on checks, create a sales tax; but fail to enact laws to furnish us more money to pay all these extra taxes. They lose sight of the fact that law makes money. We are on a gold basis and in a mess; if gold should ever get plentiful to make cheap money, suppose the next move would be to put us on a diamond basis in order to make the medium of exchange scarce and render a hardship on the producer. The latest move is to loan two billion of dollars; by the time it goes through the present-day course of commissions, Boards, Committees, Sub-committees and more Sub-committees, there will be a big per cent of the money absorbed before it gets to the people that are supposed to be benefited; which renders us of the preacher that solicited money from one of his members for the Foreign Missionary cause, who was slow to give; finally agreed to give a dollar; the preacher was entering it on his book, the member said, "hold on brother, I want to give $10.00 to take the dollar to the heathens." Too much business and expense in Government, not enough real business in Government. When our leaders and law-makers wake up to the fact the three important things needed now to benefit the more people is:

1. Equalization of taxation by taxing invisible as well as visible things, which will help to relieve the great burden of taxation on lands and Real Estate.
 2. Bank guarantee that will restore the confidence of the people in banks.
 3. A double standard of money which will give us cheaper money. The money powers will howl as heretofore. "We have tried their plans and are in a mess."
- "Think it is time for the common people to have a say? As long as the common people who are in the majority submit to the gold barons who are in the minority; we will never get out of the present mess. We do not object to honest wealth, we are opposed to legislation in favor of the few against the many. WE ARE PATIENTLY WAITING FOR THE MONEY POWERS AND OUR LAW MAKERS TO GIVE US BETTER ECONOMY. THEN WE HAVE OFFERED."

NEW MEMBERS

REPORTED BY FARMERS ALLIANCE - PROTECTION OF MILK PRICES - TRUCK DRIVER RECEIVES MORE THAN FARMER, IS CLAIM

Many new members joined the Farmers Alliance last Saturday night at the regular meeting at Hebron. As stated in last week's paper, one of the purposes of this organization is to devise ways and means by which the cost of distribution of farm and dairy products can be reduced so that the farmer can get a higher net price for his products than he is now receiving. Boone County is a large shipper of fluid milk to the Cincinnati and Covington markets. It is probably the most important source of revenue to the farmers in the county. Since the first of February the retail price of milk in these markets is 12c per quart, for which the average milk producer receives, according to the price paid in January, a net price of 5.13c per quart. The average milk wagon driver is paid, according to the Union scale, about $44.00 a week and a bonus, for six days of eight hours each for distributing the milk, without any cost or expense to him, or about 4c per quart for each quart he delivers. Milk distributors who furnish the wagons and equipment receive approximately 4.23c per quart, after paying the distributor his wages and the milk hauler .65c per quart for hauling the milk from the farms to their places of distribution. According to statistics obtained from Dairy Associations in Northern Kentucky and elsewhere, and from those who have attempted to keep accurate records as to the cost of production of milk, the average cost of production of milk to the farm under present conditions, not allowing him anything for his labor, is 4.56c a quart, which is nearly 1/2c a quart more than he receives for the milk, basing that upon the price paid to the average producer the month of January. The price of retail milk in these markets was reduced 1c a quart, from 13c to 12c a quart, on the first of February. It is evident that this decline in the price of retail milk is going to fall upon the farmer who produces the milk. As a matter of fact, the distributors of milk have begun to reduce the price that is paid to the farmer for his milk. Unless dairymen unite and combine for the purpose of resisting any further reduction in the price of milk, and demand that the distributor and the milk wagon driver bear the burden of the reduction of 1c per quart in retail milk, this reduction will fall entirely upon the milk producer and force the price of milk to him to a level far below the actual cost of production. The Farmers Alliance has decided to take action to prevent any further reduction in the price of milk to the producer, and demand that the distributor and the milk wagon driver take a reduction. They feel that inasmuch as all classes of Union labor have agreed to accept a scale of wages much lower than has heretofore been paid them, the Union of Milk Wagon Drivers should take at least a corresponding reduction in their wages. In addition to the milk problems, there will be many other problems brought to the attention of the Alliance, and it shall be the aim and purpose of the Alliance to attempt to solve these problems. Those who have become members of this Association desire to make it a powerful and potent organization. It is necessary that every farmer and milk producer combine at this time to protect their rights, and to prevent a further decline in the price of their products. There will be another meeting of the Alliance at Hebron, Ky., next Saturday at 8:00 o'clock last time, at the Movie Hall. They want every farmer who can get there to come and join the organization, and to build up a powerful local unit in that community. It is their aim, after having established a strong local unit at Hebron, to endeavor to establish other similar units in all parts of the territory adjacent to Cincinnati and Covington. They want every farmer in the Northern part of the county there next Saturday night. They need their cooperation, and the individual farmer needs the assistance of the Association. Do not fail to attend.

ANNIVERSARY WEEK

Friday will be the 35th anniversary of the founding of the Peoples Bank with the old Boone County Deposit Bank. Many will recall the "big day" put on by the Peoples Bank here in celebration of that momentous event. This institution has continued to thrive through the trying times we are now experiencing and today is one of the strongest banks in this section of the state.

Deaths

MARY BELLE HOUSE
Mary Belle House, daughter of J. W. and Lizzie House, was born July 30th, 1899, departed this life Jan. 31, 1932, age 32 years, six months and 11 days. She was united in marriage to James McCall March 10, 1917. To this union were born two sons, James Edward, who with his father is left to mourn the loss of a dear one, and William Roland who died in infancy. She united with the Bellevue Baptist church in 1916, but brought her letter to Petersburg Baptist church a few months before her death. She was faithful to her God and to her church as long as health would permit. Besides this husband and son who are left to mourn her loss, she leaves a father, mother, two brothers, Charles House and Grant and one sister Mrs. Roy Ryle, besides a host of other relatives and friends. Sleep on dear Belle and take your rest. God the Father, Jehovah best in your home above the sky We will meet you bye and bye.

M. F. BRUCE
Marion Francis Bruce was born May 11th, 1893, the son of James and Clarie Bruce. He was married October 7th, 1920 to Miss Jo Ellen Cason, six children were born to this union Everett W. James, who passed away in 1929, Perry R. of Belleflower, Ill., Hubert, of the South, Mrs. Elbert Sullivan and Mrs. W. J. Acra and his wife survive him. Also one brother F. P. Bruce, of Ohio, one sister Mrs. James Clure, of Covington, Ky., 11 grand-children, 10 great grandchildren, several nieces and nephews and friends who mourn his departure. He had been a great sufferer for the past ten years. He passed away Jan. 9th, 1932. He was a devoted husband and father, a true neighbor and friend. He was a man of sterling character, upright and honorable in all his dealings with his fellowmen. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon Jan. 12, at the residence in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends. Rev. T. C. Dunaway, pastor of the Petersburg Baptist church, who was a great favorite of Mr. Bruce, spoke beautiful and comforting words to those who are so deeply bereaved, while Mr. Bruce had not testified of his acceptance of Christ and his body was placed in the Petersburg cemetery to await the Resurrection morn.

No one hears the door that opens when they pass beyond our recall, soft as loosened leaves of roses one by one, our loved ones fall. God knows the way, he holds the key, he guides us with unerring hand, sometime with tearless eyes we'll see, O yes, sometime we'll understand.

HORSE KILLED

When returning from Lexington Monday night Charles Pepper, of near Idlewild, accidentally knocked down and instantly killed a horse belonging to Jim Webster, of Kenton county. Mr. Webster had just purchased the horse, he said, and for which he had paid $60.00. Mr. Pepper was driving along the highway between Florence and Devon and could not see the horse, he said in Burlington shortly after the accident. When the horse was knocked down Mr. Webster also was thrown to the pavement, inflicting a wound on his head. It is a very dangerous procedure to lead a horse along a greatly traveled thoroughfare after dark, as Mr. Webster no doubt will testify. Dr. M. A. Yelton reports three cases of pneumonia among his patients. A small son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Vest, about two miles north of town, and two children of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Vio, of the Woolper neighborhood.

HOME BURNED

FIRE ALSO DESTROYED FURNITURE, CLOTHING AND FOOD AT STANLEY STEPHENS RESIDENCE - CHILDREN RESCUED BY MEANS OF POLE PLACED AGAINST UPSTAIRS WINDOW

Friday night about nine o'clock a fire broke out at the home of Stanley Stephens, of the Middle Creek neighborhood, which completely destroyed his home and personal belongings and almost burned to death the entire family. The fire started in the kitchen and Mr. Stephens and family, who were sleeping upstairs, knew nothing of it until a neighbor phoned. By the time that Mr. Stephens answered the message the downstairs was afire throughout and he realized the futility of attempting to rescue his family by the stairs. There was no ladder on the place. Confronted by this dilemma Mr. Stephens resorted to a long pole which he leaned against the window and down which the children were forced to "coon" to save their lives. Within a few minutes after their rescue the entire house was engulfed in flames. There is no question that the phone call saved the lives of several of the children, if not all of them. R. Z. Cason and Ernest Brown, neighbors who came to the rescue as soon as possible, are sheltering the unfortunate family while many other neighbors and friends have supplied clothing and other articles. You can't beat the people in old Boone county in a case like this.

WILT RESISTANT CABBAGE, MELONS

Boone county farmers become interested each year during the growing season in some means of controlling yellows in cabbage and wilt on melons. Will resistant varieties of these have been developed and is the only practical method of control. The growers who are interested should begin in time to locate their seed. A new wilt resistant watermelon variety has been developed recently by the Iowa Experiment Station. Reports indicate that this melon is highly successful.

FRUIT MEETINGS WELL ATTENDED

The orchard field meetings held last Wednesday at J. W. Goodridge's of near Burlington and Emmitt Riddell's of near Hebron were well attended according to county agent H. R. Forkner. The meetings were held as part of the community program of work plans in the above communities. Mr. W. W. Magill, field agent in orchard work from the College of Agriculture led in the principal discussions. The high points of the 1932 fruit program as brought out in the above meetings were as follows: Scale-San Jose Scale cycle shows that is probably the worst since 1923-24. Scale will kill a large number of trees this year unless special attention to control is given. All fruit trees should be given an extra heavy dormant spray with some good recommended oil. Two dormant sprayings for good control. Field Mice-Best controlled by special prepared poison. Sooty Blotch-Fungicide sprays applied at the proper time will give good control. Scab-The prepink and pink fruit sprays are absolutely necessary for good control. Two most important fruit sprays on apples. Pruning-Better not to prune at all than over prune. Strawberries-Aroma, Premier and Blakemore are the three best adapted commercial varieties. The Aroma most preferred by a number of Boone county growers. Do not put new plants on sod ground. Raspberries-Latham best market red raspberry. Grapes-Concord best all round market variety. Bordeaux sprays necessary for quality fruit. Picking Apples-The latter picking of winter apples for winter storage, particularly with Golden Delicious gives higher flavor and longer keeping qualities. Winifred Huey, eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Huey, has been returned home after five weeks spent in a Cincinnati hospital. Needless to say this little chap is very much elated over the change.

LIKELY TO BE SEEN ON BURLINGTON STREET LIGHTS WITHIN FEW DAYS, IS BELIEVED - MEETING DATE SET FOR THURSDAY NIGHT OF THIS WEEK

The street light fund in Burlington is exhausted. The question of whether or not Burlington citizens and their friends shall wander about their streets in darkness during the year 1932 will be decided at a meeting to be held Thursday night, Feb. 11th. A meeting was held a few weeks ago but no satisfactory decision was reached by those who attended. A representative of the light company was present at the meeting and the matter of a reduction in the annual service charge for street lights was taken up. That representative has reported back to those who were present at the meeting with the decision that the company cannot afford to make a reduction. The annual charge has been $400.00 for this town, but the company states that a loss of $3,000.00 is shown on the furnishing of street lights to the various towns served by the company. In other words they say that it will be impossible to reduce the service charge for Burlington. This, indeed, presents a problem for the citizens of Burlington to ponder over. It always has been a difficult matter for those who desired street lights to raise the desired and required sum, for the simple reason that many who could afford to pay would not pay. Of course those who could not afford to pay were not urged unduly, nor were those further urged who did not desire to pay even though they could afford to. Many who have formerly paid willingly, even though it may have been somewhat of a strain, appear somewhat backward now it seems. It has been suggested that "depression" may have something to do with it. Again it has been said that some are thinking of putting forward the matter of re-incorporating the town so that a tax can be levied for the purpose of lighting the streets. Of course this would mean a certain cost to every tax-paying citizen, even tho he might be only a payer of poll-tax. If you are interested in this matter, either pro or con, it might be a great idea to attend the meeting Thursday night.

4-H CLUBS REORGANIZE

Union, Constance and Mt. Zion 4-H clubs reorganized for a new year the past week. Every attempt will be made during the year to make 1932 the biggest and best 4-H club year on record. 4-H club work is already the largest organization of boys and girls in the world. 4-H Club work is open to every boy and girl in Boone county between the ages of 10 and 18 years who is interested in farm and home work. The 4-H's represents the four fold development of Head, Heart, Health and Hands. The 4-H standards call for the highest true development of the junior economic and social life of the community. Plans are for the organizing of all community clubs during February. All communities interested in community club organization and where no club work was conducted the past year, are urged to get in touch with the county agent at the earliest possible date. There are two national holidays that occur during the month of February, namely, Washington's and Lincoln's birthdays. The latter falls on next Friday, January 12th, while the former occurs Monday, February 22nd. All banks in the county will be closed on those two days, it has been announced. James E. and Walter C. Gaines, of Woolper Heights, were Burlington visitors Tuesday. A great many land-owners are appearing before the Equalization Board this week pleading for a reduction in their property assessment. One member of the board remarked that "It doesn't make much difference what we do, as nobody will be able to pay any taxes next year anyway." There might be more "truth than poetry" in that statement judging by the long list of names published in the Burlington Herald week. More than 200, A. J. H. Boone county.

ENTERTAINING GUESTS

Joe and John Schwalbach, proprietors of the new restaurant in Burlington, served supper to fifty-five guests Tuesday evening. The menu included fish, beef or pork, potatoes, creamed peas, old fashioned oven bread, wheat bread, pie, ice cream and what have you, all for thirty-five cents. Joe and John say that they would appreciate an opportunity to serve you. A trial will convince in their contention.

Local News

The editor is signing off today (Wednesday) and taking to the hay for a few days treatment of a severe cold. Mrs. G. C. Jarrell and little daughter, Mary Bess, are visiting relatives in Covington. Mr. Shirley Stanley and Miss Thelma Politt, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday night with Rev. Politt and family. Bell B. Fleeman, of Dayton, Ohio, was visiting friends in Boone county last week-end. Judge Sidney Gaines, former Circuit Judge, and W. R. Rogers, ex-county Clerk, were in Burlington on business for a short while Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Orville Ogden, of Norwood, Ohio, were visiting the farmer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ogden, of Lumburg, the past Saturday and Sunday. Carrie Lou, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Huey, of Petersburg, suffered a broken arm one day last week. However, the member was not set until Tuesday of this week when she was taken to a Cincinnati hospital for the operation. Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Hunt and Mrs. Mary Hunter, of Covington, called on Mrs. Eliza Walton here last Sunday afternoon. R. E. Berkshire and Wm Phillips witnessed the basketball game between Duke University, of Durham, N. C., at Lexington last Saturday night. They were very much pleased at the Kentucky victory and especially interested in some of the "twisting" shots of John R. DeMolsey, Kentucky star, who hails from Walton. The Lexington players have christened DeMolsey "Twisty," "Free-wheeling" and many other names too numerous to mention. He is said to be one of the greatest hardwood artists ever developed under the Blue Intelige. As a matter of fact he has to be good as he is playing on Kentucky's greatest team in history. A number of Walton fans also were to be seen in the stands, including "Peck" Shearer, star receiver on the Walton base ball team. Miss Alta Rouse, of Cincinnati, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rouse. Miss Elizabeth Hensley, of Orest-cent Springs, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hensley, of the Bellevue pike, Saturday and Sunday. Andrew Scheeben, of Erlanger, was a business visitor in Burlington last Monday afternoon. J. L. Fowler and family, of Hebron, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fowler. Calvin Cress has unique hens. Mr. Cress's hens lay eggs, in most instances like most other hens lay, but this week one of the accommodations belonging to Mr. Cress laid an egg with a capital "C" inscribed thereon. The letter is very plain and Calvin is planning to offer the hen for sale to some distant chasing family which has a surname beginning with a "C" so that they may use her for laying fancy Easter eggs.

PROF. ROBERTS

WILL SPEAK AT HEBRON MEETING - JESSE COLLINS, FARM AGENT IN BURLINGTON, WILL DISCUSS MILK PRICES

Prof. George Roberts, head of the Agronomy Department of the College of Agriculture and one of the leading authorities of the country will speak on crops production in reference to milk suitability at Hebron school house, Boone county on Wednesday, February the 17th. Prof. Roberts has been in charge of the state experimental work at the College for probably more than twenty years and during this time has accumulated a wealth of information on the results of crop yields thru rotations and soil treatment. Mr. Jesse Collins, field agent in dairying will discuss the latest efficient methods in dairy feeding work at the above meeting. Special stress will be given to the balancing of efficient rations based on the feeds grown on the farm. He will be followed by Prof. Roberts discussion on how the necessary home grown feeds can be most practically and economically grown. The above meeting was planned as part of Hebron community program of work in which a study of means of lowering the cost of milk production was planned. The school will begin promptly at 7:45 a. m., and close at 3:00 p. m., show time. The school is of a county wide nature and every one interested in dairy and crops production is invited to attend. It is hoped that Boone-co. farmers will not overlook this rare opportunity to study their most important farm problems. Lunch will be served by the Hebron P. T. A. Put the above date in the calendar and lets be there.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

The doors of the Holy Sunlight Mission at Constana, Ky., opened with a Sunday School service Jan. 31st. Owing to so much illness some of the familiar faces were absent but gradually the folks are regaining their health for which we are indeed thankful. Sunday night's services were attended by a nice crowd. An interesting sermon was preached by Bro. Joe Millison. Tuesday night's praise service was led by Mrs. Marie Tunning. Special "Some of these Days" was sung by Louis Brown and greatly enjoyed. Friday night our regular Bible Study hour makes us appreciate the new thoughts we can gain from the study of God's Word. Many were the smiles cast around Friday night as Bro. and Sister Fogel entered the door. The wish of the Mission is that they may both enjoy good health and not be absent for that reason again. The Mission is the proud possessor of a trap drum outfit. The Mission Musical Society met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hood Saturday night. Quite a bit of practicing was done after which we enjoyed a few minutes talking and eating popcorn. Tuesday night's praise service will be led by Mrs. Russ. Everyone welcome. Sunday school services at 2:45 each Sunday. Come and help the Mission Sunday School to grow. Saturday night Feb. 13th, a program celebrating the three important birthdays in Feb., will be given at the Mission. L. D. McGlasson, of Taylorsport, and Bernard Seabrook, of Woolper, visited the Recorder office in succession last Friday. Each had just sold his tobacco and each man had well pleased with the price he received, which is so rare nowadays that it is worthy of comment. Each man also paid his subscription, which also pleased us. COVINGTON MARKETS TO CLOSE FEBRUARY 15TH Officials of the two tobacco markets in Covington have announced that they will close the season's sales on Tuesday, February 15th. There are several crops of the weed yet unseed in this section and the warehouses are anxious to receive as much as possible before the closing day. Regular meetings of the T. A. is called Tuesday 11th.

OUTLOOK FOR LIVESTOCK AND CROPS

The agricultural outlook reports for livestock and crops will be in the hands of the county agent during the coming week. While all farmers do not profit by these outlook reports it is over the loss of interest to all to know what the best available information on the outlook for these farm enterprises indicates.

IT LOOKS LIKE A GOOD YEAR

The year 1933 is still young, and anybody who would undertake at this early stage to forecast what is going to happen between now and next Christmas is either a fool or a better prophet than we are. But as far as we can see from here, the year has started off more hopefully than 1931. We are inclined to look ahead with the same confidence that was exhibited by the old lady who used to say that she had noticed that if she lived thru February she always lived through the rest of the year.

It seems to us that the work which has been done at Washington so far, and the other remedial legislation that is apparently certain of passage, has already done a great deal toward relieving fear in the business and financial world. There is at least a feeling of hopefulness which was almost lacking a few months ago.

It is hard to blame people for being apprehensive when, there seems to be no encouragement ahead. It is hard for a man to keep up his courage in the dark. It took a long time for most people to realize that we had all been dazed by the false prosperity of a few years ago. Money was easy, jobs were plenty, wages were high and, as it turns out now, even the men whom we regarded as wise and intelligent leaders in business and finance were fooled, like the rest of us, into believing that these conditions could go on indefinitely. Most of us spent money recklessly, and a lot of us were greatly surprised when we discovered that the old natural laws were still in force. It turns out that the old fable of the ant and the grasshopper still provides the safest guide for human beings.

From all we hear and observe, we think that people generally have got over the notion that there is an easy road to sudden wealth. Folks we know are much more reconciled to working hard and living within their means than they were three years ago. We know a good many who were never fooled, and they are the ones who are sitting pretty today. And, as we said in the beginning, all the signs that we can read point in the direction of better times ahead. It looks to us as if, along around 1933, we may be looking back on 1932 as the year when the biggest of all our national prosperity was begun. And that is that the United States has never failed to come back from periods of depression stronger and more prosperous than ever before.

The Family Garden

THE GARDEN

Garden Planning III—Budgets (Concluded)
By John S. Gardner, Ky. College of Agriculture

Last week the summer cabbage budget was determined, and arranged for, providing for the winter cabbage supply remains. How often a week cabbage may be part of the menu the family can best decide, and while it is about it, it should not overlook the possibilities of kraut. Five pounds of raw cabbage and one quart of kraut is suggested as the weekly supply to cover the period from November 1 to May 1. This is about 28 weeks and calls for a total of 150 pounds of raw cabbage, and 30 quarts of kraut, for which 125 additional pounds of cabbage should be provided. Roughly, 125 feet of garden row will be needed. The varieties to use are Late Flat Dutch, or Volga.

The tomato budget comes next. Assuming that tomatoes are served 5 times a week, and that the amount served each time is two pounds, and assuming further that the fresh-tomato season lasts between July 1 and October 1, or 13 weeks, it is simply a matter of arithmetic to arrive at a total. It is 130 pounds. During the rest of the year, 39 weeks, canned tomatoes are served. Assuming two servings of a quart each, per week, 78 quarts are needed. A bushel of 60 pounds will can 18 quarts 4 1/2 bushels or 270 pounds of tomatoes should be provided. The grand total is 400 pounds. Under good conditions a tomato plant should bear 10 pounds; thus 40 plants are needed, but as a safeguard, 20 extra plants, that is to say, 60 plants should be set. Of these 15 should be of an early variety such as Earline or Bonny Best, and the plants should be at least 10 weeks old when they are set, May 10. These plants should furthermore be pruned to single stem and trained to a stake. On May 15th, 15 plants of Bonny Best, 4 weeks old should be set, and on the same date Stone or Greater Baltimore seed sown. When these seedlings are large enough to handle, 3' should be set to take up the burden where the Bonny Best left off, and to provide a supply for canning.

Beans, too, may be budgeted. Assuming that half a gallon constitutes a serving and that beans appear on the table 4 times a week, a 30-foot row will furnish easily a two weeks' supply. Fresh-bean season lasts from June 1 to October 1, or 2 two-weeks periods. The first planting is made about April 25, and the last about August 8th. Plantings through May should be 30 feet, those of June and the first half of July 60 feet, and the rest 30 feet. The extra beans from the doubled plantings are to be canned and they will make approximately 60 quarts, or enough to serve canned beans twice a week during the period that green beans are not to be had. The total length of row needed is about 375 feet. So much for budgets; next week they will be fitted into the garden.

On May 15th, 15 plants of Bonny Best, 4 weeks old should be set, and on the same date Stone or Greater Baltimore seed sown. When these seedlings are large enough to handle, 3' should be set to take up the burden where the Bonny Best left off, and to provide a supply for canning.

Beans, too, may be budgeted. Assuming that half a gallon constitutes a serving and that beans appear on the table 4 times a week, a 30-foot row will furnish easily a two weeks' supply. Fresh-bean season lasts from June 1 to October 1, or 2 two-weeks periods. The first planting is made about April 25, and the last about August 8th. Plantings through May should be 30 feet, those of June and the first half of July 60 feet, and the rest 30 feet. The extra beans from the doubled plantings are to be canned and they will make approximately 60 quarts, or enough to serve canned beans twice a week during the period that green beans are not to be had. The total length of row needed is about 375 feet. So much for budgets; next week they will be fitted into the garden.

MORALITY

In Mary Roberts Rhinehart's autobiography, Mr. Story, occurs this reference to petticoats:

"They had to be made, two or three, very full, and generally a short flannel one to the knees. . . . 'Not long ago a young girl of my acquaintance was going through an old trunk of her mother's and came across a brief bit of embroidered flannel. 'What on earth is this?' she demanded. 'That? That was my flannel petticoat for my wedding.' 'Whereupon the girl burst into shrieks of delighted laughter. I smiled when I heard the story,' says Mrs. Rhinehart. 'I too have somewhere just such a garment. I scolded and embroidered it myself for my wedding, and I should have felt a shameless woman without it.'"

Julia Ward Howe, when a little girl grew weary from a long ride in the family coach, and allowed her knees to drop apart childwise. Instantly her father reproved her: "My daughter, if you cannot act like a lady we will stop at the next tailors and have you measured for a pair of pantaloons."

The characteristics which distinguish a "lady" and comprise her moral code have differed widely in different generations. I remember the first girl I ever saw who had cut off her hair. She worked in my office. The president of the company called me on the carpet and wanted me to fire the young lady, which I declined to do.

QUALITY PREFERRED TO EXPANSION, FARM SPEAKERS DECLARE

Conservative production at reduced cost, attention to quality, soil improvement, better pastures, more legumes and other home-grown feed, higher yields per animal and per acre, might be termed the keynote of the 20th annual Farm and Home Convention held at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky.

The convention included 4 days of programs for farmers and others interested in agriculture, separate meetings for homemakers, and meetings of dairy farmers, beekeepers, seed growers, cattle clubs and veterinarians.

Speakers who discussed the agricultural situation expressed hope for improvement this year, but cautioned against expansion in production, except where conditions are known to be favorable. This is a good time, they thought, to improve quality of crops, to sell flocks and flocks, to develop production per cow and per acre, to reduce costs by improving pastures and growing more food and feed and by exercising better control of weeds and other pests.

Many subjects of vital interest to farmers were discussed and much practical information given by speakers. The United States Department of Agriculture sent several noted authorities to discuss dairying, land, beekeeping and other subjects. Among the more prominent speakers were R. W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, and President Frank L. McVey and Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the University of Kentucky.

Homemakers considered a wide variety of subjects concerning improved homes and communities, and organized the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers. Five women were officially recognized as Master Homemakers.

Farmers from 67 counties and women from 45 counties registered during the week.

DAIRY DEVELOPMENT IMPORTANT IN BOYD

Figures gathered by County Agent Joe Hurt indicate that the income from dairying in Boyd county grew from $50,000 to $250,000 a year in 10 years and that cows now represent a major source of farm revenue the year around. In 1920 most of the milk consumed in Ashland and Catlettsburg was produced in Ohio; now practically all of it is furnished by farmers in Boyd county.

Mr. Hurt has made a report to the College of Agriculture regarding the organization and development of dairying in the county. In 1920 there were only eight farmers who owned 10 or more cows, while in 1930 this number had increased to 60. Practically no farmers produced grade A milk as late as 1925. Now 51 are wholesaling grade B milk, which is pasteurized and retailed as grade A. There are 13 modern dairy barns in the county, and 38 general-purpose barns have been remodeled into modern dairy sheds. Fifty-one farmers have modern milk houses which meet the requirements of the board of health. There are 12 purebred bulls in the county.

The Boyd County Dairy Herd Improvement Association is the only organization of its kind in the state where all the members live in one county. The association recently began its second year of operating and herd improvement.

The story of dairying in Boyd county, says Mr. Hurt, illustrates what farmers can do for themselves when they plan, organize and work steadily toward their goal. It is a story of progress and achievement, and a story of the many ways in which a farmer can improve his own life and the life of his community.

AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE OFFERS SHORT COURSES

The College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky announces that it will offer a two-day short course in land landscaping March 3-4. It will consist of lectures and discussions of a practical nature about making and maintaining lawns, selection and location of trees and shrubs growing perennial flowers and roses, control of insects and diseases, soil treatment and fertilizers, and other subjects of interest to men and women who desire further information on the beautification of home grounds. The course will be in the nature of an extension school offered by the department of horticulture, and will be open to all men and women without charge. It will be held in the new Memorial building on the university campus at Lexington.

A turkey feed meeting will be held at the Experiment Station on March 9th, to promote interest in turkey raising as an important source of farm income. The program will be on a practical basis, so that those who attend can learn many points which they may immediately put into practice. Prof. F. E. Mussell of the Nebraska College of Agriculture will be among the speakers.

Other short courses announced by the College of Agriculture include one from Feb. 22-27 dealing with the manufacture of ice cream, and another the following week, Feb. 29-March 5, on market milk. The purpose of these two courses is to offer ice cream makers and market milk men an opportunity to confer on the problems of their industries. These courses are primarily for experienced plant employees.

KENTUCKY FARM RADIO PROGRAM

The College of Agriculture will broadcast the following farm radio program from the University of Kentucky extension studios of WHAS the week of February 15. Each program will begin at 12:45, central standard time.

February 15—Tobacco market. The agricultural outlook in Kentucky for 1932—Dean Thomas P. Cooper.

February 16—Tobacco market. Market for Kentucky's farm products in 1932—H. B. Price.

February 17—Tobacco market. Planning for 1932 tobacco crop—D. G. Card.

February 18—Tobacco market. 1932 outlook for the livestock industry—C. D. Phillips.

February 19—What farm folks are asking—L. C. Brewer.

POULTRY PROFITABLE IN FLEMING COUNTY

The establishment of a hatchery which produced 40,000 chicks brought about a revival in poultry raising that added materially to farmers' incomes in Fleming county last year, according to County Agent R. H. Lickert. Farmers were furnished good chicks from blood-tested stock, and as a result were able to save 90 per cent of the chicks they placed in brooder houses.

More brooder houses were used, chicks were started earlier, and more money made from the sale of broilers and fryers. Pulletts also began laying earlier in the fall. Many farmers reported profits, low feed prices helping to cut the cost of production. One farmer made a net profit of $293 per hen.

The 4-H club department of the College of Agriculture announces that J. V. Shipp of Midway, Ky., has offered to give 10 pounds of tobacco seed to 4-H club members who will grow burley tobacco as their project this year. This will be enough seed to supply 1,000 4-H club members with two teaspoonfuls of seed, or enough to grow plants for an acre of tobacco. This seed is one of the moderately root resistant standing-up strains developed at the Experiment Station. More than 2,000 club members grew burley tobacco last year.

Records of the Experiment Station and Fayette county farmers show that there have been in the last 12 years seven good crops of apples and peaches, two fair crops and three failures in Central Kentucky. W. W. Magill of the College of Agriculture presented these figures at the recent Farm and Home Convention, in a talk on fruit growing in the Blue Grass region. He pointed out that 40 per cent of the fruit growers' problems is that of marketing, and that the Blue Grass is within a two-hour drive of a half of a million consumers.

Twenty-nine students attended a concrete mixing demonstration at Clark county high school.

BURLINGTON HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

On Friday night of last week the Tomcats and Kittens journeyed to California, Ky., Campbell county, where they met two defeats, Kittens losing by a score of 13 to 17, Tomcats losing 31 to 13. In the early part of the basketball season the two Burlington teams were defeated by the Campbell county teams with a small score. The girls game was an exciting one from beginning to end with the Kittens leading in the first half by a score of 8 to 7. It was thought that this would put new life in them and they would come back like a Lion, but instead of the Kittens coming back with fire in their eyes the California team had it in their hands and the score was 18 to 17 in favor of California.

In the Tomcats game Hensley was the leading man in gaining points for his team, making six of their twelve points. Before scoring 4 and Greenup 2. The defense of the California boys could not be broken, this being one reason why the Tomcats lost. In the first half the California boys were leading two points with the score 7 to 5. They were also leading in the last half with 14 points, making the score at the end of the game 21 to 12.

The State Bible course sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. of Kentucky, is beginning today (Monday) at the High School with the 30 members of the girl reserves taking it. The class is being taught by Mrs. Walter Brown. The H. Y. boys are also taking the course with 28 members taking it. Prof. McMillan is the teacher for the boys. Both Mrs. Brown and Mr. McMillan are capable of giving this work, as both have had a great amount of study and preparation for it.

The six lower grades had the first Chapel program last Friday afternoon under the new plan. Each room participated in the program and Mrs. Lamb in charge.

This week the 7th and 8th grades and the High School will have Chapel and the H-Y Boys will be in charge of the program.

The Literary Society of Burlington High School met last week. Four new members were received into the Society and a delightful program was rendered by group one, led by Wilma Cotton. Program next week will be given by Marvin Moore, leader of group 2.

FLORENCE SCHOOL NOTES

(Pat Ward Reporter)

The Junior Hl and Senior Hl departments have gotten together and organized two literary societies namely: The Alexandrian and The Ciceronian. Officers for both clubs were elected. Pat Ward was designated to lead the Alexandrians with Forest (Slim) Ferguson as Vice-President, and Virginia Adkins as secretary. The president of the Ciceronians is Lawrence Aylor. Friday was the first meeting of the two clubs with the Alexandrians entertaining. Quite a few visitors were present and we hope to see the number of interested spectators increase each week. Next Friday the Ciceronians will have charge of the meeting.

Nook of Knowledge

Interest in the Library has not waned and the reference books are being steadily thumbed over, according to Miss Adkins. Many hours of interesting reading are spent in our library, and we are indeed fortunate.

Howard (Pat) Ward, son of W. H. Ward, of Burlington, is in Louisville this week taking medical treatment.

WARRIING—CROPS INFORMATION

Grohoma, the highly advertised new grain crop has been yielded under experimental conditions as well as standard grain sorghums. Not all tobacco seed advertised as "resistant" and "disease resistant" are resistant to black root rot. The advertised statement "purity and germination guaranteed by Kentucky Experiment Station" is not true.

KOREAN SEED

Farmers planning on seeding Korean seed are warned by the county agent to use only dodder free seed. Certified dodder free seed can be secured this year at surprisingly low prices. If you are in doubt get in touch with the county agent.

CRAZED MAN

INFLECTS SERIOUS WOUNDS UPON HARRY ROSEBERRY, OF BELLEVUE, WHILE ON A RAMPAGE MONDAY — ROVIE GRIFFIN SENT TO LAKELAND FOR TREATMENT

Wounds that were declared serious by the attending physician were sustained by Harry Roseberry, colored, following an attack at the hands of Rovie Griffin, of near Bellevue, Monday.

Roseberry was driving his car down the road toward Bellevue when Griffin emerged from a side road and asked for a ride. The colored man accommodated and Griffin demanded that he drive him to Florence. Roseberry remonstrated and got out of the machine to see if he had sufficient gas to make the trip. Griffin got out also and ran around the car with a rock in each hand. Before Roseberry had time to protect himself he struck him two severe blows on the head with the boulder.

Griffin then got in the car and started toward Bellevue and Roseberry finally managed to get to his home at the old Dinsmore farm. Deputy Sheriff Cotton was called and he, with Jailer Kirkpatrick, went after Griffin, who was found near the old toll-gate property. The two overpowered him and brought him to Burlington where he was placed in jail.

Tuesday morning an examination by physicians proved that he was insane and he was removed to the Central States Hospital at Lakeland for treatment Tuesday afternoon.

The unfortunate man, who is 23 years of age and married, was in indeed in a pitiable condition, but doctors believe with the proper treatment that he will recover from his present plight. Griffin is a native of Rockcastle county having come here with his parents several years ago.

Roseberry is reported to be improving.

TRAGEDY

OCCURS AT LIMABURG WHEN M. I. BAKER HANGS SELF IN BARN—WAS KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN DESPONDENT OVER FAILING HEALTH

One of Boone county's gravest tragedies occurred early last Friday, February 12th, when M. I. Baker took his own life by hanging. Suspended from a rope in the barn his body was found by his wife some time after he had gone there to do the milking.

Mr. Baker, who had been in ill health for some time, evidently had despaired of a complete recovery, as he was known to have been very much depressed for some time. For this reason the tragedy was not a complete surprise to his wife, although it is needless to say that it was no less a severe shock to her.

The deceased had been engaged in the general blacksmithing business at his stand near Limaburg for many years, having started there as a protégé of his father, who departed this life in March, 1918. Following the death of his father the late Geo. Baker, who died in 1918, "Bud" as he was better known, took up where his father had left off and continued with the business with marked success, as he was known as one of the best in his line in this part of the county.

Several years ago a garage was added to the business, which continues as an asset under capable management.

In December, 1918, the deceased was united in marriage with Miss Maud Fullilove, who survives. The deceased also is survived by a sister, Mrs. Leo Weaver, of Hebron, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Baker. One brother has passed on, M. I. Baker was born September 23, 1877, being 54 years of age.

The untimely death of "Bud" Baker was a severe shock to every one in this section, as he was known and liked by all with whom he came in contact. Not only was his death alone a shock, but the manner of his going was a distinct surprise, as one could scarcely conceive of a man of his constant jovial and convivial disposition going as he did.

Funeral services were conducted at the Hebron Lutheran church by Rev. H. C. Runyan, of Latonia, assisted by the pastor, Rev. Harlowe Haas, last Sunday afternoon with burial in the cemetery adjoining in charge of Philip Tallafiero, of Erlanger.

UTOPIA CLUB

Boone County Utopia Club No. 2 will meet at Burlington Thursday night, February 18th for the February meeting. All members are urged to be present.

A heated debate on Farm Management Practices will ensue between four mighty orators of the organization. Mr. John Cox and Kirtley McWehly of Petersburg will be on the affirmative and Mr. Ben Stephens and Wilton Stephens of Burlington will be on the negative. Rumors are that both sides are busy burning midnight oil getting ready for the debate. Burlington group will be in charge of the program.

L. O. Beemon, assistant cashier at the Peoples Deposit Bank, has been absent from his post for several days recently on account of illness. He had some troublesome toothache removed one day last week hoping to arrive at the seat of his trouble.

FUGITIVE

ARRESTED AT LOCKPORT, ILLINOIS, AFTER MORE THAN FIVE YEARS SEARCH — BEN SWANEY LODGED IN JAIL HERE BY SHERIFF ANYDAY MONDAY EVENING

It's hard to escape the talons of the law. At least that's the firm conviction entertained by Ben Swaney, who was lodged in jail here by Sheriff Snyder early Monday evening.

Mr. Snyder had received a tip that Swaney was living in Illinois near Lockport and sent a bench warrant to officials there last Wednesday. Friday evening he received a telegram that he was under arrest and officials here then obtained extradition papers from the Governor of Kentucky. Sheriff Snyder left Sunday evening for Lockport and experienced little difficulty in obtaining Swaney's release.

It will be recalled that Swaney was indicted in Circuit Court here at the December term, 1925, for "having carnal knowledge of a girl under 18 years of age" and several months after that was arrested and lodged in jail here.

But Swaney has not yet been tried, as he and three others broke jail on the evening of Nov. 19, 1926, all escaping. In making their escape it was alleged that Ben struck Jailer C. A. Fowler over the head with a heavy iron bar, inflicting a severe wound, all four men making their exit over his prostrate form.

Extensive efforts were made by officers to locate the four men and Sheriff L. T. Utz finally was successful in landing Geo. and James Dalhober, two of the escaped men, who were tried and convicted at the April term, 1928. Bales later was located and brought to trial in April, 1931. The above three were tried and convicted upon a joint indictment for escaping jail.

In addition to the charge of escaping jail Swaney also awaits trial on the original indictment found at the December, 1925 term, and yet another charging him with assault and intent to kill. No doubt the Commonwealth will elect to try him on the latter at the April term providing of course that Swaney still is a boarder at the Kirkpatrick battle at that time. Needless to say that Mr. Kirkpatrick is taking extra precautions with Mr. Swaney.

Sheriff Snyder reports that Swaney was at work on a farm several miles from Lockport, operating a corn sheller, when the Illinois officers picked him up and that he was said to have been there practically all of the time since his escape.

GYM TO OPEN

Next Saturday night will find a gymnasium open in Burlington for the "edification" of the local boxing fans. Competent instructors will be on hand regularly to teach the many art to anyone who cares to learn. They cordially invite the public to come in and inspect.

Dr. M. A. MEMBERSHIP

DOUBLES IN FARMERS ALLIANCE ORGANIZATION — VOTE SOLIDLY TO SPONSOR ENTERPRISES BENEFICIAL TO FARMERS

The Farmer's Alliance in a meeting at Hebron last Saturday night voted solidly to sponsor those enterprises that are for the upbuilding and protection of the Agricultural industry. More than 100 farmers attended the meeting and the membership more than doubled the past week. The meeting also showed that the farmer is intensely interested in certain phases of his farm problems.

A number of legislative problems, parts of which are beneficial and other parts detrimental to farm interests were considered of special importance at the present time. Certain municipal problems in the marketing of milk, fruit and truck crops will require organized representation of the farmer in the future. The taking of a stand by the farmer on these problems seems necessary unless he is to stand over his share of the burden.

A number of farmers from other sections of the county were present at the meeting and requested other locals be organized. This problem will come up before the meeting to be held this coming Saturday night at the Movie Hall in Hebron. All farmers are urged to be present.

FRUIT SPRAYS IMPORTANT

The dormant orchard spray should not be overlooked by Boone county orchardmen this year. Most orchards have had out breaks of San Jose Scale. Most orchardmen will agree that fruit paid just as good as any other product raised on the farm the past year. Unless the trees are taken care of they will not be in position to bear a crop when the prices will be higher. If you are not familiar with what and when to spray with get in touch with the county agent.

The first regulation pool table ever located in Burlington put in its appearance last week, when D. R. Blythe, who has been trying miniature tables for several months, sensed the wishes of the "pool shooting" public. Within a few days he found that one would not be enough and installed another on Wednesday of this week. They are being patronized freely.

Miss Olive Simms, of Covington, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Pettit.

Wilton Stephens, Roscoe Akin, Earl Sullivan, Boone Ryle and son, Reginald, were in Lexington on business last Friday.

At the regular meeting of the M. W. A. Tuesday evening an open session was held and an interesting program enjoyed.

G. S. Kelly has returned to his desk in the Peoples Deposit Bank after several days relief work at the Citizens Bank, of Bellevue. The cashier there, C. E. McNeely, is much improved.

The regular meeting of the Burlington P. T. A. was held at the school building last Thursday evening. A very interesting program was rendered, by some of the students of the school under the direction of Prof. H. B. Kirkwood.

RUBE RILEY

COMMENTS SUBSIDE AT HIS HOME NEAR BIG BONE—USED STICK TO FURN THROGHS OF SHOT GUN—WAS LARGEST LAND OWNER OF HIS RACE IN COUNTY

The southern section of the county was aroused last Thursday afternoon when the news was circulated that Rube Riley, well and favorably known colored man, had committed suicide at his home near Big Bone.

Riley had been in Burlington on business Thursday morning, and had returned to his home about noon, apparently in fairly good spirits, according to his family. His wife noticed him whittling on a forked stick and when she inquired his purpose received no answer.

However, she thought nothing of the matter until a few minutes later when she heard the report of a shot gun on the porch where she had seen him whittling on the stick. Rube had carefully placed the muzzle of the shot gun against his heart and, using the stick as a device, pushed the trigger.

Rube Riley, through his industry and careful management, had accumulated fairly large farm holdings. He easily was the foremost colored man in this section and had gained the respect of every white man whom he came in contact.

General depression and decrease in the price of farm products were assumed to be the causes that led to Riley's act. Some other financial difficulties also were mentioned, although this is not authentic.

SUCH IS POLITICS

While in Lexington for a short time last Saturday afternoon we met and had a short chat with our old friend Ben Freckman, who formerly was connected with the State Auditor's office at Frankfort. Mr. Freckman assisted with the enforcement of the state dog law and in that capacity visited Boone county many times. Needless to say he made friends here as is his wont. The editor of this sheet has known Ben Freckman for about twenty years and we personally know that he is held in very high esteem in his home county of Fayette, where he was a deputy sheriff for more than a quarter of a century.

However, Mr. Freckman is no longer an attaché of official Frankfort as the powers that be "let him out" on account of the fact that he supported Newton Bright for the nomination for Auditor.

"Such is politics."

Commonwealth's Attorney Ward Yager was in Burlington on official business Tuesday. Mr. Yager is preparing for a strenuous session at the approaching April term.

Our community was saddened January 12th, 1932, when the Death Angel visited us and took one of our best and loved and christian men, Uncle John Deck.

Uncle John was the son of Rose and Peter Deck and was born in Bellevue Sept., 10th, 1855, age 75 years, 4 months and 2 days. He was united in marriage to Laura Snyder Feb. 10th, 1880. To this union were born three sons, Henry, Elmer and William, one daughter Mrs. Alice Kittle, all of whom survive. He had 21 grandchildren and 6 great-grand children. He was a kind and loving father and grandfather, and all loved him very dearly.

He leaves besides his children, one sister Mrs. Eva Lewis, one brother Peter Deck, of Petersburg, also two half sisters, Mrs. Katie Beemon and Mrs. Julia Beemon, one half brother Louis Weickie, and a host of other relatives and friends.

His loving wife departed this life March 8th, 1917, and Uncle John has made his home with his children, living with his son William at the time of his death.

Uncle John was always ready to lend a helping hand to every one, and was a real friend at all times. He will be greatly missed by all who at the church which he attended. He united with the Methodist Baptist church in the fall of 1917, and not many services passed that he was not present.

There is a village and and alone, someone has said, "Grief isn't gone."

How truly we feel the loss of a friend.

With hard words, a word and a wounded mind.

We was loving, more than, more kind.

Hard words against him he didn't mind.

With a kind thought, he would soon forget.

Never gentler Father and friend.

Has a community meet.

The days seem dark and dreary.

The hours unhappy speak.

But why should we be weary.

When a home with Jesus, Death meant.

CARD OF THANKS

I desire to take this means of thanking all of my friends and neighbors for the many kindnesses and acts of friendship shown me during the sad hours of bereavement following the death of my husband, M. I. Baker. Especially do I appreciate the expressions of sympathy and efforts during the funeral services of Rev. Runyan and Rev. Haas. Also the efficient manner in which Philip Tallafiero conducted the funeral arrangements.

REPORT OF RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE FOR JANUARY, 1932

More inspection of school children during January, finding that out of 52 children inspected 16 had just recently had some correction of physical defects.

The Home Hygiene Class at Hamilton School was completed, regretfully I finished the last class period, it has been such a satisfying class of girls, and I feel assured that through the Health truths which the course has given them their lives may be enriched and to others they will be helpful neighbors and friends.

To me the ride has been long twice each week since September, but the belief in the good instructions being given has wrought brings to me a happiness that will be longer in my memory many times over than the sum total of all the miles I have traveled to meet my appointments there. I begin a class at New Haven in February.

Miss Margaret Diney, Nursing Field Representative for the National Red Cross, visited our service, two days during January, bring us as always, help and stimulating interest and enthusiasm in our plans for 1932. Together we visited the Health Unit of Gallatin county, and arranged for an interchange of methods and practices in our Home Hygiene teaching, Miss Alphin, the Nurse there, is coming to visit some of my classes soon.

I have often stressed in my reports the fact that I am a very small part in our Public Health Program in Boone county, and also of repeated that the Promotion of Health if effective, must be the united business of every citizen, we must all have that interest concern in the welfare of all that is genuinely productive of good to all. In carrying on this active constructive program of social betterment, we need in a combination of all the graces and virtues that make Human Beings really Human. Just recently I discovered I had borrowed from some one two of these graces, namely Patience and Persistence and exercised them for six years in my efforts in one family in behalf of two children, who have been all the while needing greatly the attention of Specialists and Surgeons. I already had in me a faith in all people to add to the two graces borrowed and let me say to any reader who weakens in Patience and Persistence in any efforts truly known to be of worth to Humankind, its never time to give up, it will pay to keep on, believing the thing will be done, for after these six years of efforts and hope, results are in the process of these children are to be met and their capabilities enlarged by the removal of physical handicaps.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES Tomcats and Kittens marked up two more games to their credit last Friday night when they defeated the Sanders girls and Warsaw boys. Kittens won by a score of 29 to 12 and the Tomcats by one point from the Warsaw boys, 33 to 32. In the Tomcats and Warsaw game there was no time when either team had more than a four point lead. However, at the first quarter, Warsaw was leading Tomcats with 6 points and seemed they could not hit the basket. At the end of the half the Warsaw boys were still leading, while the Tomcats had only seven. In the last half the Tomcats seemed to get new life in them when they began to make a few points, but every time the Tomcats made a goal Warsaw would mark up one too. In the last two minutes of the game they were tied 33 to 32 when Sanders, in whom most of the credit should go to for winning the game, made a crisp shot, making the score 33 to 32. Then Marshall, a Warsaw player, made a field goal tying the score 33 to 32. Stevens was hailed by Rogers who went out on personally. Stevens made his point, putting his team in the lead, 33 to 32, when the game ended.

In the girls game the Kittens had no trouble defeating the Sanders girls. Crawford was high point maker for Sanders girls, making five of their 13 points, while Burton marked up 10 of the Kittens points. In the first half the Kittens were leading by a score of 10 to 3 and the last half they were also leading with 13 points. Linda Lee Jarrell, who has been one of the cheer leaders of B. H. S. for this season was seen in one of the Kittens uniforms and shared in playing part of the game Friday night, however, she did not make any points but was right there with the old guarding.

Last Saturday afternoon a very delightful Valentine party was given to the Hebron and Burlington Girl Reserve Club at the Hall over Peoples Deposit Bank. It was sponsored by the leaders Misses Mildred Anderson, Elsie Vice, and Mary Bess Cropper. After many games were played the girls went to the home of Mary Bess Cropper where lunch was served. The tables were decorated in keeping with the Valentine season. 32 guests were present and a good time was had by all. The Girl Reserves wish to express their appreciation to their leaders for the lovely party and feel inspired to do better work during the remainder of the year.

The Chapel program, which was conducted by the H-Y boys was enjoyed by all. A few of our parents were present. Come often.

This week's program will be in charge of the six lower grades.

HEBRON SCHOOL NOTES

Thursday afternoon Feb. 11th a program was given by the first and second grades. Besides special features for Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays and for Valentine's day in February. A dramatization of the famous Tar Baby story was quite an entertaining number on the program. There will be a program at 2 o'clock slow time Monday February 22, and we hope more of the parents will come out to our Chapel programs.

The Girl Reserve Club of Hebron and Burlington were united Saturday afternoon by Miss Mildred Anderson, Elsie Vice and Mary Bess Cropper, this being the second year that the two clubs have been united at a joint Valentine party. The girls about 33 in number, assembled at the Masonic hall where the afternoon was spent playing games. About four o'clock the girls were invited to go to the home of Mrs. Cropper where, after singing a number of songs, the members of the two clubs were served with refreshments. All the guests reported having a good time.

The Hebron teams played two games of basketball Feb. 13th at Crescent Springs. The girls game was very exciting. Blanche Wohrley, captain of the team, was the high point maker. Kathryn Ryle, Eva Mae Grant, Helen Grant and Adelle Riddell also played an excellent and defensive game. With three seconds to play, the score stood 13 to 11 in favor of Crescent Springs. Then Blanche Wohrley dropped a long one through the net just as the whistle blew for the end of the game. This game created much excitement for the rooters of both teams.

The boys also played an exciting game. Lloyd Hankins, forward, was the high point man, making six points in succession. The final score was 15 to 13 in favor of Crescent Springs.

Saturday night the Cardinals played Florence for the third time this season. Again the Hebron girls were winners with a final score of 22 to 12. The boys' score was 29 to 12 in favor of Florence.

SYSTEM

OF USING HEARD BIRE FOR TWO YEARS THEN BUTCHERING HIM IN WASTFUL PRACTICE, SAVE COUNTY AGENT - ORGANIZATION OF ASSOCIATION IS URGED

The present system of Boone county dairymen to use a herd sire two years and then to send him to the stock yards before his daughters are in production is expensive, wasteful and a gamble according to County Agent H. R. Fortner.

It is expensive first because few men can afford to purchase the best in blood lines for only two years use. It is wasteful because the value of a herd sire in terms of better cows is not known for two years and it is a gamble because not one herd sire in five will give an increased production of his daughters over their dams and under the present system by the time his daughters are known the herd sire is in the form of bologna sausage.

The organization of a number of bull associations combined with testing work will take the leading dairymen out of a stagnant breeding program and put them on a sound advancement program. It will make surplus stock highly desirable for the man who wants just good milk cows.

Mr. Jesse Collins, field agent in dairymen from the College of Agriculture will meet with a group of Boone county dairymen at the old Farm Bureau office in Florence, next Tuesday, March 1st to discuss plans for the organization of one or more associations. All who are interested in knowing more about the Bull Association plan are invited to attend.

BASKET BALL FINALS

Although the hunting law has been "out" since November 15th L. C. Weaver has found a new way to catch the elusive cotton tail. While it is a new way, so to speak, yet is one of the simplest imaginable. Mr. Weaver was fishing Washington's birthday and found a bunny "settin'." He pounced upon the rabbit with his open hands and, although said cotton tail kicked manfully, "Swede" was able to hold to him. Weaver says that he is one of the largest he ever has seen.

LIGHT FUND

GRADUALLY GROWING WITH GOAL IN SIGHT—THOSE WHO HAVE NOT CONTRIBUTED ARE URGED TO HELP OUT

While it is reported that the street light fund is growing steadily, yet it is still some distance from the goal necessary. Some folks who gave last year have failed to come across with their quota this making it necessary to call upon others to enlarge their subscription. This seems hardly fair to the willing ones, but they realize that a certain amount must be raised or the lights will be turned off. It surely would be a shame to have to do without lights after having enjoyed them for so many years.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

The Tomcats and Kittens broke even with the New Haven team last Friday night at New Haven with the Kittens winning their game 32 to 24 and the Tomcats losing by a score of 44 to 36. The Kittens started out by making 17 points in the first half while the New Haven girls were close behind with 16 points. But in the last half the New Haven girls made only 8 points while the Kittens made 16. Burton was again high point maker for the Kittens, making 17 of the 32 points. Just seven more points than she made in the Sanders girls game here last Friday in which she was also high point maker.

Huey, who is considered the best forward in Northern Ky., was high point maker for New Haven girls, making 12 of their 24 points. The New Haven girls promised that if they met the Kittens in the tournament at Florence it will be a different story than the one Friday night.

The Tomcats lost their fourth game of the season when the first New Haven team defeated them by a score of 33 to 44.

In the early part of the basketball season the Tomcats defeated New Haven by a one-sided score of 51 to 11, but Friday night the New Haven team showed its real ability. Credit should go to Huey, a forward, and Ryan, the center. Ryan, who is six feet tall, could stand under the goal and drop them in with the greatest of ease. Huey, who is a runt beside Ryan, is known for his pivoting and has a perfect system of passing. Ryan and Huey are the "Mutt and Jeff" of the New Haven team. Sebree was high point maker for Tomcats while Ryan was high point maker for New Haven. The first half the Tomcats were leading 19 to 17, but, my, how they fell down the last half with only 14 points while New Haven made 29 points, making the final score 44 to 33.

HEBRON HIGH NOTES

The Independence basketball ball teams came to Hebron Friday night to play the last game scheduled on our court. The Hebron girls won their game by the large and unequal score of 46 to 4, allowing the Independence girls only one field goal. All of the Hebron girls shined in the scoring, making their points with no difficulty.

The boys game went in Hebron's favor also, ending with the score 15 to 3. Lloyd Slektman refereed the games. Our next games will be played at Burlington and Ludlow on Friday and Saturday nights respectively.

Friday afternoon the Girl Reserve Club entertained the Hi-Y boys from 1:30 to 3:15 with a Washington birthday party. The party was held in the Auditorium, which gave plenty of room for the games. The "hostesses" had planned. At the close of the party hot chocolate and cookies were served by the girls. The entire high school going to the lunch room for the refreshments.

Monday afternoon a splendid chapel program was given by the pupils of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Walker. The program was in honor of Washington's birthday and the numbers were in keeping with that occasion. After the program the Garden Club planted a tree on the front campus. We appreciate their interest and hope they will help us beautify our grounds still more.

CONTRIBUTORS ORGANIZER

The Contraband 4-H Club of Covington has re-organized. We do not expect the enrollment to be as high this year as some previous years. As Covington does not have a high school, the Contrabands lose the members that go to high school, and there is always a few that drop out for other reasons. The club lost seven members this year on account of going to high school and joining other clubs. These members will join the Hebron club as they attend high school there.

E. E. Fish, Field Agent of the University of Kentucky, and D. H. Norris, Superintendent of Boone County Schools recently delivered addresses at the Trophy Presentation Exercises at Covington. The Contrabands have won the Boone County Bankers Association Trophy for four consecutive years, and have finished 100 per cent of their projects in as many years.

FIRE DRILL

SHOULD BE PRACTICED IN BOONE COUNTY SCHOOLS—KENTON COUNTY INCIDENT CITED

The absolute necessity of regular fire drills in schools was graphically demonstrated in a Kenton county school early this week when a teacher led some 75 pupils quietly and quickly from a building when fire impended. As it happened no serious damage resulted from the fire, but the fact remains that the children were "on the outside looking in" within a comparatively short time after the alarm was sounded.

A short time ago an alarm was given in a certain Boone county school and the report comes to us that confusion arose while the children were leaving the building. No serious injuries resulted but it is said that several children were bumped and banged about quite a little by the larger ones.

A well organized fire drill, if practiced at irregular intervals, is fundamentally a fine thing for children, if for no other reason than to teach them order and precision. We could point to some tragic incidents when scores of school children have been burned to death in fires.

It certainly is something to consider by the heads of Boone county schools.

ENROLLMENT

OF BOONE COUNTY 4-H CLUBS STANES AT RECORD FIGURES FOR 1931-32 MEMBERS SHED UP DURING PAST TWO WEEKS

Record enrollment of 200 Boone county 4-H club members piled up the past two weeks in Burlington, Hebron, Covington, Walton, Verona, Union, Mt. Zion, Petersburg and Florence 4-H clubs. Grant, Hamilton and Ft. Pleasant were due to organize during the middle of the week. If the three latter clubs have their last year's numbers a total of 333 4-H club members will have been enrolled for 1932.

Burlington Blue Ribbons with 66 members registered the largest club in the county with Florence K-L All-Club with 45 members and Verona Willing Workers with 44 members registering second and third places respectively. The increased enrollment is due to an increased interest in the economic side of farming and to efficient cooperation of parents and those connected with the schools according to county agent H. R. Fortner.

4-H club work represents the four fold development of the Head, Health, Heart and Hands or the full development of the mental, physical, social and economical possibilities of the members. Each member is required to carry on some recommended farm or home project during the year to study the best known methods of care and management of the selected project and to keep a complete record of all expenses, receipts and the final profit or loss.

Each farm boy or girl is required to look after some enterprise on the farm or in the home. When this enterprise is enrolled into a 4-H project it ceases to be a mere matter of routine or drudgery and becomes a problem for close study and management for the member. The social and economical part of the largest organization of boys and girls in the world gives the member greater pride in rural life.

Edward Easton, from the celebrated banks of old Woolper, was spinning a few with the Recorder force Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Kelly, of the Waterloo community, spent Saturday with their daughter, Mrs. Zelma Clore.

Friends of Mrs. O. R. Russ, of Limaburg, are delighted to learn that she is rapidly recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Beemon and Mr. and Mrs. Joel Gray were guests of Mrs. Laura Martin and family Monday.

A letter from Mrs. R. K. McClelland, who is in Yokohama, Japan, tells the Recorder that they will be in Boone county within a few months. Mrs. McClelland is a sister of former Sheriff L. T. Uta.

A ladies overshoe was found on the Florence pike near what is known as the Geo. Rouse bridge last week and was left at this office for the owner. Same may be had by calling at this office.

A letter containing the price of two years subscription was received by the publisher last week from R. L. Clutterbuck, of Los Angeles. Although Mr. Clutterbuck has been away from Boone county for many years he does not allow time or distance to erase the memory of his old home town.

Capt. Ed. Maurer and family, of Louisville, were week-end visitors at the home of J. G. Smith and wife here. Capt. Maurer states that his son, Joseph, who was seriously injured by a fall last summer, is gradually improving and that he feels certain that he will eventually recover the full use of his injured arm which was dislocated until a short time ago.

Publicly Chairman

There are stars that go out in the darkness. But whose silvery light shineth on. There are roses whose perfume still lingers when the blossoms are faded and gone. Sadness came into many hearts when news of the passing of Mrs. Katie Corbin at the home of her sister Mrs. Owen Bradford Friday afternoon at three o'clock. During her illness her sister with gentleness and devotion ministered to her every need. She had been in very poor health for many years, and almost blind. But despite their kindly ministrations and efforts put forth to restore her she fell into eternal sleep, her eyes closing in peace and slumber to awaken amid the beauties of the Heavenly land. She was a delightful and most wonderful church worker and a member of the Florence Baptist church, always attended services when able to go. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. DeMoisey, of the home. She leaves to mourn her loss one dear sister Mrs. Owen Bradford, two brothers Thomas Corbin, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Julius Corbin of Florence and a number of nephews and nieces and other relatives. She was laid to rest in the Florence cemetery by the side of her paragon sister and brother who had gone on before. The family have the sympathy of all.

it that only the flavor of grape juice can give.

Try your first bottle today and if you don't think it's better than any artificial grape drink you ever tasted—write us, enclosing crown and we'll gladly refund you the small purchase price. Make sure though you get the genuine. The New NuGrape is now on sale everywhere for 5¢.

NAME-The name of this Association shall be The Farmers Alliance, Local No. 1, Hebron, Kentucky.

ARTICLE TWO

Purpose and Objects

The purposes and objects of this Association shall be to oppose and resist any legislation passed by the Government, the State of Kentucky, or any municipality, and any rules or regulations of any department thereof which may be harmful or injurious to agriculture.

To encourage, aid, and assist in the passage of such laws; by Congress, the State Legislature, or by the law-making body of any municipality, that may be beneficial to agriculture.

To take such steps as is necessary to reduce the margin between what the farmer receives for his products and what the final consumer pays for his products, and thereby increase the price of such products to the farmer.

ARTICLE FOUR

Officers

The officers of this Association shall be the President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, and they shall be elected on the first regular meeting night in the month of January of each year, for a period of one year.

MEET AFTER 31 YEARS

The following article, clipped from the Detroit News, has been mailed to the Recorder by the Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones. F. W. Berkshire formerly was from Petersburg and is a son of the late J. W. Berkshire.

Reason in Church

The new director of the United States Immigration patrols on the Canadian border, F. W. Berkshire, who established his office at Detroit several days ago, went to church last Sunday. There was nothing remarkable in that itself, nor in that John L. Zurbrigg, district director of immigration, invited him to the church he attends regularly, the Central Woodward Christian Church. However, following the conclusion of the services, the Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones, pastor of the church, observed Mr. Berkshire and remarked that he had not seen him for 31 years when Dr. Jones first started to preach in Boone County, Kentucky. Mr. Berkshire was then in his first year of Government service.

TOBACCO OUTLOOK FOR LOWER PRICES

The outlook for burley tobacco is for lower average prices for the 1932 crop unless there is a reduction of over 30 per cent in the average or a crop of exceptionally high value is grown, says the annual agricultural outlook report issued by the department of market and rural affairs of the College of Agriculture, University of Ky. "Careful planning of the 1922 acreage, selection of the land best suited to tobacco, and observance of the best cultural, curing and marketing practices will be imperative if farmers expect to obtain

MEET AFTER 31 YEARS

The following article, clipped from the Detroit News, has been mailed to the Recorder by the Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones. F. W. Berkshire formerly was from Petersburg and is a son of the late J. W. Berkshire.

Reason in Church

The new director of the United States Immigration patrols on the Canadian border, F. W. Berkshire, who established his office at Detroit several days ago, went to church last Sunday. There was nothing remarkable in that itself, nor in that John L. Zurbrigg, district director of immigration, invited him to the church he attends regularly, the Central Woodward Christian Church. However, following the conclusion of the services, the Rev. Edgar DeWitt Jones, pastor of the church, observed Mr. Berkshire and remarked that he had not seen him for 31 years when Dr. Jones first started to preach in Boone County, Kentucky. Mr. Berkshire was then in his first year of Government service.

TOBACCO OUTLOOK FOR LOWER PRICES

The outlook for burley tobacco is for lower average prices for the 1932 crop unless there is a reduction of over 30 per cent in the average or a crop of exceptionally high value is grown, says the annual agricultural outlook report issued by the department of market and rural affairs of the College of Agriculture, University of Ky. Your farm needs it!

THROUGHOUT the world, the telephone is relied upon for emergencies. For sudden illness or an accident, you can call the doctor or order medical supplies in an instant. If a fire breaks out, you can call for help from your neighbors and the community fire department. When sickness breaks out among the stock, you can summon the veterinarian in a few minutes.

Your Telephone is Quick, Sure and Ready!

Above all, the farm home needs this protection because without the telephone it is isolated from outside assistance. For a few cents a day, the telephone gives you this invaluable protection which may save a life or thousands of dollars' worth of property. It is not a question of being able to afford a telephone; it is a question of being able to afford not to have one.

SUCKERS BITIN'

Of course suckers have been biting pretty good of late. In fact they have been working over time ever since 1928. But a true fish story relates that two local men actually landed two on one hook within a few minutes of each other the other day. Last Friday, to be exact, Jim Smith and Lloyd Weaver journeyed to the creek with pole and line. Weaver stuck one pole in the bank and was in the act of placing another when the first one was snatched from its location with a sudden jerk. Lloyd called to his comrade for assistance and both of them were able to drag in the catch. Sure enough two large suckers were dangling from the same hook. Within ten minutes, believe it or not, Jim had repeated the performance.

PRESIDENT

OF DIXIE STATE BANK, OF WALTON IS CALLED—DEATH TAKES JOHN C. MILLER MONDAY MORNING—WAS APPARENTLY ALMOST RECOVERED FROM APPENDICITIS OPERATION WHEN SUMMONED

It is with keen regret that we chronicle the death of John C. Miller, of Walton, this week.

Mr. Miller passed away at his home there Monday morning after a short illness. He had undergone an operation several weeks ago for appendicitis and was thought to be on the way to recovery.

Although born near Big Bone Mr. Miller had lived for the past twenty years in Walton, where he had become one of the most prominent business figures in that thriving little city. He was president of the Dixie State Bank when he died and actively interested in a number of other local enterprises. For many years before he came to Walton Mr. Miller had been engaged in the general merchandise at Landing. He was 71 years old.

ORCHARD SPRAYS

The two most important apple fruit sprays should be applied before many weeks according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Just before the flower buds are showing pink for the first and when three-fourth of the bloom has fallen for the second.

The inexperienced orchardman would not think this such an important time for sprays but if no other fruit sprays are applied these two should be by all means. This is the time apple scab, worms and other diseases that cause most injury to the fruit that show up later on get their start. Last year's experience showed that when one of these was left off and even though many fruit sprays were applied little effect in the control of scab was secured.

One gallon of lime sulfur and 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water should be used in both sprays.

The above does not include the wood or dormant spray for scale which should be applied before the buds get out too far. The man who sprays his fruit is the man who year after year produces fruit the public will buy at a premium. He is the man whose orchard will last for twenty-five or more years while the other man spends his time planting new orchards that require ten years to come into profitable production.

For more complete spray schedules secure College of Agriculture extension circular No. 176 from the County Agent's office.

FIRST GAME TO BE CALLED AT 2 P. M. FRIDAY—FINALS TO TAKE PLACE SATURDAY NIGHT—WINNERS TO GO TO NEWPORT

The first annual all-Boone county basketball tournament in state championship elimination will get under way promptly at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon in the spacious gymnasium Florence H. School.

Boone county basketball teams formerly have contested in district tournaments against teams from Kenton county and Boone county, both of which were in the same district. During the past year, however, changes have been made in the districting which places Boone county in a district to itself.

Winners in the Boone county tournament will contest in a regional clash at Newport, following which the successful fives there will journey to Lexington to compete for state honors. This year, Boone county has some very good teams and local fans are hopeful that some of their representatives will land at Lexington.

Drawings were held Tuesday evening at Florence. There will be three teams vying for the Class A championship and four teams of boys in the same class. Class B teams will number four girls and four boys fives.

In the drawings it was learned that the A teams will meet in the preliminary games Friday at the following hours: New Haven and Walton at 3 p. m.; A girls New Haven and Hebron at 7 P. M. Class B boys will meet as follows: Verona and Florence at 4 P. M., Friday and Hamilton and Petersburg at 8 P. M., the same day. Class B girls as follows: Verona and Hamilton at 2 P. M., Friday and Petersburg and Florence at 9 P. M., Friday.

The Burlington girls team drew the bye in the opening round and will play the winner of the Hebron-New Haven game for the A championship at 10 A. M., Saturday. The Burlington boys will meet Hebron Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and the winner of this game will hook up with the winner of the New Haven-Walton game for the A championship.

The winners of the Class A games will play the successful Class B teams for the county cup and championship. However, both Class A and Class B winners will be permitted to contest for regional honors at Newport.

The authorities at the Florence school cordially invite you to attend the tourney and assure you a cordial welcome. The Florence gym is one of the nicest in this section and if you witness this show no doubt you will be treated to some hotly contested and well played games.

Games will be played Friday afternoon and evening and play resumed again Saturday morning to continue until the finals, which will start between the Class A and B winners at 8 p. m. Cecil (Zake) Rigney and Dan Tehan will handle the games, which assures supporters of the various teams the most capable handling that it is possible to obtain. PARENTS COOPERATION URGED

Boone county parents are urged to cooperate with their boys and girls desiring to enroll in 4-H club work according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. The parent has the greatest single influence in the life of the average boy or girl, and unless full cooperation is rendered by the parent the greatest results will be achieved.

Boone county farmers 99.64% will agree that farmers must cooperate in solving many of their important farm problems if they are going to be solved to the farmers advantage. Today they are not cooperating because they have not learned to work cooperatively.

More than 300 boys and girls have enrolled in 4-H club work during 1932. Many of these members report back their parents act not fully in favor of their enrollment. The project work each member will carry on is on a partnership basis. A partnership between the boy or girl and his or her parent to carry on some farm or home project under the best methods known in agricultural production. Unless the parent part of the partnership cooperates fully the boy or girl must work under a handicap.

ATTEND POTATO MEETING

Mr. Sterling Rouse, James Galenstein, Kirtley McWethy, Joel Gray, Chas. Hempling, Jr., Depew, and H. R. Forkner last Saturday attended the Hamilton county potato meeting sponsored by Ohio Supermarket Station and the B. & O. Railroad.

The importance of State Certified potato seed, deep plowing and planting and shallow cultivation together with a Bordeaux mixture spray schedule to control flea beetles and leaf hoppers was recommended by Ohio State potato specialist. The importance of turning under each year a legume crop and use of heavy applications of fertilizers was recommended for high yields.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the Cincinnati market imports from 1800 to 1800 car loads of potatoes per year and that the freight rates from the main potato producing areas to the Cincinnati market is from 50c to 65c per bushel. This means that local growers have this advantage. Yields of from 200 bushels or more per acre must be secured if potatoes are to be raised profitably. This means the adoption of the above recommendations. The present yield for Ohio is 103 bushels per acre and from 15 to 20 bushels less in Kentucky.

Net Fans Given Thrill When Final Girls Tilt Finishes In Deadlock

WALTON AND PETERSBURG WIN
BOYS CUP, WHILE TOSSE OFF
CUP IN HEBRON-FLORENCE
GAME

An athletic drama was enacted at the close of the Boone County basketball tournament last Saturday that has made an indelible impression upon the minds and memories of hundreds of fans who witnessed it. Indeed it was the one outstanding high light of the two days play.

When the Hebron and Florence girls took the floor for the final contest for the county championship at 8 p. m., there certainly was not a soul in the crowd who had a ghost of an idea that the game would finish in an unbreakable tie. But that is what happened, to the utter consternation of all.

In the first place the Hebron girls, who had bowled over the fast New Haven team and had conquered the Burlington Kittens, the tournament favorites, were favored to win the game by something like a double score. But the Knightgales had other ideas and proceeded to put them into execution.

Led by their fine center, Higgins, the Knightgales waded into the stubborn Hebron quintet like nobody's business. But the Whorley captaincy five hung on to a slender lead until late in the second half and still most fans thought that Whorley would unleash one of her famed long shots in time to break the tie that maintained only a brief space before the final gun. But it was not forthcoming and the game ended with the count standing at 18-18.

An overtime period of three minutes elapsed. No score. After due deliberation another overtime stanza. Still no count. More deliberation. Then the disclosure from referees Tahan and Rigney that the state rules would not permit more overtime indulgence by girls and that under said rules that it became necessary, in order to break the tie, for each girl on the floor at the time to shoot one free shot and the team making the most points out of five tries would be awarded the game and the large cup. Some test. Somewhat akin to the judgment day.

To add to the tenseness of the situation the crowd was ordered to maintain a complete silence. It did. It was deafening. Captain Whorley won the toss and elected to shoot first. Amid the dense quietude she strode to the foul line carrying with her the undying support of her mates and the Hebron rosters and the full sympathy of all. She turned loose the leather and it clipped the strings. Nothing else. One point for Hebron. The crowd broke its silence.

Then more silence as the second girl made her way to the execution block. She was "executed," for she missed. Applause from the Florence sector. The third Hebron lady walked up. She hit. Two out of three was pretty good. The fourth Hebron lassie stepped up. She hit. Three out of four. Florence hopes sank. The fifth girl and she also hit. Four out of five and bedlam broke loose for Hebron. They could not lose with four out of five.

Now it was time for Florence. Captain Mary Higgins took her try and made the shot good. But that was only one. Could the next four girls make three shots? Nobody there thought so. The second girl followed the lead of Hebron and missed. The next three girls all must make their shots good. It was impossible under such strain. The third girl hit. Hopes advanced a notch. The fourth girl, knowing full well that it was win or lose, walked up and hit.

Then came the supreme test. Helen Elliott, diminutive forward on the Knightgale five, stepped up with trepidation showing in every feature. Nine girls had shot and only two had missed, one from each team. She MUST hit, or lose. If she hit she was a heroine—if she missed she was a goat. If she missed they would be telling her grandchildren in Old Stringtown a half a century from now that if Helen Elliott only had hit that free shot Florence would not have lost in 1932. The immortal Pepper Martin would have quailed at the prospect. But Helen didn't.

After an almost interminable period of preparation she sailed the sphere thru the air. It hit the rim and hesitated for what seemed an hour—then it dropped leisurely thru the hoops and there was a wagon load of bedlam.

Well, to bring a long story to an abrupt end they finally decided to toss a coin for the large and small cup and called the game a draw. Hebron won the toss.

Some kicked at the solution, but what else could they do. They had tried every way to settle it except to let "Bob" Rouse shoot for Florence and Charles Riley shoot for Hebron. But we don't believe that either Rouse or Riley could have pushed a ball thru that hoop at that moment from the top of a ladder and evidently the "refs" entertained the same opinion. At any rate they decided to toss a coin. And that was that.

The boys final game was a good one, but packed with it no such wallop as the preliminary. Walton, the class A champs, defeated Petersburg, the winners in class B, by a score of 16-10 in which Bradburn made the unusual record of counting nine of the losers ten points. He made four shots good out of six tries from near the center zone.

At the finish of the play trophies were awarded to DeMolsey, of Walton, Whorley, of Hebron, as the most valuable players to their respective boys and girls' teams. All star tournament teams were selected as follows: Boys—Seebree, Burlington, and DeMolsey, Walton, forwards; Williams, Walton, center; Higgins, Florence, and Bradburn, Petersburg, guards. Girls—Jones, New Haven, and Phillips, Burlington, forwards; Higgins, Florence, center; Whorley, Hebron, and Miller, Florence, guards.

A benefit lotto and card party will be held March 17th, 7:30 p. m., in the hall over Peoples Deposit Bank. Everyone is invited and admission will be 35 cents per person and six sandwiches.

The money taken in will be used for local relief work, and the sandwiches will be served during the evening. Make your reservations at Box 100, Burlington before March 14th. Last week in the Recorder it was stated that a 35 cent benefit lunch would be served at the hall on March 17th, but such is not the case. Peoples Deposit Bank has donated the hall for the evening, each person is providing his own lunch, the committee is making tables, and everything is being done to make the most money to help those in need. It is up to you to come and make the party a success.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

With this issue we inaugurate a new column in the Recorder. This probably is the first time in its existence that the Recorder readers will be privileged to read an up-to-date column from the pen of an author named "Bill Leach." Bill Leach, the author of this column, is a step-son of Jack Ryder, who has been a source of information to sport fans thru his daily column in the Cincinnati Enquirer for the past 27 years. We trust that our readers will appreciate this column each week.

"Five Redleg holdouts, all of them sore."

One signed his contract—then there were four.
Four Redleg holdouts, wanting more dough.

But President Well of the Reds still says, "No!"

Punk poetry, perhaps, but it tells the whole story of just what the Cincinnati National League ball club is up against in their second week of training at Tampa, Florida. Four star Redleg performers—Tony Cuccinello, Harvey Hendrick, Joe Morrissey, and Joe Stripp are still unmorale, and President Well is determined not to give in to any more salary demands.

The fifth holdout was Red Lucas, ace of the Red twirlers, who came to terms late last week and is now practicing hard at Plant Field, the Reds' training quarters, in hope of winning the pitching assignment on opening day at Redland Field April 12. Lucas signed a one-year contract for $14,000, after demanding $16,500 for the season.

The surrender of Lucas to the club's offer was the first salary victory for Well in his verbal war with the "holdouts," but it won't be the last, if present indications mean anything. Well is absolutely determined upon his salary limits and has told the other four that they can "come in" at his figures or else spend the summer outside looking in.

It's a tough break for the Reds that this money question became so tender this year. The Reds appear to have the best ball club in some seasons, but they need every one of the four holdouts to get anywhere.

Usually the Red fans everywhere side with the players when it comes to demanding higher wages, but this year the reluctant athletes are finding themselves with only enthusiastic public. Why? Well, the answer is simple. The Reds haven't been a good ball club for some time, and as a result, the management hasn't any money to throw away or spend foolishly.

When Well first took over the ownership of the Reds, he voluntarily raised the salaries of many of the men—feeling that the players would respond with increased efforts on the playing field. It worked out to be just the reverse, and

ROGERS CATTLE

BRING FLOCKING ON CINCINNATI MARKET MONDAY—FIFTY-FIVE HEREFORDS BRING $7.15 A HUNDRED—PURCHASED LAST WINTER AT MINERAL WELLS, TEXAS

Five trucks were busy all day Sunday conveying a drove of fine cattle from Bellevue to the Cincinnati Stock Yards. The drove numbered fifty and were the property of the Rogers brothers. These cattle were said to have been the finest to leave Boone county in many years.

They were sold Monday and reached the remarkable figure of $7.35 per hundred, which was a long stretch above the top market price for the day. The top was given as $5.75 for the day on all other beef sold.

The Rogers brothers purchased these cattle last winter at Mineral Wells, Texas, at the high figure of $11.00 a hundred. They were said to have weighed about 700 pounds at that time, but were weighed off Monday at 1250. They were thoroughbred Herefords and indeed beautiful animals.

James W. Huey, of Union, was among our visitors Monday.

Now Well faces the necessity of cutting down.

The fans want to see a good ball club at Redland Field this year, and they don't want any foolish spending on the part of the management. The fans feel that this is one time when the players should forget their salary differences with the club and settle down to playing winning baseball.

With Cuccinello, Hendrick, Morrissey, and Stripp signed, the Reds will be a greatly improved ball club, and don't think they won't. Already the base ball experts are picking the Reds to upset the League, either by punning the top-notch clubs or by grabbing of a first division perch themselves.

The shocking tragedy at Century, Florida, last week in which Ed Morris, one of the star twirlers of the Boston Red Sox was stabbed near the heart in a fight resulting in his death, brings to mind the fact that base ball, notwithstanding episodes like this one, has changed a great deal in the past few years. There was a time when ball players, like sailors on shore leave, just couldn't keep out of trouble, and managers were continually visiting the various jails and police stations in every town looking for their wandering players. Ball players aren't like that any more, thanks to good influence which public estimation has had on the pastime.

Oddly enough, the fight that caused Morris' death started at a party given in his honor on the eve of his departure for the Red Sox training camp at Savannah, Ga. This would have been Morris' sixth season with the Boston club.

Kentucky may be the home of thoroughbreds, but the Blue Grass citizens enjoy their base ball too. A new league was formed at Paris, Ky. last week that bids fair to be a permanent fixture—the Independent Blue Grass Baseball League, with six clubs lined up already and prospects of two more. The six are Lexington, Crab Orchard, Cynthiana, Lexington, Irvine and Winchester. Mayville and Lawrenceburg are expected to join, swelling the total to eight—just the right number for a battle-royal. The League will begin its season on April 17.

Who's Who with the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa, Florida? That's the big question the fans are asking. Well, just as a starter, we'll name a couple of the newcomers. Andrew A. High, best known as just plain "Andy," played infield for the champion St. Louis Cards last year. He's a real veteran of the game, a smart hard-playing, conscientious worker, and should prove a great help to the Reds. Andy is 36 years

Another new face among the Redlegs is that of Clyde Mantion, drafted by the Reds from Milwaukee in the American Association. Mantion is a catcher and a good one. Mantion, Bob Asby, and Clyde Sukerth will divide the assignments behind the bat this season for the Reds, which should mean an abundance of excellent back-stopping all the way through.

The big treat of the past week in sport for this Ohio valley area was the rip-roarin' visit of William Harrison Dempsey, otherwise known as "Jack" and the Manassas Mauler, to Louisville, Dayton, and Cincinnati for a series of exhibitions that packed arenas at every stand. Dempsey's appearances in these three cities alone netted him at least $10,000, which isn't bad for about 45 minutes work a week.

The fight fans and the curious stepped all over each other in rushing to the box offices wherever Dempsey fought, proving once more that the former world's heavyweight champion is still the most popular fighter of them all. At Louisville and Dayton, Dempsey disposed of his opponents without much trouble, treating the fans to the sight of the old Dempsey aggressiveness that made fight history at Toledo 13 years ago when the Manassas Mauler rocked Jess Willard as no heavy weight had ever been rocked before.

At Cincinnati last Thursday night, however, there was a different story to tell. Dempsey climbed thru the ropes with a pair of palookas named George Franklin and Jess Venegas, and failed to knock out either one of them, much to the disappointment of the some 3500 Dempsey followers who had come to see their favorite wreck a little havoc. Dempsey won two rounds against each man, winning both bouts on points but never getting close to a grand slam.

What was the trouble? Well, as far as this writer could gather from a ringside seat, the Dempsey of 1932 is a far different man than the Dempsey of 1919, or the Dempsey who lost the title to Tunney. The punch is still there, the spirit and the "eat-em-alive" aggressiveness are there also, but the legs are not, and the smooth precision and timing are not.

Dempsey can hit—and hit hard. He banged away for four rounds and inflicted considerable damage, but couldn't drive those K. O. punches home against younger, tougher men who could take a lot of beating without dropping.

Dempsey has been doing most of his training at the banquet table and before the radio microphones during the past months, and isn't in the best possible condition. He intends to begin serious training in April for another try at the world's championship, but it is doubtful if Jack will ever make the grade. Age and the old law of the arena that "they never come back" are going to get in their lick beforehand, and those are two opponents that have never been beaten!

COMPLETES FIRST MONTH OF D. H. I. WORK

Four Boone county dairymen with a belief in the future of the dairy industry and efficiency in production methods will carry on official dairy herd improvement association work during 1932. They are Kite and Purdy, Burlington R. D. 2; Robert Yowell, Ludlow R. D. 2; Joel Gray, Burlington, and Ben Nichting, Walton R. D. 2. Their program calls for herd improvement thru keeping individual records on each cow in the herd followed with a feed, breed and culling program.

The changes in the milk and dairy situation during the past two years has caused many dairymen to lose heart and check their improvement activities. The above dairymen plan to meet lower prices with increased efficiency.

J. G. Smith is reported to be very ill at his home on South Jefferson street. Influenza is given as his ailment. Arthur Maurer is carrying the mail on the Brainerd-Burlington star route during the absence of Mr. Smith.

MERCURY STARTS BROODING EARLY SUNDAY AND DROPS BELOW ZERO WEDNESDAY MORNING AFTER BOVING IN LOW FIGURE FOR THREE DAYS

Odd though it may seem the coldest day of the current winter waited until Monday, March 7th, to put in its appearance in these parts. At that the temperature never yet has reached the zero mark, which is the first time for many, many years that this has occurred. And to add to the peculiarity of the situation weather men say that it is the first time since 1871 that it has been this cold this late in March.

The temperature as noted on the thermometer at the post office by Postmaster Hickman, who is one of the Burlington early birds, was 4 above on Sunday morning, 3 above Monday and 4 again Tuesday.

Due to the exceptionally warm weather thru February and early March the fruit buds had reached a remarkably forward stage and it was the general opinion Sunday morning that the fruit crop would be injured beyond recovery.

However, a number of fruit men have given it as their opinion that peaches probably would be injured not more than half and apples and cherries would be hurt scarcely at all.

Aside from possible injury to the fruit crop the frigid weather is considered a great benefit generally by farmers, who had feared frost that the ground would be too dry. Ground that has been plowed during the past week (and there is a great deal of it) no doubt was turned a trifle wet and the frosts this week will save Mr. Farmer from a lot of extra harrowing and dragging, to say nothing of sore feet from hopping holes.

Then, in addition to the above fear, a plethora of insects and worms was a dire threat. Many farmers had reported that cut worms could be seen in abundance on top of the ground last week, but it goes without saying that the weather will play havoc with those venturesome pests.

So, if the peach crop is not injured by more than half the cold wave may be considered a boon in a general way after all.

The Recorder office and printing force received a very pleasant surprise on Saturday last week when Billie Jarrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Jarrell, brought to us a beautifully iced Angel Food cake. On top of the cake, set in attractive red decoration, were the words "Boone County Recorder." No time was lost in ceremony, however, when the cake was uncovered and the hungry animals heretofore showed not the slightest respect for the beauty of the cake. They wanted a look at the inside and accented the cake the same privilege with them. We compliment Mrs. Jarrell upon her culinary ability.

lance opposed this bill as originally introduced, because it placed too great a tax burden upon the small truck, which under present conditions is the means by which farm produce is transported to the markets. If it is finally passed as originally introduced, the cost of transportation of farm products will be greatly increased because of the new mileage tax or license feature.

There was considerable discussion at the meeting last Saturday night with reference to a change of name of the Association. It is a difficult matter to secure a better name because all the more appropriate and shorter names have been utilized by farm organizations, and are now in use by them. The opposition to the present name is due largely to the fact that at one time there existed in this county an association known as The Farmers Alliance, which played a very conspicuous part in the American History, and served a great cause honorably and well. Many of the members feel that it is not good policy to change the name after the Association has grown so rapidly under the name within such short period of time. Although they are not entirely satisfied with the present name, they feel that it would be a great hindrance and handicap to its further rapid growth, which is necessary if the Association is going to accomplish much within the near future for the welfare of the farmer. The matter of changing the name has been specially set for hearing at the meeting next Saturday night.

The members of the Association are very confident that the Association can accomplish much for the benefit of the farmer, and they feel that it has already done a great good within the short period of its existence. The members are very anxious to have as many present next Saturday night as possible, and the Membership Committee is doing everything with its power to increase the number of members as rapidly as possible and to extend the power and influence of the Association for the good and welfare of the farmer.

Every person who is interested in agricultural pursuits is especially requested to be present at the meeting next Saturday night at Hebron, at 8:30 P. M., (fast time).

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Craddock and family, of Union, spent Saturday night and Sunday with W. W. Craddock and wife here.

SALES FOR TAXES
Sheriff Herbert Snyder Monday offered for sale 113 parcels of real estate for State and County taxes. The majority were bid in by L. S. Snyder, of Petersburg, a brother of the Sheriff, while some few other individuals purchased a few. However, a great many were allowed to go by default resulting in purchase by the State.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION.
(Too Late for Last Week)

The Holy Sunlight Mission was the scene of hearty handclaps and many smiling faces Sunday evening.

Our reason for happiness was that the "Gospel Trio" Bro. F. W. Waters and Louis Brown, of Covington, were with us.

Readiness to oblige in every way is a characteristic of the Gospel Trio.

We take advantage of this fact by asking them to play and sing our specials.

Among the specials the "Gospel Song" was most heartily appreciated.

This song is not only interesting but affords us a good lesson on self control and Christian tolerance.

Bro. Marsh, of Pike St., Covington, gave us some good thoughts. After the enjoyable special Bro. Waters brought us a message both interesting and beneficial.

During Tuesday night "Praise Service" Louis Brown gave an interesting talk.

One and all were glad indeed to welcome Bro. Joe Millson back to the Mission.

We know that he has been doing splendid work during the Revival held at the City Mission in Covington.

Rev. Cole of Spring Grove, Ohio, along with a group of singers came to the Mission to hold services Friday night.

Folks really forgot that time passes hurriedly, for the singing of these folks was most enjoyable.

The Family Garden

THE BOONE COUNTY ASSOCIATION
(By John S. Gardner, Kentucky
College of Agriculture)

The best garden soil is sandy loam, well filled with humus or rotted organic matter. Such soil drains well and remains moist and easily workable, and at the same time, holds moisture in the proper degree for the crops to make quick, successful growth. It is essential to the high quality expected in vegetables.

Lacking such soil, however, the gardener need not despair, for any soil may be made possibly good by applying generous quantities of stable manure, or by turning under "green manure" crops or rye, vetch or even weeds.

If stable manure is to be the humus material, it should be turned under some time in advance of the beginning of the gardening season, particularly if it is fresh, but if rotted manure is to be used, it may be spread and plowed under just prior to seed sowing. There is a distinct advantage in breaking a garden before freezing and thawing weather are past, for besides causing organic matter to break down, the heaving action in the soil makes it mellow. Too, the probability is that some of the overwintering insects will be killed. A two-inch coat of stable manure is not too much.

If a "green manure" crop is to furnish the humus, it goes without saying that plowing, early enough at least to begin its breaking down, is essential.

Garden soil should be deep so as to furnish a reservoir for reserve moisture. Breaking should be ten inches deep, if possible. If the soil will not permit plowing so deeply, at this time, successively deeper plowing, adding one-half inch each year until this depth is reached, is suggested.

Garden soil should be deep so as to furnish a reservoir for reserve moisture. Breaking should be ten inches deep, if possible. If the soil will not permit plowing so deeply, at this time, successively deeper plowing, adding one-half inch each year until this depth is reached, is suggested.

Garden soil should be fertile. As a fertilizer, stable manure or a cover crop of legume are splendid, as far as they go, but because both these materials are lacking in phosphorus they are incomplete fertilizers for most of the garden vegetables. This shortage may be made good by broadcasting superphosphate just before the last operation in preparing the garden for seed sowing. On a garden 100 feet square, one bag of 125-pounds should be used. Phosphorus hastens maturity and is particularly effective on tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, beans and peas.

If the green manure includes no legume (clover or vetch), or if completely rotted manure is to be used, or no manure at all, a complete fertilizer should be used instead of superphosphate. A well-balanced analysis is 4-8-6, or 4-10-4, and the rate for its use is 250 pounds on a garden 100 ft. square. It is to be understood that fertilizer furnishes plant food only; the provision for humus may not be overlooked.

The practices just outlined make a splendid basis for a good productive garden. Amendments of specific plant foods are desirable for certain vegetables, but these will be discussed under their proper heads.

EARLY CABBAGE

(By John S. Gardner, Ky. College of Agriculture)

Early cabbage setting time is here, or almost here. As has been their custom, large numbers of home gardeners will use again the so-called "frost-proof" plants, as being the easiest and safest means toward having extremely early cabbage. Here and there, all over Kentucky, are gardeners who had usually to raise satisfactory cabbage, because of the cabbage "yellows" disease. The symptoms in the yellowing and wilting of the slips just as heading should begin. Such plants will be found to have rotted completely off, just at the ground line.

A disease, whose attack is first in the seed, so plant treatment is ineffective against "yellows," but its control is by avoidance, thru the use of cabbage varieties that are immune to it. Of these, there are three: Escapo, Marion Market, and Wisconsin Hollander, named in the order of their season. Unless the "frost-proof" plants are of these varieties, the gardener who has been having trouble with the yellows disease, may prepare himself for just another disappointment. Good strategy on his part would be to start with "frost-proof" plants but to have growing a reserve of seedlings of the resistant varieties just named. All seedsmen handle them, if applied in time.

In gardens that are from "yellows," the varieties to use are Golden Acre, Copenhagen Market, and Succession. The first two are round heads, less subject to bursting than Early Jersey and Charleston Wakefield; Golden Acre is, if anything, slightly earlier than the favorite Early Jersey, besides. Cabbage needs good ground, high in moisture-holding capacity, for cabbage is over 90 per cent water. Cabbage land should be rich in nitrogen; the plant food that causes leaf growth. Turning under, deeply, a generous coat of manure insures both these requirements. The manure may be used fairly fresh, before its store of nitrogen will have passed off. Further, in the breaking down of fresh manure, warmth is generated, and this is of benefit in getting the cabbage to start off promptly.

In addition to the manure, feeding should be done, by applying top-dressings of nitrogen material. This may be chicken manure that has been dried, or at the rate of one bushel to 300 feet of row, or "liquid manure," made by leaching water through mixed (fresh) stable manure, a half-pint to a plant, may be used. Better than either of these, as being more concentrated and more quickly available, is nitrate of soda, used at the rate of one pound to 75 plants. Two dressings may be made with benefit: The first, when the cabbage begins growing, and the second two weeks later.

Cabbage should be set level, not in hills, except in the instance that the soil is distinctly wet. In such a case, setting on a slight ridge may be of advantage in permitting earlier setting, but, highly ridged rows may find themselves in an embarrassing situation when the soil dries out, and the weather becomes warm.

Cultivation should be shallow, and the land should be left level. It is better to remove weeds from between the cabbages than to try to keep them smothered. Cabbage worm, harlequin bug control will be covered in a later article, but it is pertinent to speak of plant lice now, for these pests make their appearance early; they are, in fact, sometimes introduced on the slips. Users of "frost-proof" slips should examine these before they set them, or better still, acting on the suspicion that the plants are infected, they should dip them in a strong tobacco solution before setting them. Further, close watch should be kept, and the plants promptly sprayed with tobacco nicotine sulfate compounds, after the directions printed on the container.

More than four hundred delegates and their wives, representing sixteen thousand livestock producers of five states were on hand to hear Mr. Denman speak and to take part in the meeting. An address by President Lloyd Nickels of Connersville, Indiana, opened the session followed by the report of Secretary-Treasurer J. R. Allgier of Columbus, Ohio and a short report on the accomplishments of the past year and the plans for the future by Manager R. Q. Smith, P. O. Wilson, National Livestock Marketing Association manager, then told of the work the National Livestock Association is doing in the financing of feeder cattle and lambs, market research, transportation, and the organization of Producer agencies at other market centers. Following Mr. Wilson's address the meeting was adjourned for lunch.

County Agents

County agricultural agents are again charged with the responsibility of the administration of Federal farm relief, as authorized in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act, which provides funds to be loaned to needy farmers, according to an announcement by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Dean Cooper, who has received instructions from the Department of Agriculture, to set up the necessary county organizations to handle applications for crop loans, authorized the following statement:

"Funds were provided by Congress to assist farmers who cannot obtain credit from other sources in planting this year's crops, the maximum loan to any one borrower will be $400, and the maximum loans to the tenants of one land lord will be $1,000. The interest rate will be 5 1/2 per cent, the loans to be repaid Nov. 30."

"Kentucky county agricultural agents devoted a large part of their time in the early part of 1931 to assisting farmers in securing government loans for the purchase of food and feed and the planting of crops. Large acreages and good yields of food and feed crops last year prevented actual want in thousands of homes and enabled farmers to carry on and even make money, despite low prices. Kentucky farmers secured approximately $2,500,000 in government loans last year."

The Secretary of Agriculture will appoint committees to work with agricultural agents in administering the new loans provided to help farmers. County agents will be supplied with full information regarding the loans, and, together with members of the committees will assist farmers in filling out the necessary application blanks to forward to the St. Louis emergency crop loan office of the Department of Agriculture."

FARM GIVES MUCH TO FAMILY LIVING

A study of 4,000 farms, made by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, shows that the value of home supplies furnished by the farm is greater than the net cash returns on many farms. Two-thirds of the family living, on the average, so far as food, fuel, and housing are concerned, is furnished directly by the farm.

The farmer's family is considered the best market for potatoes and other garden vegetables, eggs and other dairy products, eggs and poultry, cured meat and fire wood. "There are in no way discounted this year, and the market outlook so far as they are concerned is as good as it ever was," says the statement of the farm economies department of the College. "From this point of view the lot of the farm family is particularly fortunate in comparison with that of city families, many of whom are in distress because of unemployment."

There is need that farm families provide a succession of vegetables from early spring to late fall, the growing and storing of potatoes, cabbage and other vegetables for winter, the canning and drying of corn and apples and other fruit, and the curing of meat.

Farmers are asked to consider first the production of food for the family and feed for the livestock. It is especially important that landlords encourage tenants to adopt a live-at-home program. It probably will be a good policy to allow the tenant to keep a few, some chickens and a hog or two, and to encourage him to have a good garden, including potatoes. Farmers who are doing these things say that it helps them to obtain and hold good tenants."

COLLEGE REVIEWS LIVESTOCK MARKET

The raising of horses and mules offers opportunities for Kentucky farmers, says a review of the farm situation issued by the College of Agriculture. More horses and mules are being used on farms, due to the farmers' inability to buy mechanical power. This fact, together with a declining production of work stock, has caused prices to hold up. It is the opinion of the economists at the college that prices of horses and mules may be relatively good for several years.

Despite large production and no prospect of improved prices, Kentucky sheep raisers should make money this year, because of the open winter and low cost of producing lambs. Lambs in the early lambing districts are doing much better than in 1931 and heavier marketings can be expected from these regions. Marketings of lambs from the corn belt states should also exceed those of a year ago. It will be especially important, this year, for farmers to feed well, trim and have lambs ready for market during the early part of the season so as to obtain premium prices.

Five per cent lower cattle care

On feed Jan. 1 than a year ago, light weight steers and calves made up a larger proportion, and cows, heifers and heavy steers a smaller proportion of the cattle on feed than in 1935. The supply of well finished grain fed steers is likely to be somewhat smaller than during the first half of 1931. The report indicates that spring and early summer will be the most favorable time to sell cattle. Common and medium grades should be sold before the summer runs of straw cattle get under way.

The number of hogs in the U. S. increased 9 per cent and the number in Kentucky 15 per cent last year. This spring's crop will be large. Storage holdings of pork on Jan. 1 were 2 per cent larger than a year ago but about equal to the year's average. The outlook for the year is for increased slaughter but no greater demand for hog products. To make money from hogs this year will require use of pasture and home-grown feeds, and good management to prevent losses of pigs.

TURKEY RAISERS TO HEAR WESTERN MAN

Prof. F. E. Mussel, head of the poultry department at the Nebraska College of Agriculture, will be one of the principal speakers at the meeting of turkey raisers to be held at the Experiment Station at Lexington March 9th. He will speak twice in the morning on the subject, "How to Raise 80 Percent of the Poultry," and in the afternoon on blackhead and its control. Other speakers will include Robert White, a Bourbon county farmer who raises 800 turkeys a year, and J. Holmes Martin and D. G. Card of the Kentucky College of Agriculture. Many phases of turkey raising and marketing will be discussed and the meeting then opened to questions. Farmers have been making money from turkeys and there are indications that Kentucky may become one of the large turkey raising regions.

UNADAPTED SEED CAUSES FAILURE

Many red clover failures in Kentucky are due to the use of seed not adapted to local conditions, according to extensive tests made by the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, and reported in bulletin No. 318, called "Adaptability of Red Clovers from Different Regions, to Kentucky." The tests were made at the Lexington Princeton and Hopkinsville soil fields from 1922 to 1930. Most clovers that had been grown in the state for many years gave satisfactory production. Foreign clovers and clovers from other states were more or less unsatisfactory. The investigation indicates that only clovers that have been tested and are known to be adapted to local conditions should be used. Copies of the bulletin can be obtained from county agents or by writing to the Experiment Station at Lexington.

SAYS 4-CENT HOGS MAY BE PROFITABLE

The possibility of a profit from 4-cent hogs is presented by Grady Sellards, a field agent for the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. He based this statement on observations made among Kentucky farmers last year, especially among members of the ton litter club.

With corn at 40 cents a bushel, farmers who balanced their rations and used good pasture, last year made $5 or more on each 200-lb. pig, above cost of feed, pasture and labor.

Hogs continue to be one of the most profitable mediums through which a large part of the corn crop can be marketed, according to Mr. Sellards. Despite cheap grain, he advocates care in balancing the ration with skim milk or tankage. Good pasture also should be used liberally to help balance and cheapen the ration.

Mr. Sellards is teaching hog feeding to farmers on their farms, chiefly through the medium of the Kentucky ton-litter club. Members of this club raise their hogs under sanitary conditions and feed balanced rations, pushing litters to a weight of a ton or more when 165 days old. Such litters seldom fail to return a profit.

Several Grant county farmers are planning to mix 3 to 5 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed per acre in all spring sowings of grasses and clovers. It is estimated that 200 farmers will sow lespedeza this year.

Twenty farmers in Stone's Chapel community in Grayson county who have been raising 100 or more turkeys each yearly are planning to cooperate in the production and marketing of a car load of choice birds this year.

About 250 acres of strawberries will be set in Graves county, despite possibilities of lower prices as a result of increased production.

A Bone—You say? Oh yeah.

A Hank o' hair—Ah, look! Dark and gray.

Enshrouded, bedazzled by years of dizziness.

Of worries of care.

That stole her shining jet.

Oh bright gold, with their snare.

A Hank of hair? Oh yeah?

A Rag, and a Bone, and a Hank o' Hair.

Make a woman; yes, beyond compare.

The origin is there, and I'm for this Rag, and this Bone,

And this Hank o' hair. Oh yeah.

MILD WINTER MEANS BEES NEED FEEDING

Hundreds of colonies of bees are now in the "bread time" as a result of the generally mild weather of the present winter, says a statement by Prof. W. A. Price, state entomologist at the Experiment Station, University of Kentucky. Bees have been active both within the hive and outside a greater portion of the winter.

Usually they are quiet and remain inside the hive during the winter period. As a result of this activity more stores have been accumulated than usual and colonies that appeared to have sufficient honey last fall to carry them thru the winter are now short of food. Also many colonies went in the winter with a scant supply of winter stores.

It is pointed out that these facts mean ministering to the bees now and tiding them over the shortage so as to have a good strong colony and plenty of honey next summer, or clearing the hive of dead bees within a few weeks. Immediate action is necessary.

Honey that is free from foul-brood is good for feeding at this time. If it cannot be obtained easily, then give the bees sugar syrup, using two parts of granulated sugar to one part of water. If possible this should be put in a friction top pail feeder and placed just above the winter cluster. The usual precaution against robbing should be observed.

DECLINING MARKET FOR DARK TOBACCO

The annual outlook report of the Kentucky College of Agriculture declares that "the long-time outlook for dark fire-cured tobacco is for a continually declining market unless consumer habits change and tariff barrier together with foreign economic conditions are altered."

"Growers who are not able to produce tobacco of exceptionally high quality should consider possible ways of reorganizing their farms so that less dependence is placed on tobacco," the report declares. "In some sections straw-berries may form an additional source of income, in other sections tree fruits or early vegetables are alternative enterprises. In still other areas a greater reliance can be placed in the livestock enterprises. Unfortunately, however, the immediate outlook for none of these products is particularly bright, but relatively it is more favorable than the outlook for dark fire-cured tobacco. Growers who have the ability to produce high grade wrapper and snuff tobacco doubtless will continue to profit from its production."

A 12 per cent increase in the production of Kentucky tobacco in 1935 and a 21 per cent drop in disappearance in 1935, has placed this type in the weakest market position it has experienced in several years, the report declares. Stocks, which have been extremely low for two years, have increased but still are below the 1930 figure.

The outlook for the Buckle Tobacco is termed "very unfavorable." Production has exceeded disappearance for three consecutive years and total supplies at the opening of the present marketing season were 3.8 times the disappearance of the previous twelve months.

The outlook for Green River tobacco is also called unfavorable, and will continue to be as long as foreign exchange rates remain low and the acreage grown in above the 1930 level."

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

At the Basketball Tournament held at Florence last week-end the Tomcats and Kittens met with a defeat from the Hebron girls and Walton boys. Saturday morning the Tomcats met the Hebron boys and won their first game of the Tournament by a score of 39 to 20. Hebron was picked to win this game as they had defeated them a few nights ago by a large score on the Burlington gym. The Kittens were put out of the Tournament by the Hebron girls when they were defeated by a score of 19 to 15, the Kittens being picked to win this game. On Saturday afternoon the Tomcats met their Waterloo when they were nosed out of the Tournament by the fast Walton five, 49 to 2. As far as the Tomcats and Kittens were concerned, the Tournament was just another Tournament to them, but they want to show their appreciation by thanking the Florence people for the courteous way in which they were entertained during the Tournament. Especially do they want to thank the ladies who were in charge of the lunches, also Prof. Davis and coach Lamb for their kind and prompt attention. Altho they could not have a Tournament winner, they are back of the team that won, and they want them to represent Boone county with the old fight and bring back the honor to old Boone.

The students of B. H. S were sorry to hear that Elaine Dickerson a sophomore, was taken to Booth Memorial Hospital in Covington, where she is to undergo a surgical operation. We wish her a very speedy recovery and hope she will soon be able to come back to school.

The students of B. H. S. are glad to welcome Hal Riley Hensley back after his long illness.

"Sunday School Basket Ball Ends"

We know everyone is interested in the County High School teams in their tournament, but I think a little should be said concerning the county Sunday School tournament which closed last Saturday night at Hebron Feb. 27th. The finals being played that night between Petersburg and Burlington Baptist, Petersburg winning by the large margin 45 to 13. This Petersburg was crowned the champs of the county.

I think high credit should be paid to the Petersburg boys namely: Wm. Bradburn, Henry R. Deck, Perry C. Carver, Stanley R. Smith, Albert Hitzfeld, Jr., and Tom Walton, also their manager, Mr. L. S. Snyder.

These boys always went into the game with a smile of course, expecting to win, but they played the game squarely and always came out victorious, never losing a game in the county circuit.

A trophy was promised to the champion team, so we are sure the Petersburg boys are looking forward proudly to their prize. We compliment them on their good playing and real sportsmanship. We hope if there is a S. S. League next year, Petersburg has the same good team, good luck and last, but not least, the same good manager. In him was a good leader, and a confidential manager with the boys. I am sure they appreciate him.

"YELLOW RESISTANT" CABBAGE
Yellows in cabbage has been the source of serious loss in a number of Boone county home gardens. Three yellows resistant varieties are recommended:

Jacope, early variety.
Marion Market, Mid-season variety.
Wisconsin No. 8, late.

A survey of local stores shows that the above varieties are hard to find. The county agent has been able to locate Wisconsin No. 8 at D. R. Van Atta Seed Company opposite the Stock Yards in Cincinnati or the Marion Market and the Wisconsin All Seasons from the Yopp Seed Company, Paducah, Ky. The seed are the same price as other varieties, the price being 10c per package and from 40c to 50c per ounce.

Those gardeners who have been having trouble from yellows should secure the above seed.

Local News

Paul Renaker, of Florence, made the Recorder a brief call one day last week. Mr. Renaker represents the Georgetown Candy Co. and his territory consists of Boone, Gallatin, Grant, Kenton and Pendleton counties in Kentucky. Mr. Renaker is a good salesman and an honest, upright citizen.

Folks in these parts are laying the blame for the cold weather at the door of Lloyd Weaver, who they claim, is responsible on account of having "ruined" the fishing season. But Lloyd isn't altogether to blame. The report comes to us that the next day after the Recorder came off the press last week that "Pep" Smith, "Eph" Clure, Ed. Berkshire and Owen Blankenbaker all started out in a valiant effort to catch two suckers on one hook. No reports.

Dr. T. B. Castleman has returned from a stay of several weeks in Florida and will be at his dental office every day during the week. Judging by the weather "Doc" should have stayed down there a while longer.

H. A. Schobert, of Versailles, Ky., administrator of the estate of J. T. Judge, deceased, paid the Recorder office a call Monday. His legal notice will be found in other columns.

BULL ORGANIZATION ORGANIZED

A bull association block was given a skeleton organization in a meeting held at the Florence Deposit Bank in Florence last Tuesday afternoon. Plans were made for one complete block of four members with the possibility of two additional blocks being formed.

A bull association or block is a simple plan in which four dairymen of like ideas on improvement and breeding secure four good herd sires with each member of the block using one herd sire for two years and exchanging with one of the other members. One herd sire is thus secured for the approximate cost of four and by knowing what the daughters of each herd sire is producing at the pail and the services of a proven herd sire is secured. Most breeders at the present time are using a herd sire for two years and then selling the animal before the daughters have had a chance to prove their worth at the milk pail.

The members taking part in the skeleton block formed are O. R. Russ, Ben Nitching, Robt. Youell and Robt. Chambers. The dairy department of the College of Agriculture has been requested to locate four herd sires that are from vigorous high producing block lines.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our appreciation and thanks to the many friends for the kindness shown us in the death of our brother and uncle, Tom Judge.

A Most Prominent Northern Kentucky Financial Institution Located at The Corner of Sixth and Madison Streets in Covington. Phone Hemlock 2586 Offering a Complete Banking, Financial and Trust Service.

Having served the people of this community as their financial depository as well as in trust and deposits it is not strange that this institution is recognized as a financial establishment exercising good influence upon the commercial and industrial life of this locality. Today they offer the people in this section of the state a most modern and reliable service.

They have been conservative while keeping up with modern progress; they always have the greatest consideration for their patrons' needs, and the affairs of his institution have always been in the hands of men of experience in financial and trust matters.

This financial institution is organized to officiate in any trust capacity and has charge of handling many estates, both large and small. This concern officiating in this capacity is in a better position than any individual to render impartial and efficient service. It is organized for this service and endeavors to see to it that no excess taxes are paid; that matters are not delayed through illness, vacation, etc., but that the interests of every person concerned is carefully guarded and efficiently served. It is always wise to name as trustee a corporation rather than an individual, in all trust matters regardless of their nature.

The individual cannot render the same safe and satisfactory service of this character as can the trust company, organized and equipped for the purpose, because in such work it is always impartial and unprejudiced.

While we dislike to acknowledge the fact even to ourselves, frequently relatives or friends appointed to act as administrator of an estate mismanage money and properties, permit court litigations that are unnecessary and thereby lose much money for the estate and that money that heirs are rightly entitled to have.

This financial institution provides a service insuring the protection of every family. It is said that the average life of an unprotected estate is less than ten years. If you make a will and appoint this trust company your executor and trustee you will be protecting your estate and you will know also that your wish is being carried out to the letter and with justice and fairness to all.

Interest is paid on deposits and they are equipped to render the most highly satisfactory banking accommodations. Its tellers and clerks are courteous and efficient, receiving the deposit of a dollar with the same magnanimous service that is extended to the largest corporations. They transact a general banking and trust business and offer a complete and comprehensive service. In reality all of the important features of modern and reliable bank and trust service are at the command of the customers of the Covington Trust and Banking Co., at Covington.

Norris, Brock Company

"THE LIVE WIRE, PROGRESSIVE AND INDEPENDENT FIRM" Located at Union Stock Yards in Cincinnati—Handle More Stock From Boone County on Commission Than Any Firm at the Union Stock Yards—Office Phone West 5864, Cattle Yard Phone West 5865, Hog Yard West 6065.

A farmer spends many hours of hard labor in taking care of and raising of his live stock for market. After his hard efforts have been put forth to have his stock ready for market, in the best possible condition, the question then arises, "Where is the best market?"

There are many places to sell live stock, many individuals and firms that claim to be the best market available, but to be the best is not always the case. Every farmer and stock raiser should investigate the advantages offered him by the stock seller. Is he sure he is getting the highest market price, is he sure that he is receiving fair and honest treatment. He should also take into consideration the reliability of those to whom he sells his stock. Have they acquired a reputation for integrity and honest dealings.

They have been selling stock on commission for many years in this locality. We have made inquiries among the farmers of this section and we have heard nothing but praise for the fair dealings of this firm. The courtesy that always is shown to their patrons, information gladly given by them as to the condition of the market and the highest price that the market will stand.

The small stock seller, everyone knows, is not on the "inside" and, therefore as a consequence is not in a position to give the farmer the best of service. There are no larger sellers of stock in this part of the state than Norris, Brock Co., of Cincinnati. They handle a large amount of live stock shipped out of this section.

There is a reason for this. They know their business, they know their market and they are so well known by the farmers and stock raisers of this vicinity, that they have their confidence and consequently they receive their shipments as the farmer knows full well that he cannot do better elsewhere and receive the same service that he receives at the hands of this concern.

Proud to mention that Norris, Brock Co. know their business and all who have had business dealings with them will receive courteous, fair and honest treatment.

The Boone-Kenton Lumber Company

R. C. McNay, President and General Manager

Yards At 219 Crescent Avenue in Erlanger, Phones Dixie 7133 and Erlanger 37. Dealers For Everything in Lumber, High Grade Millwork, Shingles, Wall Board, Sheetrock, Garage Doors, Roofing, Etc.

The Boone-Kenton Lumber Co. At Erlanger has established an enviable record and reputation for quality and fair dealing and have attained a prominent position in the state by reason of their comprehensive service.

The company is under the direction of lumbermen of wide experience who will be glad to talk over with you your problems at any time.

While it ever has been their object to obtain a fair and honest profit from their extensive dealing in lumber and building materials the guiding influence of this company always has been the determination to furnish the highest grade goods at prices so reasonable that the extension and beautification of the surrounding country could progress by great leaps and bounds.

No longer do people purchase lumber in a haphazard manner. Like other articles of merchandise lumber is now intelligently purchased with an eye to price, quality and service. The Boone-Kenton Lumber Company in Erlanger provides with even the smallest bill of lumber these three essentials and they believe conscientiously that there is no substitute for quality. Since their organization their policy has been to satisfy the most exacting in price, quality and service.

There is no establishment in this section that has a greater influence for better upon the building industry. Contractors have come to know that whatever they desire in the line carried can be secured from this firm with the knowledge that it will be the highest grade consistent with the price.

In making this review of the community we are glad to compliment them upon their very comprehensive lines, their excellent service in all departments and we refer them to all of the readers of this newspaper.

REPORT OF RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE FOR FEB. 1933

Two Home Hygiene classes were enrolled at New Haven High School the first of February. I rejoice over every new class group, and regret the completion of each class, they sort of grow to be my family, and I hate breaking the circle.

The Red Cross certificates awarded the girls of the Hamilton school who took the course, were presented to them at the Chapel program in the school auditorium with an appropriate talk by Mrs. Mabel G. Sayre, Secretary of the American Red Cross. During the short time which elapsed since the lessons ceased and the time the certificates were given, the girls have found occasion to very successfully meet some needs by putting into practice some of the Home Nursing Procedures taught.

Three trips were made into the Children's Clinic and Hospital in behalf of cases and one adult was assisted in obtaining an eye operation.

Miss Mary Dietler, the new Chapter Field Representative for the National Red Cross for this section of Kentucky, visited the Boone County Chapter one day, and Miss Sarah Hays, who formerly occupied the same position also spent a day with the Chapter in the interest of the particular work she is doing now.

The children of the grades of the Walton school were given general physical inspection during February, also in some other schools. I was called upon to do rapid inspection of the pupils. It was found that 38 children had received some needed correction of defects since last inspected.

Everything Else for Farmer Imported, Senator Says

Frankfort, Ky., February 26.—At last the problem of "what's the matter with the Kentucky farmer?" has been solved. The whole trouble, in a nutshell, according to Senator Alex Johnson of Louisville, Republican, is that the Kentucky farmer has only one home product on his property, and that is "a Kentucky yellow hound dog" that keeps him awake all night.

Everything else the farmer uses, Johnson contends, comes from some other State.

Thursday afternoon Johnson presented to the Senate in the form of a communication his "farm problem solution."

AURORA FERRY

"FRANK KLOPP, Mgr."

Provides an Unexcelled Ferry Service to This Entire Section of Kentucky—Operating Between Aurora, Ind., and Petersburg, Ky.—Connecting State Routes 50 and 56 on the Indiana Side with Direct Connections For 25 and 42 on Kentucky Side. Their Ferry Boat is the Latest Style and One of the Best Equipped in this Section. For Safe, Fast and Efficient Service "Ride the Aurora Ferry."

The Aurora Ferry offers residents of and travelers coming to Boone County a service that cannot be overlooked in compiling this business review.

It not only saves time, trouble and money but brings us closer to our Indiana friends and we to them.

In the olden days a river such as the Ohio presented a hazardous undertaking in attempting to cross and a delay of days and sometimes weeks. First a raft had to be built taking time and hard labor, then only a limited number were taken over and so some times they did not reach the opposite side safely. This method was unusually dangerous. But today modern, safe, reliable and rapid ferry service such as that of the Aurora Ferry overcomes all of these obstacles. We are bringing out these few comparisons to help our readers appreciate the value of the service Frank Klopp and Son are rendering this community.

For the small amount of money expended and the benefits derived we suggest to readers of this issue that whenever it is possible they ride the "Aurora Ferry."

"The average Kentucky farmer gets up in the morning by the alarm of an Illinois clock, buttons on his Chicago suspenders to a Detroit overall, washes his face with Cincinnati soap in a Pennsylvania pan, sits down to a Grand Rapids table and eats Chicago meats and Indiana hominy fried in Illinois lard on a St. Louis stove."

"He then lights his New York lantern and goes out to the barn and puts an Indianapolis bride on a mule fed by Iowa corn and plows the farm, covered with an Ohio mortgage, with a South Bend plow. And when bedtime comes he reads a chapter in the Bible printed in Boston and says prayers written in Jerusalem. He crawls under a blanket made in New Jersey, only to be kept awake all night by the barks and walls of a Kentucky yellow hound dog, the only home product on the place, and he wonders why so many of his home town folks are out of work."

Mrs. G. C. Jarrell spent last week with friends in Covington.

Program by proper and treatment, may be made in grow well in all parts of Kentucky, thinks Prof. E. J. Kinney of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. He points out that the Experiment Station, by applying limestone and phosphate, has obtained good stands of bluegrass on its soil fields in western and southern Kentucky. In some instances it grew as well as it does in the bluegrass region of the state. As a rule the soil outside the bluegrass region must be treated with limestone and phosphate.

Prof. Kinney suggests that farmers would like to have bluegrass pasture, especially those have limed their land, include a few pounds of bluegrass seed in their pasture mixtures this spring. It should be understood that two or three years are required for bluegrass to become established, and therefore it should be sown only on fields that can be left in pasture for some time. For less permanent pasture orchard grass is more practical than bluegrass.

Spring seedings should be made in February or March. Sow 15 to 15

Local Relief Program Receives An Impetus From Benefit Party

MORE THAN FORTY DOLLARS PLACED IN FUND WHICH WILL BE USED TO CLOTHE AND FEED NEEDY—THREE YOUNG LADIES AIDED BY SPIRIT OF COOPERATION

As a result of the benefit card party in the Bank Hall on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, the Burlington Relief Fund has been started, with an initial deposit of $40.81. Twenty-five persons attended the party and many who were unable to be present sent contributions.

During the evening several articles were given away. Lewis Beeson received a box of fruit donated by Joe and John Lunch Room. Con Zellars drew a box of candy donated by Newton Sullivan, Jr. and Miss Mame Hawes was presented with a ham donated by A. B. Renaker. Miss Hawes re-donated the ham, however, and it will be sold to the highest bidder and the money added to the fund.

Disposition of the money is now in progress. Meal tickets will be given to some and merchandise orders to others. Anyone wishing to contribute to the fund may do so at Peoples Deposit Bank. Likewise anyone having suggestions as to how the money should be spent may send them to Box 189, Burlington, and the cases will be investigated and acted upon. However, all suggestions must be signed by the one sending them.

A fine spirit of cooperation was shown by the citizens of Burlington and nearly all of the business houses, and the committee wishes to thank all those who contributed to the party in any way.

Special commendation for the success of the event is due Misses Mary Louise Renaker, Virginia Yelton and Kathryn Maurer, who devoted their untiring labors to the enterprise.

WILT RESISTANT MELON SEED RECEIVED

Wilt resistant watermelon seed of the Pride of Muscatine, Iowa, Belle and Iowa King varieties were supplied the first part of this week to the following Boone county growers: John Kloppe, Howard Huey, Kirtley McWethy, Andy Cook, Jas. Stephens, A. S. Burcham and Louvett Rogers according to the county agent. The seed were secured directly thru Duke V. Layton of the Iowa Experiment Sta., where the varieties were developed.

A leading grower remarked on Monday of this week that just a few years ago melon seed were shipped into Petersburg bottoms by the hundred pounds. Wilt has greatly reduced the acreage and profit secured from this crop. It is not known what the results of these wilt resistant varieties will be. The growers are going to give them a tryout this year.

L. & N. RAILROAD OFFERS TWO 4-H SCHOLARSHIPS

The L. & N. Railroad is cooperating with Boone county 4-H Club work this year by awarding to outstanding Boone county 4-H club boys and girls two scholarship trips to Junior Week in June at the University of Kentucky. The scholarships include transportation, board and a general expense allowance.

The awards will go to the winners in the Farm Demonstration Practice Team and the Home Demonstration Practice Team winning first place in the county demonstration team contests which will be held at Burlington during the first part of May.

IMPROVED

Friends of Miss Mary Laubisch, of Florence, will be pleased to learn that she is very much improved from her attack of scarlet fever, which she suffered several weeks ago. The quarantine was lifted the first of this week. Miss Laubisch was sadly missed by the Florence Nightingales in their recent quest for district and regional basket ball honors, as she was an important cog in their machine. No doubt they would have improved their showing had she been able to play.

Mr. Beresford C. Watson has as his guest during the spring vacation of Ohio State University Mr. S. Vincl of Cleveland, Ohio.

MARRIAGE OBTAINED

An item which was inadvertently omitted from the columns of the Recorder last week was the marriage of Irvin Rouse and Miss Dorinda Barlow, both of Union, which occurred on 8th of this month. The groom is the eldest son of A. O. Rouse, county road overseer, and wife, while the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Barlow. Mr. Barlow is agent for the Boone County Insurance Co. It will be recalled that several months ago the groom was the victim of a very painful accident which resulted in the severance of his right arm just below the elbow. However, Irvin is made of the stuff that will overcome the loss of an arm and he and his attractive bride may have our best wishes to add to those of hundreds of others that they may call friends in Boone county.

CAUSE OF DEATH OF PROMINENT FARMER OF BEAVER COMMUNITY—WILLIAM WILSON, AGED 60, TAKEN SUDDELY MONDAY AFTERNOON

William Wilson, of Beaver Lick, answered the final summons at his home Monday afternoon. The summons came to him very unexpectedly and took him quickly.

Mr. Wilson had been in Covington on business and had repaired to his sheep barn upon his return to look after his lambs. He experienced a queer feeling and called to his family at the house, but was dead before they could reach his side. Paralysis was given as the cause.

The deceased was numbered among Boone county's best citizens and was considered an excellent farmer and neighbor. He is survived by his widow, one son, and one brother, Omer Wilson, of Vermillion Grove, Illinois.

Funeral services were held at the Beaver Christian church Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock by Rev. H. C. Runyan of Lakonia. Burial took place in the Beaver cemetery with C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, in charge of the funeral arrangements.

TAX REDUCTION

WILL BE AIM OF JOHN E. BROWN, OF SHELBY COUNTY, NEWLY ELECTED PRESIDENT OF KENTUCKY FARM BUREAU FEDERATION

Preliminary phases are being effected for an organization within the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation to fight for reduction of taxes and economy in State Government. It was announced Tuesday by John E. Brown, Shelbyville, recently elected president of the federation.

"Real estate taxes are too high on farms, in town and in cities," Mr. Brown said. "I have accepted the presidency of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation to help develop an organization to reduce taxes, effect economy in government and otherwise aid the farmers and other business interests of Kentucky."

A survey of Kentucky problems accruing from present taxes and governmental expenses at Frankfort will be made and the organization perfected before the next General Assembly convenes, Mr. Brown said.

The new president of the federation is one of the largest general farmers in Shelby county, and is the largest hog and cattle feeder. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky, and represented his county in the 1922 General Assembly, where he introduced the Co-operative Marketing Act. This act provided the machinery under which the tobacco co-operative marketing associations operate, as well as that of other co-operative marketing projects in the State. He is a member of the Pennells Club at Louisville, and formerly was a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky. Courier-Journal.

ENRAGED MULES

INFLECT SERIOUS INJURIES UPON BODY OF JOHN ELAFF, FARMER, WHO ENDEAVORED TO DRIVE THEM OFF

A report reached Burlington Tuesday afternoon of a very unfortunate accident which occurred near the Aurora Ferry that day. A pair of mules were engaged in a battle with each other on the farm of John Kloppe and this daring gentleman in endeavoring to part them was knocked to the ground and unmercifully pawed by the enraged animals. He was seriously injured about the face, chest and abdomen before the mules were driven off. We certainly hope that John survives his painful accident without permanent injury, but we have one thing to tell him—He is a great deal older than the writer, but he evidently does not know as much about mules. We learned our lesson nearly twenty years ago.

BILL EADES

On Saturday March 19th, 1932, fate took another queer turn and was the cause of just another good man going wrong.

Mr. Bill Eades, better known as the bespectacled, courteous fellow that treats us all so great, at Bob and Gene's Barbecue, was the one that took the fatal step and allowed himself to be led to the marriage altar in Newport. The least we can do is to shake our heads, offer condolences and say love is blind. But after all we wish Bill a happy and most prosperous married life.

Friends of Miss Elaine Dickerson will be pleased to learn she is recovering at the home of her parents in Union and soon will be able to be out again.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

Trying to predict what the base ball magnates will do is like figuring out who won the World War. Right now it looks as if everybody lost the war, and that all of the base ball chieftains are conspiring to upset the status quo just to play hob with the sports writers.

For instance—no sooner did we finish stating that the Cincinnati Reds weren't going to let loose of Tony Cucinello and Jersey Joe Stripp; than away the two youngsters went to Brooklyn in the biggest trade that base ball has seen this year! Which goes to show why base players don't have homes and sport-writers don't have jobs anymore.

The trade between Cincinnati and Brooklyn was a big surprise and a big event. Cucinello, Stripp, and Clyde Sukeforth of the Reds went to the Dodgers in exchange for Babe Herman, Ernest Lombardi, and Wally Gilbert. In other words, the Reds traded a third baseman, a second baseman, and a catcher, for a third baseman, an outfielder, and a catcher.

Who got the better of the trade? Well, we could make another prediction, but since we haven't had much luck with predicting things, we'll leave that to the fans. It is very likely that the trade benefited both clubs. President Sidney Well and Manager Dan Howley of the Reds feel that way about it, and so does Max Carey, the Brooklyn pilot. It looks that way to us, and here's why—

The Reds needed punch, and they needed color. Cucinello and Stripp are fair hitters, but haven't any color in their playing at all. Stripp played in only comparatively few games last season, and was of much value to the team. Sukeforth is a good catcher, but not the best in the world by any means. In Babe Herman, the Reds have landed one of the star batters in either league, a player with worlds of color. The Cubs have offered Sidney Well $75,000 for him. But Well says he is not going to sell. That means that Cincinnati fans are going to see a star performer in Red uniform this year. He'll be a star right at Wrigley field, and you can bet that the fans will gallop out to see the "Babe."

Lombardi is a better catcher than Sukeforth. He is a stronger hitter, a more colorful player. He is six years younger than Clyde, and that means a great deal. Sukeforth was a small man behind the bat while Lombardi is huge. It takes a big man to do the backstopping these days. As for Wally Gilbert, there's one of the most dependable third-sackers in the league, although hardly anyone ever notices Wally on the field. A quiet, efficient player, and that makes him a valuable man.

That doesn't mean that Brooklyn got the bad end of the deal. Cucinello and Stripp didn't want to play with Cincinnati this season, and are glad to join the Dodgers. They both hit better than 300 last year and will certainly bolster up the Brooklyn infield. Sukeforth will probably be used as a utility catcher.

Here's a comparison between the six players involved in the Cincinnati-Brooklyn deal, on the basis of 1931 averages:

Batting averages: Cucinello .315; Stripp .324; Sukeforth .256; Herman .313; Lombardi .297; Gilbert .266.

Number of games in which each participated: Cucinello 154, Stripp 105 Sukeforth 112, Herman 151, Lombardi 73, and Gilbert 145.

Cucinello, Stripp and Sukeforth stole 9 bases in 1931. Herman, Lombardi, and Gilbert stole 21 bases.

There was a time when the Ohio River basin area, comprising southern Ohio, eastern Indiana, and northern Kentucky, produced some of the outstanding bowlers in the United States. This area was always well represented in the American Bowling Congress championships, and frequently ran away with the lion's share of the honors.

There was a different story to tell at the tourney in Detroit last week when eastern Indiana failed to place a single winner. Northern Kentucky pinmen won a couple of medals on the basis of past performances, but took no place in the championships; while southern Ohio bowlers landed only two or three of the smaller A. B. C. awards.

Speaking of modesty, there's such a thing as carrying it too far! When P. C. Fierst of Charleston, (Continued on Page 4)

It would not surprise us if Miss Klesner finishes with a high standing at Louisville.

POTATOES

MAY PROVE PRODUCTIVE AND PROFITABLE CROP FOR BOONE COUNTY FARMERS, ACCORDING TO OPINIONS OF THOSE WHO ATTEND SEED TREATMENT DEMONSTRATION

A potato seed treatment demonstration was held last Monday afternoon on the farm of Mr. Howard Huey of near Petersburg according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Approximately 16 bushels of Early Ohio seed were treated with 3 ounces of corrosive sublimate to 2 1/2 gallons of water. The treatment was for the control of scab and black scurf borne on the seed.

Leading Boone county potato growers agree that Boone county has great possibilities as a potato producing county. Larger yields per acre must be secured if these possibilities are to be developed profitably. A number of interested growers have set 300 bushels per acre as the immediate goal. This is approximately three and one-half times the average yield of the county.

Those steps considered necessary in securing 300 bushels per acre are (1) good seed, (2) seed treatment, (3) turning under legume and rye crops for green manure, (4) heavy applications of fertilizers or from 500 pounds to 1500 per acre, (5) spraying several times during the growing season with Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead as a stimulant and protection against leaf hoppers, flea beetles and blight which destroy the manufacturing parts of the plants. With the working out of a balancing of the above combination Boone county will become one of the leading potato-producing counties in the state.

Holy Communion Services will be celebrated at Hebron Lutheran church Sunday evening, March 27, at 8 o'clock. All members are urged to be present for this Easter Service.

RICHARD FENDER IN RAMP OF UNFORTUNATE MAN, WHO MET DEATH ON MIDDLE CREEK ROAD—SON-IN-LAW OF WM. SCHOULTHEIS WAS AIDING IN ERECTING SUMMER CAMP SHORTLY BEFORE HE MET DEATH

The Middle Creek road, not far from where it intersects the Petersburg and Bellevue pike, was the scene of a very odd yet distressing tragedy Sunday afternoon.

A party of men had been engaged building a summer camp on Middle Creek and among the party was Richard Fender 23, of Newport. Several Boone county men, former employees at the Cincinnati Post, where Fender was engaged as a pressman also were in the party.

A truck they were driving became stalled in a ditch as the party was leaving the camp and a log was placed under the wheel. The log was broken and a part was entangled in the drive chain, causing the fragment to be thrown with terrific force against Fender's head. The young man was knocked unconscious and rushed immediately to the Booth Memorial Hospital by Lucien Kelly and Lance Charles Kausten, patrolman, and Charles Kausten, patrolman, who also was a member of the party. He was declared dead upon arrival, never having regained consciousness.

Fender was a son-in-law of William Schoultheis, 60, of Southgate, Ky., who is well known in Boone county, especially for his medical ability. He was a well known violinist, as well as being accomplished on many other instruments.

Fender was a pressman at the Cincinnati Post printing plant, where Schoultheis is foreman of the press room. Mr. Schoultheis has the sympathy of his many friends in Boone county.

4-H CLUBS CARRY ECONOMY PROGRAM

Boone county 4-H Clubs are practicing an economy program this year according to county agent H. R. Forkner. There is a marked swing from the livestock projects which require a maximum of labor and a minimum of expense. There are approximately 65 boys who are raising from 1/4 to 1 acre of tobacco with a goodly number carrying truck and home garden projects and the corn production project.

The girls sewing clubs are also stressing workmanship and judgment in selection rather than quantity of material used. 4-H Club work should represent a closely connected partnership between the boy or girl and his or her parents. The work also demands considerable use of that which is learned in school together with a close study of the latest and best known methods of production in the project or projects which are carried by the members. The boy or girl who carries out 4-H Club work as set out by 4-H standards will be better prepared to handle the business of farming or industry in the time of either depression or prosperity.

Henry Hunt and wife, of Covington, and Carl Hunt and wife, of Englewood, Kansas, were visiting their sister Mrs. Eliza H. Walton, Sunday.

Charles Lunsford, of Florence, was a business visitor to Burlington Monday. Mr. Lunsford was in the market for a good work horse.

An old barn, long considered a land mark and which, "if it had a tongue," could tell many tales was wrecked this week on the lot of S. W. Tolia in the East end of town. The barn was the last home of "Old Time," the Senator's family driving mare, who died recently at a very advanced age. Among the tales that that old barn might tell no doubt would include many of Tolia's day dreams.

G. E. Kelly and C. L. Craig were absent from their posts at the Peoples Deposit Bank at the recent intervals of a day in the week on account of the fact that on Sunday, the 20th, they were out of town.

Taken by The Boston News Service

Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, for years Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals of New York, entered on his duties as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States practically without ceremony and with only the simplest of formalities. The new Associate Justice, after the required oaths had been administered, took his place on the bench and sat with the court through the afternoon hearing arguments.

A large crowd of attorneys and others packed the limited room of the court and a long line waited outside unable to gain admittance. Among those in the court room were Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, who was instrumental in having Judge Cardozo appointed, and Rabbi Wise, of New York.

Alfred E. Smith, in a letter replying to questions asked by Mrs. Jessie W. Sayre, daughter of Woodrow Wilson, and made public, stated that a Massachusetts slate of delegates pledged to him would be entirely free to vote for any candidate for the Presidential nomination they chose at the national convention when and if he should be eliminated from consideration. He said he was not prepared at this time to say whom he would favor at the convention if he should withdraw.

Louisiana's new Senator, Huey Long, Democrat, learned something about the Senate's action in increasing appropriations for Howard University, a Negro school, he proposed an amendment to the Interior Department supply bill calling for $200,000 for the State of Louisiana to be used in its work of "eradicating illiteracy among the colored people." He argued that such an appropriation would be more justifiable than to give money to a "private institution." Senator Reed Smoot, Republican, of Utah, dean of the Senate, promptly made a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it had never been estimated for by the budget bureau nor reported by a standing committee. Senator Robert M. La Follette, Republican, of Wisconsin, who was in the chair, promptly sustained the point of order.

"Yes, this is the Kingfish speaking. If you don't do as I tell you, I'll fire you tomorrow. Yes, the Kingfish." This is a version of one of Senator Huey Long's long-distance telephone conversations between Washington and Louisiana. When he is in Washington he spends a good deal of his time bawling Louisiana by long-distance telephone. But he isn't much in Washington, for to keep things going in Louisiana he has to spend much of his time down there, or at least he has had to do so ever since he decided to give up being governor of Louisiana and come to Washington to take up the senatorship from Louisiana to which he was elected in 1930. He came after the present session has been going on for several weeks. So Washington has not had much chance to get acquainted with the "Kingfish," as he likes to call himself.

Through the aid of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation the town of Abbeville in Louisiana was able to report to President Hoover that two banks there would reopen their doors. A telegram to the White House from the Bank of Abbeville and Trust Company gave high praise to General Charles G. Dawes' relief organization as it told of its plan to start business again after a period of six weeks, during which the doors of the local financial institutions were barred. Along with the First National Bank of Abbeville it will resume business in a community whose confidence has been revived.

To what extent will economy be an issue in the campaign this Fall? So far as the Federal Government is concerned, it is too early to tell. Both sides are doing their best to make capital out of it. President Hoover calling for reorganization and retrenchment, the Democrats in the House boasting of the way in which they have used the axe on Administration money bills. So far their savings have been at the branches rather than at the roots. Adjusted compensation and unemployment relief still hang over Congress, with the threat of unlimited expenditure. In the cities the demand for relief from the burdens of taxation is louder than ever. Whatever influence taxpayers may have will be thrown locally against the party in power and responsible for the spending, whether Republican or Democratic. Where city elections have been carefully separated from national elections, however, as in New York, there will be little opportunity to test the of the economy appeal this year.

Growing resistance to the manufacturers' sales tax began to crystallize into organized opposition in the House despite authoritative reports that the big New York Democratic delegation would vote almost unanimously for the controversial provision of the new revenue bill. Republican Independents gathered to decide whether they would seek to force a party conference upon the leaders, while Democrats opposing the sales tax were called to meet to organize for the real fight that will soon begin. Representative Cullen, of New York, leader of the Tammany delegation, indicated that nearly all the twenty-three members of his group would vote for the sales tax. Advocates of the 2.25 per cent levy on manufactured articles expect the support of New England Democrats, too.

Unless the present service is impaired, the Postoffice Department cannot eliminate or decrease its deficit without an increase to three cents an ounce in the rate on first-class mail destined for out-of-town delivery. Postmaster General Brown told the House economy committee. Mr. Brown said few economies are possible in the department's operating costs unless Congress wishes to change the salary scales for postal workers or is willing to authorize the dismissal of a large number of men. He admitted that at the present time the postal service is overmanned, due to a large decline in the volume of mail handled.

The local office of the Secret Service has disclosed that more than $1,000 in counterfeit $5, $10 and $20 bills is received daily by the Treasury Department from metropolitan areas of New York alone, the greatest source of counterfeit money disclosed here in three years. The spurious bills, the most perfect of which is a $10 Federal Reserve note, have invariably been passed on small stores.

AN OLD-FASHIONED LETTER

Somewhat I feel like writing you an old-fashioned epistle this glorious morning. Mind you, I'm not asking you to agree with everything I say; while I feel absolutely sure I'm telling the truth, it does not mean that I am doing so; when you smelt a thing down to a solid base, the wisest of us may be telling the exact opposite—there's nothing true, but heaven.

The pig is the healthiest animal I know of, taken as an individual species; I never heard of the hog being a tuberculosis-carrier. He dies of cholera—an epidemic disease. But, the hog has fewer diseases in his family than any other farm animal. The best reason comes from the perfect digestive tract of the pig!

There are many, very many today, especially among our younger women, that throw up their hands in holy horror if somebody mentions pork as an article of food! These individuals, if you look at them critically, are anemic, thin-skinned, feeble-fingered, and nervous. You will find nine out of ten of them eat beef, if they have not already abandoned meats at the command of the faddists, and they are slowly paying the way for tu-

TIME IS MONEY

—make use of this short cut!

BUSINESS travels at a fast pace today. Miles mean nothing to us any more. Rural districts, towns, cities and nations are all closely joined up in the vast network of telephone lines that encircle the globe. Now that formerly took months is now done in minutes. A word on the telephone and the deal is closed.

Four times is worth money. An hour wasted can never be made up. To save yourself expensive trips to town, make more use of your telephone. By getting price quotations over the telephone you can buy and sell to the great advantage. The modern method of doing business is by telephone. It pays big dividends on a little investment of a few cents a day.

careless, or from various diseases by turning lightly responsive.

I have seen the western farmer in plumed shirt, oil-cured hair and bacon all his life—remain in good working trim until too old—and die of sheer old age. And I have seen the great army of weaklings develop right along with the advent of fresh beef, and its being almost forced upon people by physicians, who themselves have acquired urticaria, poison and blood-pressure and tuberculosis, following the fresh beef fad.

I may close this old-time message with the point I have in mind: There is no better strength-building, blood-making body protecting food than well-cured bacon and ham! And everybody who tells you this. And everybody ought to tell for the saving of honest bread and meat. Now, turn up your nose if you must.

ONIONS
(By John A. Gardner, Ky. College of Agriculture)

Among the earliest vegetables to be started are onions. Especially in this time of the onion raised from "sets." The "slip" onions, lately grown so popular, are slightly less resistant, and because of the not inconsiderable expense of the slips it is best to wait about two weeks after "sets" are put into the ground, before the "slip" onions are set.

Onions need extremely good soil, friable and mellow. The soil should be rich in plant food, as well. Because onions are "leaf crops," though their appearance belies them, they need nitrogen, in particular. The best way to prepare land for onions is to plow under heavy coat of manure, for manure furnishes nitrogen, and, too, organic matter to keep the soil from baking. The nitrogen contained in most stable manure is not enough, however, and additional nitrogen should be applied.

There are two ways in which this may be done, either by making side-dressings with chicken manure that has been kept dry and that still retains its nitrogen, or, by sowing some quicker form of nitrogen, as for example, nitrate of soda, along the rows. The rate for using chicken manure is one bushel to 300 feet of row; that for the nitrate, one pound to 100 feet. The dressings should be made as soon as growth starts. One application of chicken manure is enough, but the nitrate should be applied twice, or, better, three times, at three-week intervals.

In gardens that are worked by hand, onion rows may be as close as 12 inches, especially in rich soil. The spacing in the row depends.

Onions may be spaced 1 inch apart, and thinned when the onions are at the "swell" stage to stand finally 3 inches apart, to mature. The "slip" onions may be similarly handled, but because they are usually intended for mature onions, they are generally set from 3 to 4 inches apart, in the beginning. Both "sets" and "slips" should be set as shallowly as possible, but the precaution should be taken to firm the soil about them so that moisture may rise about them to make them start quickly.

Cultivation for onions should be shallow, and not too close, for the roots lie near the surface. No soil should be thrown to the row, for onions are not underground vegetables. If a ridge is made the bulbs attempt to rise above it, and this places them under a severe handicap in dry weather; though this is true of any garden crop set on a ridge.

Onions are ready for harvest when the tops have shrunk at the "neck" that portion of the stem just above the bulb, and have broken over. The tops should be twisted off at the neck, and if the weather is fair and dry, the onions may be left in the garden row until the necks have dried. Then, the crop should be taken to shelter, and placed in crates with slatted bottoms to become thoroughly dry.

"Set" onions may be stored with success in any good cellar, but the "slip" sorts need cold storage to keep them dormant, much beyond Thanksgiving.

The varieties of "set" onions are known by their colors, red, white and yellow. The most difficult to grow are the "white sets." Of the "slip" onions the best varieties are Bermuda, Prizefighter, and Crystal Wax.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

English Plum Pudding
Chop fine one-half pound suet, add one-half pound currants, one-half pound finely sliced citron, one-half pound brown sugar, the crumbs from the inside of a pound loaf of bread, one cup pastry flour sifted with a half tablespoon of ground cloves, one teaspoon of soda, a half tablespoon of cinnamon, a half tablespoon of nutmeg, a teaspoon of salt. Then, when these dry ingredients are very thoroughly mixed, add one cup milk, a quarter cup cider, four well beaten eggs and two tablespoons lemon juice. The original recipe of course called for brandy. Grape juice may be used instead of lemon juice. The batter is poured into greased cans, covered lightly with their tops, and steamed for three hours. It will keep for weeks if it is kept covered. When you wish to serve it, set the can containing it on a rack in a pan of boiling water and let it boil for about an hour.

Good Vegetable Salad

Use any cold cooked vegetables you have on hand. Chill them thoroughly and combine them carefully and attractively. String beans and cauliflower go well together. Diced beets and peas, lima beans and carrots, and peas, chopped spinach alone—these are but suggestions. The cook with an instinctive feeling for what is good in combination will devise a salad out of any left-over vegetables she may have on hand.

Easily Made Toffee

To make ordinary toffee put a pound of granulated sugar in a sauce pan, with a teaspoon of water, a quarter pound of butter, and a small can of condensed milk. Cook this slowly for three-quarters of an hour, stirring occasionally to keep from cooking too fast. To test it let some drop from the end of a spoon on a cold plate and if when cool it is the consistency of toffee it is ready to take from the fire. Add a few drops of vanilla. Have a plate or platter ready buttered and turn the toffee on this to harden. When it is fairly solid cut into pieces of desired size with a clean pair of scissors. Roll each piece in a little piece of oiled paper.

Thousands of acres of poor land in Fulton county will be sowed to grass mixtures and clovers, according to County Agent H. C. Brown. Much land that has been devoted to soybeans will be sowed to lespedeza. Grass mixtures are being sowed in many lespedeza fields. The county agent is endeavoring to have farmers produce enough feed for their livestock.

Mrs. R. J. Chandler of Trimble county raised 35 per cent of 320 chicks which she brooded under sanitary conditions.

LOAN APPLICANTS MUST GROW GARDEN

Farmers obtaining government loans to assist them in putting out this year's crops must agree to grow a garden for home use and a sufficient acreage of feed crops to supply feed for their livestock. It is pointed out by Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, this conforms with the live-at-home program which the College of Agriculture conducted throughout the state last year and which is being stressed again this year.

Money which the government is lending to farmers this spring may be used to buy seed, fertilizer, feed for work stock, fuel and oil for tractors, materials for spraying and dusting, and repairs for machinery. The maximum loan to any one borrower is $400 and to the tenants of any one landlord $1,000. The rate of interest is 5 1/2 per cent, the money to be repaid Nov. 30.

Application forms are now in the hands of county agents. County committees have been appointed to pass on loans before they are forwarded to the St. Louis emergency farm loan office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Dean Cooper has assigned H. F. Link, an assistant state leader of county agents, and John Cochran, an assistant county agent, to the St. Louis office to help handle applications from Kentucky.

FOUR BOYS AND GIRLS TO WASHINGTON CAMP

Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, announces the selection of four outstanding boys and girls to represent the state at the National 4-H Club Camp at Washington, D. C., next June. They are Miss Alice Arnold, Jefferson county; Miss Elizabeth Merritt, Graves county; Jack Lynn, Fayette county; and Woodrow Coots, Logan county.

All are 18 years old with the exception of Miss Arnold who is 17. All have done notable 4-H Club work for four to seven years. They will receive transportation and other expenses connected with attending the annual gathering of 4-H Club members from nearly every state in the Union.

For the second time in the testing year, a herd owned by Clay S. Johnson in Oldham county last month made the highest producing average in the Oldham-Jefferson Dairy Herd Improvement Association. His herd averaged 1,092 pounds of milk and 36 pounds of butterfat per cow. He is feeding alfalfa hay and crushed corn. R. L. Duncan, another Oldham county farmer, owned the second best herd.

Green Bros., Grayson county farmers, will sow 2,000 pounds of Korean lespedeza seed. One Letchfield dealer has sold 5,000 lbs. of seed.

Utilizing building material of every description from old structures, large and small, is a business that requires experience and extensive equipment to handle—the work quickly and satisfactorily.

The American Wrecking and Salvage Co., in Cincinnati are called upon to do a large portion of this work in this section of the state. Their competent service is widely recognized and property owners and contractors prefer their services. Headquarters for this concern are at 333 Mill Street. They specialize in wrecking buildings on short notice.

Wrecking a building and saving for further use that which is good in building material is a craft and requires experienced men and first class equipment. In many an old structure being discarded for more modern structures there is much better building material and lumber than we are able to secure in new products, because it has been thoroughly seasoned. To destroy such materials would be wasteful and thus the service which this establishment furnishes—building materials and lumber is utilized for further use. At their establishment in Cincinnati you can purchase used lumber and also sashes, doors, frames and interior finish.

The firm operates a very unique establishment in their particular field because their stock of new and used materials and fixtures of every description consists of everything for the builder and contractor from a piece of lumber to heating equipment and plumbing fixtures.

Their various wrecking jobs furnish everything for your proposed home or garage or any building project including rough lumber, doors, windows, garage doors, roll roofing, shingles, brick, pipe, radiators and plumbing supplies. They have a large stock of radiators and heating plants and wonderful savings can be effected in your heating equipment if you consult this firm and look over their large stock. Often you will get almost brand new materials, used but very little at less than one-half the original cost. Their storm sash lasts for years, is easily installed, keeps out the cold, prevents draughts and pays for itself in the saving in fuel bills of one winter.

If you are remodeling you will be agreeably surprised with the excellent materials you can secure from them and which will serve your needs adequately. You will find you can make purchases most reasonably and any repair work or remodeling can be done most economically.

The Kolbe Paint Co.

"A Paint For Every Purpose"

The Home of "Kolbe Paint Products" and Pratt and Lambert Varnishes "Kolbe Paints" are Handled by Dealers Throughout This Section—Solve Your Painting Problems This Spring By Using "Kolbe Paints." There's a "Kolbe Paint" for Every Purpose—Located at 231-233 West Fifth Street in Cincinnati—Phone Parkway 5334 and Parkway 5335.

Here is a firm that is thoroughly familiar with the manufacturing wholesale and retailing conditions of the business in the paint and wall paper trade of the country and in this edition we desire to compliment them upon the standing of their store in the business world of this part of the state.

The matter of paints and supplies is a most important one. They have left nothing to chance. "Kolbe" paints and supplies offered by them have been scientifically tested and found to be the best possible. The prices are the lowest and the service is rendered under the direction of a management thoroughly conversant with every feature of the business. We might sum it all up by saying that it is quite appropriate to give this establishment the title "painting headquarters."

This up-to-date and modern store is an important feature of the community, and no matter what may be the needs in this line, when you call at the place you will find them courteous and accommodating, efficient and capable. The charges are always right.

Success with paints depends first of all upon choosing the right type of finish for the purpose in view. There is a suitable finish for every type of work and the time consumed in finding out what it is and where obtainable will be well spent.

In making this review of the progress of the community and in outlining the more prominent firms who give valued service to the public we wish to direct your attention to The Kolbe Paint Co., in Cincinnati and to say that when it comes to these lines you can depend upon their service and the brands they carry.

"General Merchandise"

Located at Hebron, Ky., is one of The Prominent General Merchandising Houses of Boone County—Maintain A Modern Store, Offering Everything in the Line of General Merchandise, Groceries, Meats, Specialties, Etc. Confectionery and Pool Room in Connection—Cold Drinks and Lunch Served—Always at Your Service—Hebron Phone 172.

This is one of the large trading centers of this section and is headquarters for hundreds of people each year. Because of the limitation of space we will not attempt even a brief review of the large stock of this concern at this time, but such would not be necessary. This establishment has established an enviable reputation for goods of quality, extent of stock and reasonableness of price that draws trade not only from town, but from the surrounding country for quite a distance.

The matter of price has also received attention here, for it has become a well established fact, not only in Hebron but in the surrounding country that the quotations of this store are always as low as is consistent with sound business. Ed. Ernst permits no one to offer greater values, just as he permits no one to offer higher quality, and this happy combination has resulted in a larger and ever increasing custom.

In making this review we are glad to compliment this popular store as one that is conducted along the most modern ideas of merchandising and thus is rendering a service to the people that is highly beneficial and as a consequence they are deserving of the large patronage which they receive from the territory for many miles around.

CRIME AND PUNISHMENT

The most frequent comment we hear about the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby is that "hanging is too good" for the perpetrators of this heartless, brutal crime.

We are inclined to agree, not only in this instance but in general, that our present methods of punishment for crime are "too good" for the criminals. We have tried being tender-hearted with criminals for a good many years, in most parts of the country. The net result is an enormous increase in crime, overcrowded prisons conducted at heavy cost to the taxpayers, and the belief of every "smart" crook that he can "beat the rap" if he only gets a lawyer smart enough and crooked enough to find the loopholes in the law. We have carried to the limit of absurdity the principle that it is better for a thousand guilty men to escape punishment than for one innocent man to be convicted.

Certain facts seem to us incontrovertible. One is that the death penalty is no deterrent of murder where it is not promptly and certainly enforced. Another is that imprisonment does not reform criminals nor the fear of it frighten them. Other methods of punishment, other means of preventing crime, must be discovered and applied.

Let sociologists deal with the causes of crime, the influences that make criminals out of boys. But let us all take a practical, common-sense view of the punishment for crime. At all costs let us back up our law-enforcement agencies, let us clear the statute books of the laws which protect the criminal, let us speed up our criminal trials and place men on the bench who show no mercy to those who deserve none and then let us consider whether the old-fashioned whipping-post, the stocks and the pillory, which held the convicted criminal up to public disgrace and shame, may not be as effective deterrents of crime as the gallows, the electric chair or the penitentiary.

The outstanding characteristic of the modern criminal gangster is his vanity. Destroy that and you have destroyed his chief incentive to crime. "Two-Gun" Crowley went to the electric chair a hero in his own eyes and in those of his child-mind admirers. Gerald Chapman, murderer, is a figure of greatness among youthful crooks because he smiled when the trap was sprung. Would crime seem heroic, criminals heroes, if Crowley had been flogged in public and Chapman exposed to public contempt in the stocks? We think not. We think that punishments to be effective should be so shameful that dread of their disgrace will deter even the most hardened.

practical methods and images and hope.

When you think of it as church can provide it, the church will make great gains. But there have always been its best times.

YOUR FARMER MADE MONEY LAST YEAR

The farm economics department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, recently analyzed the farm records of a young man who made money last year despite low prices. Operating 97.5 acres, he had a gross income of $4,941. After deducting taxes and allowing 5 per cent interest on his investment he had left a labor income of $1,240 above all farm expenses.

Diversification and good crop yields were important factors in his success. He raised sheep, hogs and poultry, and in addition milked 11 cows most of the year. He grew tobacco, blue grass seed, corn, wheat and alfalfa from the farm last year.

Included 110 lambs, 141 hogs, wool, butter and eggs. His tobacco crop brought $1,710; blue grass seed, $500 wheat and straw, $850; wool $150, and live poultry, $135.

Products of the dairy were sold much of the time in the form of butter. Sales of butter totaled 1,920 pounds, the greater portion of which was retailed. Sixteen hundred dozen eggs were sold. A considerable part of these were retailed. This direct selling of butter and eggs was an important factor in increasing the profits from this farm.

Good crop yields were another important feature of this man's farming. His corn made 50 bushels to the acre last year, his wheat 43 bushels, and his blue grass 14 bushels of rough cured.

Tobacco produced 1,176 lbs. to the acre. He grew all the rough-cured and most of the grain fed to his livestock. Eight and a half acres of alfalfa produced at the rate of 4 tons to the acre. His total purchases of mill feed amounted to $275.

Tomatoes, oatmeal, prunes, milk, soup and cocoa were among the foods distributed.

TURKEY RAISERS DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Approximately 150 men and women from 25 counties attended the meeting of turkey raisers at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. Speakers included Prof. F. E. Muschel, of the University of Nebraska; Prof. D. G. Card and J. Holmes Martin of the University of Kentucky, and Robert W. White, a Bourbon county farmer. Problems of disease control, brooding, feeding and marketing were discussed.

Turkey prices were considered relatively better than those of most other farm products; but farmers were told they may be lower next fall. Adverse business conditions are affecting the demand for turkey, especially in hotels and restaurants. It was pointed out that there is a better demand for lighter birds, weighing 8 to 10 pounds, than for those weighing 12 to 14 pounds.

ERLANGER

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

DANGER OF WORRY

One of the most dangerous influences seems to be abroad in these strenuous days, and it is growing as our cares increase. I can think of nothing quite so harmful to human well-being as WORRY.

Both worry and happiness are states of mind; but the latter is the thing most sought for; men will toil, strive, and wreck mind and body in pursuit of that elusive phantom—Happiness. It seems paradoxical, for a man to worry himself insane in his quest of bliss.

The patient that I really, down in my heart dread to meet—is the victim of self-induced worry. I know of no drug that will help him, and, too frequently advice slides off like water off a duck's back. Some indeed seem to me to find a sort of suicidal gratification in worry over things that are often not worth crying about.

The man who lies awake nights, grows thin, disagreeable, and hard to get along with, will soon develop a hyperacid stomach and very aggravating indigestion. Then he consults the doctor. I have traced many a case of acidosis to plain, old-fashioned worry. It will most certainly undermine the constitution if persisted in.

"Having food and raiment be ye therewith CONTENT." What a prescription that is! Unfailing in results too. A contented life is a happy life. It's wise to work while the sun shines, for the rainy day is quite certain to come. But there is no sense in tearing one's system down in a struggle for so-called happiness, which is after all illusory in many cases; simple contentment will turn the trick quicker and better than a cart-load of bromide. Pardon me for writing things that can be understood.

CHURCH

Years ago an eminent economist had an idea.

Selecting one protestant denomination whose records had been kept carefully, he set down the number of new members added each year. Opposite this, in another column, he classified each year from an economic standpoint as prosperous or bad.

The year 1865 was an inflation year; nineteen thousand people joined this particular church. In 1866 came panic, and new members jumped to thirty thousand.

Then years of "good" times, but bad times for the church, until the panic of 1873, when up shot the membership, reaching a "new high" in 1877, when prosperity registered a "new low."

Panic in 1893 was followed by a church gain in 1894; the pinch of 1907 by a boost in membership in 1908. And so on.

I fancy the same thing is happening today; at least our church has been full recently. Last Sunday the pastor chose this unusual text:

"And when David inquired of Jehovah (as to whether he should attack the Philistines) Jehovah said: And it shall be when thou hearest the sound of marching in the tops of the mulberry trees that then thou shalt bestir thyself; for then is Jehovah gone out before thee."

The preacher said that religion consists in being able to recognize the extraordinary in the ordinary things of life.

"Maybe people hear the wind in the trees and say: 'It is the wind in the trees.' Now and then comes one who says: 'It is the foot-steps of Jehovah.'"

Many people see the turmoil of the present, and say "It is confusion; it is anarchy; it is hopeless." But those who are wiser say: "It is God remoulding His world into a new and better image. Let us bestir ourselves and go forward."

The sermon lifted us. It was a clear prophetic voice announcing that the Power which made the world has not deserted it, is still working in it. It made us feel that we ought to lift our eyes and be active, lest these great and far-reaching changes come to pass without our recognizing them.

I advise all preachers these days to preach positive faith. To put aside any sermons that criticize people or discourage them, and

National Congress Also Is Wrestling With Sales Tax

BY FRANK BULLMAN
Washington Correspondent for The Boone County Recorder
As the late William Shakespeare would have put it:
"To be taxed or not to be, that is the question:
Whether 'tis nobler in the pocket-book to suffer
The slings and arrows of outrageous legislation,
Or to take arms against a sea of taxes,
And by opposing end them."

There are millions of adults in this country who never have paid taxes of any kind. They never have had anything upon which to levy a tax. Until the necessities of life are assessed probably most of them never will pay a tax. As long as there is a job available it makes little difference to them whether governmental treasury accounts show a surplus or a deficit. Many are not even interested enough to learn what is the financial condition of city, county, State or nation. But all of them can vote and most of them do.

Naturally those who pay the bills, even if for no other reason than selfishness have an interest in what is going on in the various governmental disbursing agencies. At that, when times are prosperous and almost everyone is making money there is a manifest tendency to wink at governmental waste and extravagance. What's the difference, anyway? But when economic conditions slow down industry and business, reduce incomes and minimize credit even the ordinarily listless taxpayer concludes that it is time to "sit up and take notice." In such conditions add legislative refusal to materially reduce the cost of government, coupled with legislative proposals for additional expenditures, and he discovers that it is time to "stand up and protest."

Those who have watched the cost-of-government snow-ball as it rolled down hill, accumulating bulk and weight, latterly at an alarming rate, unchecked by the trenches of depression, have known for some time that unless something stopped it, and soon, it would become an avalanche. It is not expected that you will believe it; your correspondent will be "set down as a rank and gross prevaricator; but there are members of Congress, who, gazing up at that inevitable and admittedly destructive avalanche, propose the starting of two or three more.

Of course, a new tax bill was inevitable. It does not (as yet) include the air we breathe but according to some proposals it will ultimately include pretty much everything else. The furor the new tax bill is causing in the House of Representatives is almost entirely due to the sales-tax proposal. Although the bill was reported out of committee unanimously and is supported by the leaders of both parties, most of the uproar has a political background. Neither party wants the onus of making the taxpayer's load heavier than it already is. Because the sales tax will touch almost every voter it is the butt of the abuse. The fact is that Congress seems to be realizing only now that its big appropriations mean bigger taxes. And bigger taxes are poor talking points for Congressmen seeking re-election. A good many Congressmen have to face the voters next fall.

Just about 435 members of Congress are now face to face with their own sins of omission and commission. The appropriation chickens they so willingly hatched during the last decade are coming home to roost. They finally realize that even for Heaven's own anointed in Congress the New Era is over. Somebody must pay for the wildest orgy of governmental spending ever known in this or any other country in all recorded time. Somebody must pay for Four-Billion-Dollar Congresses. Somebody must pay for all the frantic irrigation projects, all the Farm Board experiments and all the enormous subsidies and tremendous but unproductive "improvements" of the last fifteen years. That somebody is the American taxpayer.

On top of all that, comes Representative Patman's one-man drive for the immediate cash payment of the full face value of the bonus certificates which have again brought the Ways and Means Committee to the verge of public hearings on a cash grant to World War veterans. At the last session of Congress passed over the President's veto a measure allowing veterans to borrow up to fifty percent of the face value of their bonus certificates. Under this provision approximately $350,000,000 has already been advanced to veterans at a low rate of interest. Whether the veterans are dissatisled by this language is by no means demonstrated. But Mr. Patman thinks they are dissatisfied, and he has succeeded, with the aid of a few of the smaller veterans' societies, in whipping up a tremendous lot of interest in Congress over their alleged dissatisfaction. As a matter of fact, it is difficult to believe that this movement has an extensive popular backing among the men who wore the uniform in 1917 and 1918.

It will require some $1,500,000,000 to pay off the bonus claims in full at this time. Even if the Treasury were not in the red, the prospect of borrowing enough at one single operation in peace time to meet such an outlay would send shudders down the spines of most of those in Congress who are solicitous about the public credit. With the Treasury already committed to borrowings of nearly $4,000,000,000 before July 1 next, the prospect is even more disturbing.

After a much appreciated lull interval, Congress threatens to revert to form. What is needed at the lunatic asylum on Capitol Hill is an army of psychopaths. However, unless backed by a regiment of gangsters armed with machine guns it is doubtful if that would help. None is so blind as he who won't see—and gets paid for playing "blindman's buff."

Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Cropper were victims of the flu early this week. Both, however, are partially recovered.

S. O. surprised everyone by taking the lead after the first 18 holes in the Coral Gables-Miami Biltmore 72 hole medal play championship at Coral Gables last week. News photographers rushed hither and yon trying to get Picard to pose for some pictures. But the unknown star was nowhere to be found, and although the newspapermen searched high and low, there was nothing doing in the picture line at all.

Picard's sensational form in the opening round caught everybody off guard. The newspapers ordinarily snap photos of all the golfers who appear to have a possible chance before the start of play. In this instance, however, Picard upset the dope and left the cameraman in the lurch, not even bothering to stay until they had a chance to catch up with him.

Every real base ball fan is waiting to see what Pepper Martin is going to do for the St. Louis Cardinals this season. Pepper's great showing in the World Series last year has left him with a reputation to be maintained, and it's up to the smart young star to continue the pace. Obviously, no one expects to see the Pepper keeping going at that World Series pace for a stretch of 161 games. That is almost an impossibility for any player, and if Martin succeeds only in keeping fairly close to his Series form, he will do a great deal for the Cards' 1932 pennant hopes. So far, during the spring training, Martin has played sensationally. In almost every game he has hit timely and often, and his base-running is easily on par with showing last October. Pepper has won two of the Cardinals' exhibition games so far—one with his bat and the other with his speed on the bags. That means trouble for the rest of the league if Martin can keep it up!

We take it for granted that everybody has the necessary qualifications for the opening game of the National League season at Redland Field, Tuesday, April 12. If not, it's too late to do much about getting any because every seat in the place is sold. But if you're one of the crowd out there that day, it's a good chance that you'll see an entirely different Redleg team take the field!

When Dan Howley took over the managerial task several years ago, he promised that before he got through, the Reds would be a different ball club. It looks like he has succeeded in a big way. Take a squirt at this possible opening day line-up and notice how very few familiar names are on the list:

Red Lucas, pitcher; Ernest Lombard, catcher; Mickey Heath, first base; George Grantham, second base; Wally Gilbert, third base; Joe Morissey, short stop; Babe Herman, right field; Taylor Doughtitt, center field; and Estel Crabtree, left field.

Of the nine mentioned, only two—Lucas and Crabtree—played at all regularly in Red uniforms last season. Heath was on the team, but was injured most of the year. Doughtitt came to the Reds last year, but saw very little service. The other five are all new men, donning the Red Sox for the first time. That's what we call making a change!

A good way to get acquainted with the Reds—who they are and what they can do—is to clip these little introductions each week and paste them together for future reference. This time we're presenting Benjamin Rudolph Frey and Walter Frank Hatcher, both twirlers on the Reds, both right-handers, and both very promising youngsters. Frey, who is 26 years old, has been with Cincinnati for several seasons, and Dan Howley thinks that Benny is due to blossom out into one of the stars of the league this season. Hatcher is only 22 years old, and was purchased this spring from Peoria, a Red Sox farm team. He was always greatly against a youngster like Wally's staying with the club, but Howley has given every indication that, rather than ship Hatcher back to Peoria for more seasoning, he intends to give the lad his chance on the main line.

The New Haven Parent-Teachers Association wishes to thank the American Legion and all others who have so generously donated to our school lunch room.

Joseph W. Everett, aged 79 years, passed away early Saturday morning at the home at the Florence and Burlington pike, after an illness of several weeks with Chronic Nephritis.

Funeral services were conducted at the late residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. Harold Beemon of New Castle, Indiana, after which the remains were laid to rest in the Florence cemetery.

Mr. Everett is survived by his widow Mrs. Annie Everett, two daughters Mrs. Herman Buckner of McVille, and Mrs. Grover Buckner, Platt City, Mo., and three sons Leslie, Adren and Roy Everett, two brothers and a host of other relatives and friends.

The pall-bearers were A. G. Beemon, Clifford Tanner, August Dring, enburg, Robert Youell, Jew Holt, and Allen Darby.

Funeral Director Philip Tallaferra had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Billie Ray, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hickman, is one of the youngest victims of the flu hereabouts. However, he has been more fortunate than some in combating that dread ailment as he is reported to be greatly improved.

F. A. Hall, a Newport denizen for the winter, was hobnobbing with friends in Burlington Saturday afternoon.

J. C. Acra, of near Idlewild, was a caller at the Recorder office last night. Mr. Acra is one of our thrifty farmers who refuses to let "depression" wipe him off the map.

Theodore Birkle, of Bullittsville, was a business visitor at the Recorder office Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sullivan spent Sunday with Mrs. Sullivan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Nichols, of near town.

Sheriff Snyder and Deputy W. B. Cotton have been doing some belated farming for the past two weeks. They recently attached a crop of tobacco on court order and have been tending an active hand in the stripping thereof.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Stewart, of Ludlow, spent Sunday with Everett Hickman and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Easton, of near Burlington, and Miss Christine Westhall and Wilfred Sullivan, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cad Sullivan, of the Petersburg pike.

It may be a little early for our annual lamb prospects. With an open winter and so many lambs being salvaged, the prospects are for an unusual crop of lambs and, in fact, we hear of lambs that are about ready for market. We do not advise sending them to market too light, but advise sending them as fast as they are ready. 40 to 50 pounds are heavy enough for the month of March up to Easter; in fact, our local demand does not want them too heavy thru April; after that time, when the eastern demand will begin they should weigh 70 pounds and up to bring top shipping prices. THE GREAT-EST QUERY IS: What the present conditions will be? Under present conditions we cannot expect anything but low prices, our opinion is they will well start off at $10.00 to $12.00 for the early market, and liable to go to $6.00 before the season is over. As we see it the fight is to make your lambs good as possible and ready for market as soon as you can for best prices. When we say good, no buck lambs for the buyers will surely dock them in price. We do not hesitate to say we have the best lamb market in the middle-west, for Cincinnati is the logical lamb market. We will have more order buyers than ever before, our local killers are killing more lambs each year, the consumption is increasing for the consumers are learning that lamb is one of the most healthiest meats; with the reasonable prices they will favor lamb meat. Do not forget that truck lambs coming to Cincinnati will not be docked; and that Norris, Brock Co., are the leaders in no dock; and have saved the lamb raisers that come to our market approximately $38,000.00 in 1931. Expect to save them more this year for which we think we are entitled to a consideration when coming to this market. Kindly remember we are on the selling side, fighting for the producers on all kinds of livestock. Call on us any time, we can serve you.

Yours for Service

NORRIS, BROCK CO.

Harold Ray Crore accompanied Rev. McMillan to his ministerial charge in Ohio last Sunday. Rev. McMillan is "Professor" during the week days.

Uncle Ed Rice is another Burlington patient who is reported very low with but slight chance of recovery. His condition as we go in press is unimproved.

Friends of Mrs. Letha Crore will regret to learn that she is ill at her home in Maple Grove subdivision. Mrs. Crore is the mother of Mrs. B. T. Kelly, who recently passed away at the same residence.

Mrs. Maggie Kirtley is reported quite ill at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. L. Cropper. Her son, Robert Kirtley, who is employed on a U. S. Dredge boat, was at her bedside Saturday evening and Sunday.

Among those who attended the Kentucky High School basketball tournament at Lexington Saturday night were Dudley Rouse, Franklin Maurer, Ralph Maurer, William Greenup, A. J. Ogden and son, Jas. Ogden.

Mention was made in last week's paper of the fact that there were news items in the Cincinnati papers stating that the milk dealers proposed to reduce the retail price of milk from 12c to 10c a quart, and that it was very probable a large part of this reduction would have to be borne by the producers.

Since then the milk dealers have reduced the price of milk from 12c to 10c a quart to the consumers in Cincinnati and Covington, and there has been a considerable reduction in the price of milk to the producer since that time. This does not cover the reduction that is likely to take place within the next thirty days, unless some action is taken by the producers to prevent any further material reduction in the wholesale price.

The milk question was the principal subject of discussion at the meeting of the Farmers Alliance last Saturday night. It was generally conceded that the Alliance should take some active steps to prevent a further reduction in the price of milk to the producers, or to prevent the milk dealers from throwing the entire burden of the reduction in the retail price upon the producers.

It was decided to appoint a committee to furnish facts to Robert N. Gorman, Prosecutor of Hamilton County, Ohio, who has stated in the press that he intends to investigate the milk situation. It is hoped by that means to bring the present plight of the milk producers to the attention of the public, and thereby force a reduction in the cost of distribution of the milk, and greatly reduce the difference between what the producer receives for his milk and what the final consumer is compelled to pay.

In addition to that, a committee was appointed to draft resolutions to inform all the milk dealers in the City of Cincinnati and Covington that the burden of the reduction in the price of retail milk would have to be borne by the dealers and the milk wagon drivers, and not by the producers, because all of the previous reductions in the retail price of milk have been borne solely by the producers, and as a result the present wholesale price is far below the cost of production.

It was brought to the attention of the Alliance, according to the figures and records kept by the Ohio Department of Agriculture and other people interested in milk who have kept records, that the present cost of production, not including any compensation for the labor of the farmer in producing the milk, is approximately $3.77. According to the statement in the newspapers, the average milk producer is now receiving, net, not including any compensation for his labor, about 12c per gallon, or 3c a quart, which is more than 3-4c below the actual cost of production. If the farmer is compelled to bear the entire burden of the reduction of 8c per gallon in the price of milk, the farmer will only receive about 4c or 5c a gallon, net.

There isn't any question that if the Alliance were powerful enough, and its membership were large enough, any notice by the Alliance to the milk dealers of Cincinnati would result in the dealers very materially reducing their cost of distribution instead of compelling the farmer to bear the entire burden. With this in view, it was urged upon those present at the meeting last Saturday night to make every effort to expand the organization and increase the number of locals as rapidly as possible. It is evident that unless the milk producers around Cincinnati unite and demand this, they will be driven to a point where they will receive practically nothing for their milk.

The matter will come before the Alliance next Saturday night at the meeting at Hebron. Everyone who is interested in the milk situation should be present and join the Alliance. Do not fail to come.

"Ruins of Karnak" in Mammoth Cave

Kentucky has greater wealth than most states in scenic beauties and historic places. Its hospitality is world famed—it has hundreds of miles of fine highways in all sections and this mileage is steadily and rapidly increasing.

With these attractions, Kentucky is beginning to draw motor tourists from other states far and near. These tourists spend money with us—a surprisingly large aggregate sum—and they return home to tell their friends of the charms of Kentucky and Kentuckians.

As California, Colorado, Florida, Canada and other states and nations can testify, the tourist business is highly profitable in several ways. The visitors not only spend money themselves. Some of them in time return to live among us, bringing new blood, new ideas, new wealth and new industries.

A much larger tourist business, this coming spring and summer, will materially help the return of prosperity to Kentucky, according to Judge Huston Quin, managing director of the Kentucky Progress Commission.

The number of these visitors can be double or triple the number last season if Kentucky will start now to develop the tourist trade. Money expended in advertising Kentucky's tourist attractions would be money wisely invested, Judge Quin believes. And many thousand individual Kentuckians can aid the cause substantially, he says, by writing to friends and relatives in other states and inviting them to drive to Kentucky for next summer's vacation.

These Recipes Will Utilize Left-overs In Welcome Ways

MEAT remaining from last night's roast and bits of vegetables in the refrigerator need not appear on today's table in a form in which they will be recognized. They may be served in almost numberless dishes so flavorful and tempting that the family will enthrall about them. By adding a flavorful sauce, or by combining with another food an entirely new dish may be made. Vegetables offer possibilities for sandwiches and salads and the meats for meat pie, or delicious hash. Try these recipes for thrifty, flavorful dishes. They will bring welcome variety to your table.

Delicious Hash: Combine one cup grated cheese, two cups Rice Flakes, one egg, one teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce and a dash of pepper. Place a generous layer in a buttered baking dish, add a layer of chopped cooked ham and repeat, using remaining ingredients. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) until cheese is melted and the top slightly brown (about 15 minutes). If left-over ham is not available, use thin slices of cold boiled, or baked ham.

Vegetable Salad Sandwiches: Mix one large tomato, finely diced, ¼ medium sized cucumber, finely diced, 2 tablespoons minced onion, ¼ medium size green pepper, minced, 8 Stuffed Spanish Olives, 2 cups shredded lettuce, and salt to taste, and spread between slices of whole wheat bread which have been spread with Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Cut into rectangles, but do not remove crust. Serve with meat, egg or bean salad.

Baked Bean and Egg Salad: Place 2 cups Oven Baked Beans in a sieve and wash with boiling water, then cool. Add 3 chopped hard cooked egg whites, 6 Preserved Sweet Gherkins, chopped, 1 small chopped onion and ¼ teaspoon salt. Moisten with Mayonnaise and serve in crisp lettuce cups. Garnish with Mayonnaise and egg yolks, pressed through a sieve. Serve very cold. Serves 4.

On Saturday March 19th, at 8 p. m., Unit One met at the home of Mrs. Stanley Eddins with three members present. Officers were elected and organized for the year the Blue Ribbon 4-H Club.

Ben Paddock, of Hebron neighborhood, was a pleasant caller at this office Tuesday. Mr. Paddock seldom ever comes to Burlington that he doesn't make the Recorder a call.

SCHOLASTIC MEET

OF BOONE COUNTY AT NEW HAVEN THIS WEEK. INTERMEDIATE DECLAMATION AND MUSIC THURSDAY EVENING. SCHOLASTIC TESTS ON FRIDAY - ANNOUNCEMENT OF WINNERS FRIDAY EVENING

The beautiful and spacious New Haven school will be the scene this week of the annual Boone County scholastic tournament. For the past several years the Burlington school has been the host to this annual gathering on account of its large auditorium, but with the completion of the Florence and New Haven school buildings last year the school board decided to shift the scene. So the Florence school entertained the basket ball tournament, while New Haven was given the scholastic tournament.

According to the usual custom there will be tests in oratory, music and academic work. Thursday at 7 p. m., there will be the elementary declamations and elementary chorus. Friday at 9 a. m., tests in scholastic work will start and continue until all students have completed their work.

Again at 7 p. m., Friday the guests will assemble in the large auditorium to hear the Hi School Chorus, High School Declamation and High School Duet contests. Following these contests the winners will be announced in the various contests and the medals and cups awarded. A large silver loving cup will be awarded the winning schools in the high school, intermediate and one and two room school divisions. Smaller cups will be given the schools finishing second in each division. These cups will be donated by various business concerns in the county.

The New Haven Parent-Teachers Association will furnish lunch at a reasonable price to visitors and contestants both noon and evening on Friday. Admission will be 25 cents for the evening events.

4-H BUTTER FAT PRODUCTION CONTEST

NEW FORD

SEEN AND INSPECTED BY DEALERS FROM THIS SECTION ON TUESDAY - FOURTEEN MODELS WILL BE OFFERED MOTORIZED PUBLIC - NEW V-8 WILL DO 75 MILES PER HOUR

Ford dealers throughout this section gathered at the Ford plant in Cincinnati Tuesday for the first peep at the new V-8 for which they have been waiting for so long. Complete details may be had from the Myers Motor Company, at Forcencel where a new model will be on exhibit within a short time.

Mr. Winfield Myers, of the Myers Motor Car Co., was in our office Wednesday and waxed enthusiastic on both the new four and eight cylinder models. The eight will develop 65 horse power and will be capable of doing 75 miles per hour, while the four will develop fifty horse power and attain a corresponding speed.

Four body types of modern streamline design are offered. Further particulars will be published in detail in the columns of this paper next week.

Miss Lena Graves, of Versailles, Ky., is enjoying a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Joel Gray, of near town.

Attorney D. E. Castleman, of Erlanger, was a business caller at the court house Monday morning.

POULTRY DEMONSTRATIONS

Boone county poultrymen following all five points of the clean chick program during 1931 raised from 90 to 95 per cent of all chicks according to County Agent H. R. Forkner.

1. Clean Chicks - from a B. W. D. tested free back.
2. Clean Brooder House - one that has been thoroughly scaled and disinfected.
3. Clean Ground - free from worms and coccidia (No poultry on the ground for past two years).
4. Clean Balanced Rations.
5. Clean Careful Management.

These demonstrations are being carried on again this year. Those who are interested in knowing more about them are urged to get in touch with the County Agent.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

Pursuant to a call received last week from the Democratic Central Executive Committee as chairman of the Boone County Executive Committee I hereby urge all Democrats in Boone county to attend the county convention to be held at the court house, in Burlington on Saturday afternoon, April 9th, at 2 o'clock. The meeting will be held for the purpose of selecting and instructing delegates to the state convention to be held at Louisville on Tuesday, April 12th.

Respectfully,
R. E. BERSKSHIRE,
Chm. Dem. Executive Com.

Otis Rouse and family will move Saturday to Hebron. Mr. Rouse is employed on the State Highway from Petersburg to Constance and is moving to Hebron in order to be nearer to his work. The Burlington community sees the Rouse family leave here with the keenest regret and extends congratulations to Hebron upon the acquisition of such splendid citizens.

SUDDEN DEATH

OF J. COLIN KELLY, OF RABBIT HASH, COMES AS A SURPRISE AND SEVERE SHOCK TO THIS PART OF BOONE COUNTY - IS SURVIVED BY WIDOW, SON, BROTHER AND SISTER - BURIAL AT BELLEVUE

Early Friday morning this section of the county received news of the sudden death of J. Colin Kelly, aged 54, of near Rabbit Hash. The news was the most severe shock to this entire section that we have known for some time.

Colin Kelly was numbered among the foremost and most highly respected and admired men, not only of his own community, but of the entire county. His death occurred Friday about 5 o'clock a. m. He had arisen and replenished the fires according to his usual custom when he heard some dogs in his sheep pen.

Snatching a 22 calibre rifle from the wall he hurried onto an adjoining porch in bath robe and slippers. His wife soon heard a shot, but, thinking that he was shooting at the dogs did not go out until several minutes later. When she arrived at his side he was apparently dead. Just how the tragedy occurred is a puzzle, but it is thought that he may have stepped on a loose board in the porch and dropped the stock of the rifle to the floor, causing it to be discharged. It is said that the rifle was very easy on trigger.

The deceased was a son of the late Z. T. Kelly and is survived by his widow, one son Orville Kelly, of Rising Sun, Indiana, and one brother Wilbur Kelly, of Erlanger, and one sister, Mrs. Joe L. Stephens, of Bellevue. He was a member of the Burlington Baptist church and several fraternal orders among which were the Masonic Lodge of McVie, Eastern Star at the same place and the Scottish Rite at Covington.

Funeral services were conducted at the home Sunday afternoon with a short service at the Bellevue cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest. Rev. F. E. Walker, assisted by Rev. R. C. McNeely, of Patriot, Indiana, and Rev. W. M. Smith, of Warsaw, Ky., both of whom were life long friends, conducted the funeral services. The Masonic Lodge also assisted in the last rites.

FORGERY

IN CHARGE AGAINST GRANT COUNTY MAN, WHO IS LODGED IN JAIL HERE TO AWAIT ACTION OF GRAND JURY - WARRANT ALSO SWORN TO IN KENTON COUNTY

The arrest of Clarence Phillips, of Grant county, formerly of Boone county, followed the issuance of a warrant which was sworn to by John G. Renaker, cashier of the Florence Deposit Bank. The warrant charged forgery which it was said took place when Phillips cashed a check on Wallace Rouse, of Florence. When he attempted to cash a second check Mr. Renaker phoned Mr. Rouse and learned of the forgery.

After he had been lodged in jail here by Sheriff Snyder Friday a warrant was received from Kenton county charging a second offense alleged to have been committed against R. C. McNay, of Erlanger. He will be retained in the local jail to await the action of the Boone County grand jury at the coming April term.

Deaths

MRS. AMERICA TANNER
Another of the oldest citizens of this community answered the final summons last Thursday when Mrs. America Tanner, of the Florence pike, near Burlington passed away. The deceased was 80 years of age and had been ill for some time with gripe, or influenza, and her weakened condition due to advanced years was unable to cope with the attack.

She was a widow of the late O. P. Tanner and a sister of L. S. Beeson, also mother of Mrs. J. B. Rouse with whom she lived at the time of her death. Besides these near relatives she is survived by a number of others in this and surrounding communities. Funeral services were conducted at the Hopeful Lutheran church Saturday morning by Rev. Harlow Edgar Haas, the pastor, after which the remains were placed on the family lot in the little cemetery adjoining Undertaker C. Scott Chambers was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

LEWIS CASON

A venerable patriarch of the Burlington community went to his reward last Thursday morning when the hand of death beckoned to Lewis Cason, aged 79, of the Bellevue pike.

Infirmitie incident to advanced years, aided by a recent attack of influenza, were given as the causes of his death. He is survived by one brother, Everett Cason, and two sisters, Mrs. Aletha Clore and Mrs. J. G. Jones, of Burlington and the East Bend road respectively. Mr. Cason was always known as a splendid citizen and admirable character. While he left a great many true friends in the community, yet, due to his declining years, he had been unable to get out and see his friends for many years. It is said that he had not been in Burlington for almost ten years.

Funeral services were conducted at the grave in the I. O. O. F. cemetery here Saturday at 2 p. m., with Rev. Walker of the Baptist church, conducting the service. C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

SHEEP INJURES AGED LADY

While attending to her sheep on her farm near Union last Sunday afternoon an enraged ram knocked Mrs. Chas. Baker to the ground, breaking a number of ribs and otherwise injuring her internally. She was rushed to a Covington hospital where it is said that her condition is regarded as serious at this writing. Her advanced years will no doubt handicap her complete recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Slekman were hosts Sunday to Rev. Brown, wife and daughter, of Cincinnati. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Craven, of Constance, and Miss Viola Silber, of Latonia.

The Burlington bridge club was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. D. R. Blythe last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Geo. A. Porter won the 1st prize, Mrs. Herbert Snyder taking second.

Jack Lindenburn, of Newport, was a very pleasant caller at the Recorder office last Friday afternoon. Mr. Lindenburn, who is a retired river pilot, can relate experiences on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers that date as far back as 1845, when he made his start. During his term of years in the pilot house he taught the trade to two brothers, three Maurer brothers, and two Brashear brothers, all of whom hailed from Bellevue.

Harold Rame, better known to his Boone county friends as Harold Arnold, was united in marriage on March 25th to Miss Hildreth Ishmael, of Covington. Rev. Runyan, of Latonia, performed the ceremony at the Latonia Christian church. They were accompanied to the marriage altar by Mr. and Mrs. James Schram, of Covington, to whose home they returned for the wedding supper. Mr. and Mrs. Rame will make their home with the groom's mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Arnold, of near Hebron.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wingate, of Erlanger, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Stephenson, of Linsburg.

Twenty-five guests enjoyed a splendid spring chicken dinner at Joe's and John's place in Burlington last Sunday. They served a half fried chicken and delicious trimmings in abundance for the small price of fifty cents. They plan to continue the practice through the spring and summer months. Try them.

Miss Kate Kirkpatrick, of Cincinnati, was enjoying a visit with her mother and family last Sunday.

The death of Mrs. America Tanner, widow of the late O. P. Tanner, which occurred last week, severed the association of a very unique triumvirate at the home of J. B. Rouse and wife, of the Florence pike. For the past several months the home of Mr. Rouse has been the home of L. S. Beeson, aged 81, L. A. Tanner, 81, and Mrs. Tanner. It is doubtful if any other home in the county sheltered so many aged people. In fact it is doubtful if any private home in the state contained three persons whose ages averaged 87 years.

CONSTANCE SCHOOL TO HAVE ANOTHER MONTH

A commendable spirit of cooperation between patrons and teachers at Constance will be responsible for the continuance of their school term an additional month, according to advice received from there early this week. Due to a recent opinion of the Court of Appeals in regard to financing school work it had been decided to cut the current school term from eight months, as originally planned, to seven.

However, the teachers at Constance were desirous of finishing their year's work as they had planned it, and due to the cooperation of the Parent-Teachers Association, they were able to do so. The teachers are said to have made a considerable sacrifice in order that expenses might be met.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Wingate and daughter, of Erlanger, spent the week-end with relatives near Burlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Craddock, of Union, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Craddock.

LANDMARK

OF UNION COMMUNITY REMOVED BY DEATH IN PASSING OF GEORGE C. BARLOW, FORMERLY PROMINENT LIVE STOCK TRADER AND FARMER

A well known landmark is gone from the Union community. Geo. C. Barlow passed away last Friday evening following an attack of influenza. Mr. Barlow had been in a weakened condition since he suffered a stroke of paralysis last summer and his constitution was not strong enough to resist the ravages of influenza.

George Barlow left a host of friends throughout this entire section and the enormous outpouring at the Hopeful church at 10 o'clock the fact. Rev. Harlow Haas, Lutheran pastor, delivered the funeral sermon very impressively. Burial took place in the cemetery adjoining the church with C. Scott Chambers, of Walton, in charge.

The deceased was 71 years of age and had spent his entire life in Boone county, where he had been actively engaged during his busy life as a farmer and stock trader of wide acquaintanceship and with splendid success. He was a son of the late Noah Barlow and a nephew of J. M. Barlow of Burlington. He is survived by his widow, Della Barlow, one son, L. R. Barlow, of Union, and two daughters, Mrs. Volney Dickerson, of Union, and Mrs. Lloyd Stephens, of Cocoa, Florida. The latter arrived at the bedside of her father just before he breathed his last, although he still was able to recognize her.

"NORBEH CHAMPIONS"

When the "Norbeh Champions" 4-H Club of Hebron met Monday, February 14th there were 32 members enrolled. New girls were learned and practiced.

James Conner, George Hanks, Riley and Benjamin Goodridge, some of our most industrious poultry club members have started early on their projects. Besides their poultry projects they also have calves, rabbits and pheasants.

We have added many new members this year and are setting a goal of 40 members before the year is out.

TOUR NEIGHBORING COUNTIES IN SEARCH FOR FURNISHED BIRDS - O. B. RUS AND BEN NICHOLSON ARE ACCOMPANIED BY COUNTY AGENT H. R. FORKNER

Mr. O. B. Rus, Ben Nitching and County Agent H. R. Forkner in company with a representative of the dairy department visited leading dairy herds in Fayette, Boyle, Shelby and Henry counties Thursday of last week in an attempt to locate suitable young herd sires for the Boone county Bull Association. A total of 394 miles were traveled on the tour.

There are large numbers of well bred dairy bulls for sale but due to the high standards set by the association only one with the possibility of two seen on the above trip were considered worthy of being considered for association herd sires.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

Last Monday morning at the regular English period the students of B. H. S. were lectured by Rev. Preston, of Dallas, Texas, whose subject was "Christianity and Character." Rev. Preston is making a tour of the Southern States, lecturing to various High Schools.

The results of the Intra-Mural High School Basket Ball Tournament held at B. H. S. last week proved satisfactory to the Juniors when they dethroned the Seniors for the championship of high school. The games of the tournament were all played during the noon hour. The first game was played by the Freshmen and Juniors Tuesday, with the Juniors winning by one point, 15 to 14. On Wednesday the Seniors and Sophomores met, again a score of one point lead was made with the Seniors winning 18 to 17. On Thursday the championship was won by the Juniors from the Seniors by a one-sided score 29 to 13. Three cheers for the Juniors.

A GREAT AMERICAN PASSES

The death of George Eastman by his own hand came as a shocking surprise to everyone in the U. S. He had been regarded as almost as much of a permanency in our national life as was Mr. Edison for so many years.

Few men had ever done so much for their fellow-men, to make the world happier and to bring new beauty into life. He gave away more than $75,000,000 in his lifetime, to found schools and endow universities and especially to cultivate the popular taste in music. He was not himself a musician, but was a devotee of music and maintained at his own expense a magnificent public music hall and a symphony orchestra in his home city of Rochester.

It might be said of Mr. Eastman that he brought a new art, amateur photography, into being. Before he began making dry plates photography was a difficult and a herculean task. He followed the dry plate with the flexible celluloid film, and then brought out the first foolproof camera for amateurs, relieving the ordinary person from the need of learning the technique of developing and printing. There is no doubt that this invention alone has brought more real enjoyment and happiness into human lives than almost any other one invention of our times. Who does not treasure the home-made photographs of those who have passed on, of the children, when they were little, of themselves as they were when they were young?

It was a shocking end to a useful life that he should have killed himself; yet it is easier to understand than some other suicides have been. Mr. Eastman never married and had not a single near relative living. After a full and active life—at 75 he was on a big game hunting expedition in Africa and brought back the head of an elephant which he shot—it was a strain beyond endurance to drag on in ill-health and feel that there was nothing left in life to live for. So he wrote a note: "To my friends: My work is done. Why wait?" and sent a bullet through his heart.

Such a death is always more tragic than a kindly, natural passing such as Edison's was. But it was characteristic of Geo. Eastman to die alone and by his own hand, as he had lived alone and fought his way up the ladder of success to fame by his own unaided efforts.

THIS LAWLESS COUNTRY

It is not to be wondered at that the press of Europe points to the Lindbergh kidnapping as proof that the United States is the most lawless nation in the world. We are. There is no doubt about that. There is no other country pretending to civilization in which the machinery of the law is so inefficient to protect the individual, in which people generally hold the law in disrespect.

It is a disgrace to the U. S. that Col. Lindbergh should have felt it necessary to call not on the constituted police authorities but upon acknowledged "underworld" characters to lead the search for his baby. We do not blame Col. Lindbergh; any father in his case would do whatever he could, regardless of the law, to get his little boy back safely. But it is an amazing confession of impotence on the part of the police of New Jersey and of the country at large that kidnapping can be carried on without fear of punishment, as so many recent instances have provided.

Perhaps the public indignation arising from this dramatic disclosure of the failure of our law-enforcement and protective machinery may result in an anti-crime wave which will wipe out the shameful reputation our nation has earned by public indifference to crime. Perhaps we may see citizens taking the law into their own hands, as in the old Vigilante days in San Francisco, and hanging racketeers and gangsters from the most convenient lampposts. Perhaps.

And then, perhaps, nobody will do anything much about it. That is more likely, in view of our past history in such matters.

The Family Garden

PEAS AND GREENS
(By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

ENGLISH PEAS—Although most of the Alaskas and similar smooth-seeded varieties of peas have already been planted, it has not been safe or even advantageous to put in the sweeter varieties until now, for the seed of these is so prone to rot unless the ground is definitely warm, or, at least, unless danger of freezes is past. Quite a wide choice of variety is offered. If a strictly dwarf sort is desired, Blue Banham is suggested. The next taller variety is Little Marvel. Although it is called a "dwarf," it often grows to be 15 inches tall, making support desirable. Next taller, is Gradus or Prosperity, which attains a height of as much as thirty inches; Thomas Laxton is another. In passing, it should be said that the taller sorts bear more heavily than the dwarfs, and gardeners who wish to make the most of their space should choose them, provided they mean to furnish support.

Because these varieties bear their crops far into the warm weather, and because peas are cool-weather vegetables, it is wise to plant the seed in such a way that the roots will lie in deep, cool soil. Three inches, or even four, is not too deep. By this is not meant that the seed should be covered so deeply at planting, but the furrows should be laid off at that depth, and filled when the plants are tall enough.

The fertilizing recommendation, made earlier in the series, fits peas admirably; no additions need be made.

GREENS—All gardeners sow mustard, smooth spring kale and, perhaps, turnips, but a reminder to add spinach to the list may not be amiss.

Land for greens should be extremely rich in nitrogen. Because the general garden fertilizing recommendation is designed to produce a balance between top and crop; of the vegetables raised for fruit or seed, amendments of nitrogenous fertilizing materials should be made where greens are grown. Top-dressings of chicken manure are excellent; the rate should be 1 bushel over three hundred square feet. More rapid in its results is nitrate of soda; it should be sown at the rate of 1 pound to 100 feet of row, or if the greens are sown broadcast, the nitrate should be sown broadcast, too, at the rate of 1 pound to 100 square feet of space.

As for varieties of the cabbage-family greens to use, most gardeners have already decided, but even these may wish to try one of the two rather new varieties, Tendergreen, and Japanese Foliage turnip. Both have the advantage of furnishing greens in the astonishingly short time of 25 days. The foliage turnip furnishes quite satisfactory tableturnips, besides.

Of the spinach varieties Bloomdale Savoy is best-known, but King of Denmark is better, for it is slightly more cold-hardy. The latter sowings should be made to the summer sorts, Hot Weather, or Prickly-seeded Summer.

Many gardeners annually complain of the yellowing and stunting of their spinach. Although much of this difficulty arises from lack of feeding (and should be remedied by top-dressing or side-dressing with special nitrogen carriers, as just explained), the failure to have satisfactory spinach may be due to an accumulation of the "spinach yellows" disease in the garden soil. The suggestion is to use the Norfolk Yellow-resistant strain, of Bloomdale.

A word as to cultivation of peas and greens is not out of place; it is this. Cultivation should be frequent enough, and adequate, merely to discourage weeds as they start, and the soil surface should be left level, always.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

HEADACHES

I sometimes think headaches are a curse of civilization. It is so distressing to have a patient drop in, apparently in perfect health, and say, "Doctor, I have a splitting headache; have had it three or four days; it just won't quit." In such a case, I make inquiry about the four functions, bowels, kidneys, food indulgence and sleep. I ask particularly the location of the pain; whether light aggravates, or mental worry—in fact, everything that might cause that headache, often to no purpose; nothing has been going wrong.

I become assured that a headache that resists all ordinary treatment is far from being a simple matter. Of course dabbling with such tablets as are exposed on show cases, often prescribed by advertisers and druggists, is a dangerous procedure, as any educated physician knows so well. The cause of the disturbance must be sought for, and gotten rid of at once; any other way of proceeding is certainly very wrong. Suppose you are unable to determine the cause, as is quite possible and probable? What then? What more can be told the patient than he already knows? To give "tablets" does not CURE.

Well, to play safe, keep the digestive tract cleared, using always a simple, yet thorough-going laxative, one that does not grip, or make the patient despise you every time he thinks of the dose. Magnesia, Cascara, Phosphate of Soda, Watch the kind of food to be taken. If the patient eats heavily of one article of diet, ease him down on that thing or forbid it entirely for a time. Certain foods, acting as "allergic," cause headaches by overloading the system with that sort of protein. Watch carefully, and you may find the apparently harmless food that causes the trouble; once found, the patient may be cured by simple avoidance of the offender. There is no way to determine, except by painstaking trial. It will pay you to study the matter.

OPEN MIND AND THICK SKIN

Coming to work Monday morning, with a heart full of peace and good will, I found two letters on my desk.

"Sir: I long have been a reader of your pieces, but your last editorial was the best you ever have written. I have cut it out and am going to frame it and hang it in my office."

The other letter referred to the same identical editorial:

"Sir: Much of the time I have agreed with you, but after reading your last week's effusion I bid you farewell. Such a bunch of bologna!"

Being naturally a sensitive person, I suffered from criticism in my early days. Once, when an article of mine contained a blunder for which the editor received caustic letters, I felt so sick I stayed in bed all one day.

But as time went on I developed a philosophy as to criticism and so, it seems to me, must every man who is going to get anything done.

The first article in that philosophy is that you can't please everybody, and that much criticism, of good or bad, is entirely uninformed.

You like blondes, and I like brunettes; you like fiction, I like biography; you like Eugene O'Neill, I like Ed. Wynn. No one can satisfy us both. Anyone who tries it will be colorless and futile.

Second, one can not be guided too much by the public because the public is so changeable. Every public character of any influence has been popular at some time in his career and unpopular at others. Wellington, after the battle of Waterloo, was worshipped by the English people almost as a god. A few years later he had to put iron shutters on his windows to keep these same people from throwing cobble stones through the glass.

Third, criticism is good for us. We need it, no matter how well meaning or careful we may be. One time when John Morley was being severely handled by the English press Gladstone said to him: "Take it from me that to endure tramping on with patience and self-control is no bad element in the preparation of a man for walking firmly and successfully in the path of great public duty. Be sure that discipline is full of blessings."

Finally, and in the last analysis a man has to do his best and go forward. A famous old English schoolmaster had this motto, of which I am fond: "Never explain, never retract, never apologize. Get it done and let them howl."

So, readers, send me as many letters as you think I need. And a thick skin.

FARMS MADE TO PAY REGARDLESS OF SIZE

Records gathered by the department of farm economics at the College of Agriculture, University, indicate that some farms were made to pay last year, regardless of their size. Figures are announced on a 550-acre farm and on a 100-acre farm.

The 550-acre farm gave a net return of 5 per cent interest on an investment of nearly $400,000; after deducting taxes and all other expenses, and there was left a small profit in addition. Receipts for the year totaled $12,138, and expenses $6,957.

The owner sold 162 lambs, 49 beef cattle, 31 hogs, a small amount of poultry, and 10,350 bushels of blue grass seed. Tobacco was of minor importance, bringing only $716. Corn yielded 62½ bushels to the acre, tobacco 1,113 pounds, blue grass seed 23¼ bushels, and soybean hay two tons to the acre. Expenses included $1,469 for feed, $1,625 for labor and $1,443 for improvements to buildings and machinery.

A 100-acre farm devoted principally to tobacco and sheep returned net earnings of $1,185 last year. Receipts totaled $4,180 and expenses $2,164. Seventy-five lambs and 16,520 pounds of tobacco were sold. Tobacco yielded 1,270 pounds to the acre and brought an average of $15.70 per 100 pounds. Alfalfa hay, poultry and dairy products were minor sources of income. Expenses included $1,080 for labor, $120 for feed and $145 for improvements.

ISSUES STATEMENT ON NURSERY INSPECTION

Requests for out-of-season inspection of strawberry and other plants brought the following statement concerning nursery inspection from W. A. Price, Kentucky state entomologist:

"The nursery inspection act passed by the General Assembly in 1925 provides that every package of nursery stock sold in the state or given to a common carrier in the state shall be accompanied by a certificate of inspection. These certificates are obtained by applying for inspection to the department of entomology and botany, Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington. After the inspection is made and the plants are found to be apparently free of injurious insects and plant disease a fee of $5 is collected in accordance with the provisions of the Act and a certificate is issued. A request for inspection services implies obligation to secure the certificate.

"The inspection season varies with different plants. Bulbs, narcissi especially, receive two inspections per year—the first during the blooming period and the second after the corns have been harvested. The brambles likewise receive two inspections during June and July. Other plantings, including the general nursery and strawberry patches, will be inspected during the growing season from June 1 to October 1.

"All requests for inspection of any kind pertaining to plants, except bulbs, should reach this office before June 1. Bulb requests should reach us by March 1.

"The inspector's itinerary for all inspections except bulbs will be made up June 1. Any inspections made as a result of requests received after this date and which cannot be included in the regular itinerary will be considered special. The expense of such inspections will be borne by the recipient of the service."

The state veterinary department is planning to test Knot county cattle for tuberculosis during June.

In 1886 . . .

The following excerpts from the report of the United States Commissioner of Labor that year make amusing reading in retrospect:

"The rapid development and adaptation of machinery have brought what is commonly called over-production --- railroads and canals that are really needed have been built—water and gas works, tramways, etc., are largely provided for—the Alps are tunneled, and the Suez Canal has been built. Terrestrial and trans-oceanic lines of telegraph have been laid and the merchants marine has been transformed from wood to iron. ---On all sides one sees the accomplished results of the labor of half a century---new processes---will act as an ameliorating influence, but it will not leave room for marked extension.--The day of large profits is probably past."

Where have we heard that before?

1886 was a panic year. Things looked blue-black. The country had "gone to the bow-wows."

And then came renewed confidence, better leadership, more enthusiastic building for the future, greater production, greater consumption, shorter working hours, higher wages, and a higher American standard of living.

Electricity did its part in bringing these things about; it is doing its part in again building toward a brighter future;

COUNTY SEED LOAN COMMITTEE

Mr. C. L. Cropper, of Burlington, Mr. Hubert Conner of Hebron, and Mr. Ben Doan of Walton, have been appointed as Boone county's Federal Seed Loan Committee to pass on all seed loan applications to the Farmers' Seed Loan Office to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Loans will be made to those farmers who can not secure local credit for the purchase of seed, fertilizer, spray material, feed for work stock and fuel for tractors in putting in the 1935 crop. The loans are made pursuant to the Act of Congress of January 22, 1932 creating the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The loans in most cases allow a smaller amount than was loaned for drought relief last year. The maximum amounts that can be secured on per acre basis are as follows:

General Crops
Seed $3.00
All expenses including seed $8.00
Truck Crops
Seed $12.00
All expenses except dusting 20.00
Dusting 4.00
FRUIT
Spraying, fertilizer etc. $25.00

The above represents the maximum and the loans may be cut down to a lower figure. The county committee is responsible for the passing on the applications for the loans only. They serve without pay and each has expressed his public and well expressed his patriotic willingness to serve.

Throughout this section of the state this place is known as one establishment where a complete auto service can be had at exceedingly low prices and hundreds of motorists have marvelled at the wonderful and efficient service offered.

They are known as the "Classiest Service Station on the Dixie" and live up to their name with quality products at reasonable prices. They handle gasoline, motor oils, kerosene, greases and soaps, Firestone Tires, Tubes, accessories, Batteries, and make a Specialty of Greasing.

They are distinct step forward in making motoring safe and afford unusual protection to the car mechanism, delivering mileage equal to other tires with no increase in fuel consumption.

Those who apply for the loans should keep this in mind and render full application in filing applications.

It is not expected that there will be as many applications for loans as were made last year. It is necessary that all available means of securing credit for the purchase of seed, fertilizer and other requirements for crop production be exhausted before the applicant is eligible to apply. Application blanks may be secured from the county committeemen or at the County Agent's office. All applications must be passed on by the county committee. April 30th is the closing date for filing applications.

"LIVE AT HOME" PROGRAM

"Live at Home" is the slogan for raise your own food campaign for 1932 according to County Agent H. R. Forkner. Farm people under the present economic conditions have been living too far from the farm food purchased from the store. In the securing of food for recreation and pleasure and in turn have overlooked the most wholesome living which is supplied by the farm and the community.

"Live at Home" the farmer can do this in a healthy way more than any other class of people. The farm can and should be made to practically supply all the family food which when manufactured by the farm wife will furnish a wholesome and nourishing balanced ration the year round. With the present price of our products we have gone too far in overlooking the farm vegetables, fruits, dairy, poultry, pork, mutton and beef supplies and the proper canning, preserving, storing and feeding of these supplies. No doubt not a single Boone county farm has taken advantage of all the above possibilities in their fullest form.

New varieties, new methods, new rationing, new receipts and new plans will be necessary for most of those who have as far as they know in carrying out the above program. The College of Agriculture thru the county agent's office has made available the following services in the Live at Home program to any community requesting information on the following:

- a. Home Garden.
- b. Home Fruit Supply.
- c. Home Dairy Products.
- d. Home Meat Supply—including pork, mutton and beef.
- e. Home Canning.
- f. Storage of Food Supply.
- g. Home Poultry.
- h. Clothing and Home Improvement.

A leading Boone county business man recently informed the agent that many Boone county farmers were spending $40.00 per month for food purchased from the store. At least $35.00 of this amount in most cases could wholly be produced on the farm. A good farm garden alone under normal conditions is estimated to produce $50.00 worth of food per person.

Farm people must live comfortably, be happy and secure greatest enjoyment from life. They as a group thru properly developed rural program have all these possibilities. The sudden change in economic conditions upon the old and brought about—new must be developed to the satisfaction of rural life. Neither must community help nor recreation be overlooked. The time to start on the Live at Home program is now. If you are in need of new ideas the cautious, well-stand ready to help.

Washington Snap Shots

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS
(Taken by The Union News Service)

By the overwhelming and surprising vote of 233 to 153 the House voted out of the tax revision bill the proposed 1.35 per cent manufacturers' sales tax. Not more than forty Democrats stood by the leaders of their party in favoring the proposal. As soon as the result of the vote became known Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic floor leader, suggested that the Senate withhold action on the tax bill until after the national convention. His proposal contemplated a recess of Congress during June until after July 4th, when the Senate would reconvene. Senator Robinson maintained it was apparent that the tax bill could not reach the Senate floor until the middle of May, leaving only about two weeks for its consideration before the scheduled adjournment. Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, dissented from the view that the bill would be delayed so long. Everything would be done, he said, to expedite the measure, so that it could be passed before the adjournment in June.

When the House of Representatives struck the manufacturers' sales levy from the Ways and Means Committee's tax bill, the whole of Congress, for the first time in years, passed out of the control of either of the two major political parties. For several sessions, due to the presence of a bloc of progressive Republicans, the Senate has been ruled by a coalition majority. It has now been joined by the House. On economic measures, especially, it will henceforth be impossible for the nominal leadership of the Seventy-second Congress—Democratic in the House and Republican in the Senate—to lay down programs with any certainty of enactment.

At least a third and possibly half of the 233 votes which defeated the sales tax can be looked upon as anti-tax. The major portion of the opposition to the sales tax is part of a nation-wide tax rebellion. Locally, throughout the country, the rebellion is against taxes collected by towns, counties, cities and states. It is a rebellion against a certain kind of taxes, taxes on lands, goods and other "tangibles," because this is, in the main, the only kind of taxation that local governments practice. This rebellion is general throughout the country. Office holders and politicians everywhere are terrorized by it. The sentiment against heavy local taxes and heavy cost of local government is the most conspicuous present manifestation of politics in the United States.

President Hoover was keenly disappointed when the news reached him that the House had defeated the proposed sales tax. He expressed this disappointment to Elias H. Runko, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, who was conferring with him at the time. Later the President conferred briefly with Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury, and Representative Snell, New York, Republican House leader, on the tax situation. It was his thought, it was said, that the bill should be sent back to the Ways and Means Committee to be re-drafted in its entirety.

The Senate Judiciary Committee will make a voluntary report on one of the pending resolutions involving repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution and thereby provide for a Senate vote upon that issue. Assurances to this effect were given Senator Tydings, of Maryland, and in response to that voluntary offer the Marylander promised not to press a motion to discharge the committee from consideration of the repeal measures. This motion was to be supported by a petition signed by more than thirty Senators.

The growing number of American-flag vessels on the high seas as a result of the Merchant Marine act of 1920 was emphasized by President Hoover in a message sent to those in charge of the launching of the new S. S. Santa Rosa at Kearney, N. J. The launching of the new vessel, President Hoover pointed out, marks a revival of the shipbuilding industry. Orders for forty-five new vessels totaling 500,000 tons have been placed, while nineteen vessels of 160,000 tons are being reconditioned.

A large reduction in money hoarding and rapid slowing down of bank failures in recent weeks were shown in figures made public by Secretary Mills. Mr. Mills would not interpret the figures, which he said "speak for themselves." They indicated a vast improvement in the banking situation and in the confidence of the public in the banks. In the opinion of treasury officials, after making adjustments for seasonal variations, money in circulation has been reduced by $187,000,000 since the anti-hoarding drive started. Mr. Mills said.

The question what the word "legislature" means as used in the Constitution of the United States was put before the Supreme Court of the United States in arguments on the New York and Missouri redistricting cases. The higher court is called on in these cases, and also in the Minnesota case argued recently, to determine whether the makers of the Constitution intended to include the Governor as part of the law-making body or left to the Legislatures exclusively the authority to divide the states into districts for the purpose of electing members of the House of Representatives. Great political interest centers in the decision of the court, which, it is deemed certain, will be handed down before the end of this term. The Minnesota decision is expected to be handed down first and to be the governing one, though all three may be given on the same date.

The White House grounds may now boast of having a real redwood tree, the kind so dear to the hearts of all Californians. A slim, 8-foot infant of this variety of tree was planted in a conspicuous spot in the rear grounds by Mrs. Hoover. A position was personally selected by her as an advantageous place. Allowance was made in the choosing of the tree to grow to great size. A few moments earlier a sturdy young cedar tree from the famous Farry Farm at Fredericksburg, Virginia, where George Washington spent his youth and the scene of the historic dollar-throwing episode, was planted on the White House lawn by President and Mrs. Hoover. The tree was presented by the George Washington Tree Guild of Fredericksburg and was registered on the National Honor Roll of the American Tree Association.

THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH LABORATORY

The Laboratory of the State Board of Health is constantly rendering to citizens in every community in the Commonwealth a technical service of whose extent and inestimable value only a small proportion of the people of Kentucky have any adequate idea. This Laboratory was established in 1911, when the State Board of Health had its headquarters in Bowling Green. In 1919, it was removed, along with the other departments of the State Board of Health, to Louisville and has since been domiciled in the State Board of Health Building, at the southeast corner of Sixth and Main Streets. Its present central location makes it easily accessible to any section of the Commonwealth. Not more than 24 hours are required for specimens for analysis, when forwarded under first class postage and special delivery, to reach it even from the most remote parts of the State.

Dr. L. H. South, whose reputation as a Bacteriologist is nation-wide, has been Director of the State Board of Health Laboratory since its organization. She personally supervises every phase of its manifold activities, and under her expert direction these activities have so broadened and so progressed that the Laboratory today ranks among the most efficient to be found anywhere in the United States—governmental or commercial.

Its first function is to assist physicians in making accurate and definite diagnosis of disease. Every year tens of thousands of specimens of various kinds are carefully analyzed and promptly reported on. Twenty-four hour service, seven days in the week, is maintained, of which physicians and others anywhere in the State are free to avail themselves without cost. The Laboratory Staff takes the specimens immediately upon their receipt and carry through the examinations as rapidly as possible. The results are at once reported to the respective physicians sending in the specimens, together with expert opinion as to what they show in the test tube and under the microscope. In this way, the attending physicians are enabled to obtain, with minimum delay, more accurate diagnoses and so to proceed with the treatments indicated. As recognition of the importance of laboratory diagnosis is rapidly growing, the work of the Laboratory in this regard is constantly expanding.

Another phase of the Laboratory's activities is the manufacture for free distribution to officials of the Commonwealth of typhoid fever vaccine, whooping cough vaccine, measles serum and scarlet fever toxins. Of typhoid fever vaccine alone, the laboratory turned out last year sufficient to inoculate one million people. Kentucky has the only State Laboratory in the Union which is equipped to produce scarlet fever toxin. It is interesting to note that since its organization this Laboratory has given 32,000 treatments for rabies at its Pasteur Institute. To evaluate such service in terms of dollars and cents is impossible. When it is considered that this work is done largely in the interest of citizens of the Commonwealth who are not in financial position to have it done at commercial laboratories, and without a penny of expense to the patients, it ought not to be difficult to form some idea of the vital importance of the services rendered by this Department of the State Board of Health.

JESUS RISES FROM THE DEAD

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Seal of authenticity was placed upon the teachings of Jesus Christ by the glorious miracle of the resurrection of the body of our Lord, which wondrous event we are celebrating on this Easter, and not on every first day of the week. For this reason many delight to call this day the Lord's Day.

Early on that first day of the week a company of women wended their way to the tomb that they might complete the usual embalming for which there was not adequate time, due to the approach of the Jewish Sabbath. An empty tomb revealed that He was no longer where the dead body had been placed. It was beyond their immediate understanding, tho they were told "He is risen."

Then began a series of appearances. One especially is described—that to Mary Magdalene, who tarried behind the group of women in her eagerness to search until she found the body of her Lord. She fails to recognize Him thru teardimmed eyes, but responds with bounding joy when He simply speaks her name—Mary. There she is sent forth as a messenger of the good news, even as all of us are similarly commissioned to spread abroad the story of salvation. Other appearances were to Peter and to the two when they supplied Him at Emmaus. That same night he manifested Himself to ten disciples in the upper room in Jerusalem and gave the meaningful blessing: "Peace be unto you." This resurrection of the body of Jesus is a definite pledge of the resurrection of our bodies at the Second Coming of the Son of God. That is the meaning of "the first fruits of them that are asleep" in the Golden Text I Corinthians 15:20.

SELL and BUY to better advantage by TELEPHONE

WHEN you have farm products to sell, telephone for price quotations first. It's the safe and profitable policy which more and more farmers are using. To haul stock to market almost means that you will be forced to sell at the price offered because of the inconvenience and expense of returning home with it. When you are planning to make large purchases or to buy special articles, get all the prices and information you need by telephone and you will be able to buy intelligently and economically. Try shopping by telephone. You will be surprised at the many advantages of this method of trading. The trips your telephone saves you to town in a year's time alone pays its small cost many times over. As a business asset, it's one of the most profitable investments you can make.

GARDEN FARMER OF KENTUCKY WOMAN IN BIG RADIO PROGRAM

A Kentucky farm woman, Mrs. Harriet Harting, of McCracken county, speaking on the radio from Chicago in a recent National Farm and Home Hour, told how she grows a garden that yields fresh vegetables during the year and a supply for canning and storing. At the request of the United States Department of Agriculture, Dean Thomas P. Cooper of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, selected Mrs. Harting to tell the nation how she produces a real live-at-home garden in Kentucky.

Mrs. Harting divides her garden into three parts: Extra early, early and late. The extra early garden is worked in the fall, and then as early as possible in the spring planted to peas, potatoes, lettuce, mustard, cabbage, beets, onions and radishes.

The rest of the garden is divided among three kinds of crops: (1) the perennials, such as rhubarb; (2) the vegetables which are to grow all summer and be ready for winter use, such as parsnips, salsify and carrots; and (3) the quicker maturing plants, such as peas, beans, tomatoes and potatoes. When these vegetables are gone, a late fall garden of turnips, tender-green and turnip greens is planted.

In the early part of the garden Mrs. Harting grows peas, beans, potatoes, lima beans, early tomatoes, cabbage, okra, early cucumbers, parsnips, carrots and salsify. Rhubarb is put near the border, where it is least disturbed and yet can be cultivated. Next to the rhubarb, and between the early and late gardens, a space of 10 feet is left for flowers.

The late garden contains beans and tomatoes for canning, beans and sweet potatoes for winter storing, and cucumbers, sweet pepper and hot pepper, and also peanuts, popcorn for winter, and watermelons and muskmelons. By planting green beans every two or three weeks Mrs. Harting has beans all summer until frost and a sufficient supply for canning.

By the time the extra early garden is gone the other vegetables are ready for use throughout the summer. About the last of August or first of September lettuce is sown on the ground used by the extra early garden. This can be covered with canvas during severe weather and thereby made to produce all winter.

In the early garden, where the quick maturing plants were produced, turnips, winter greens and tender-green are sowed for winter use. In this way the Harting family has at least six fresh vegetables from their garden. These are turnips, parsnips, carrots, salsify, lettuce and greens.

Mrs. Harting added winter onions and celery to her list of vegetables this year. Last year she tried three new ones: Salsify, tender-green, and a new variety of English peas.

UNADAPTED VARIETIES CAUSE CLOVER FAILURE

Attempting to grow unadapted varieties is responsible for most red clover failures in Kentucky, is the conclusion reached by Dr. E. N. Fergus, author of a new bulletin of the Experiment Station, University of Kentucky, entitled "An Analysis of Clover Failure in Kentucky." He made an extended study of all possible causes of red clover failure, such as poor soil, diseases, insects, winter-killing, unadapted seed, and the like. He notes that trouble with clover growing developed about the year 1900, which happens to be about the date of the introduction of seed from southern Europe and other countries where the climate is mild. Clover grown from such seed winterkills in all but mild winters in this state, and also is often destroyed by disease.

Dr. Fergus recognizes that a large part of the soils of Kentucky are too poor to grow red clover successfully until they have been limed and fertilized, and states that until such soils are suitably treated clover cannot become a major crop even though adapted strains are sown.

Farmers are advised to use seed from varieties that have been grown successfully in Kentucky for several years. If they cannot obtain such seed, then they should secure seed produced in this state or in regions adjoining Kentucky.

Graves county farmers have asked for demonstrations in sowing their 1932 tobacco crop.

Logan county 4-H Club members sold 19,115 pounds of tobacco for an average of $5.83 a hundred.

Elwood Napier, a Powell county 4-H Club boy, grew 400 pounds of tobacco from a quarter of an acre and sold it for an average of 20 cents a pound.

CLUB BOYS START BREEDING ANGUS

Five Harton county 4-H Club boys have purchased Angus cows with calves at side as foundations for herds of purebred beef cattle. They are George Madden, James Gray, Robert Hayland, Joe Marsh and Joseph Madden. The calves will be fattened for fat cattle show and sale at the Bourbon Stock Yards in Louisville, and the cows kept and breeding herds built up.

The development of breeding herds by farm boys is a part of the 4-H Club educational work of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Under the direction of county agents and field agents from the College, outstanding farm boys are taught the fundamental principles of good livestock breeding.

Forty-five Hereford calves, purchased in Kansas City, Mo., have been distributed to 28 Montgomery county 4-H Club boys and girls. They weighed approximately 500 pounds and cost an average of $37.50 at Mt. Sterling. Montgomery county 4-H Club members also are finishing 15 Angus calves for the fat cattle show and sale at the Bourbon Stock Yards.

Forty-three farmers have secured seed from the Experiment Station.

Pulaski county farmers are milking more cows since the establishment of a milk plant at Somerset.

Pasture improvement and the production of more feed are the major projects in every community program in Elliott county.

Grass and pasture mixtures, legumes, road improvement, gardens, poultry and soil erosion are included in 13 community programs in Rockcastle county.

Flocks fed home-mixed rations made the best record in Christian county egg-laying contest last month.

Who makes your Fire Insurance Rate?

Property owners—individually and collectively—create the conditions which determine the cost of their fire insurance.

There is nothing secret in the making of fire insurance rates. Several major facts enter into the determination of these charges, such as construction, occupancy, the quality of private and public fire protection, exposure from other property and general loss experience.

NUMBER 15

Prominent Walton Man Dies With Pneumonia While At Tampa, Fla.

D. B. WALLACE ANSWERS SUMMONS ON APRIL 8—WAS ACTIVE IN BOONE COUNTY BUSINESS CIRCLES FOR YEARS—ONCE CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Early last Wednesday morning, April 6th, the news reached Boone county of the death of D. B. Wallace, of Walton, which occurred at Tampa, Florida. Pneumonia finally took its toll after an illness of five weeks duration.

The death of Dave Wallace is a loss keenly felt by the entire surrounding country, for he was a man who was very well known and greatly admired by all who had the privilege of his acquaintance. He was one of the finest characters it ever has been our privilege to know. For many years he had been one of Boone county's most progressive and philanthropic citizens.

Funeral services were held at the Walton Methodist church in the presence of a vast throng of relatives and friends and admirers. C. Scott Chambers was in charge of arrangements for interment, which took place in Highland cemetery. A number from Burlington attended the last rites and which number would have been greatly augmented, but for the fact that Circuit Court was in session here.

The Recorder republishes an account of the death of Mr. Wallace from the Gallatin County News, published at Warsaw, Ind. It was Warsaw that Mr. Wallace started on the upward climb in the business world when a young man. The account is as follows:

A Warsaw institution has gone "Dave Wallace" in a dead. After a five weeks siege he fell before the ravages of pneumonia in Tampa, Florida, early Wednesday morning, April 6th.

When a message from the southern city called his son, Bruce Wallace, to his bedside last Sunday it was realized that his condition was serious. And so it proved to be.

Warsaw claimed D. B. Wallace as its own and he felt the same way about Warsaw. It was back in 1888 when Dave Wallace came to Warsaw as a young printer in ill health and poorly "healed" financially. With a handful of type, a small hand press, a house boat for a shop, and an indomitable spirit, he started.

It was not long until he had expanded his meagre equipment to the point where he felt justified in attempting a "dodger" newspaper for Warsaw. And so it was that the old Warsaw Independent was founded. Dave Wallace, in spite of his frail constitution, forced ahead; for he was possessed of a dynamic will, which overshadowed his feeble condition.

His success was instantaneous and constant. He accumulated a tidy fortune after several years and when he finally sold the Independent moved to Walton where he spent the remainder of his days. He engaged in the banking business and was one of the founders of the Equitable Bank and Trust Company. At the time of his death he was a director in the merged institution, the Walton Equitable Bank.

By sagacious and fortunate investments he increased his "tidy" fortune until he became to be regarded as a wealthy man. And so he still was considered at the time he was called from his earthly walks. He had made it a practice in recent years to spend his winters in Florida.

A devout Republican he always was more or less active politically, although he never regarded politics from a mercenary standpoint. He never sought political preferment although his friends at one time honored him by having his name placed on the ballot as a candidate for Congress in the Sixth District, which at that time was overwhelmingly Democratic. However, his popularity in the rural counties caused him to run far ahead of his ticket in the country end of the district.

While engaged in the newspaper business in Warsaw he was active in state editorial circles and was once President of the Kentucky Press Association, a state wide organization of editors and publishers. He was a Mason and an Odd-Fellow and was an active and valued member of both orders.

Mr. Wallace was 73 years old and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Molly Wallace, a son, Bruce Wallace, a brother, J. R. Wallace, Walton newspaperman, and a niece Mrs. Gertrude Gardi, of Newark, Ohio.

LOCAL FARM ATTRACTS

After looking about throughout the wide expanses of the Western hemisphere Mr. Cecil Cobb, of the State of Oregon, finally found a farm that suited him right here in old Boone county. The deal was closed this week by the Renaker and Jones Realty Company for the sale to him of the Dolphie Sebree farm of near Waterloo and possession will be given within 15 days. Mr. Cobb has been living at Ludlow for the past year.

BOONE COUNTY SPELLER TO LOUISVILLE

Miss Louise Klassner, a pupil of the Constance school left with her teachers Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Lents Wednesday morning for Louisville where Miss Klassner will spell in the Courier-Journal State Wide Spelling Bee. Miss Klassner is Boone county's representative as a result of a recent contest held at Burlington.

The party will leave Louisville late Thursday for Frankfort where they will visit historic sites.

CHURCH LEAGUE

WILL OPEN SEASON SATURDAY, APRIL 30—TEN TEAMS CERTAIN TO ENTER COMPETITION WITH PROSPECT OF THREE MORE STARTERS—OFFICERS ELECTED AT MEETING

At a meeting of the representatives of the various Sunday schools in the county at Burlington Monday night an organization for a base ball league was perfected. This is the third year for this league and there are prospects for more teams than ever before. Ten teams are certain and three more possible. The Warsaw team was allowed to enter the league. Officers elected were Rev. Harlow Haas, of Florence, President, and William Anderson, of Hebron, secretary. Each team was allowed one representative on a committee to formulate rules and regulations. A schedule committee also was named to construct a schedule. No definite date was set for the league opening.

The teams certain to enter are Burlington, Hebron, Hopeful, Big Bone, Bellevue, Hughes Chapel, Taylorport, Francesville, Walton and Warsaw.

DAIRYMEN ATTEND CINCINNATI MEETING

Mr. C. L. Hempling, Mr. Emmett Kilgour, Mr. Walter Garnett, Mr. Lehman Go-dridge and Mr. Lloyd McGlasson, members of the Farmers Alliance attended a call meeting of delegates from Ohio, Indiana and other Northern Ky. counties in Cincinnati last Tuesday, April 5th to discuss means of improving the present low prices the dairymen receive on the Cincinnati market for their product.

The present dairy problems have many angles and were discussed long and bitterly throughout the day. We don't know what good was done but we do know that considerable publicity on the position the farmer stands on the present method of distribution was given. The facts as one dairymen expressed it speaks for itself.

Mrs. Mollie Clure, of Cincinnati, spent the week-end with relatives in and near Burlington. Also visited her little great-grand-daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jones are entertaining their son Clifford and bride.

YOUNG WOMEN

The Woman's Democratic Club of Boone county will hold a meeting Saturday April 14th, 2 p. m. (slow time) at Burlington Court House. Ladies we have the vote—so let us try to be intelligent voters. The Woman's State Convention meets April 29th at Lexington. We want to make plans for that.

Young Democratic women, young Democratic ladies married or single, come to Burlington Saturday. Miss Mary Louise Renaker has consented to form a club of young Democrats in Boone county. The other counties have their young women club. So come and let's have a club in Boone county.

JOHN E. SWANGER SPEAKS

Some very bad weather prevented many from taking advantage of the opportunity of hearing the address of the Hon. John E. Swanger, superintendent of the Modern Woodman Sanitarium at Woodmen, Colorado. His subject was the prevention of tuberculosis and was of intense interest to about forty who made their way to the school auditorium to hear him. State Deputy John M. Clifford, of Louisville, also was a speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cotton, Miss Lucille Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Renaker, and Miss Mary Louise Renaker attended the funeral of Adam Conrad at Dry Ridge last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Lamb are remaining in Burlington awaiting the recovery of Mr. Lamb, before returning to their home in Western Kentucky.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

Congressmen can shout themselves hoarse over relief measures, economists can go nutty over new ideas of saving the nation, and politicians can go to the devil; but the real solution to America's ills arrived this week, and neither Congressman, economist, nor politician had anything to do with it! We're referring to the opening of the major league base ball season, and that's more important to Americans right now than all the "palaver" that Congress can deliver working six days a week and every other Sunday!

If anybody brings America out of the depression, it'll be Babe Ruth or Hack Wilson, or John McGraw, and our personal advice to President Hoover is to toss his present cabinet into the ash can, and get a new one composed of Gabby Street, Chick Hays, Babe Herman, and Connie Mack! Right now, Americans have something more important to consider than politics, and the burning question of the hour isn't whether Japan can lick China, but whether New York can lick the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League pennant race!

Prediction as to the outcome of the National League race this year are about as numerous as fence posts, and just about as varied. Everybody has his own ideas on the subject, and he won't be talked out of them, either. Naturally, the Cincinnati Reds are receiving most of the attention in these parts. The Reds are the most puzzling team in the loop, and almost any prediction as to where they will finish is plausible. Some of the experts have picked the Reds to finish last again. That they would rate the Reds no better than last year shows that they haven't even taken the trouble to look the team over. Most of the base ball writers pick Cincinnati for fifth place, and some of them even rate the Reds in the first division. Personally, we look for the team to finish in the first division, and here's why:

The Reds have improved in batting, in catching, and in fielding. The pitching staff is the same, and it was good last year. The only place where the Reds are weaker than in 1931 is at second—maybe. Ernie Lombardi, the new catcher, is one of the best backstops in the league. He is a great improvement over Clyde Sukeforth, who caught last year. He is a hard hitter and a great fielder. The Reds can play either Mickey Heath or Harvey Hendrick at first base. Last year they had only Hendricks. Guenzell will be missed at second, perhaps, but either George Granam or Joe Morasey can play the base. Either can field accurately, and it is very possible that one of the other will develop into a heavy hitter. Durocher remains a fixture at short—undoubtedly one of the best fielders in the circuit. It isn't necessary for him to hit. At third, Gilbert won't hit as hard as did Stripp last year, but will field just as well. And there

SEED LOAN ASSOCIATIONS CLOSE APRIL 30TH

April 30th has been set as the closing date for the receiving of applications for the Federal Seed Loan. The county committee today has received a total of 10 applications for a total of $1082.00.

Boone county is running far below the other Kentucky counties in the applications for loans. This according to County Agent H. R. Forkner is due to the strong financial position of Boone county banks and to the ability of Boone county farmers to meet the present economic situation on a conservative basis.

No farmer will be eligible for a loan if he can secure credit thru his local bank or other credit organizations. A complete mortgage on all crops grown in 1932 must be given. The county committee is composed of Mr. C. L. Cropper, Burlington, Mr. Hubert Conner, Hebron, and Mr. Ben Doane, Walton.

A. L. Nichols is spending several days in his daughter Mrs. Earl Sullivan and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Blocher and Mrs. Emma Balsly, all of Park Hills, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Ida Balsly.

The report from Joe and John Lunch Room last Saturday night was that a record crowd attended the old fashioned dance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Jones were in Covington Saturday appraising the New Fords.

THE REVOLT OF THE TAXPAYERS

From all over the country we hear reports of a rising tide of protest against the high cost of government.

National, State, County, School and Local taxes have grown in the past dozen years until the combined burden is more than most taxpayers can bear even in normal times. And in these times of reduced incomes and poor business the tax burden has become intolerable.

Congress is trying to "balance the budget" by imposing more and higher taxes. Doubtless there will be some show of reducing government expenditures, but so far we have heard very little about those. It seems to us that should be the first point of attack, not the last. This country got along very well for a hundred years and more without trying to regulate everybody's business and teach everybody how to live. We think there are hundreds of millions of dollars literally wasted every year by Federal bureaus which, never would be missed if they were abolished entirely.

The same is true of State governments and, to perhaps even a greater degree, of most county governments. It is characteristic of Americans, and something in which we take pride, that as a people we all want the best of everything. We want the best possible roads, the best possible schools, the most magnificent public buildings, the finest parks, and all that. But haven't we been trying to get these things too fast, without bounting the cost, without finding out first where the money is coming from? We think that is the principal trouble with the United States today.

The inevitable result of this orgy of public spending is to stir up widespread discontent, which may easily result in an actual revolt on the part of taxpayers. Too much of the tax burden is laid upon land and its improvements, not enough upon the individuals, groups and enterprises directly benefitted by specific expenditures of public funds.

What this country needs right now is to cut all governmental expenses squarely in half—Federal, State, County and Local. That might cause some temporary embarrassment, but it would be only temporary. Relieved from half of the tax burden, property of all kinds would earn more for its owners, capital would be freer to go into productive enterprises, men and women would get their jobs back, prosperity would return speedily.

We would like to see some real leader arise who would adopt for his political slogan: "Cut taxes in half!" He could be elected to any office to which he might aspire. In the present temper of the American people.

The Clark County Homemakers' Club is planning to exhibit a model tenant's house.

Sixty-five Shelby county farmers attended a meeting on the farm of W. A. Newton, where methods of handling milk, selection and care of equipment and dairy barn remodeling were discussed.

WE RICH

A young man, who is vice-president of a New York bank, told me that he dined recently at a fashionable resort.

"All the other guests were very rich," he said. "They were older people, many of them retired. They were shaking in their boots. They were afraid there will be a social upheaval and that their money will be taken away."

I told him I thought these people had a right to worry.

"The social order will not be overturned," I said, "nor will people like your friends be stripped of their possessions. But I do believe that when this depression is over, the rich will be poorer and the poor will have a degree of comfort and security that they have never possessed before. And this will be better for everybody."

In saying this, I am taking a position which is contrary to my own selfish interests, for, while I am not and never shall be rich, I have an income that is much above the average. If taxes are higher, mine will go up with the rest.

But shouldn't they? What have I done to deserve as much as I get out of life?

You may answer: "You have worked hard. You have been ambitious and intelligent. Any man who will apply himself in this country can do well."

This is not a complete answer. To be sure, I have worked. But where did I work the hardest? On a farm one summer (I still ache when I think about it). And in Montana in a construction camp. The hours, in each case, were more than twelve a day, and at night we were too weary for anything but bed.

On my farm my income was one dollar a day; in the construction camp it was sixty-five dollars a month.

If I have increased my income it is not because I have worked hard but because I happened to get out of those tough jobs into one that is much easier and much better paid.

If I have used intelligence, it is not greatly to my credit. I happened to have been born into a home of culture. I was sent to college, and my expenses were paid.

Many rich people who are worried for fear they will have to bear a larger burden in the future, have all these advantages, plus the added advantage of inherited wealth. When they grumble they give me a pain.

Surely, we who have had the best luck in this country are going to be wise enough to recognize it and to assume cheerfully our full share of the load.

SKIMMILK HELPS EGG PRODUCTION

Farmers who have skimmilk can reduce the cost of productive eggs by feeding it with cheap home-grown grain.

Tests made at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, and reported in Bulletin No. 260, indicate that corn alone with skimmilk makes a satisfactory laying ration.

A ration made up of 70 per cent corn, 30 per cent oats, and skimmilk, increased production over the corn and skimmilk ration.

Substituting wheat for the oats in this ration resulted in still more eggs, and proved to be the best home-grown ration.

Sour skimmilk and oyster shell were kept before the hens.

Five hundred bushels of certified seed potatoes have been planted in Boone county, where the County Agent is encouraging potato growing.

The Bell county farm and home agents are promoting the growing of gardens among families of the unemployed.

Sunday School LessonHOW SIN BEGINS
Genesis 2:15-17; 3:1-5

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

If ever there was a love nest on earth it should have been when Adam and Eve were habited in the Garden of Eden. Certainly there could be no triangle—love affair which would lead to a divorce court. One of the charming touches that is revealed is the declaration that God came down to walk and talk with them "in the cool of the day." Safeguards were placed about them too.

Character is developed when one has the opportunity of doing either right or wrong but prefers to choose the way of rectitude. We are still free moral agents and have the power of individual choice. We live in a world where no one can continuously have his own way. We are strengthened when we obey the negatives that are for the common good. There was just one prohibition in Eden. Full freedom was given except that there was the fruit of one tree that had to be avoided.

Satan was created as an angel of light but chose to rebel against God. Thereafter he became the enemy of all who would stand with the heavenly Father. The devil sought to reach God through man and began by casting slurs upon the commands of the Almighty. When we stop to argue with the tempter we are on most dangerous grounds. We are wise when we actually run away from temptation. Otherwise we argue against the prohibition and fail to note that each limitation is for our own good. All too soon the lie of the devil was accepted, and personal sin brought its terrible consequences. One sin does not stand alone very long. Soon Adam was also involved and he was a coward when he tried to lay the blame on Eve. We are still and always individually responsible. That very day the dire consequences of sin began and they have continued to this day. "Be sure your sin will find you out." Numbers 32:31.

RABBIT RACKET

LATEST SCHEME

The rabbit raising racket is one of the latest "ruses" offered for the unemployment situation and the agricultural depression. The College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, has been warned by the Department of Agriculture at Washington that organizations operating in southern states are selling rabbits at high prices, and promising to buy back meat or fur, or both.

According to the College, rabbit raising may be made profitable by persons who understand it, but the business is not a way to get rich quick. Investment in breeding stock should be small, until the interested person makes sure that he can profitably raise rabbits on a large scale.

Grapefruit Salad Dressing

1 cup salad oil, 1-3 cup grapefruit juice, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, ½ teaspoon sugar. Mix all ingredients and shake in a covered bottle until thick.

The taste and character of such flavorings as lemon, almond, orange, are accentuated and heightened when combined with a few drops of vanilla.

Frozen Custard

Four eggs, one pint of cream, one pint of milk, half pound of sugar, two ounces of chocolate. Put the milk over the fire in a double boiler; add the chocolate, grated. Beat the eggs and sugar together until light, add them to the hot milk, cook one minute, take from the fire, add the cream, and a teaspoon of vanilla. When cold, freeze. This makes a frozen custard.

Cranberry Juice Cocktail

3 cups water.
1 cup cranberries.
¼ cup sugar.
Pick over and wash cranberries. Add water. Let cranberries cook until they burst, then strain. Next bring juice to boiling point, add sugar, and cook two minutes longer. Then chill and serve ice cold beverage glasses.

It is estimated that 98 per cent of the lambs in Garrard county will be standardized.

BURLINGTON

The Family Garden

EARLY ROOT VEGETABLES, AND SWISS CHARD

(By John B. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

The root crops comprise parsnips, salsify, beets and carrots. As root vegetables they should not be put in extremely rich ground, in the sense that nitrogen makes soil rich, because if they are there is risk of their "growing to top." If manure is used it should be well rotted, or if only fresh manure is to be had, it should be used sparingly; better, it is to withhold fresh manure altogether, and to depend on the fertility that remains in last year's cabbage and greens' part of the garden.

In addition, fertilizer should be used. Although the general fertilizer recommended in earlier articles of this series is acceptable, there may be advantage in using a fertilizer with higher potash content.

The seed bed should be finely and deeply prepared, the former, to cause no difficulty in the germination of the seed, all of which are small, and the latter, to furnish an adequate reservoir of moisture, of which the root crops so largely consist.

The seed should be sown thinly, 3 to the inch, if possible, and deeply enough just to cover them. Because parsnip and salsify seed comes up slowly, it is a good idea to sow a small amount of radish seed in the row to mark it, so that cultivation may be begun when the weeds start. The germinating radishes aid the parsnips and salsify in breaking the crust that may have formed by beating rains. Thinning to a stand of 3 inches for parsnips and 1 inch for beets and carrots should be done as soon as all the seedlings are up.

The long list of varieties contained in the seed catalogues may confuse some gardeners, but this list may be boiled down to the following: Parsnips, Guernsey, salsify, Mammoth Sandwich Island; early beets, Crosby's Egyptian; later beets, Detroit Dark Red, and Edmond's Blood Turnip; carrots, Chantenay.

SWISS CHARD

Swiss Chard is a summer green; it is a member of the beet family, but bred to produce large tops. These are prepared as are any greens, except that they are cooked alone, not with meat. Their flavor resembles that of beet tops, or of very young beets. Swiss Chard is particularly valuable in that it thrives in hot, dry weather during which most of the vegetables fail.

The seed should be sown in the same manner as that of beets. When the seedlings have grown to be 2 or 3 inches tall, they should be thinned to a stand of 12 inches, the plants removed used as greens. The plants that are left develop rapidly, and when from 4 to 6 inches high, the leaves have formed, harvesting may be begun. This is done by removing the outer leaves large enough to be suitable, but the growing heart is left intact. All summer long and even into quite severe autumn weather, new leaves continuously form, making an almost astounding total amount of greens for the season.

The variety is Lucullus.

SUGGESTS NEW WAYS OF PREPARING EGGS

Eggs are plentiful and cheap and should be included in the daily menu, says Miss Florence Imlay, a field agent in home economics for the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Eggs are a good source of iron, which is essential for keeping the blood in good condition. It is difficult to get the required amount of iron, especially during the winter months when there is a limited supply of green foods. Eggs also are a good source of vitamins A, D and G, all of which are necessary for health of both children and adults.

If the family is tired of the usual ways of serving eggs, Miss Imlay suggests the following methods of preparing them:

BAKED EGGS—Break the desired number of eggs in a shallow, greased baking dish and add a few tablespoons of thin cream and salt enough to season. Set this dish in a pan containing hot water and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) until the eggs are set. Just before serving add a few dashes of paprika.

CREAMED EGGS AND MUSHROOMS—Use 2 cups of chicken stock, 4 tablespoons of butter, 4 tablespoons of flour, 1 teaspoon of salt, 6 hard-boiled eggs, 1 cup of string beans, 1/2 of a cup of mushrooms, and 6 slices of toast. Melt the butter in a sauce pan and add the flour and stir until well blended. Add the chicken stock and cook until a consistency of cream. Quarter the eggs, chop the string to the sauce. Serve on toast. The beans and mushrooms, and add all mushrooms may be omitted, if desired.

Pike county meat dealers plan to buy and butcher high quality beef cattle raised in the county.

FIRST DAY OF MAY RURAL LIFE SUNDAY

The first Sunday in May will be known as Rural Life Sunday, and will be observed by special programs in churches in the open country, villages and towns.

The day was established three years ago by the International Association of Agricultural Missions. It is the fifth Sunday after Easter. The announcement says that "Rural Life Sunday finds its roots in the Rogation Days, days set apart by the Christian Church for the purpose of offering special prayers to God for His blessing on the fruits of the soil."

"It is particularly fitting that churches recognize the contributions which rural people have made to the life of the nation," says Fred Boyd of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. "Rural people have always maintained a reverence for religion that has given a pronounced religious background to the development of the United States."

Mr. Boyd has prepared a leaflet that will be of aid to pastors and Sunday school superintendents planning to observe Rural Life Sunday. Copies may be obtained by writing to the College of Agriculture, Lexington.

SHEEP SHOULD BE DIPPED THIS YEAR

Sheep in Kentucky probably have never been more heavily infested with ticks and lice than is the case this year. Most flocks are infested with ticks or lice, or both. The unusually mild winter caused these parasites to multiply more rapidly than would be the case in a normal year.

It has been conservatively estimated that the damage to the wool clip of the State this year as a result of these parasites will average fully a pound per sheep. But this is not the big damage that may result from ticks and lice, as at shearing time these parasites will go from the ewes to the lambs. It is practically impossible to grow out lambs to a prime marketable product when infested by ticks and lice, declares Richard C. Miller, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. This threatened danger to the lamb crop can be prevented by dipping the whole flock soon after shearing. Only reliable dips suitable for the eradication of ticks and lice should be used and directions should be followed explicitly.

Every sheep raiser should have access to a good dipping vat made especially for sheep. Farmers whose flocks are not large enough to justify individual dipping vats will find that community vats serve the purpose. Five farmers for $5 each and one or two days' work can build a concrete dipping vat that will costed that the damage to the last for years.

Allen county farmers are using their small laborer to fertilize vegetables and other crops.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

PRACTICAL POINTERS

There are certain kinds of food that are considered absolutely necessary in maintaining health and strength within the human body; these should be well kept in mind, and never neglected. The humble egg ranks among the first and most important.

The egg in itself, contains the necessary food-elements to set its own vitellus aflame with life, and nourish the embryo chick until it is able to walk, eat and breathe for itself—a most wonderful process; I know of nothing in nature more interesting. Everything needed for the young bird is housed within the egg-shell, for the life-germ awakened by the gentle heat of the mother's body. And those needed things are elemental factors in the process of growth.

How valuable the egg as a food for humanity! An authority from which I derive much that is practical, states that every human being needs one or two eggs daily. The expectant mother certainly should have two eggs daily; even children should have one, at all ages younger than puberty.

I recall a visit from a famous Frenchman, a while after the big war; he ate six eggs at a meal, quite often, when he was in New York. And why not? The egg is an essential food for muscle, nerve and brain. May I admit that, I myself, often eat three eggs, properly prepared—for breakfast.

Eggs and milk in daily ration. Add to these a full glass of orange juice—and you have a trio of values that can't be beat! But one devilled egg just at social dinners, or, one hard-boiled one with lettuce, isn't "eggs" at all. I mean two or three soft eggs daily.

One little orange, on odd mornings—just as well do without. The same with starveling milk; three or four glasses of whole milk daily is what I mean.

COWS PROFITABLE

IN BOYD COUNTY

An average return of $108 per cow above feed cost was obtained last year by the 22 members of the Boyd County Dairy Herd Improvement Association whose records were analyzed by the dairy division of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Records were kept on a total of 314 cows.

The average production per cow was 6,305 pounds of milk and 273 pounds of butterfat. The product per cow was valued at an average of $177, while the average feed cost per cow was $71.

Seven herds averaged more than 300 pounds of butterfat and 34 cows produced more than 350 lbs. each. A cow owned by J. C. McGlothlin topped production with a record of 122,385 pounds of milk and 525 pounds of butterfat.

A 10-cow herd in the association made almost one and a half times as much income above cost of feed as a 20-cow herd. The 10 cows averaged 7,775 pounds of milk and 340 pounds of butterfat, with a total feed cost of $737 and a total income above feed cost of $1,590. The 20-cow herd averaged 3,980 pounds of milk and 170 pounds of butterfat, with a total feed cost of $910 and a total income above feed cost of $1,115.

Sixty-three cows were culled out of herds during the year, because their production was too low to return a profit at present prices of dairy products. More are to be eliminated, as only high producing cows return profits under present conditions.

15,000 TURKEYS

FOR GRANT COUNTY

Grant county farmers are planning to raise 15,000 turkeys this year. Last year 7,018 turkeys were raised on 453 farms in the county, and County Agent J. E. Wilson predicts more than twice as many will be raised this year.

Most of the flocks last year contained 225 to 30 birds, with 90 in the largest one. This year there will be three flocks of 500 to 700 birds each, according to plans, while several farmers will raise 200 birds each, 15 or 20 will have around 100, and 50 to 75 farmers will have flocks of 50 to 75 each.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Hinkel, E. J. Glass and Mrs. M. H. Threlkeld are preparing to raise 500 or more birds each. Mr. Glass will hatch the eggs in an incubator and the others will use turkey hens. Some of the smaller breeders will use chicken hens.

The county agent is recommending the semi-confinement method, which consists of the use of brooder houses and sun-porches. The poult will be turned on range when seven or eight weeks old, fenced lots being used in rotation to avoid disease.

"We are going to raise turkeys by modern methods," says County Agent Wilson, "and when I find a person who is not willing to follow these methods I advise him to stay out before disease puts him out."

Fourteen 4-H Club boys and girls will raise turkeys under the supervision of Mr. Wilson. One club girl last year sold $107 worth of the big birds, while her father received $75 from four acres of tobacco.

A garden planting schedule will be distributed to 1,200 families in Garrard county.

Potato growing is being revived in Morgan county, where at least 20 farmers will grow an acre each.

If you once have a taste of the New NuGrape, you always come back for more. It's just that sort of a flavor—a mysterious something, born of plump Concord grapes and sunshine. There is nothing anywhere near like it, with its bouquet of dew-ripened grapes, and its sparkling, dancing life—as of champagne.

Next to impossible to keep the New NuGrape on ice at home—the family sneaks in for "just another bottle," even when a case is purchased at a time. But since Nature and Science brewed it and brought it to its delightful state of appetizing perfection—you can drink as much as you please as often as you please.

There is no substitute for the New NuGrape. Accept none, for it would only mean disappointment. The genuine is sold everywhere for 5¢.

COUNTY EXTENSION ASSOCIATION ORGANIZED

A Boone County Extension Association was organized at Burlington last Wednesday night, April 9. The purpose of the association is to further and make more efficient the county agricultural extension program of work. Mr. C. A. Mahan, state agent and approximately 25 agricultural leaders of the county were present at the meeting.

County Agent H. R. Forkner outlined the summary of 14 community programs of work planned in fourteen communities of the county and a summary of the county wide program that has been planned for 1932. The major portion of the program included legumes, dairying, fruit and truck crops, poultry, sheep and 4-H club work.

The time allotted for the various projects was as follows: Legumes, 34 days; dairying, 28 days; poultry 22 days; fruit and truck crops, 24 days; farm accounts, 9 days; tobacco, 8 days; 4-H Club work, 95 days; and farm engineering, Federal Seed Loan, Live at Home Program, swine and miscellaneous 31 days.

Mr. C. A. Mahan spoke following the presenting of the above program. He pointed out that there are 1600 farmers in Boone county and that it is impossible to work with the individuals except through organization. The reaching of so large number in a short time must be done thru leaders. These leaders can in turn be kept informed and they in turn can serve as a source of information of information in the community. Those present expressed a unanimous desire to organize a county extension organization and to serve in making the county extension program more effective. A county executive committee composed of nine members were elected to confer from time to time and to serve as county chairmen of the various extension projects. The executive committee is composed of the following members: Dairying, O. R. Russ; Legumes, Frank Rouse; Fruit, Hubert Conner; Truck Crops, Mr. Hubert Dolwick; 4-H Club Work, Mrs. Walter Brown; Poultry, Grant Maddox; Sheep, S. B. Sleet; Farmers' Alliance, C. Linton Hempling; County at Large, member unselected.

"NOW IS THE TIME" TO SPRAY FOR FRUIT

APPLES—

Two most important apple sprays—one just before the blossoms open and the second time three-fourths of the petals have fallen. The material to use is 1 gallon of lime sulfur and 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water.

PEACHES—

The first spray, 1 to 4 days after the blossoms fall and the second ten days after the shucks fall. The material to use is 1 pound of arsenate of lead and 4 pounds of lime to 50 gallons of water.

GRAPES—

Just before the blossoms appear and just after the blossoms fall. Use 2-4-50 Bordeaux mixture and 1½ pounds of arsenate of lead.

SOW LEGUMES

Sow legumes of all pasture mixtures. Your grasses do much better with a good legume mixture.

CULTIVATE

Cultivate only those acres that will return a fair profit. Put the rest in the growing of legume crops or something that will build it up for the time when the farmer's dollar is worth more. The farmer's dollar according to comparative figures was worth in February $.51 in purchasing power.

DOCK AND TRIM LAMBS

Our early lamb crop looks as if it might be a bright spot in farming. Only docked and trimmed lambs in prime condition will average in the highest dollar per hundred.

GARDEN

Plan on the "Live at Home Program." If you have to sell your products on a $.63 per $1.00 market and buy back on a $.21 per $1.00 market buy less and consume more produced on the farm at home until the present ratio changes. Your wife holds the key to part of this situation. Can and preserve foods for next winter.

UNION QUINTEZ DOES WELL

The Union Independent girls basketball team is making a good showing in a tournament now under way at the Covington Y. M. C. A. The Union girls are composed mainly of New Haven high school stars.

They already have defeated such strong teams as the S. O. B. C. and Covington Y. M. C. A. girls by large scores. Sacred Heart held them to a close score 19-13. Their Boone county admiral's should feel proud of this record.

The members of the squad include: Misses Pauline Huey, Patsy Huey, Mary Belle Bristow, Madeline Craddock, Lucile Craddock, Virginia Jones, Shirley Jack, Anna Mae Sleet, Margaret Jane Plummer and Johnny Dickerson.

As we go to press we learn that these fast girls defeated Crescent Springs Tuesday night 46-21 and will play Hebron girls on Friday night. We have not received information as to how Hebron has been faring in the struggle, but their past record would indicate that they have stepped at a fast clip.

W. W. Craddock purchased last week a four-room house from the estate of the late Carrie P. Riddell and plans to move it to a small farm he recently purchased from Charles Maxwell on the Petersburg Pike. The small dwelling was formerly occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Oils Rouse and is located on Jefferson street.

MRS. MARGARET KIRKLEY

On Wednesday, April 13th, Mrs. Margaret Kirkley answered that summons, which will be no refusal. This splendid Christian lady had been a sufferer since last fall when she became very ill, never fully recovering from the effects ago she grew worse and from that of that illness. About six weeks time, she was 70 years old.

Mrs. Kirkley was a native of Boone county, her lineage tracing back to the famous Kirtley ministry in this section so well known to local historians. She was born near Bullittsville church. During her younger days she was a school teacher and had schools at Big Bone and Sand Hill in Boone county, as well as a private school at Carrollton. Numbered among her pupils were Mrs. Emma Brown, of Burlington, and State Senator P. B. Goodridge, and sister, Miss Ella, of Carrollton.

She was a daughter of Rev. J. A. Kirtley, who preached at Big Bone for a half century and at Bullittsville for almost the same length of time. She was married to W. O. Kirtley on November 15, 1889 and is survived by two sons, James Owen, of Phoenix, Arizona, and Robert P., of Petersburg. One sister, Mrs. W. L. Cropper, of Burlington, and two brothers, G. P. Kirtley, of Kansas City, Mo., and J. A. Kirtley, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., also survive.

She was a member of the Petersburg Baptist church and her pastor, Rev. W. T. Dunaway, assisted by Rev. R. H. Turner, conducted the funeral services. C. Scott Chambers had charge of the funeral arrangements.

The writer, if he is any judge, can but say that no more beautiful Christian character ever lived than "Miss Maggie," as her friends affectionately called her.

Taken by The Home News Service
A big parade of peace in commemoration of one of war, celebrating Army Day and the 17. centh anniversary of this Nation's entry into the World War, passed in review before President Hoover, other high Government officials and tens of thousands of citizens. Embellishing Pennsylvania and Constitution avenues with Khaki and scarlet, polished metal and steel glittering in the bright April afternoon, the demonstration ran the gamut of crack veterans soldiers to high school youths who can barely remember the days of the bloody conflagration of which the occasion was so reminiscent.

Drum beats and thousands of tramping feet out of a new but receding, past swept down the Avenue. More than a seventh of a century has gone, and a new generation has arisen since that momentous proclamation which sent 5,000,000 Americans into battle lines and training camps. There were close to 75,000 uniformed marchers in line when the great parade swung away from the Capitol Square. Many of the ranks were filled with men who actually had taken part in the World War. Many were filled with boys who were babies when the regiments of the fighting divisions were crawling through the mud and the mist of the Meuse Valley.

American Legion officials who are attempting to halt the stampede toward full payment of the bonus deserve high commendation. They reflect the true spirit of the veterans who went to France to serve their country. If the rank and file of former soldiers support them in this stand the American Legion will consolidate its reputation for patriotic thinking and constructive action. In spite of the fact that many veterans are in favor of obtaining anything they can get from Uncle Sam, Henry L. Stevens, national commander of the Legion, has taken a definite stand against the bonus grab while the Treasury is in such a depleted condition. His courageous action puts in a precarious situation those veterans in the House who are leading the fight to debase the currency for the benefit of themselves and companions. The bonus drive thus becomes a co-operative project in which lobbyists and spineless congressmen join hands.

Statements of Mr. Stevens that Legion posts with only a few exceptions opposed immediate payment of adjusted compensation certificates, evoked strong expressions from bonus advocates in the House, who contend that the rank and file of the veterans favor the bonus payment. Representative Rankin of Mississippi, as spokesman for the bonus advocates, said that Mr. Stevens "must have been talking in his sleep." On the other hand, Representative Johnson of South Dakota expressed the view that a bonus bill would probably be defeated in the House. Senate leaders fighting the bonus have already said that while a bonus bill, if passed by the House, might pass the Senate, a Presidential veto would be sustained. Senator Harrison, who announced that he opposed the bonus, has since received a large number of telegrams and letters of congratulation.

The controversy over further reductions in the cost of government is at a point where it may swing strongly in the direction of reduction or nothing may be done. If reduction by Congress ends with what Congress already has done, not a great deal will have been accomplished. Some of the reductions made by Congress were, as President Hoover pointed out, rather in the nature of postponements which will have to be made up in the usual manner by "deficiency appropriations" a year from now. The most recent installment of recommendations from the committee of the House working on economy were for items of $2,000,000 or $1,000,000 or less, which are trivial compared to the $200,000,000 which, President Hoover says, can be cut off permanently by thoroughgoing consolidations and reductions of unessential government functions.

Supporters of former Gov. Smith for the Democratic nomination for President professed to see a distinct victory in the action of the committee of arrangements for the national convention in voting to "commend" J. H. Shouse, national executive chairman, for permanent chairman of the convention. Mr. Shouse was the professed champion of the Smith supporters and John J. Edgar, national executive chairman, for temporary chairman.

Mr. Smith's friends here declared that the permanent chairmanship was a much more important office and the choice of Mr. Shouse for the permanent post more than offset the selection of Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, the Roosevelt candidate for temporary chairman. The selection of a permanent chairman has yet to come before the national committee, in which the Roosevelt managers expect the Governor's friends to be in the majority, and the final choice will be made by the delegates to the convention, in which the Roosevelt faction also expects to be in the majority.

With April's arrival, Gov. Roosevelt's contest for the Democratic presidential nomination enters upon a new and critical phase. The political winds of March were kind to his candidacy. His boom prospered in Maine and Iowa. The contest in the Hawkeye State eliminated that potentially formidable opponent, "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, so far as the Middle West is concerned. Mr. Roosevelt not only contrived 129 delegates in March but was heartened by the withdrawal of Senator Robinson as Arkansas' favorite son, which followed the retirement of Senators Hull, of Tennessee, and Barkley, of Kentucky, thus apparently the collapse of menacing combination.

Against the background of Secretary Mills' criticism the unscientific nature of the revenue measure hastily thrown together in the House becomes clearly apparent. Though he made the point in its favor that it would raise $1,031,000,000 toward balancing next year's budget, a very important consideration, he pointed out convincingly wherein certain of its provisions would at the same time seriously retard business recovery. Since the whole object of tax revision is by maintaining the credit of the United States, to facilitate business recovery, the conflict inherent in the crazy quilt of levies dumped into the Senate's lap is obvious.

Mr. Mills singled out for special objection the stock transfer tax, the corporation income tax, the tax on dividends, the erasure of the net loss provision of the present revenue law and the high estate tax rates. Items of this sort, he made plain, constituted a direct discouragement to business enterprise, and their cumulative effect, magnified by the depressing influence of the depression, would be very great. "What we want to accomplish above all else at the present time," he said, "is to break down the vicious circle of deflation of credit, industrial stagnation, falling prices and loss of purchasing power. To put men to work capital must go to work. Credit must be sought and freely offered."

Passage Of Philippine Bill Casts An Ominous Shadow

(BY FRED HOLMES)
Washington Cor. for the Boone Co. Recorder

Congress started out last December with a few spasms which rapidly developed into violent convulsions. Neither start nor development was altogether unexpected. Most of us were both pleased and surprised when Dr. Garner checked the peroxysms. We scarcely dared to hope that the relief might be permanent. Past performances supported doubts. Our doubts were confirmed. Congress reverted to form.

The passage of the Hare Philippine bill in the House of Representatives, by a vote of 306 to 47, is an event which casts such an ominous shadow upon our representative institutions that the immediate issue, the fate of the Philippine Islands becomes a matter of less significance than America's good name. The 306 votes cast in favor of sentencing the Philippines to eight years of political turmoil and then to economic ruin, if not to extinction, were representative of no element in this country whose influence the members of the lower house could honorably take into account in forming an opinion upon the welfare of the Filipino or the best interests and obligations of the United States.

Before consideration of the measures providing independence of the Philippines is completed, one may hope that there will be some measure of single-minded thought on what is best for the Philippines. The manner in which the House passed the Hare Independence bill is no less discreditable than the manner in which the House has for years refused to pay serious attention to the Philippines' claims. Some honest friends of freedom were among the huge majority which voted for the Hare bill. But it is evident that the great vote was rolled up, and cast with a minimum of debate, for the same selfish reasons that long dictated negligence toward pleas for independence. Powerful economic groups acted on the promise of great profit in keeping the Filipino under the flag.

The House of Representatives does not help the United States or the Philippines by passing an illusory Philippine Independence bill. It is difficult enough to promote the slow process of independence, without indulging in false hopes. Part of the large vote in the House was cast for the selfish interests of Americans, and not for the sake of satisfying the aspirations of the Philippines for independence. Some agricultural interests in the United States are anxious to shake off Philippine competition, and these interests take no account of the larger American question of responsibility or the island question of safety after independence has been granted.

The bill is a flimsy patchwork of half-baked ideas. It provides for the establishment of an autonomous Philippine Commonwealth which at the end of eight years would automatically be proclaimed an independent nation—imports and immigration to be progressively reduced until the happy day when the archipelago would be put on the status of a foreign Power. The "forty minutes to found a nation," after which the House voted 306 to 47 for the bill, constituted a travesty pure and simple.

Fortunately, the passage of the Hare bill, even with such an impressive majority, is not the end of the story, nor is it anywhere near it. The House of Representatives, stamped by a Socialist in dealing with the sales tax, already stood discredited in the sight of every intelligent American. It has yet to recover its equilibrium or its self-respect. Its vote on the Hare bill simply reflects the same spirit of demoralization. But it has not jettisoned the Philippines. The Senate, the President and, finally, a public opinion which, though slow in action, knows how to deal drastically with a betrayal of confidence when aroused, have yet to be reckoned with; and to doubt the final issue is about to doubt both the intelligence and the integrity of the American people.

This promise of independence after eight years was made in full disregard of the warning against it issued by Secretary Stimson. As himself a former Governor General of the Philippines, and now spokesman for the policy of the Administration, his objections were of a kind not to be lightly tossed aside by those whose knowledge of the subject is as nothing compared with his. Mr. Stimson does not repudiate the pledges of President after President, and Congress after Congress, to grant self-government to the Philippines when they have shown themselves to be fit for it. He still hopes and believes that this time will come. But why specify eight years? The progress which Secretary Stimson dwells upon may so speed up that it would be safe to set up an independent Philippine Government before 3 years have passed. On the other hand, if divisions and instability and inefficiency become more marked in the islands, they might reasonably be required to wait longer. The term of eight years was arbitrarily fixed. So far as one can see, it might just as well have been six years or ten.

The votes were cast in open defiance of public opinion as expressed through the press of every quarter of this country. They were cast in contempt of the safest and most conscientious Filipino opinion, as voiced in Mr. Vicente Villamin's devastating comment on the bill. And they were cast in utter disregard of the testimony of the most competent and experienced government servants whom the nation has employed to study the Philippine problem. Secretary Hurley's thoroughly sound and sincere recommendations, which have been available to every member of Congress for many weeks, carried no weight whatever with these 306 alleged representatives of the American people; while Secretary Stimson's most impassioned appeal, read to the men who voted for this bill, was heard with an indifference which is evidence of a thoroughly cynical irresponsibility in each and all of them.

This callousness to anything other than the preservation of jobs and compensation long has been disgusting. It is becoming nauseating.

GOOD HORSES AND GOOD MEN

Citizens of the Blue Grass country are prepared to accept as fundamental truth Will Rogers' comment on the death of Phar Lap, "that you never saw a good horse grow where a good man didn't grow."

"There are just two races in Kentucky," a line in the old melodrama Lena Rivers says, "the human race and the horse race."

And they both reach a high degree of excellence in the Blue Grass, we modestly add.

But seriously, there is a lot in Will Rogers' remark. The development of a good horse, a thoroughbred, with courage, speed and stamina, would be possible only with the devoted care and patience that comes with high ideals and high intelligence. The true Kentuckian dreams of the greatest in horse flesh and will be satisfied with nothing less. He inspires the horse, and in turn the horse inspires him, to insistence upon the masterpiece in flesh and blood, the finest heart and the finest muscles that breeding and training can produce. That perhaps explains why Kentucky, in proportion to its numbers, has produced so many champions, both of the human race and the horse race.—Lexington Herald.

CAPTAIN JOE BLACKBURN (Lexington Herald)

Announcement that the new bridge over the Kentucky river at Tyrone will be named in honor of Capt. Joseph Clay Stiles Blackburn revives memory of one of the most popular political figures that played a great part in the drama of his day.

Representatives of a family that had helped in the founding and building of Kentucky, Joe Blackburn entered the Confederate Army when but little more than a lad. Gifted with a most pleasing personality, a resonant voice and an active and alert mind, soon after the declaration of peace between the North and South Captain Blackburn sought political preferment.

As we recall, he succeeded James B. Beck in the lower house of congress when Mr. Beck was elected to the senate. There was no member of the house who took a more prominent and in many ways a more effective part in the defense of the South than did Captain Blackburn. He crossed swords with the champions of the Republican party who waved the bloody shirt as an excuse for the continuation of the horrors of reconstruction and proved himself the full equal in and many cases the superior of Blaine, Garfield, Butler and the other Republican fire-eaters.

Better Breakfasts

THE size of a meal is no more the measure of its importance than is the size of a man. It's what the man and the meal accomplish that count. Take breakfast, for instance. It's probably the smallest meal of the day, but in some ways it's the most important. It has to keep the family going until noon and the morning is the big part of the day, whether one spends it at school, in an office or shop, or attending to household tasks.

A Corking Breakfast

Baked Apples and Peaches
Omelet Scrambled Eggs
Broiled Bananas Wrapped in Bacon
Toast Coffee

Poached Apples and Peaches: Core and pare three baking apples, cut in halves. Lay in baking dish, cut side up. Open one No. 2 can halved peaches, place half-peach on each apple. Put butter in each peach half, using two tablespoons of it. Add to peach syrup one and one-fourth cups water and two-thirds cup sugar, and bring to boiling. Pour around fruit, bake in moderate oven, 375°, forty-five minutes to an hour, until apples are tender, basting occasionally. Make day before and serve cold with the syrup or with cream, too. Recipe serves six. Seven to nine half-peaches are in No. 2 can, depending on their size.

There were no Democratic representatives from the states that had joined the Confederacy and, therefore, the Democrats from Kentucky and the other states that were admitted to congress—Joe Blackburn, Proctor Knott, Sunset Cox, Dan Voorhies—had to lead the fight of a hopeless minority and bear the brunt of the vicious and venomous attacks of the Republican spokesmen.

And well did the Kentuckians—Blackburn, Knott and their confederates in the house and Beck in the senate—acquit themselves.

Elected to the senate upon the death of Senator Beck, Captain Blackburn found himself somewhat circumscribed by the greater dignity and the more rigid decorum of the Senate and did not maintain the national reputation that he had won as the Sir Rupert of the lower house.

In the distressing days that preceded and followed the assassination of Governor Goebel, Captain Blackburn failed to maintain his hold on the Democracy of his state and fell between the upper and the nether millstones, so his political ambition and prestige were ground to pieces by the friction between the warring factions of the party in Kentucky.

He was appointed to federal office, as we recall, by President McKinley, though it may have been by President Roosevelt, and served in that semi-retirement until his death.

The day for such type of oratory, for such quality of leadership as Senator Blackburn exemplified seems to have passed. But it is well that there should be commemoration of his most notable service in the desperate fight to rescue the South from the horrors of reconstruction and restore the South and the Democratic party to national quality.

Rich Customer Awaits Invitation To Spend Millions In Old Kentucky

Indian Lake On Paducah-Louisville Highway

A very wealthy gentleman is waiting for an invitation to visit Kentucky. He wants to bring along his wife and children, get acquainted with us, the other, look at our mountains, rivers and parks, and he is itching to spend a large amount of genuine cash money while he is here.

This gentleman is Mr. American Tourist. He is enormously rich. He goes places and does things, and is well worth cultivating. Florida, California, Arizona, New Mexico, New England, the Northwest, and the Canadian provinces of Ontario and Quebec know him well and smile contentedly every time his name is mentioned. Their contentment is readily explained. He has helped a lot to make them prosperous.

Take the province of Quebec, for example. The Ministry of Highways reports that 1,261,000 members of the American Tourist family spent more than $25,000,000 in that province during the summer of 1931. For the province of Ontario the Ministry of Highways reports that 1,644,000 members of the same family spent more than $125,000,000 in a similar period. For the most part Mr. Tourist and his family have never been to Kentucky. They have heard more or less vaguely about us for a good many years. They've gone sentimental when the band played "My Old Kentucky Home." They have always thought they'd kind of like to come and see us because they hear we're hospitable, and unspoiled, and all that.

But we Kentuckians, generally speaking, have failed to realize that we ought to let the world know what we have to show Mr. Tourist and his family—something about our mountains, our canyoned rivers, our historic places, our parks and our fine highway system.

Judge Huston Quin, managing director of the Kentucky Progress Commission, recently stated, after a thoroughgoing study of the volume of tourist business in the various states and Canadian provinces:

"It rather stuns the people of Kentucky to tell them that there is an annual gift of $240,000,000 awaiting them. Naturally they are anxious to learn of this public benefactor who wants to present us the equivalent of $2,000,000 per year per county to Kentucky. The answer is Mr. American Tourist."

To get the rich Mr. Tourist's patronage, Kentucky needs to advertise her wares. She needs first to sell Kentucky to Kentuckians with a newspaper advertising campaign in the State press. And secondly, she needs to sell Kentucky to the world. The necessary expenditure for this publicity will be many times repaid to every section of the State. The time is ripe to start the movement.

Hemphill chairman of the Hebron local opened the meeting by explaining the purposes of the organization and the reasons for a strong farmers organization at the present time.

A vote of local farmers was taken and sentiment was for the organization of a local in the New Haven territory. Mr. S. B. Sleet was nominated and elected chairman and Mr. J. P. Cleek was elected secretary-treasurer. Friday night of this week, 7:30 p. m., at New Haven school was set as the date for the next meeting of the organization. Saturday evening, April 9th was the occasion of the marriage of Mr. Elmer Reeves and Miss Ella Mae Hays. The ceremony was performed at the home of Rev. C. E. Brown, of Walton, at 8 o'clock P. M. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Reeves, of the Constance neighborhood, while the bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Hays, of near Hebron. The many friends of this young couple extend to them their best wishes for a long life of happiness and prosperity.

VERONA SCHOOL NOTES

Several have been absent from school the past two weeks, due to the flu epidemic. Some members of the faculty expect to attend the K. E. A. session at Louisville this week.

Tandy Ellis will give the commencement address. Mr. Ellis is well known in the United States and everyone is looking forward to this occasion.

Miss Betty Jo Weaver's room entertained in Chapel last Wednesday. Mr. Harrison has charge this week.

The number that represented Verona at the County Tournament was seven. Thirteen points were won by the pupils.

Madelyn Vest, freshman, won a first place in the scholastic contest held recently in George Washington Memorial in Hi School. English was the subject she majored in. The school is highly pleased by the outcome of her work this year.

is always Andy High to step into the game at the "hot" corner. In the outfield, Hebronn returns to left field. He helped St. Louis win the world series last fall. He is the most dependable player on the club, and a fine batsman. Babe Herman cannot beat him but adds world's on punch to the club's hitting while Elmer Douthit or Crabtree can play the other garden. The real secret back of the Reds' improvement for 1932 is a reserve strength. That's something that some of the experts haven't figured at all.

The Cincinnati Reds play the Pittsburgh Pirates at Redland Field, Saturday and Sunday, April 16 and 17, and by that time the fans will have had some idea as to how the clubs will run, at least during the early months of the season. It looks as if St. Louis and New York will be the real contenders. Brooklyn is well liked, but the Reds stack up about as well as the Dodgers, and appear to be superior to Chicago, Pittsburgh, Boston, and Philadelphia.

The strangely sudden death of the great Australian race horse, Phar Lap, will be written down as one of the most sensational events in many years on the American track. Phar Lap, considered by many as the most outstanding horse in the world, died of poisoning last week at Menlo Park, California. Phar Lap had just won the $50,000 Agua Caliente Handicap, and was resting on a ranch prior to resuming appearances at other tracks. It was believed that Phar Lap might have been poisoned by pest spray used on trees at the ranch, but this theory was blasted after an investigation. Federal officers and chemists reported that the horse's stomach was highly inflamed, indicating poisoning. The belief that a deliberate attempt was made to kill Phar Lap, is held in some quarters. This idea is borne out by several occurrences in the past. Shortly before Phar Lap was shipped from Australia, the racer was shot at from an automobile. The attempted killers were not apprehended. Later, in this country, Phar Lap was almost run down by an automobile, the occupants of which escaped without detection.

Ernie Lombardi of the Cincinnati Reds is rapidly becoming the most popular player on the team. The huge catcher has been hitting the old apple all over the lot, and that's what fans like to see. Officials of the Cincinnati Club were a little worried at first as to whether Lombardi could reach the Redland Field fences with his drives, but there is no doubt of that now. Lombardi bounces 'em off the walls with comparative ease, and every time he does so further vindicates the judgment of President Sidney Weil in securing his services.

If you remember, there was some talk last year about the supposed reluctance of President Weil to build up the Red ball club. Some of the unthinking fans actually believed that Weil was happy to see his team out of the race! As a matter of fact, a good ball club can't be manufactured overnight, and during all that time, Weil was laying plans for the future, taking a few raspberries from impatient fans in the meantime. Weil's policy of careful building appears to be on the verge of proving its merits, and any success that the club may have will be a personal triumph for the popular Cincinnati.

Well, himself, refuses to be too optimistic. In an interview with the writer last week, Weil pointed out that the Reds haven't "arrived" yet, by any means, and that the work of reconstruction will continue until they do. One thing, is certain, Weil's sweeping changes in the club this year have been, without exception, among the most popular moves ever made by any Red management.

The United States will be well represented in the Davis Cup tennis championships this year. Four of America's most promising youngsters will play under the Stars and Stripes. They are Elsworth Vines, Francis X. Shields, John Van Ryn, and William Allison. Geo. Lott, who was originally scheduled to play on the team, announced his intention to withdraw from competition for the season. Tennis fans are puzzled by Lott's action, because the star did not say that he would retire for all time, but simply for this one due to the press of business. It was always our impression that these expert tennis players had only one business—tennis!

Golf stars in the Kentucky, Indiana, and Southern Ohio areas had better get ready for the qualifying for the National Open Championship. It's been a long time since any golfer from this part of the country has made a name for himself in this tournament. The U. S.

G. A. has selected the Hyde Park Golf and Country Club in Cincinnati as the scene for the district qualifying. Monday, June 6. Qualifying will cover 36 holes of medal play, the five lowest scores to represent this district in the Open. Additional information concerning the qualifying round can be had by writing to BEHIND THE NEWS, Press Interpretative Services, 615 Maple Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Burlington P. T. A. will meet at the school Auditorium Friday the 15th at 3:30 p. m. Important business to attend to. All members please come.

ANNA HUEY, Publicity Chairman.

The New Haven Independent Girls Basket Ball Team made a very excellent showing in the "Y" Tournament at Covington, defeating S. Q. B. C. 50 to 25 and Sacred Heart 19 to 9, and will play Crescent Springs today.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST At Constance

Now that we have passed the Easter season and are approaching the more beautiful days of summer, we ought not neglect the Lord's table nor regular worship in His house. Our Bible School attendance has been increasing almost regularly since the first of January. Yesterday (April 10th) we had 62 in attendance. On April 17 we hope to have at least 75 people present at the Bible School service. If you do not attend services anywhere we want you to feel that we are wanted in our services. We begin Bible School at 10:00 o'clock and dismiss at 11:45. This is done in order that you may attend the entire service and still have time to prepare dinner for company or drive some distance before dinner.

On Friday evening the Junior choir practices at 7:30. The church night service begins at 8:00, and the adult choir rehearses immediately following the other service. We would like to have all the children in Constance in the Junior Choir. On April 17 the young people will have a part in the evening service. If you heard these young people on Easter Sunday evening, I know you will want to hear them again and tell your friends about it. There will be a baptismal service at 2:30 p. m., Sunday April 17. WE HAVE A WELCOME FOR YOU

On account of K. E. A. being held at Louisville on Thursday and Friday of this week, school will be dismissed these days. Teachers from B. H. S. who will attend it are Prof. E. E. Kirkwood, Prof. Don McMillan and Miss Mildred Anderson.

REPORT OF RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE FOR MARCH 1933

The children in the grades of the Burlington school were given physical inspection during March. Twenty-eight were found to have had some defects corrected since last seen.

Health talks were made to the High School students, stressing the importance of Health Practices in order to insure their physical safety against those things that handicap their ability to fill well life's duties and obligations.

Four children were taken to the Children's Hospital for operations and treatments during the month, and one adult was taken to a specialist for advice.

The mothers of the children were also taken with them. There is no better opportunity to do health teaching than on these occasions when I take mothers with their children on these trips, they get so much value by the process of going through the Clinic, with its routine of complete physical examination which is given by very interested child specialists.

Then I find the trip in is a splendid time to talk the importance of Health, and the ride back is a time of explaining to the mothers the procedures of the Clinic and answering as best I can the many questions coming to her, because of all she has seen and been told.

Much interest is being shown in our two Home Hygiene Classes in our New Haven School. Demonstration classes in Home Nursing methods have been held at the Home of Mrs. Joseph Huey.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

Although the Tuesday and Friday meetings weren't held at the Mission during the Hebron Revival workmen opened the Mission doors and labored with paint brushes to make a somewhat dreary interior more beautiful.

There is always a certain something in the Springtime air which makes us want to begin housecleaning.

Would it not greatly profit us if we had a "Spiritual Housecleaning" not only during the Springtime but also in the other seasons of the year?

Visit our Sunday School, Felts. The time is 3:45. In the adult class you will find Mr. J. Clayton, a competent as well as an interesting teacher.

The Sunday School as a whole wishes to create a new interest in the "Old Testament" by studying more about the heroes we find there.

Last Sunday evening everyone enjoyed Bro. Bishop's message, so we were glad to have Bro. Tucker, Sister Tucker and Sister Reed with us.

Friday night could well have been called a "Home Coming" for Bro. Joe Hillison was back with us.

Smiles of greeting were also extended to Bro. Joe Klaerner, who has been absent, due to extra work, and the talk which he gave was heartily appreciated.

We wonder if Mr. Rodamer would not have called the talk which he gave "The Value of Right Thoughts" for that was the impression which he left with us.

In fact everyone seemed to have something interesting to read or talk about, so there were no dull moments.

Regular preaching services each Sunday evening at 7:45.

We will have a "Rally Day" Sunday School Service, Sunday April 17th. You are cordially invited to attend this service.

GUNPOWDER

L. H. Busby is somewhat disabled with a case of rheumatism.

Mr. Wm. Hagedorn and wife, of Erlanger, were in our burg last Sunday afternoon and made this scribe a brief call.

Earl Waters, one of our hustling young farmers, will operate the J. O. Richards farm this year. He began work last week.

L. C. Acra was a business visitor to our burg on Monday of last week. A thief who is operating along our highway, has stolen four milk cans from N. A. Zimmerman, besides there are several others who have had their cans stolen.

Mrs. K. Tanner is the first in this neck of the woods to get done plowing.

UNION

Miss Nannie P. Burkett and Master Roy Burkett had an enjoyable end of the week in Cincinnati the guests of Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Handley.

Attorney Ben H. Riley has recovered from a protracted flu seizure to the delight of his many friends.

Mrs. Chas. Hedges entertained at dinner Wednesday Mrs. Prichard Felthaus and Mr. Wm. Felthaus of Erlanger.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bloss, of Ludlow, were mid-week guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warner Senour.

There will be services at the Baptist church Sunday April 17th, morning service at 11 o'clock, evening at 7. A cordial invitation is extended the community to attend.

Mrs. James Addison Huey is home from a two week's visit in Louisville with her daughter Mrs. John O. Taylor and Mr. Taylor.

Master Alan Holtzworth and Miss Buenta Holtzworth are with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Warner Senour, while Mr. and Mrs. Andy Holtzworth are getting settled in their new home in Latonia.

Any one needing a kitchen range would do well to look at the 1930 gray enameled Home Comfort being offered for sale by W. H. Smith.

Mrs. Sallie Kennedy Hicks spent the week-end in Owenton with the Geo. Vallandigham's.

It is regrettable to the large circle of friends of J. L. Frazier to know that he remains gravely ill at the family residence.

While driving north thru Union Sunday night J. C. Bristow's car was struck and all but demolished by an Onioan. Mr. Bristow escaped injury entirely.

Chief among the prominent speakers who will address the meeting are Senator Barkley, recently selected as the keynote of the National convention in Chicago, who will be introduced by Mrs. H. K. Bourne, of Newcastle.

It will be a rare privilege to hear such a galaxy of prominent and able speakers and one that no woman should forego. All Boone county Democratic women are urged to attend this meeting.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

Last Friday April 22, the B. H. S. base ball team went to Petersburg, for their second game of the season. After a good wallop from the Hebron boys the week before they decided to take it out on Petersburg by defeating them with a score of 16 to 5. Ryle the tall pitcher for B. H. S. after allowing Hebron to make 16 runs out of him last week decided to check up from now on and start it out good by giving Petersburg six hits and striking out 14 batters.

R. Bradburn, who is always willing to take a part in anything the Petersburg High School goes into, was on the mound for Petersburg, but he allowed Burlington 17 hits and struck out six men, but all of the fault does not go to Bradburn for losing the game as his teammates made several errors. Ralph Maurer the midget for B. H. S. was at bat six times and got four hits that being better than the big leaguers are doing this early in the season. Ogden, Hensley and Sebree were walloping the ball all over the field, Ogden making two three baggers, Hensley one three bagger and Sebree one two bagger. The team as a whole has made a big improvement since the opening game at Hebron, and from now on they are out to fight. You will get a chance to see them perform as they play Hebron at Burlington Friday afternoon April 29th.

The elbaney plaque with the bust of George Washington arrived in B. H. S. Thursday. It is given by the Herf-Jones Ring Co. as a present to the classes of 32, 34 and 35 promising to buy the B. H. S. rings from the company. It now has a prominent place in the office and library of B. H. S.

The county Scholarship Trophy won by Burlington at New Haven, was placed among the other trophies at B. H. S. Thursday. This trophy was donated by the Boone County Recorder. It is a 12-inch silver loving cup with two handles on it.

Tennis has been taken over at B. H. S. by the girls and will start playing as soon as the court can be arranged. The net was purchased the first of the year.

CORNCRACKERS PICNIC

The Cornercracker 4-H Club of Constance entertained practically the entire Constance school Friday afternoon with a picnic. The picnic was the sixth annual spring picnic of the club. After making a four mile hike the picnicers all lined up in front of Chas. Prabel's cold drink establishment and were served cold drinks and ice cream.

The club also celebrated the school's winning the Peoples Deposit Bank's trophy, a beautiful loving cup for winning first place in the recent Boone County Tournament held at New Haven. The school has won first place in scholarship events for five consecutive years.

Beulah Reeves, Club Secy.

NORRICH CHAMPIONS 4-H CLUB

The Norrich Champions 4-H Club of Hebron met Monday, April 25th. There was an attendance of twenty-two members and three leaders. All the different project groups reported what they had done. A nice program was put on. Woodford Crigler and Allen Kenyon had a good demonstration on Clean Chicks. We adjourned by repeating the club pledge.

HARVEST HOME

BASE BALL CLUB TO MAKE DEBUT SUNDAY AFTERNOON—TEAM IS COMPOSED OF CRACK BOONE COUNTY PLAYERS—POSITIONS ON TEAM STILL OPEN

The Harvest Home base ball club, which will represent Boone County in the Northern Kentucky A. A. next Sunday, will open the season this Sunday at their park near Limaburg with the strong Latonia Merchants as their opponents.

The management has gone to considerable expense to equip and organize this club and to lay out and place in condition their new playing field near the well known Harvest Home Grounds.

The entire line-up has not yet been decided upon, but it is the desire of the management to line-up the strongest team from Boone-co. players. It is urgently requested that Boone county players show-up at the park next Sunday before the game for practice and an opportunity will be given them to make good.

Joe Braun, Hebron star, has been signed up as one of the twirlers, while "Peck" Shearer will handle the bulk of the receiving. This is a fine battery and one or two more pitchers will be added soon. The team is said to be in urgent need of a heavy hitting out fielder.

FARMERS SHOULD

BALANCE OPERATIONS

Boone county farmers should balance their farm operations so that that which is sold from the farm was produced on the farm according to County Agent M. R. Foraker. Such an important subject should not be attempted in a short news article but when we consider that the farmer's dollar is worth only 51 cents we can not carry on a money exchange.

A good farmer in 1932 will more than likely prove to be one who will so organize his farm that there will be an abundant supply of feed produced for all livestock.

This abundant supply should be such that the stock produced for the market will be full fed. Underfed stock means inefficient production. Cull closely, feed well and produce a quality product.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Olive, of Louisville, were Monday afternoon callers at the Recorder office. Mr. and Mrs. Olive are relatives of W. H. Ward, of the Recorder printing force.

Mrs. B. E. Aylor spent last Friday afternoon with Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick.

After a recess of four days Judge J. C. Vallandigham re-convened Circuit Court here last Friday morning for the purpose of entering closing orders for the April term.

R. E. Berkshire and family enjoyed a week-end visit with B. H. Berkshire and family at Petersburg.

Prof. and Mrs. Lentz, of Constance school, were in Burlington last Friday afternoon and obtained the trophy awarded the Constance school for scholarship at the recent tournament at New Haven. Mr. and Mrs. Lentz will start immediately after the close of their school term upon a trip across the continent by motor, returning in time for the fall session to begin.

This will be the first summer in 11 years that Mr. Lentz has not attended school.

Ambrose Easton, of Price pike, near Florence, was a caller at the Recorder office Saturday afternoon and left his advertisement for his stallion, Matri, which is well known throughout this section. Mr. Easton is a capable horseman and is handling a number of racers for prominent owners this spring. He makes daily trips to the Latonia track, where several of his charges are in training.

REPUBLICANS

ENDORSE ROOVER ADMINISTRATION AT COUNTY MEETING SATURDAY AFTERNOON—INSTRUCT DELEGATION TO CAST VOTES FOR ROOVER AND CURTIS AT LOUISVILLE

The county mass meeting of Boone county Republicans was attended by a good sized crowd last Saturday afternoon. A. R. Edwards, chairman of the county Executive Committee, presided.

Those present first voted on endorsement of the Hoover administration and instructed the Boone county delegation to vote as a unit for the instruction of the State delegation for President Hoover and Vice-President Curtis as nominees of the party at the National convention.

No certain delegates to the State convention were elected, but privilege to attend the convention and vote on all questions with the county delegation was accorded to all who might care to attend.

The State convention is being held in Louisville on Wednesday of this week.

A number of Boone county 4-H clubs are training farm practice and home practice demonstration teams which will compete in the county contests at Burlington on Saturday, May 14th. The girls 4-H sewing club will also hold a style show contest on the above date.

UNION GIRLS

MEET DEFEAT IN FINALS AT COVINGTON AFTER GOING THRU ENTIRE TOURNAMENT SCHEDULE WITH ONLY ONE DEFEAT—HAD BEATEN FIVE WHICH WON TROPHY

The fast Union Independent girls basket ball team was defeated in the finals of the Northern Kentucky tournament Tuesday night, when the Covington Y. girls eliminated them by a score of 20 to 15.

The Union girls had won every game they had played in the tournament except one before the finals. The rules of the tournament stipulated that two defeats were required to eliminate a contender.

Union lost to the Covington Y., but retaliated by handing them their only defeat of the tourney.

So it was that the Union and Covington teams, with only one defeat each, were hooked up in the finals.

The Covington Y. M. C. A. girls will play the Union team in the New Haven gym. on Saturday night of this week.

CLOSING DATE FARMERS SEED LOANS

April the 30th is the closing date for filing applications by farmers for the Federal Seed Loans for this year according to County Agent H. R. Foraker. All farmers who must file applications must do so on or before Saturday of this week.

All applications for loans must be applied for thru the county seed loan committee composed of C. L. Cropper, Burlington, Hubert Conner, Hebron and Ben Doane, Walton. Limited amounts may be borrowed for seed, fertilizer, spray materials and general crops production thru the giving of an absolute mortgage on all crops produced by the borrowers during 1932.

Boone county friends of Mrs. Lillie Whitlock will be deeply sorry to learn of her death in Covington last week. She had been making her home with Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Crisler in that city. She was the widow of the late Al Whitlock, who was one of the best known men in Boone county before his death. Her remains were interred in the Hebron cemetery.

Prof. W. R. Davis, of Florence, was a visitor to Burlington Wednesday afternoon.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

Whoever the bird was who first remarked that "you can't keep a good man down," must have been reading about the Cincinnati Reds of 1932. No other expression so characterizes the new spirit at Redland Field this year, for every single, solitary player on the club really and truly feels that the Reds, eighth in 1931, are going to finish at, or near the top of the National League pennant race this summer!

The experts around the circuit will tell you that that spirit is probably the most remarkable thing about the Reds. Last year the fans jeered a team that lacked nerve and courage, a team that didn't care enough about playing good base ball to even make a try. The loss of games was tough enough for the fans to swallow, but the total lack of spirit on the club was the thing that hurt most.

Compare that situation with the atmosphere prevailing at Redland Field this year! Every man on the club is out there trying, confident, in the belief that the Reds are due to have their day. New players have infused new blood into the team, and all of them are ready to go places and do things!

Cincinnati fans have never seen a better ball club than the one now assembled on the local lot. Babe Herman is a real sensation, batting like a fiend. Joe Morysey, the recent short-stop, looks like the real "find" of the league, and Mickey Heath, another youngster, is covering first base like a veteran.

There's dependable Wally Gilbert on third, who has surprised everybody by his hard hitting; and George Grantham on second base, stopping everything that comes his way.

That's only the beginning. Chick Hafey, champion batter of the National League, is a fixture in left field, while fielders Taylor Douthett and Estel Crabtree are giving Manager Dan Howley the "willies" trying to figure which one not to bench! Both are playing great ball. Behind the bat, Ernie Lombardi will be a tower of strength, with Clyde Manion dogting on the bench hoping to break into the line-up.

Apparently, the big trouble with the Reds is that they have so many really fine players that there isn't room for all of them on the field!

To show you the difference in the Reds of 1932, the experts agreed in February that the team couldn't finish anywhere but last, and are now predicting that the Reds can't possibly win the pennant unless they grab a couple of good pitchers in a hurry!

As a matter of fact, the Reds could use some additional pitching talent, but what they already have isn't weak by any means. Red Lucas and St. Johnson are both off to a great start, and Ray Kolp has caused great glee among the fans by returning to his old-time form. Larry Benton isn't finished by a long shot, and the youngsters Wally Hilcher and Biff Wyson are getting the experience they need to carry them through.

The Reds are a far different aggregation than the 1931 club, as Chicago, Pittsburgh and St. Louis will grudgingly testify. So you can't blame the Cincinnati fans for talking "pennant-talk" even this early in the season!

COMES IN FOR DISCUSSION AT MEETING OF BOONE COUNTY UTOPIA CLUB—PROF. J. L. COLLINS, OF KENTUCKY UNIVERSITY, IS SPEAKER

Approximately twenty members of the Boone County Utopia Club enjoyed the discussion of dairying given by J. L. Collins, of the University of Kentucky, Thursday night in the Court House. This was the regular monthly meeting of the club and Grant Maddox, president, presided.

Mr. Collins stressed the importance of raising good stock and using proper feed in order to obtain the highest point in efficiency and economy. Next month a specialist in the field of Home Economics will be present.

Each member made a report on his project and received suggestions as to how best to proceed. Geo. Wohrley was elected assistant secretary.

Following the business session a recreational period, supervised by the Florence Utopians, was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Manley Ryle is reported to be quite ill as the Recorder goes to press.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Rouse were week-end visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George Porter.

Earl T. Cropper, of Cincinnati, spent a few days last week with his mother, Mrs. L. T. Cropper, at this place.

Kenneth Stamper, who has been afflicted with a severe attack of rheumatism, was a Burlington visitor last Friday afternoon.

Claude Greenup and son, Wm. and Ralph Maurer spent Tuesday in Lexington.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Atwood are visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Weaver. They have spent the winter in Georgia, where they have been promoting newspaper circulation. They are planning to go from here to Columbus, Ohio.

The Boone county Sunday school base ball league will open its season next Saturday afternoon with the following schedule:

Hebron at Big Bone. Hughes Chapel at Hopeful. Warsaw at Bellevue (Baptist). Bellevue (Christian) at Bullittsville.

Walton at Burlington. Petersburg at Taylorsport.

HEBRON HI BASE BALL

Under a brilliant April Sun an ideal day for that sport called base ball, Hebron met Walton in a very interesting game.

This being Friday April 22 Hebron was to entertain Walton at the High grounds.

Before the game as I looked the teams over I was tempted to pick Walton as the favorite, as I was much impressed by L. Williams' clever fielding at first base. Then with DeMolsey in center I was sure they had a fielder and hitter that was better than ordinary. I relied on Elliott to carry the Hebron high to victory. Elliott made a very creditable attempt against Burlington and won with ease. So I wasn't so sure of Walton. The managers agreed on seven innings and Vest and Lane as umpires, who handled the game very cleverly. Batteries Hebron—Elliott and Dolwick; Walton—B. Williams and Welch.

Elliott became the hero of the game. He pitched 7 hitless innings, struck out 18 men and hit 2 home runs in as many times at bat. Very well for a young pitcher.

The final score was 5 to 0. Sprague obtained three hits out of as many times at bat. Hebron 8 hits one error. Walton 0 hits two errors.

Hebron will play at Burlington next Friday. Elliott and Dolwick will be the battery.

LOWELL T. WATTS Reporter

BERNARD LEE JONES, AGE 15, IS IN CRITICAL CONDITION AT ST. ELIZABETH HOSPITAL—WRECK OCCURS WHEN DRIVER LEAVES HIGHWAY TO AVOID AUTO

The condition of Bernard Lee Jones, of Union, who was severely injured in an auto crash on Monday of this week is reported very serious as the Recorder goes to press Wednesday afternoon.

He is a patient at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington, where he was removed immediately after his truck crashed into a tree alongside the highway between the Butter-milk pike and Arcadia avenue.

Reports conflict as to the cause of the accident, but the consensus is that the wreck occurred thru no fault of the injured man. Another auto it is said swung out of line and attempted to cut in front of the truck driven by Jones and Jones, rather than smash into the car, pulled off the concrete and struck a tree. He was injured internally and sustained several broken ribs.

Early reports of the accident said that the driver of the automobile that was said to have brought about the accident was David Castleman of Erlanger. However, both David Castleman, Sr., and David Castleman, Jr., disclaim any knowledge whatsoever of the affair.

The injured man is 25 years old and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Jones, of Big Bone. He is married and has two children. His relatives and friends are very much concerned over his condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Porter have moved from the West half of their double residence in Burlington and are now living in the East half. Raymond Poole, our genial and competent local barber, will move his family into the West half of this building early next week. Mr. Poole and family have been living in Erlanger.

Bert Sullivan is suffering from a severe attack of the flu and has been ill for several days.

HEAVY CHICK LOSSES

Heavy young chick losses are still being secured by a number of Boone county poultrymen. Bacillary White Diarrhea, aggravated by management factors is the most frequent cause of 75 per cent or more baby chick losses during the first three weeks. Chicks from a blood tested flock does not always eliminate the trouble as the incubator, the old hen or infected ground may serve as a starter.

Sanitation and good management will do more to eliminate chick losses than any other one factor according to County Agent H. R. Foraker. Boone county poultrymen who are carrying out the clean chick brooding program are having remarkable success. Mr. Grant Maddox of Florence R. D. 1, who is brooding more than 1500 chicks under this system is producing strong healthy chicks with practically no losses. Eleven other poultrymen are carrying out the above program with good success.

The clean chick program calls for brain work and muscle grease and not patent medicines or patent fumes. The five points of the Clean Program are 1—Clean Chicks, 2—Clean Brooding, 3—Clean Brooding Equipment, 4—Well Balanced Ration, 5—Careful Management.

Thousands of dollars are spent by local poultrymen every year in quack and highly advertised unnecessary remedies which should be saved and a little more work applied with more profitable results. It is the same old story that a good many people like to be fooled. Highly paid pressure salesmen often say the county Extension Program is mistaken but it should be remembered that this is a public institution with one job to find and distribute facts to the farmers. Experimental facts show that many diseases after they get started run a fixed course and the best that can be done is to prevent the disease from starting all over after it has run its course. This is mainly a sanitation problem.

The most encouraging sign of the times we have seen, so far as the farmer is concerned, is the estimate of the U. S. Department of Agriculture that the winter wheat crop will be about 42 per cent less than last year and 17 per cent less than the average of the five-year period of 1924-28. In those years the average production of winter wheat was 551 million bushels. Last year the farmers of the nation produced 787 million bushels. No wonder wheat prices stayed down!

This year there will be only 458 million bushels of winter wheat to supply the market's needs. That will inevitably result in a better price, probably a profitable price, for those who have it to sell. Nearly 14 per cent of the lands which have been devoted to wheat growing were not sown for this year's crop. Drought in the Great Plains area is largely responsible for this fact, however, rather than intelligent foresight on the part of wheat farmers.

The importance of anything which will tend to give any considerable part of the nation's farmers a better price and a larger profit extends to everybody. Not every farmer is a wheat grower, by any means. But wheat is one of the five great agricultural staples—the others are corn, cotton, tobacco and potatoes—upon which the prosperity, not only of the farmer but of the whole nation, depend. There has been overproduction in all of these for the past two or three years. Growers have not received enough to enable to buy the commodities they need. That is true of almost everybody else, and the vicious circle will not be broken until some large class or group finds itself with some money to spend.

If the winter wheat growers get a fair price for their crop, as present indications suggest they are likely to, that may be the one thing needed to start the public to spending money again instead of being afraid to let go of a penny. And that will start us back on the road to prosperity.

WHEN WE COME TO RESTOCK

I had occasion recently to visit an Ohio city of thirty thousand people. Its industries are running only half time, and everybody is hard up, but cheerful.

Funds have been raised to take care of those who must have financial help. And on the second floor of the city hall I saw an exhibit that gave me something to think about.

The women of that city have ransacked its homes, from cellar to attic. Literally! They have requisitioned every old suit, overcoat, dress, hat and pair of shoes. Not a single garment has escaped them. The second floor of the city hall looks like the basement of a department store, and the piles of goods are melting away very fast. The closets of the community are bare.

Yesterday my wife received a note from our daughter, who is in a girls' school in New England, saying: "Send up all the old clothes you have. We are gathering them for the people in this neighborhood who need them."

I said: "That's a fine spirit for the youngsters to have. You must send up a good bundle right away." "But I can't," she protested.

"Why not?"

"I have already sent out every single scrap of used clothing we

PANCACKES!

PANCACKES on a crisp winter's morning! Isn't that a delightful way to start the day off right? So popular are pancakes in our winter diet that there have been many competitions among small boys—and some among grown-ups, too—to see how many they could eat. The winners of these contests may have shattered local, or even national records, but some of them must have shattered their digestions, too. For a surplus of pancakes with sweet syrup after, say, the first dozen or two, is rather a strain on the average digestion.

With this grave problem in mind of saving pancake champions' public for future contests, a digestion dietitian has devised a series of recipes for pancakes which contain as an ingredient Hawaiian pineapple. For this delicious tropical fruit contains an element which helps digestion that these recipes may—who knows?—enable pancake champions even to eclipse their previous records, and eat more pancakes than ever before!

Try These on Your Griddle

Pineapple Crumb Cakes: Pour two cups milk over one and one-half cups fine bread crumbs, and let stand for five minutes. Add two well-beaten eggs and the well-drained contents of an 8-ounce can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Sift together one-half cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt and three teaspoons baking powder, and add to crumb mixture together with two tablespoons melted butter. Bake on a griddle as usual, and serve with

Here's One for Dessert

Pineapple Dessert Pancakes: Beat two eggs well, and add one tablespoon sugar. Add one cup milk and the following sifted dry ingredients: one and one-eighth cups flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon baking powder. Add one cup boiled rice and two tablespoons melted butter. Bake in round cakes as usual. Butter each cake and place in the center a large spoonful of fruit mixture made by cooking the contents of a No. 2 can of crushed Hawaiian pineapple with one-half cup sugar until thick. Fold sides over, or roll, holding together with toothpick if necessary. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve at once. Recipe makes twelve cakes.

Fruit for Breakfast

All these recipes have the advantage of contributing their quota of the fruit which everyone should eat for breakfast. But one wants some proteins also to start the day with butter and maple syrup. This recipe makes sixteen small cakes.

Whole Wheat Pineapple Pancakes: Beat four eggs well, and add one and one-half cups milk. Sift together one cup flour, one cup whole wheat flour, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar and three teaspoons baking powder. Add to egg mixture together with the drained contents of one 8-ounce can of crushed pineapple. Add three tablespoons melted butter, and bake on a hot griddle. Serve with butter and maple syrup or shaved maple sugar. This recipe makes twenty-four small cakes.

Pineapple Cheese Pancakes: Beat two eggs and add one and one-half cups milk. Sift together two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon salt, and add to egg mixture. Add one cup grated cheese and the drained contents of one 8-ounce can of crushed pineapple. Bake on a hot skillet or griddle. Serve with butter and syrup. Recipe makes sixteen cakes.

Waffles, Too

And finally here is a recipe for waffles, also containing this delectable tropical fruit.

Pineapple Waffles: Beat three egg yolks well, and add one and three-fourths cups milk. Sift together two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt, and add to egg mixture. Add six tablespoons melted butter and two-thirds cup drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple. Fold in three stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake on a hot waffle iron right at the table. The electric iron should be preheated ten minutes before baking the first waffle. Serve with the following pineapple sauce, and pass cubes of plain American cheese. This recipe makes seven large waffles.

Pineapple Sauce: Simmer one cup crushed pineapple, one cup sugar and three-fourths cup water until the first waffle. Serve with the following pineapple sauce, and pass cubes of plain American cheese. This recipe makes seven large waffles.

TO SMOKERS

Men WILL smoke. As proof, see the sky-scrapers built for profits on "short smokes." It is my purpose to talk sanely on the subject of the universal habit: It is the mighty small minority these days, who doesn't consume in one way or another.

The safest, best smoke, say what they may—is with the properly-groomed tobacco-pipe. Bear in mind I'm not a propagandist—I'm a family doctor today, employed by myself. To serve my people.

It's like eating—smoking is the slower you eat or smoke—the less the danger of overdoing. It is the fast eater—the rapid smoker that goes "hay-wire" from excess. One naturally smokes the pipe with more deliberation than he would a cigarette or cigar. The fellow who smokes three when a wise man would consume one, will go to pieces just three times as quickly as the deliberate smoker; I know, for I've seen them do it.

The inhalation of imperfect-combustion gases works havoc with the smoker's nervous system; not nicotine in one case out of a hundred. The fast smoker pulls carbon monoxide, a deadly gas, into his respiratory—the homeopathic dose gets results in time most surely, and nerves go to pieces from its effects.

Hence the advantage of the long-stemmed pipe, smoked with proper deliberation. Even a good cigar should last almost an hour—and its wet end shouldn't be clung to as some would have it—your nicotine if any is in that wet end. Throw it away.

Smoking should be an act of leisure. Always. Under its influence the mental processes flow more smoothly, and brain-fog fades away more quickly. I must say that it is better to smoke not at all, than to abuse the treat—the privilege, by debauching. The evil or good of smoking depends on how it's done.

With the exception of early peaches, most of the fruit crop escaped damage in Lee county.

Fulton county farmers will grow a third less tobacco this year than they did last year.

ABRAHAM'S GENEROSITY TO LOT

Genesis 13:8-15

Rev. Samuel R. Price, D. D.

In ordinary times the old saying is true: "Money makes money." Certainly at all times it is a fact that sheep make sheep. It was so in the case of Abram and Lot his nephew. They had goodly herds when they left Haran in Mesopotamia and the animals kept on multiplying until both men and the owners of real consequence. The ever increasing animals brought the problem of sufficient water and grazing places. The herdsmen of each owner became jealous of the charges under their respective care began to contend over the open pasturage.

Uncle Abram, like many uncles we know, was a truly big man. He loved his nephew and felt a keen responsibility for his care, and Lot often needed just that help. It was noble of the older man to say "Let there be no strife." Harsh words must be faced after they are spoken and years are often required to overcome the scar that is made in a moment of lack of self control. Mindful of the great open country Abram proposed that there be a separation of flocks. A good bit of fresh air will stop many from quarrelling and even a brisk walk around the block is a sedative. Opportunity for first choice is graciously given by Uncle Abram to nephew Lot and the selfish younger man chooses the better portion. As they looked toward the Jordan valley the fields seemed greener there. Yes, and so was Sodom, with all of its profligacy which evidently had become a place of recreation for Lot. Certainly they were not Jehovah-men there and Lot endangered his moral and spiritual life by heading in that direction.

It may have been because Abram was disheartened at this evident selfishness on the part of Lot. Right then Jehovah gave a wonderful compensation in a renewal of the vision and promise which pledged a transcendent future.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST

The last week of school a "Stanford Achievement Test" was given to the pupils of the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh grades of the Mt. Zion school. By using the forms made out for this test it is possible to determine the pupils having the best standing in General Scholarship irrespective of grade.

Margaret Wood and Mary Tanner, third grade pupils, took first and second places respectively and the third grade took first place as a unit.

Kennett Carpenter and Myrtle Wilson of the seventh grade and David Penn of the fifth grade were tied for third honors.

Honor Roll of Mt. Zion Graded School for 1931-32

A standing of A in Conduct and B in General Average were requirements; the number after the name indicates the number of months the pupil was on the Honor Roll during the year.

ASSOCIATION HERDS

AVERAGE 1932 COWINGS

OF FAT LAST YEAR

Four thousand Kentucky cows on test last year averaged 188 lbs. of butterfat, according to a summary of dairy herd improvement associations made by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. The 193 herds in the nine associations contained a total of 4,283. Five hundred and forty cows were culled out during the year because they were unprofitable.

The highest production was in the Oldham-Jefferson association, where the average was 313 pounds of butterfat per cow. The Shelby-Henry association averaged 301 pounds.

The average production in dairy herd improvement associations in the state in the last three years has increased from 256 to 288 pounds of butterfat per cow. This has been brought about by culling our poor producing cows and by better feeding and general care.

Under present prices of dairy products, only high producing cows are profitable, according to the College. Nearly 475,000 cows in Kentucky averaged only 128 pounds of butterfat last year, which would barely pay for the feed.

GIVEN COLLECTION

OF BUTTERFLIES TO

DEPARTMENT OF ENTOMOLOGY

Miss Katharine Pettit, widely known for her work in the settlement schools at Hindman and Pine Mountain, has given a collection of 180 rare and beautiful South American butterflies to the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. They are perfect specimens evidently collected with great care and preserved in flat paper triangles. They were given to Miss Pettit by a naturalist whom she met on her recent trip to South America. The butterflies will be mounted and added to the collection of the department of entomology at the Experiment Station.

This collection, started many years ago by Dr. Harrison Garman, and gradually built up, contains larval and adult forms of most of the native insect fauna of this country, butterflies and moths, bees, wasps, flies, beetles, dragon flies, bugs, cicadas, leaf-hoppers, grasshoppers, crickets, katydids, praying mantids, caddis-flies, may-flies, fleas and some spiders and myriapods.

It would be difficult to estimate the value of such a collection, covering the history, localities and dates of injurious and beneficial insects for many years. It is of great practical use to the work of the department, the named specimens affording basis and quicker means of identifying insects sent in for determination, than any written description. Former students in entomology have added interest to the native insect collection by sending from time to time specimens they have secured in foreign countries, beetles and spiders, butterflies and moths from Brazil, the Philippines and South Africa. Miss Pettit's contribution will make a most attractive exhibit and interest all students and visitors to the department of entomology.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

We the members of the Union Presbyterian Auxiliary feel that we have sustained a great loss in the passing of our beloved sister and co-worker Mrs. W. H. Smith, February 27, 1932.

Whereas by her entrance into her eternal home, our Auxiliary has been bereft of an ardent leader, an efficient teacher and a valued friend, be it resolved

2.—That while our hearts yearn for her wise counsel and prayerful sympathy, we bow in humble submission to His will, knowing Jesus doeth all things well.

3.—That we extend to her devoted family our heartfelt sympathy and commend them to the grace, mercy and peace of a loving Heavenly Father.

4.—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the Boone County Recorder, and we spread upon the pages of our minute book.

The gist of Mr. Traylor's proposal before a Senate Sub-Committee was that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation be authorized to make loans to closed banks as well as to financial institutions and others needing its aid. Such a step would release substantial amounts of money to depositors whose funds had been "frozen" by the failure of such banks.

Mr. Traylor's suggestion made such an impression that it was embodied in the bill as finally passed by Congress. He, more than any other man, is responsible for the timely assistance that will now be possible for many depositors of small banks throughout the country.

Engineers Test Non-Skid Road

FOLKSTON, Ga.—Here's the safest road in the country. It's science's latest contribution to motordom's safety and is a new macadam type peatroad road constructed of Folkston, Ga., by Warren Brothers experimental laboratory of Boston. This black topped road is as nearly non-skid proof as any road ever built. It is tough and porous and modern cars whirling over the peatroad surface at 50 miles an hour can come to a complete stop in one-half the space required on other road surfaces. Tests showed that cars travelling at 40 miles an hour could stop in 50 feet, as against the old record of 90 feet. Vibration and side sway are reduced to a minimum.

Photo shows Georgia State Road officials measuring stopping distances. A section of the peatroad road was covered with white limestone to mark accurate points of brake application and distances the car travelled before coming to a complete stop.

IS THERE A STATE WITHIN A STATE?

Lexington Herald

According to Associated Press telegrams Al Capone has sent Colonel Lindbergh a message that if he will arrange for Capone to be released from jail he will guarantee to have Colonel Lindbergh's baby returned within a few days without the payment of any further ransom and will return to jail as soon as the baby is returned.

Whether Capone can and will make good his guarantee none can tell. But his proposition is to be construed and considered in light of the fact that the district attorney of the United States made an agreement with Al Capone, one of the chieftains of the underworld, that if Capone would admit that he had not paid the government the proportion of his income fixed by federal law the district attorney of the United States would recommend imposition of a sentence of two and a half years.

In substance, this was a proposition from the legal representative of the government to an arch criminal that if the latter would plead guilty, not to any of the crimes committed by him or his associates under his direction, but to a failure on his part to let the government share in his swag, the legal representative of the United States would recommend that a nominal sentence be imposed on him.

That proposition, agreed to by the chief of the underworld, was submitted to a federal judge, who tentatively agreed to abide by the recommendation of the district attorney. It was also submitted to the highest law officer of the government, the attorney general in the cabinet of the President of the United States, and approved by him.

On the day that the arch criminal was to plead guilty and receive that minimum sentence in accord with the agreement entered into between the district attorney, the federal judge and he attorney general there was a publication of the fact of the agreement having been made. In view of that publication the federal judge refused to abide by the agreement and with righteous indignation announced that no criminal could bargain with a federal judge.

Translated into other terms, that distinguished judge's enunciation could be properly amplified into the declaration that no criminal could bargain with the federal judge except in secret. In other words, the federal judge refused to abide by an agreement made by the district attorney, approved by the attorney general, tacitly agreed to by the judge when that agreement was made public. But there was no indication of anything that would justify the conclusion that if Capone had not revealed the existence of such an agreement the judge would have been stirred by the righteous indignation that led him to his virtuous enunciation.

When the judge refused to abide by the agreement that the sentence should be only two and a half years, Capone, quite naturally, refused to plead guilty and a trial was held. Capone had committed no further crime, so far as was known; he had gotten no further income from his operations; he had withheld from the government no further proportion of his swag. But the judge, who had tacitly agreed to the sentence of two and one-half years, imposed a sentence of thirteen years. The underworld not unnaturally construed the sentence imposing thirteen instead of two and one-half years as a penalty for revealing the fact of an agreement.

The negotiations between the district attorney and Capone partook of the nature of negotiations of representatives of equal powers. The approval of the agreement made by the district attorney by the attorney general, a member of the cabinet of the President, and by the federal judge partook of the nature of a ratification of a treaty between two equal powers.

Is there a state within the state? Are we forced to admit that the subjects of the law, the power of the nation, as represented by judicial officers and legal representatives either must deal or are justified in dealing with a chief of the underworld in order to secure the conviction and nominal punishment of that chief, not for crimes against any law of the state, but for withholding a part of the profits of his criminal activities from the federal treasury?

The district attorney who made that agreement, the attorney general who approved it, the federal judge who gave tacit assent, which he withdrew in the face of publicity, not only still retain their offices, but the federal judge has been appointed by the President to a higher office, which seems to indicate that the President approves the conduct of those three officers of the government.

Two months it is since a band of criminals entered the home of Charles and Anne Lindbergh and stole their first-born. There is no couple in America that embody and illustrate the finest ideals of the American nation more than do Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh. There is no instance, of which we know, where a nation has proclaimed a private individual as representative and typical of its finest ideals as it has proclaimed the "eagle of the air" who has been the messenger of good will from this nation to other nations of the globe.

All the power of the state and nation has been invoked to find that baby and capture the criminals that took him. Colonel Lindbergh and his wife, noble types of the American citizenry, quickly found that the forces of law and order, state and federal, were so inefficient, certainly so ineffective, that they attempted through chiefs of the underworld to recover their child. Till today neither the forces of the law nor the chiefs of the underworld have found that baby, nor has the criminal band that kidnapped him been located.

Are we forced to admit that there is a state within the state, a representative of which deals and bargains with the law officers of the government as to what punishment he will accept for the comparatively minor crime of not making an income tax return, and that all the forces of state and nation are futile in finding the homes or tracking criminals who invade a home recovering a child taken from the home?

The state of criminals within the state has grown to power in the last twelve years. The denizens of that state of the underworld, with revenue greater than imagination could picture, with unlimited gold that is the most potent weapon of warfare, have grown to power within the last twelve years. Tardily the denizens of that state of the underworld are made to know that the nation does not treat with them as equals and made to realize that the arm of the law will reach them wherever they may hide, there may come the time in the not distant future when city and state and nation must organize a band of vigilantes similar to the band that freed San Francisco from the rule of the criminal.

THE SPICE OF SPORT

Sunday, May 5, 6, 7, 8—Reds vs. Boston Braves.

The sensational Waner brothers, Lloyd and Paul, are the big guns in the Buccanier attack. They bat one-two in the line-up, followed by Comorosky, another slugger, and then comes Pie Traynor, unquestionably the best third-sacker of the league and one of the greatest of all times. With four players like that at the top of the batting order, it's enough to make any twirler anxious.

Pittsburgh Surprises

When the Pittsburgh Pirates return to Redland Field Sunday May 1, for a single game with the Reds, the crowd will see another ball club which, like the Reds, has turned the prophecies upside down. The Pirates were picked to finish seventh this year, but so far have occupied a nice soft seat near the head of the parade, and are going to be tough to out.

Olympic Games

Somehow or another, we're glad the Olympic Games come only every four years, because the sight of thousands of athletes dashing hither and yon, mostly you, might dizzy, is more rather, home thrilling. There will be more than 2,000 competitors at Los Angeles when the Olympics get under way, every one of them either a champion or a near-champ, and gathered from more than 50 countries in the world. That's a lot of people, if you ask us!

Japan seems to be leading the other nations in the number of entries with 203 of her citizens taking time off from the Shanghai front for the trip to Hollywood, Germany and Great Britain are each entering 125 men, while Italy has signed up with 123 athletes. France will be represented by 75, Mexico by 50, and Denmark and Finland by 40 each. India is sending 25 competitors, not including Mahatma Gandhi, and even South Africa will be on hand with a dozen of her star performers. It looks as if the movie stars may be right out of the spotlight.

Redleg Trade Is Off

The current rumors about another base ball trade by the Cincinnati Reds mustn't be taken too seriously. Reports to the effect that the Reds are going to trade Babe Herman or Chick Hefey for Pat Malone of the Chicago Cubs or for Heine Meine, star pitcher and hold-out of the Pirates, are not true. President Sidney Well of the Reds has stated that, under no circumstances, will he part with either of these men. They are simply not for sale at any price, says Well.

The Redleg prey only laughs when another club owner approaches him with an offer for Herman for Hefey. Well spent precious weeks in landing these two, and doesn't intend to give them up. He has already been offered $100,000 for Hefey, and has turned it down flat.

"We are building a ball club in Cincinnati, not tearing one apart," says Well. "I sincerely believe that the presence of Hefey and Herman at Redland Field this year is going to make a big difference in the club. The fans needn't worry about our trading or selling any of these men. We may make a trade shortly for another pitcher or two, but Herman, Hefey, Lucas, Johnson, Lombardi, and Heath are on the 'not for sale' list."

Raspberries For Maxie

Max Schmeling, world's heavyweight champ, is on the horns of a dilemma and doesn't know how to get off. Maxie, you know, is touring the country in a series of exhibition bouts, with the idea of picking up some loose change here and there. But the fight fans are sore at Maxie, and everywhere the champ goes, he wins the well-known raspberry. Furthermore, the fans are staying away from Schmeling's fights, with the result that the tour is not panning out very well at all.

Schmeling has no one to blame but himself. It all started last week when he was scheduled to fight an exhibition in the East, but refused to enter the ring because the attendance was too small to suit his royal tastes. Ever since then, the fans have been flailing him unmercifully, and Max is in a fair way of becoming the most unpopular ring champion of all times.

Bill Tilden Is Coming

Eight singles and four double matches will be played by Bill Tilden in his professional tennis appearances in Cincinnati, April 30 and May 1. With him will come Emmet Pare, youthful tennis wizard of Dayton, Ohio. Hans Nisslein and Roman Najuch, representing Czechoslovakia, and Karl Kozeluh, internationally known star. Tilden and Pare will play against the others in the doubles, while Big Bill will meet all-comers in the single events.

Tilden has always been a great favorite in this district, and on each of his previous visits has attracted large crowds to his smart exhibitions on the courts. The matches will be held in the new and beautiful Xavier University Fieldhouse.

To Improve the Flavor of Roasts

(By Jane Rogers)

To improve the flavor of your roasts add one teaspoonful of sugar to one teaspoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper and one tablespoonful of flour, and rub this mixture thoroughly into the surface of the meat. Place the roast in a roasting pan without water or other liquid and sear in a hot oven, about 500 degrees F. Then, if necessary, from a half to one cupful of hot water may be added and the cooking of the meat continued at a lower temperature.

Many housewives have preferred not to salt meat before cooking it, believing that the salt draws out the juices, but if sugar is added to the salt and other seasonings this will not happen, as the sugar caramelizes very quickly on the meat's surface, preventing the flow of the juices. And meat, salted before cooking, is of much more delicious flavor than when the salting is done later.

Pot-Roast

Mix one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar, one-quarter teaspoon pepper and one tablespoon flour. Rub into the surface of a medium-size chuck-roast. Sear roast in an iron or pot-roast kettle containing two or three tablespoons fat. When roast has been seared on all sides, add one cup water, cover kettle and cook until meat is tender, adding just enough water from time to time to keep the meat from burning. Serve with the gravy which remains in the kettle, thickened with flour.

The Evolution of Cards

PLAYING cards have given recreation to mankind for more than one thousand years. They are thought to have originated in China, and after gaining popularity in India, were introduced into Europe in the twelfth century. The number of suits and number of cards in a deck have changed from time to time, but today the Chinese have but thirty cards in a deck, consisting of three suits of nine cards each, and three single cards which are superior to all the other cards.

In the early forms of oriental cards, the queen was missing; it was not until the cards were played in Europe that the queen received recognition sufficient to be included in a deck of playing cards. The form of cards has changed through the centuries. The card illustrated at the lower left is an old German card, being the seven of clubs.

Old Hindu Card.

The card in the center is an old Hindu card, round in shape. It represents the grand vizier, or king. Note the royal umbrella, which always appeared on the Hindu vizier cards. At the upper right is the latest development in American playing cards, designed for the new game of contract bridge. This card has printed on the margin, the table of honor values as have the ace and other face cards. These cards permit easy bidding of one's hand. Being printed on the margins, the tables are visible when the cards are held in the hand. These new cards are known as Randolph contract bridge playing cards and are available for both the official and the approach bidding system.

Chinese Seven of Clubs

Star Of Gov. Alfred E. Smith Is On The Wane, Says Writer

(BY FRANK HOLMES)
Washington Cor. for The Boone County Recorder

Robert Greene, English dramatist of the 17th century, was probably the first to call attention to the fact: "Tread on a worm and it will turn." Shortly thereafter Shakespeare confirmed the thought and went a bit further when he said that "the smallest worm will turn, being trodden on."

It is said that members of Congress have been flooded with letters and telegrams indicating beyond peradventure of doubt the reaction of American citizens in private life to the duds Congress has been cutting over economy and tax bills. It is thought that we may safely congratulate ourselves that the worm is turning. The trouble is that the treasurer is so rarely aware even of the existence of the treader, and when he becomes aware that he is stepping on a worm he is not particularly impressed. Occasionally speaking, the worm is usually of too many minds to be formidable. There is a decided predilection, however, that in connection with the matters of economy and taxation the treader is about to discover that the treader has developed from an insignificant and harmless angleworm to a boa constrictor or python. Quite a few misrepresentatives of the people have yet to learn to "watch their steps" instead of blindly plunging thru the political jungle.

Clinton Gilbert, syndication columnist, is led to most aptly remark that the tax-bill performance in the House reminds him of the story of the humorist of Civil War times who said he was so ardent a patriot that he was willing to offer the lives of all his wife's relatives for his country. There is not an inflated, treasury-raiding, self-interested bureau, or department, or commission, or any other tax-absorbing agency of the Government, the personnel of which does not unanimously agree that the cost of government must be reduced. But "let George do it." Any tampering with our budget will result in disaster. After all, it must be admitted that most congressmen are "standing between the devil and the deep blue sea." At the same time, evidence of a little "intestinal fortitude" on their part would be acclaimed.

It can no longer be doubted that the United States is suffering from virulent cancer. Rubbing on a little salve may temporarily ease the pain, but in the end—and undoubtedly we have now arrived at that end—and undoubtedly the cancer must be cut out if our government is to endure. The operation will hurt; most major operations do, at the time or later. Holders of the veriest securities in the government service are loudest in their protests against the lopping off of superfluous patronage. Maybe it would be a little hard to sacrifice a few incompetent and clock-watching weaklings who, denied their free seats at the government pie-counter, would probably starve to death with their families, but better that sacrifice than bankruptcy of both nation and tax-paying citizens.

Unless something is done, pretty soon, there will be no money with which to compensate earnest, productive and necessary workers, to say nothing of the holders of securities. So, the latter are headed for the breadlines or the almshouses in any case. Eventually, why not now?

During the past week, when not engrossed with the economy and taxation extravagance being enacted on Capitol Hill, Washingtonians sought diversion in casual observation of the Democratic political situation. The consensus of opinion is—regrettable as it may be to many—that former Governor Alfred E. Smith has become a pathetic figure in national politics. Only a short time ago both Mr. Smith and his friends indulged in the hope that he would be drafted by the Democratic national convention of his party to serve once more as its standard bearer. Such hope was not purely fanciful, because Gov. Smith had been the most popular figure in the Democratic party for several years. He doubtless did not realize the extent to which conditions have changed when he let it be known several months ago that he would accept the Democratic nomination if it should be tendered to him. Since that time Gov. Smith's star has been on the wane, but it seems that he will not give up.

Even the most ardent Republican in his heart will admit that the American people have high respect for Gov. Smith as an executive, as a courageous official and a friend of the common man. It is no reflection upon his ability and his past achievements to recognize hour. Unfortunately, his friends that he is not now the man of the hour have been unable to persuade him to withdraw from the race. But all illusions as to the possibility of his nomination must have disappeared. It may be assumed that Al is determined to go through the fight in order to be a "good sport," and to accommodate friends who rely upon the use of his name to perpetuate their own standing in the party.

It is not for one moment thought that the Happy Warrior will emulate the McAdoo tactics in 1924 and become a "dog in the manger." But history might repeat itself. If so, it is thought here that Gov. Albert Ritchie's lightning rods are the most numerous and extend farthest into the firmament.

WASHINGTON SNAP SHOTS

Taken by The Helm News Service

Washington once more welcomes the Daughters of the American Revolution, who have gathered in their forty-first continental congress. They come to the city that is peculiarly their own—the Federal City—and here they meet the leaders of Government in all its branches. As the years pass the prestige and influence of the D. A. R. are enhanced and broadened. This national society is a potent agency of national welfare because it is founded upon the solid rock of patriotism.

Legislation to empower President Hoover to declare the existence of an economic emergency and order all aliens not gainfully employed to leave the country was voted by the Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution. A dozen resolutions upholding the efforts of the administration to apply drastic immigration and Americanization enforcement, besides vigorous national defense measures opposing reductions of the Army and Navy, were included in the platform, adopted without any opposing votes. "Supreme confidence in the principles and policies of George Washington" also was registered in a resolution attacking "disloyalty" afoot throughout the country.

During the last few weeks there has been a great rise in the tide of popular demand that the prohibition law be either repealed or modified. But the Women's National Committee for Law Enforcement is as resolved as ever to mop it back. These admirably consistent women have served notice on President Hoover that they would not support him as a person. Dry standing upon a Wop platform. They explained that they "could not trust the sincerity of any candidate willing to lend himself to such a plan."

Great Britain's failure to provide in its new budget for payment of the war debts installment due the United States promises to be used as a compelling reason why Congress should not adjourn until after the Chicago political conventions. That became manifest among the group in both Senate and House that is desirous of seeing the present session extended until after June 15, when the current moratorium by this country expires. Some Senators want to know what is going to be done at that time by Europe.

The United States has formally requested that 14 European beneficiaries of the Hoover moratorium to sign the legal forms acknowledging the repayment of the $252,000,000 postponed annuity over a period of 10 years at 4 per cent. The State Department has decided to take this action in order to forestall any attempt of the European debtors to merge the unpaid sums of last year with a general default.

Recent developments in the contest between Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith for the Democratic nomination for President have so widened the breach between them that reconciliation of these two former political friends and associates has become virtually impossible. This was the opinion expressed by close friends of each. The feeling of resentment, which at first seemed stronger on the part of Mr. Smith, is reported to have extended to Governor Roosevelt. The Governor is understood to have been angered by Mr. Smith's veiled criticism of him in his Jefferson Day speech and what he regards as Mr. Smith's attempt to inject the religious issue into the campaign.

Gov. Roosevelt's speech in St. Paul was generally regarded in Washington as good campaign strategy, whatever its merits as a document showing the position of the leading contenders for the Democratic Presidential nomination on issues before the nation. In that he refrained from striking back at Alfred E. Smith and even complimented him in one respect, the New York Governor was regarded as having put the titular leader of the party in a position where it will be difficult for him to strike again at Gov. Roosevelt with grace.

William Allen White, editor of the Emporia (Kansas) Gazette, sees Alfred E. Smith as a "Republican asset," who is doing his best to make the rural West vote Republican this fall. The militant Republican editor, scrawling written answers to questions in an interview, said Smith's tossing of his hat in the presidential ring was "the first ray of hope we Republicans have had since 1920. As a matter of fact he is the best set of brains in the Democratic party. But he seems determined to make the necessary Democratic dog fight to elect Hoover."

The patriotism of an old man, who lost his son in the World War and would help his government again in its economic crisis, was movingly disclosed in correspondence made public by Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. Mills received the following letter:

Philadelphia, Pa., April 11, 1932
"Society of the Treasury Mills."

"Dear Sir: Thinking that perhaps I could do my share to help my government the same as I did during the World War, when I gave every dollar I had to help pay the cost, I wish to make this offer to you. 'I am getting to be an old man—my soldier boy was killed in battle—the only boy I had. I re-erected insurance of $57.50. I have saved from that about $2,000, which you can have the use of (without interest), and my government can pay it back to me again when things get better."

"Will you please answer and let me know if it is needed? Although it is not much, I will send it to you at once."

"CHARLES F. THOMPSON."
A reigning Broadway musical comedy is built merely around the ultra-modern theme of depression. Action opens in an automaton restaurant, now patronized by blue-blooded representatives of the social register. A Park avenue resident says: "Why, there's Coolidge at the pie slot." Her escort replies: "That's nothing. He ate here before the depression."

The New Haven Local of the Farmer's Alliance scheduled to meet Friday evening April 29th, has been postponed to meet Friday evening May 6th at New Haven school house at 7:30 o'clock.

health work is bound to be paid for in dollars and cents as well as in the impairment of the people's health generally. We can demonstrate convincingly that returns in economic and social welfare from expenditures for public service are far in excess of their costs.

Too great economy as far as health is concerned, because of the current depression, is particularly dangerous to the welfare of growing children. Undernourishment of children, for example, is not likely to show itself immediately, but is bound to show its effects later, when

Schneider Duplicate Winning Race Car for Ambitious Young Offspring

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Louis Schneider, last year's winner of the International 500-mile classic over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, is one champion who wishes to perpetuate his name and fame in automobile racing. A firm believer in heredity, no sooner had he received the winner's checkered flag than he planned to duplicate his winning Bowes Seal Fast Special in miniature for his small 17-months-old son Billy Schneider. Here is Louis, who will attempt to repeat his victory on May 30 this year, giving initial instructions to his young son and Bob Bowes, II, one-year-old son of Schneider's backer. The miniature championship car is powered by a motorcycle engine and is capable of fast time.

In 1932, the churches of the U. S. increased their membership by more than a million persons. In 1933, the increase dropped to 900,000 members, while in 1930 only 600,000 members were added to the church rolls. Counting every denomination, Catholic and Protestant, only two of the 55 church bodies in this country showed any marked increase in members in 1933. The 1931 statistics are not yet available.

This showing is even more alarming when we recall that normally church memberships gain in times of depression and suffering, said Fred Lloyd, rural sociologist in the department of farm economics at the College of Agriculture.

"The rural church as an institution has always tended for the deeper, finer more spiritual values in country living. This year, when we are in the midst of recovering from times that are peculiarly trying, it is with special significance that we observe Rural Life Sunday. "Rural life and religion when contrasted with urban civilization and the material interests of mankind, have each stood for such enduring qualities as character, integrity, family life and a warm fellowship found only among rural people and true Christians. When things we thought were lasting are being swept aside it will help all of us to gather in our open country and village churches that we may have recalled the contributions country people and religion have made to our national life." May 1 will be observed as Rural Life in thousands of churches in towns, villages and the open country in America.

EAT MORE EGGS, SAYS HUMPHREY

A plea for greater consumption of eggs is made by J. E. Humphrey of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, state chairman of National Week, which is May 1-7.

"Nutrition experts say eggs are rich in protein, contain muscle building material and are high in digestible fat which gives heat and energy to the body, and are extremely rich in the valuable vitamins, especially A, B and D, those growth promoting and health insuring products of the diet," he pointed out.

"Eggs, when fed to the young, growing child, help to prevent rickets, by insuring normal bone development."

"Eggs are a great protective food, being rich in phosphates, iron, calcium and other minerals."

"Physicians advise the liberal use of eggs in hospitals, and they are indispensable in the diet of malnourished, sick and convalescent persons."

"Eggs when properly cooked, in addition to being a well balanced food, are easily digested, palatable and satisfying."

"Eggs are at all times a most economical food, but now due to extremely low prices and heavy production, they are more economical than most any other comparable food, and can and should be widely used as one of the major articles of the daily diet."

THE HOME VEGETABLE GARDEN

"Every family in Kentucky having even a small plot of ground available should," says Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer.

Plant a home vegetable garden this year.

There are two chief reasons for this. One looks to economy; the other has regard for health. Either in itself should be convincing; both together should be compelling.

"The home vegetable garden is highly desirable under any conditions. It takes on peculiar value in a period of acute economic depression such as Kentucky, along with the rest of the country, is experiencing. A properly balanced diet is essential to good health even when foods are plentiful and easily obtained. Such a diet becomes more and more important from a health standpoint in proportion as foods are scarce and hard to get. A poorly balanced diet, though plentiful, invites malnutrition and undernourishment, which, in turn, lowers the resistance of the human body to disease. When this lack of balance in diet is combined with scarcity, the resultant dangers to the health are accentuated and multiplied."

"There are in the State today thousands of people who have to make every penny count in providing food for themselves and their families. There are other thousands, with intermittent or no employment—who are dependent, in greater or less degree, upon charity to keep the wolf from the door. Of these a large percentage, particularly those living in the rural districts and the smaller towns, could materially lighten their problems by planting home gardens. Only a small parcel of land, if properly prepared, intelligently seeded and well cultivated, is required to produce a sufficiency of fresh vegetables to supply the needs of the average family during the summer and fall, with a surplus for canning for winter use."

"Almost everywhere in Kentucky the soil and climate are such as to permit the growing of virtually all the various kinds of vegetables needed to supply the vitamins and minerals essential to the maintenance of good health, alike in the growing child and in the adult. The cost of the home garden is almost negligible, as there is no outlay for labor. Only the seed need be purchased."

"Begin preparations for your garden now. Information, if needed, as to what and when to plant may be readily obtained from the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Kentucky at Lexington."

They used to say, "Pay as ye go" But, now, it's pay Or ye don't go. ANOTHER REMARK BY IRISH WITT Some m'n don't advertise. Till their business fall. Thin, they advertise Their business, fer sale.

The Family Garden

THE MELON CROPS (By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

Besides watermelons and cantaloupes, the melon crops include cucumbers and early late squash. All the list falls under what are known as the "warm" crops, those whose planting may not be ventured until the ground has become definitely warm. For Kentucky as a whole, that time is May 1, though in some sections it is safe to anticipate this date at least by a few days.

The general custom is to plant the melon crops in "hills" well-enriched with manure, but the method of planting them in rows is coming into quite general use, particularly in the event it is designed to spray for insects and diseases.

The soil should be fairly fertile, for all the melon crops are gross feeders. Although stable manure is an excellent fertilizer as far as it goes, there is decided advantage in furnishing additional phosphorus, as well, to make the fruit set. In field practice, land capable of producing 30 bushels of corn per acre should be used, this top-dressed with from 5 to 10 tons of manure, plowed under or disked in, and 500 pounds of superphosphate broadcast and dragged in. For garden east and dragged in. For garden plantings, the same applies, or the general garden fertilizing recommendations made earlier in these columns may be followed. If the "hill" method of planting is to be followed, manure may be used as customarily, but from 1/4 to 1/2 pound of superphosphate should be mixed with it.

For the row planting method more seed is required than when planting is done in hills, but the probability of a full stand is better. Watermelon seed is planted 3 to 4 inches apart in rows 3 to 4 feet wide for watermelons; 4 to 5 feet, for cantaloupes; 3 to 4 feet for cucumbers and bush squash; and from 5 to 8 feet for running squash.

After the cucumber beetle and the rigors of the season or soil have taken their toll, thinning is done. For watermelons and the running squash the final spacing of the plants should be 3 feet; for cantaloupes and bush squash, 2; and for cucumbers, 18 inches.

For the "hill" method of planting the final stand of plants should be 2, for all the "melon" crops. Additional fertilizing may be done, side-dressing with nitrate of soda when the plants are in full bloom, and again, two weeks later. This preserves the vigor of the plants and lengthens the bearing season. The rate of using nitrate is 300 pounds per acre each time, or in smaller plantings, 1 pound per 100 square feet, or 1 pound to each cultivation for all the melon crops should be extremely shallow, for the roots lie under the surface; the ground should be left as level as possible.

Unfortunately, all the "melon" crops are subject to the ravages of quite serious pests, chief among them the cucumber beetle and the melon louse. Their control will be discussed in a later article.

Varieties are as follows: For watermelons, Kleckley and Stone Mt.; for cantaloupes, Rocky Ford, Hale's Best and Tip Top; for cucumbers, Davis Perfect and Long Green; for bush squash, White Scallop; for running squash, Summer Crookneck, White Cushaw, Table Queen and Hubbard.

TIMELY FARM CIRCULARS

The following timely farm circulars can be obtained from county or home demonstration agents or by writing to the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky at Lexington. Both name and number should be given in writing for them.

THE LAWN—This circular deals with making new lawns and rejuvenating old lawns, including kinds of grasses to sow, how to sow them, fertilizing, and other information of interest to persons desiring to improve home grounds. N. B. Elliott, field agent in landscaping, is the author. Ask for circular No. 258.

SEEDING MEADOW AND PASTURE CROPS—Members of the agronomy department summarize in this circular specific information about sowing grasses, clovers and lespedeza alone and in pasture and meadow mixtures. This is circular No. 242.

BUTTERFAT CONTENT OF MILK AND CREAM—Prof. Fordyce Ely, head of the dairy division, discusses the variation of the butterfat content of milk and cream, considers conditions that tend to increase or decrease butterfat, and explains some of the common causes of such fluctuations. Among the subjects discussed is the operation of the separator. Ask for circular No. 251.

HOME CANNING—Most farmers this year are planning to grow enough vegetables and fruit to supply the home through the spring, summer and fall, and also a surplus to can for winter. Circular No. 220 deals with all phases of home canning by the most approved methods. It contains time tables for vegetables and fruits, family budgets, score cards and other information. One chapter is devoted to canning meats.

Contrary to the usual trend during times of depression, church membership has failed to make material gains during recent years, the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, notes in its announcement of Rural Life Sunday, which will be observed May 1.

Little Napoleon of Auto Racing Has Glants of Truck Under His Command

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—"A little child shall lead them" reads the Bible but in automobile racing "a little man commands them." He is Eddie Edensburn, Napoleon of the American Automobile Association, who is boss of the drivers who will compete in the International 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30. Edensburn, half pint Mussolini of the speed strips, smokes cigars almost as large as he is, but glants of the steering wheel with the strength to bend connecting rods in half, obey his every official command. This layout shows the drivers and mechanics at the Indianapolis track assembled for a rules book meeting. Insert shows Colonel E. V. Rickenbacker, famous war ace and former race driver, addressing the drivers.

Individual Peas

WHETHER or not the French are the best cooks in the world may be disputed, but that they prepare vegetable better than any other nation no one can deny. One has only to peep into the great markets of Paris to see with what respect this article of food is regarded—beets, carrots, and onions are gathered into bouquets, as a florist arranges his flowers, and peas are laid upon comfortable and decorative beds of green leaves.

A Separate Course

Peas, like other vegetables, are always served as a separate course at French tables, and all who have visited France remember the delicious "petit pois" which appear upon practically every menu. The secret of their fine flavor is that they are always cooked with a little onion. If you will put into the contents of a can of peas one small white onion finely sliced and plenty of butter and then warm them, you will yourself discover the truth of this statement. Canned peas are also delicious in—

Dumplings with Peas and Carrots: Sift two cups flour, one teaspoon salt and four teaspoons baking powder, and cut in one tablespoon fat. Add three-quarters cup milk; drop by spoonfuls on a greased platter; steam twelve to fifteen minutes. Remove to hot platter. Put contents of one No. 2 can peas in two cups highly seasoned white sauce. Surround dumplings with sliced carrots. Use peas and buttered carrots.

Driver Speedway With Black Mask

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Most humans would find it difficult enough to drive the corners of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway at a fast clip with their eyes wide open. But Joe Russo, automobile racing's "feel" driver can negotiate the Hoosier oval with his eyes blindfolded.

Of course he won't have his eyes covered with a black mask when he drives in the 500-mile race on May 30, but now and then he does it on practice days just to prove to the boys that he can do the trick.

However Mrs. Fogel's health was somewhat improved so the family were all present for Bible Study Friday night.

A musical selection, "Christ is King," played by "The Hood Sisters" with piano and violin was greatly enjoyed.

SPRAY SCHEDULE—APPLES

The prebloom or pink spray for control of apple scab has been already applied by most Boone county apple growers. A blight control spray of 2-6-100 Bordeaux mixture sprayed into the bloom has caused increased set of fruit and controlled twig blight.

The next most important spray for control of scab and apple worm will be when most of the blossoms have fallen. Use 3 gallons of lime sulfur (liquid or 2 pounds dry) and 2 pounds arsenate of lead (arsenate of lead added when the tank has been filled or added last).

The above are the most important apple sprays. Every apple grower should give them thorough consideration.

JONES DIES

AS RESULT OF INJURIES SUSTAINED IN AUTO CRASH—D. E. CASTLEMAN GIVES VERDICT OF ACCIDENT

It is with the keenest regret that we relate the death of Bernard Lee Jones following the unfortunate accident which occurred on the Dixie Highway last week. As stated last week the young man was married and is survived by his widow and two children.

He passed away last Friday before ever having been removed from the hospital and funeral services were held Sunday.

The Recorder misinterpreted in some way the information that came to us last week and upon which was based our story relative to the connection that D. E. Castleman, of Erlanger, had with the accident. When Mr. Castleman said that he knew nothing of the accident he meant that he knew nothing of it until later in the day and did not mean that he knew nothing at all of it.

Mr. Castleman's version of the affair is that he attempted to pass the truck and that the truck evidently tried to pass another car at the same time. The truck driver seemingly did not know that Mr. Castleman was coming up and the latter was forced from the concrete, according to his statement to the writer.

Mr. Castleman said that he was forced to speed up somewhat to avoid being hit by the truck, but that after he got clear he naturally supposed that the truck was clear also and continued on his way. He said that he knew nothing about the matter until informed late that evening by his son that Mr. Jones had been injured.

We are giving Mr. Castleman's version of the affair due to the fact that there have been a number of conflicting stories regarding it.

The deceased man was well known in many sections of Boone county where he and his family had lived and is survived by a great many friends and relatives who are deeply grieved at his untimely passing.

Mr. and Mrs. Denzel Carpenter, of Walnut Hills, enjoyed a Saturday and Sunday visit with Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Carpenter.

DEATH PENALTY

CARRIED BY VERDICT RENDERED BY CARROLL COUNTY JURY IN MURDER CASE THIS WEEK—BOONE COUNTIANS ATTEND TRIAL TUESDAY

County Attorney B. H. Riley, Judge N. E. Riddell, Deputy Circuit Clerk L. C. Weaver and Jatter Elmer Kirkpatrick attended the trial of Ullie Lotheridge at Carrollton Tuesday. The jury had not reported when they left Carrollton Tuesday evening, but later rendered a verdict which carried the death penalty. This is the first death penalty verdict that has been rendered in this judicial district for many years, it is said.

Lotheridge was convicted of the murder of Theodore Fitchsen, who was found dead near his car a short distance from Carrollton on last December 5th. His clothing had been saturated with gasoline after he had been knocked unconscious and his clothing rifled of money and other valuables.

The car was then set on fire, but in some way the body was removed from the car before the flames consumed it. Commonwealth's Attorney Ward Yager was assisted by former Commonwealth's Attorney Frank C. Greene, who was employed by relatives of Fitchsen to aid the prosecution. The selection of a jury proved a long and arduous task, several hundred men being questioned before the panel was filled.

Mr. Leslie Jackson, of Phoenix, Arizona, a former resident of Burlington, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hensley.

OPENING GAME

IS TAKEN BY HARVEST HOME CLUB ON MUDDY FIELD LAST SUNDAY—WILL PLAY ROSEDALE A. C. NEXT SUNDAY

The Harvest Home club started off with a win over the strong Lantonia Merchants last Sunday in a well played game which was very close and interesting throughout. Although the outfield was in very bad condition due to the heavy rains the home boys played a nice game and all three outfielders made nice catches.

Braun pitched a fine game and his slants were very ably handled by Stephens, one of the most promising catchers in Boone county. He was also given the support by Bob Ross and Russell Miller around the keyhole 'sack, while Glenn played his usual steady game at third base.

Next Sunday the Rosedale A. C. will be the attraction at Harvest Home park. This team also has a clean record, having defeated Ludlow last week and a close game can be expected.

A box score of this game was sent to us this week, but we were unable to publish it. However, with the matter still in the air next week, we will be able to let the fans know just how each player fared in the game.

A "SURE NUF OLD BUZZARD"

Not long ago Elmer Deck, while at work on a farm on Gunpowder, noticed a bell buzzard flying overhead. As he watched the buzzard soaring about he noticed the bell suddenly fall from the bird's neck. He picked up the bell and made out the initials "W. K." and "C. H." Some time later while talking to Wesley Kittle about the incident Mr. Kittle said that he distinctly remembered attaching the bell to the buzzard's neck 24 years ago, while living near Petersburg some fifteen miles from the spot where the bell was found. The initials "C. H." were those of Charles House, who was buried in the Petersburg cemetery last week.

Auto Crash Fatal To Jerome Respass, Jr.; Was Son Of Horseman

YOUTH WAS ON WAY FROM BARDSTOWN TO LOUISVILLE TO SPEND WEEK-END WITH FATHER, J. B. RESPASS—WAS STUDENT AT UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

No news has reached Boone county within recent years, which has caused so much consternation and actual concern as did the tidings of the sudden death of Jerome Respass, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Respass, which occurred early last Saturday near Louisville.

While Jerome, Jr., was not as familiarly known in most sections of his native county as was his illustrious and genial father, yet those who had experienced the pleasure of his acquaintance had grown to love him, as they had learned to admire and love his parent.

The story of his untimely death is perhaps as generally known ere this as it was sudden and tragic. The lad, who was a sophomore at the University of Kentucky, had been attending a dance during the previous evening with some friends and had bade them adieu with the statement that he was going to Louisville to spend the week-end with his father.

KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Between Bardstown and Louisville his car left the road and overturned in a ditch. When the car, a light coupe, left the road it collided with a telephone pole, driving the engine backward into the cab. The weight of the motor pinned the youth's feet to the floor board, making of him a helpless prisoner, where he burned to death. However, it is said that he must have been unconscious from the impact of the car against the pole.

Funeral services for the deceased youth were held at the home on the Dixie Highway, near Florence, Monday afternoon, May 2, the remains being interred in Highland cemetery. The services were attended by a vast throng of admiring and loving friends and relatives. "Rome," as most friends knew him, had been a student at Kentucky since the fall of '30 and numbers of his classmates and fraternity brothers attended in a body, one among whom was the celebrated foot ball and track star, "Shipwreck" Kelly. Fraternity brothers of Sigma Alpha Epsilon acted as pallbearers. Floral offerings were as numerous as they were beautiful.

The parents of the deceased lad were the recipients of numberless telegrams and letters, as well as personal and telephone calls, expressing condolence. Mr. Respass, the grief stricken father, in speaking to some intimate friends, expressed himself as being especially touched and impressed by one from a friend, by him unnamed. The telegram was worded thus: "Rome, it doesn't seem fair." Another incident which seemed to leave a lasting impress upon the feelings of the devoted father was reported to him immediately after the accident. Some friends had urged the junior Respass to remain in Lexington for the week-end, but he had insisted that he wished above all to go to Louisville for a week-end with his "dad."

The boy was intensely devoted to both of his parents, but was a keen lover of thoroughbred race horses, the breeding of which was his father's business and pleasure. Consequently he loved his father and loved to be with him. He loved horse flesh and was regarded by his "dad."

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

Wanted—a Lefty Grove, a George Earnshaw, a Burelligh Grimes, or any other first rate twirler with a reasonable future. Apply to the Cincinnati Reds, care of the first division in the National League.

The Reds, all set to go places and do big things, have suddenly discovered that what the team needs most, and must have, is added pitching strength. President Sidney Well of the Reds has assembled one of the most colorful ball clubs that has ever played on Redland Field, but still must uncover that essential ingredient, a top-notch pitcher who can take his turn in the box every fourth day and win some ball games.

The absence of that extra pitching strength doesn't mean that the Reds aren't a good ball club. As a matter of fact, pitching or no pitching, they're still among the best in the league with hurlers like Red Lucas and St. Johnson to carry on. But a club doesn't need more than two men to really make a bid for the pennant.

Cincinnati fans needn't be surprised if the Reds make another sensational deal shortly for another pitcher. Sidney Well has already gained a great reputation for trades this year. He annexed Babe Herman and Chick Hefey when no one thought he had a chance to land either one of these stars, so a little thing like acquiring another good pitcher will be duck-soup for the Cincinnati boss. Well hasn't said a thing about making such a trade, but every indication points in that direction, and it appears as if the deal won't be long in the making.

The report that the Reds will get Heine Meine from Pittsburgh remains unsubstantiated. Meine is a hold-out, the last one in the National League, and whether Well will take another hold-out who isn't in playing condition is problematical. What the clubs needs is a twirler who can step into the game the same day he dons a Reds uniform, and work in apparently as long as just that sort of player. The Reds have an abundance of trading material, all of it very valuable to any other clubs in the league. There's Stetson Crabtree, Wally Roettger, both fine outfielders and good hitters, Mickey Heath and Leo Dorocho, infielders, and several relief pitchers who aren't doing the club any good by sitting on the bench. The fans will certainly hate to see Crabtree or Roettger go. Taylor Douthitt, center fielder, also is a likely candidate for a trade. At any rate, mark our prophetic words, the Reds are all set for another trade that will put the league on its well-known ear again, and this time Sidney Well may turn the trick that wins a real pennant-contending ball club for Cincinnati.

So Long, Twenty Grand!

Twenty Grand, 1931 Kentucky Derby Winner, will probably never race again. The champion thoroughbred injured a middle tendon at Havre de Grace a short time ago, and is apparently all washed up. His owners plan to retire him to the stud. Twenty Grand made an enviable mark on the race tracks, accounting for $239,926 in prize money in two years. As a three-year old, he won the Wood Memorial, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes, the Saratoga Cup, and the Jockey Club Gold Cup.

Twenty Grand was all set for

RIDDELL GRIFFITH, SON OF BOONE COUNTY COUPLE, RECENTLY KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH WAS DENTIST—HAD BEEN TAKING FLYING INSTRUCTIONS

In our issue of April 31 we carried a story relative to the death of Riddell Griffith, of Los Angeles, in an airplane crash. This week we received a letter from Mrs. J. J. Griffith, mother of the young man, who gives a correct version of the accident. The letter follows:

April 29, 1932.

Manhattan Beach, Cal.

The Boone County Recorder, Burlington, Ky., Gentlemen:

I wish to make a correction concerning the account in your issue of April 21st of the accident to our son Dr. Charles (Riddell) Griffith. He was not an aviator, but a dentist, being a graduate of the University of Southern California, class of 1928.

He was one of a staff of dentists at Palama Settlement in Honolulu, T. H., where the accident occurred. While he was a student flyer, he was on a business flight at the time of the fatal crash, the plane being piloted by his instructor who was also a transport pilot, and who was critically injured.

Very Truly Yours,

MRS. J. J. GRIFFITH

The 1st and 2nd sewing of Florence met at the home of their leader Lucille Taylor, Tuesday afternoon April 24th for their usual sewing lesson. The first year girls are doing nicely and are almost finished with all their work. They are on their dresses and aprons and when finished with these their project will be completed. Second year girls are on their slips. They have their dresses and combination finished. All my girls were present but two. We also have two new members who came in April 17, and have already completed towel, pot holder and headband, and are now ready to start on aprons and dresses. We also had a program which consisted of music, jokes and singing. After the program we adjourned and then left for home.

TOM COWEN

TELLS OF HIS EXPERIENCE IN SOUTHERN TORNADO—HE AND WIFE SOUNDED ALARM IN OPEN FIELDS, LETTER SAYS

A letter from Tom Cowen to relatives here relates a thrilling experience during the recent tornado, which swept thru the south. Mr. and Mrs. Cowen live on a small farm about eighteen miles from Memphis. They were sitting quietly on their front porch when they heard a peculiar roar, but which they did not recognize until they perceived the characteristic funnel shaped black cloud rushing thru the sky. When they saw this, hail and debris of every description in the cloud they realized that was coming in time to gain refuge in an open field nearby, where they were beaten terrifically by the hail and rain, while prostrate upon the ground. The tornado missed their dwelling, but riddled barn and outbuildings. Several lives were lost in their vicinity.

CUT WORMS DAMAGE TOBACCO BEDS

Boone county 4-H Club members report that considerable damage is being done tobacco beds by cut worms. Damage from this pest is often serious and should be closely watched by the growers.

A thorough dusting of the plants in the bed with arsenate of lead is usually quite effective. For more severe and persistent attacks a poison bait should be used. The bait usually used is composed of 25 pounds bran, 1 pound Paris Green 2 quarts of cheap molasses and enough water to give the mixture a consistency. This poison should be broadcast over the bed late in the evening at the rate of 4 or 5 pounds per 100 square yards of tobacco bed. This rate would be 33 and 1-3 running feet of a nine foot bed.

Extension circular No. 230 entitled "The Production of Surly Tobacco" is available at the county agents office on request.

OF DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S CLUBS ATTENDED BY NUMBER OF BOONE COUNTY WOMEN LAST FRIDAY—MRS. SAYRE WRITES ACCOUNT OF MEETING

At the annual convention of the Democratic Women's Club of Kentucky, held at the Phoenix Hotel in Lexington April 29th, Boone county was represented by Mrs. Emily Hughes Clark, Miss Nan Chambers, Mrs. J. C. Layne, Miss Eunice B. Willis, Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. A. B. Renaker, Mrs. Stanley Lucas, and Mrs. F. L. Sayre. They all report a wonderfully good time from beginning to end, the high lights of which were the speeches by Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owens, the daughter of William Jennings Bryan and Congresswoman from Florida, and Senator Alben W. Barkley. Mrs. Owens was introduced by Gov. Ruby Laffoon in his very happiest vein, who paid a high tribute to her distinguished father. Senator Barkley was introduced by Mrs. H. K. Bourne of Henry county, Honorary President of the organization which, in five years, has grown from a federation of three clubs to one hundred and thirteen. The President Mrs. Davis M. Howerton, of Ashland, carried out the program with such efficiency coupled with grace and sweetness, as to win all hearts. Her report showed that she had been very active in behalf of the organization the past year. It would be a grave oversight to neglect to mention the welcome address given by Miss Laura Gay, niece of Henry Clay, and in spite of her 89 years, a speaker of charm and distinction. It was truly an occasion long to be remembered.

THERE IS NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

We think we live in a complicated age, but more than three hundred years ago everything was just as topsy-turvy as it is today. Robert Burton, who was born in 1576, published a famous book called "The Anatomy of Melancholy" in 1621. And three hundred and eleven years ago he wrote in that book a number of paragraphs which have a very familiar sound in this year of grace, 1932. Here are some of them:

"New news every day. Those ordinary rumors of war, plagues, fires, inundations, thefts, murders, massacres, meteors, comets, spectrums, prodigies, apparitions, shipwrecks. A vast confusion of vows, wishes, actions, adits, petitions, lawsuits, pleas, laws, proclamations, complaints, grievances. Then come tidings of weddings, entertainments, embassies, trophies, sports, plays, treasons, robberies, enormous villainies of all kinds, funerals, deaths of princes, new discoveries and expeditions.

"Our summum bonum is commodity, and the goddess we adore, Dea Moneta, Queen Money.

"So many professed Christians, yet so few imitators of Christ; so much talk of religion, so much science, so little conscience.

"To see so many lawyers, yet so little justice; so many laws, yet never more disorders. Lawyers get more to hold their place than to say our very best.

"New books, every day, pamphlets, stories, whole catalogues of volumes of all sorts, new schisms, heresies, controversies in philosophy, religion, etc."

Only the very young or the very inexperienced think that there is any material change in human nature and its manifestations from century to century.

WHY NOT A GRANDMOTHER'S DAY

Sunday, May 8th, will be Mother's Day. It is a pleasing, sentimental day in every year for the particular remembrance of everybody's mother. Very few of us are so unsentimental as not to have tender and pleasant recollections of childhood days, in which mother was everything to us. She stood between the child and all that would harm it. She did not have to say, and probably never stopped to realize, that she would gladly give her own life, if necessary, to protect the life of her child. We have known of men and women whose lives have been wrecked by an excess of maternal devotion, by the reluctance of their mothers to let them live their own lives, free from parental interference. But even those who look back to their infancy with a tender devotion to the figure that stood between themselves and harm.

We should like to see somebody, however, start a "Grandmother's Day." It is our observation that grandmothers have had about as much to do with shaping the lives of most of us as our mothers had. A good many mothers would have made a much poorer job of bringing up their children if there hadn't been a grandmother or two in the background, to give them the benefit of her wisdom gained from the experience of raising a family to maturity.

We hope that everybody who reads this will remember his or her mother with some appropriate gift, however small, on Mother's Day, but let's not forget grandma.

A TRIBUTE TO KENTUCKY

Bruce Barton, author of "The Man Nobody Knows," has written this tribute to Kentucky for the "Parade of the States" Monday night programs of the General Motors Corporation, part of an educational plan to make the country as a whole better acquainted with the individual states—their history, scenic beauty, industries and people.

"Oh, the sun shines bright on my old Kentucky home," sang young Stephen Foster to his bride on his honeymoon long ago. His words have echoed around the world. And ever there are hearts to thrill in kinship with the romance of Kentucky.

For people love to go back to Kentucky. One visit is never enough. Daniel Boone crossed a barrier of mountains to hunt and explore and recrossed them to induce others to return with him. James Harrod followed to put up the first cabin in Harrodsburg, the town so stubbornly maintained that it established the Ohio and Mississippi as American trade-ways, to which all our west owes a lineage.

It was in Kentucky that George Rogers Clark planned his conquest of today's Middle West, and Henry Clay grew to fame, and Jefferson Davis was born and married the daughter of another Kentuckian, President Zachary Taylor.

A noble monument in the heart of old Kentucky enshrines the lowly, cabin where Lincoln was born. Here he returned to work out his life's destiny in troubled meditation in a friend's Kentucky home; and later he married a daughter of Kentucky, Mary Todd.

There is a thrilling modern Kentucky of industry and agriculture, the Kentucky John Muir declared, "the greenest leafiest stage I have ever busy factories and broad and inland waterways. It well deserves a tribute of its own.

But tonight we prefer to speak of the Kentucky of beauty and of memory. The Kentucky where Lafayette delighted to linger and Louis Phillipe, Citizen-King of France, lived and endowed the Bardstown cathedral with priceless paintings of Murilla, Rubens, and VanDyke. The Kentucky John Muir declared "the greenest leafiest stage I have ever seen... the Eden, the paradise of oaks"; the Kentucky of John James Audubon, friend of all the birds.

This is the Kentucky of Mammoth Cave, of the Trail of the Lonesome Pine, of rivers and streams and terraced green hills. Here are woodlands where the flowers never die and one may hear the music of the mocking bird. And here are the cabins of that pure Anglo-Saxon, the Kentucky mountaineer.

They are all part of the magic that draws us back. Back to the rolling green of the blue grass, to the blood-stirring thrill of the Derby, to the hospitality that knows no bounds.

Is it time for you to go again? Go now, while the woods and waters are loveliest, while the horses are running in the sport of kings, while the sun shines brightest on all Kentucky homes.

Kentucky's sons and daughters know no sweeter place to live. Her guests can find no friendlier place to visit. To Kentucky, gracious daughter of the Old Dominion, General Motors bows in courtly salute!

which the remains were buried in cemetery at that place in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends. Philip Tallafiero had charge of the funeral arrangements.

TOMORROW

It is sometimes my sad fortune to have to deliver an afterdinner speech.

Few experiences are more depressing.

One sits up at a high table like a specimen at the zoo. One waits with increasing discomfort while the toastmaster works slowly down the line, and tries to look appreciative as the other speakers unfold their solutions of world problems with a sprinkling of stale jests.

Only now and then there is a bit of compensation. The other night, for instance, I wound myself tight beside Strickland Gilliland. He ate sparingly, and when I remarked on it, he said: "I always have to feel well tomorrow. If you live today so that you will feel all right tomorrow you don't get into much trouble."

That made me think that you can estimate men according to their attitude toward tomorrow.

How many tomorrows can they see? How much are they willing to sacrifice for tomorrow? How much do they dare to trust?

A day laborer can see only a half-dozen tomorrows. He must be paid every week. An entrepreneur may cheerfully invest half a life-time in a new business from which not he but his children will profit.

Artists and writers have been known to disregard entirely the near tomorrows, pinning their faith on the fairer and more enduring verdict of posterity.

The prophet, of course, looks farthest of all. Stephen, on his way to death cried: "Behold I see the heavens opened." Jesus, about to be crucified, assured His disciples: "I have overcome the world."

It strikes me that what we need these days is the habit of taking a little longer look, envisaging a few more tomorrows.

Some of us act as if this present distress were the first test of the world's endurance that has ever come. We are afraid that if it is not straightened out immediately civilization will perish.

It is not so much a test of the world, or of civilization, as it is a test of us. It is like the war. Some of us lost courage, and said: "It will never end." Others can now look back with satisfaction on the record they made then.

Today we are making another record on which we must look back. Back from the future and better tomorrow.

CO-OP TO HANDLE AND SELL OF KENTUCKY STRAWBERRIES

Cooperative marketing associations will handle approximately 4,000 acres of strawberries in Kentucky this year. Managers of various associations, at their annual meeting in Hopkinsville, reported prospects of a good crop up to last week in April.

Strawberries to be sold through cooperatives include 3,300 acres in the McCracken county association, 800 acres in the Simpson county association, 400 to 500 acres in Ohio county, 200 acres in Warren county, 200 acres in Pulaski county, 60 acres in the association at Oakland, and several hundred acres in an association with headquarters at Portland, Ore.

Association managers and county farm agents discussed producing and selling problems at the Hopkinsville meeting. Emphasis was placed on quality, and the need of growers grading their berries when picking, in order to reduce handling costs.

E. A. Johnson, representing the market department of the College of Agriculture, presented figures indicating that cost of cooperative selling of strawberries in Kentucky ranged from $24 to $30 a car load, with an average cost of about $30. Managers of all associations expect to be able to reduce this charge in 1932.

RECOMMENDS DUST FOR TOBACCO FLEA BEETLES

Reports received at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky indicate that flea beetles are beginning to damage tobacco in the beds. Prof. W. A. Price, state entomologist, recommends dusting the plants with a dust mixture of one part of Paris green and five parts of lead of arsenate, mixing the two thoroughly. Dust at the rate of one-half pound to 100 square yards of plant bed. If flea beetles appear after the plants are set in the field, apply the same dust at the rate of three pounds per acre of newly set plants, and four to six pounds per acre when the plants are half grown or larger.

CHICKEN HELP
IN FARM LIVING

A good flock of chickens can be made to contribute much to the family living, and should be found on practically every farm, suggests J. E. Humphrey of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. He has written a circular called, "Chickens Help You to Live at Home," which is being used in the live-at-home campaign being sponsored by the College, through its extension division, including county and home agents.

Five hens for every member of the family, if given proper care, will furnish eggs for summer and fall, and some to preserve for winter, says Mr. Humphrey. Ten hens set on 14 or 15 eggs should furnish 25 fryers, a few roosters and 20 to 25 pullets to be kept as layers for next year.

The circular gives suggestions for caring for the flock, including setting hens, baby chicks and layers. Directions are given for mixing scratch feeds, laying mash and baby chick feeds.

REPORT CUTWORM
DAMAGE TO CROPS

Clay-backed cutworms, often mistaken for army worms, are injuring clover, alfalfa, small grain and tobacco plants in several counties, according to reports received at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky. The department of entomology recommends the use of a poison bran bait made of 25 pounds of bran, a pound of Paris green, two quarts of cheap molasses and enough water to moisten. This is scattered over fields at the rate of 12 to 15 pounds to the acre and on plant beds at the rate of 4 pounds to 100 square yards of bed.

TO DEMONSTRATE GRADES OF LAMBS

The Bourbon Stock Yards Company of Louisville has invited members of the Kentucky Sheep and Wool Growers Association, the College of Agriculture and all lamb producers to cooperate in a meeting on Friday, May 27th, for the purpose of defining and demonstrating the system of grades under which lambs will be sold at the Bourbon yards this year.

Packet buyers will demonstrate the various grades of lambs in order to give farmers an opportunity to become familiar with these grades. A local packer will slaughter lambs representing the different grades and have the carcasses on display.

The meeting, which will be held in the Exchange Building at the Bourbon Stock Yards, will be of general interest to all producers and other persons interested in the marketing of lambs. The program in full follows:

10 A. M.—Address of Welcome, E. L. German, president of the Bourbon Stock Yard Company.

1932 "Showdown" Issue on a "Showdown Product" W. A. Bell,
Bourbon Stock Yards.

10:45—Grading the lamb for Year Lamb, R. C. Miller, College of Agriculture.

11—Demonstration of lamb grades by packer buyers.

1 P. M.—Grading of lambs by farmers.

3—Examination and discussion of carcass display.

3:30—General Discussion.

CROWN ROT DISEASE
INJURES RED CLOVER

Red clovers from various regions, growing on the Experiment Station farm at Lexington, are strikingly different in stands this spring as the result of dying that occurred during the late winter and spring. The cause, however, was not winter-killing, but a disease commonly known as crown rot. Unadapted red clovers have but 10 to 20 per cent of their last fall's stand remaining alive and uninfected, while 75 to 80 per cent of the plants of adapted clovers are uninjured and 90 to 95 per cent are still alive.

Last winter was unusually favorable for the development of crown rot because of almost continuous mild weather. For this reason the disease is more severe than usual, though it has caused much injury to unadapted clovers in the past. This disease will continue to be destructive until June 1, or until the weather is warm. The disease can be recognized by the presence of black, hard masses of the fungus imbedded in the crown or roots of plants which have been dead for some time. Alfalfa, sweet clover also are susceptible to this disease.

BURN LIME IN CASEY

A kiln of 60 tons of limestone was recently burned overnight on the farm of J. E. Emerson in Casey county. Rocks and logs were piled by farmers, and the fire started about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The next morning Mr. Emerson had 30 tons of burned lime to apply to his land. This amount of burned lime will treat 30 acres.

MARSHALL COUNTY MAN
TERRACES WHOLE FARM

A. L. McGregor, a Marshall county farmer, recently completed the terracing of his entire farm. He plans to apply limestone, and rotate the land in wheat, clover and pasture, until the soil has been rebuilt.

Mr. McGregor reports that he had about abandoned hope of renewing the fertility of his farm when County Agent E. P. Tichenor began terracing work in his community. Much of his farm had become gullied and grown up in brush, briars and weeds.

The extension farm engineer from the College of Agriculture and the county agent gave Mr. McGregor instructions in the use of terracing tools and machinery, and he continued the work until his whole farm had been terraced.

Half of the land in Marshall county should be terraced, Mr. McGregor wrote to the College of Agriculture, University of Ky.

SANITATION NEEDED
IN TURKEY RAISING

Farmers who would be successful in turkey raising must learn how to avoid diseases and parasites, declares Dr. J. Holmes Martin, of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

This means that turkeys are not raised with chickens, and that their range is rotated in order to avoid soil contamination. Turkeys cannot be raised with chickens year after year, due to the fact that chickens carry the small organism that causes blackhead, the disease that does so much damage to turkeys.

Dr. Martin emphasizes the importance of raising young turkeys free from worms. Many turkey raisers use a coop for each turkey hen and brood and move the coop every day. In this way the poulters are kept on clean ground. Plans for making a movable coop are published in circular No. 217, which can be obtained from county agents.

From the College of Agriculture

Where space is limited and a change of ground cannot be made daily, some farmers divide a field into four lots. The young turkeys are allowed to run in one lot for 10 days and then shifted to the next lot, and so on every 10 days. In this way each lot is unoccupied for 30 days, during which time most of the danger from disease and worms is eliminated.

A new circular called "Turkey Talk," written by Dr. Martin, contains information of value to turkey raisers. Copies may be obtained from county and home agents or by writing to the College.

Three hundred dollars in premiums will be divided among 4-H club members exhibiting at the Alexandria fair Sept. 1-3.

Graves county farmers are receiving 34 to 40 cents a bushel for corn fed to hogs, while the cash price is 22 to 24 cents.

HAMILTON SILVER LEAGUES

We met last Wednesday April 20 for our regular club meeting.

A program was rendered by the club.

The Group captains gave reports on all the groups. All projects are progressing nicely.

Mrs. Jones, Mrs. Edwards, and Mr. Fortner were present at this meeting. Mr. Fortner made a speech on Poultry and Live Stock Projects.

Only the NEW NuGRAPE
Has Their Delicious Flavor

You'll admit there is a goodness in the flavor of grapes—and that's why the New NuGrape is different from all artificial flavors—different as gold and brass.

In a certain valley, made rich and productive by reason of the moisture, in season, from surrounding hills—a famous brand of grapes is raised. The vineyards are renowned for the rich, wine-like flavor of the great purple clusters of fruit. And it has been our obligation to YOU, to transport that natural delicacy of flavor—to your home—to places where soft drinks are sold.

Alice Joy, New Radio Star, Conquers Theatrical Jinx

SOME theaters are known in circles as "jinx" houses and they believe that plays opening in these and such houses are doomed to failure. The same is true of some radio stations. Several of the best known radio celebrities absolutely refuse to perform in stations they believe are "jinxed."

Alice Joy, whose voice is heard by millions as she presides six nights a week on the new Prince Albert Quarter Hour program over the NBC-WEAF chain, faced just such an ill-omened station when she made her debut on that program. It was with a great deal of trepidation that she faced the microphone on that first night, but now she has overcome the fear and has regained a great deal of the self-confidence that she lost on that first night.

The studio that held such terrors for Miss Joy is the NBC air theater in what was formerly the New Amsterdam roof. It is reserved for big openings and the more spectacular radio events because of the fact that a large audience can be accommodated there.

Miss Joy learned to fear the place before it was a radio studio. It was several years ago when Gene Buck was directing the show run there by that great gladiator of American feminine beauty, Florence Ziegfeld. Buck heard Miss Joy sing and gave her a job in the show. "Dressed as a street waltz and with her hair in long curls, Alice went before the sophisticated supper crowd and sang several ballads over the clatter of dishes as the waiters moved among the tables. This unusual noise disconcerted her, and she stormed from the stage in tears and vowed that she would never again sing before such an audience. She handed in her costume and thus lost a chance to make good with one of the most important theatrical producers. And that is just the reason that Alice Joy prefers radio work. She is sure that when she starts a song she can sing it through without any interruptions.

SPEAKER GARNER SHOWING LEADERSHIP OF A TRUE AMERICAN

In the House of Representatives Thursday, April 7, 1932.

The patriotism and leadership of John N. Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was never shown to better advantage than just a few days ago when he came down from the Speaker's rostrum and, standing in the well of the House, stated the time had come for united action to frame a tax bill that would balance the Budget. He declared he was a patriot above all else; that he had rather see this deficit in the Government's finances taken care of than for any other action of Congress. He further said that if Congress adjourned without providing this revenue there would not be a bank in the United States within 60 days that could pay its depositors in full. He pointed out that already European countries were selling the American dollar, and if Congress did not meet the crisis our financial system would be ruined. These were strong words. They hit like cannon balls. They came from a man who has done his best to guide legislation in the proper channels. He stated he had always opposed the sales tax, but it was taken by the Ways and Means Committee as the most feasible proposition. Now that the House had rejected that plan, he pleaded with them to suggest, at least, some plan that could be accepted.

Speaker Garner never had risen to greater heights than he did on this occasion. Here he was not Speaker of the House but Representative Garner, of Texas, a patriot asking that his country be saved from ruin and that her financial credit be kept at par throughout the world. Space writers have been sending out dispatches from Washington telling of his decline, that his leadership had failed and that his presidential boom had been flattened out. We do not believe Mr. Garner has ever wanted a presidential boom. He has been too much engrossed in handling legislation and serving as Speaker to play politics. He has repeatedly refused to let his name be used in the various States. We do not believe he has any other object in view but to serve his people as Speaker. If the call should come to him to serve as President, he would accept, the same as any ambitious citizen would feel duty bound to go where his fellow citizens sent him.

When he concluded his remarks to the House he asked every Member present who would serve their country with him in providing for balancing the Budget to stand. Everyone arose. Not a single one kept his seat. He then declared his intention of remaining on the floor during the sessions until the tax measure was named. This he does not have to do by virtue of being Speaker. He can do this if he desires, and he means to exercise his leadership and do all that is possible to maintain the credit of his country. We do not see how any man's power has waned who serves as Speaker Garner is serving. We do not see the need of sending out dispatches about his failure as a great Speaker.

The only excuse for this is that certain intestine fear he will be recognized by his party in its national convention and made "the nominee." He has always opposed the special interests and his service in Congress has shown him to be for the little fellow. He opposed during the Coolidge regime the lowering of the income rates, but forced the ones more able to pay to contribute.

No man who serves as Mr. Garner is serving can fail. This simple, friendly man, who punched cattle on the Texas range and studied law at night, is a self-made fellow. He has seen the seamy side of life, and he can not be coerced into betraying his countrymen. Because he has reached a position of power and affluence does not mean he has forgotten those less fortunate who are still working and striving to make ends meet. We do not know whether Mr. Garner had a boom or not. We do not care. But to us he has not lost his power, and our admiration for him continues.

We believe him sincere and are positive in our convictions that he has never let the glamor of the Presidency sway him one particle in his patriotic endeavor to serve as a Member or Speaker of the House. So often men are misjudged and their judges pass opinions upon them wherein their own prejudices and dislikes warp their thoughts. Speaker Garner is above all else a patriotic American citizen, and his leadership will continue to be of the highest type. He is serving the American people without regard to party affiliations.—Congressional Record.

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST AT CONSTANCE, KY.

The loyalty of the members of the church has been demonstrated again by the attendance at the church service Sunday morning May 1st. At that service the young people presented another pleasant work was well done and the lesson taught by this play was well worth the time and effort. Mrs. George Kottmyer is training some of these young folks in another pageant to be given at the beginning of the service Sunday evening May 15th. More than sixty people attended the evening service. If you are not attending regularly, some where else we want you to feel that we have a welcome for you. Come and bring your friends and enjoy the programs. Good singing at every service.

A special MOTHER'S DAY program is being arranged for the morning service May 8th. All the mothers of Constance and neighborhood should be present at that service. The memory of Mother is sacred to all, especially if Christ ruled her life.

Limited Appreciation

A small girl in the north end received from her grandmother in Cleveland, the other day, a pin cushion for a birthday gift. The gift didn't evoke great rejoicing but the child's parents insisted that a letter of thanks be sent to grandma. Suitable expressions of gratitude were suggested. As finally written, the letter read: "Dear Grandma—I thank you very much for the nice pin cushion. It was just what I needed, but not very much."—Detroit Free Press.

Days of the Week

The week consisting of seven days is a unit of time which dates from prehistoric antiquity. Each of the seven days corresponds to one of the seven moving heavenly bodies then known. Sunday and Monday are named after the sun and moon; Tuesday was named for Mars (Tues is Norse) day; Wednesday, Mercury's (Woden's) day; Thursday, Jupiter's (Thor's) day; Friday, Venus' (Freia's) day, and Saturday, Saturn's day.

The After-Dinner Coffee

By Jane Rogers

True serving of the after-dinner coffee should be something of a ceremony, a fitting finale to a delicious, well-served meal. It may be served either at the dining table or in the living room, whichever the hostess prefers.

The latter procedure has much to recommend it. It gives both family and guests a chance to relax in the comfortable living room chairs while sipping the beverage that nature has thoughtfully provided as a tonic for our nerves. Shaded lights, and perhaps firelight, reflected from the polished silver of the service, provide a pleasant setting for a charming hostess engaged in a gracious act of hospitality.

Candy should always be served with the coffee. Mints, either plain or chocolate covered, are usually considered the most appropriate. Aside from the fact that the flavors of appropriate candies blend deliciously with the beverage, there is a sound dietetic reason for their presence.

Good digestion depends upon a proper supply of the juices which the system manufactures for the purpose of reducing the foods we eat to a form that it can assimilate. Science has shown that a sweet snack following the meal—a sort of second dessert—stimulates the flow of these juices and aids digestion.

Peppermint Creams

Put one and a half cups of sugar in a saucepan, add one-half cup boiling water, and stir until sugar is dissolved. Boil for ten minutes. Remove from fire, add six drops of peppermint, and beat thoroughly until mixture is thick. Drop from tip of spoon on to buttered paper.

Water for Goldfish

A temperature between 50 and 80 degrees is best for goldfish. Avoid any sudden change in temperature. If water is above 85 degrees in summer watch the fish and if they seem distressed reduce the number of fish in each aquarium and be sure the water is aerated. Do not put ice in the water. Cooled water may be fed in gradually if temperature is dangerously high.

World's Forest Area

The present forest area of the world, in round figures, is about 7,500,000,000 acres, which is 22 per cent of the total land area, exclusive of the polar regions. The area of actually productive forest, however, is probably one-fourth less than this amount, or 5,500,000,000 acres, which is 16 per cent of the land area.

Mistletoe's Growth

The life history of the mistletoe is just like that of any flowering woody plant. It bears flowers in due time the berries follow, each with its seed. The berries are deposited by birds or blown down by rains upon the branches, where the seeds germinate, and if the seedling becomes established upon the branch it grows again to the age of producing flowers and seeds, and so on from generation to generation.

The term "Heart of England" is applied to Warwickshire, the middle county of England.

Trout in Abundance

It is estimated the 250-lakey mountain lakes and streams of Glacier National park contain the densest trout population of any area on the continent. In twenty years the government has stocked more than 80,000,000 fingerlings of all varieties.

Curiosities of Nature

In the Mount National forest of Utah there are to be found huge spheres of stone which have been formed naturally in some unaccountable manner. The stones are perfectly round and are as regular as if they had been turned in a lathe.

Early Peace Societies

The first peace society of the world was founded by David Low Dodge of the United States, 1815. The Massachusetts Peace society was founded the same year and the American Peace society by William Lloyd in 1828.

Appetizing Asparagus

MAYBE there is something in this "ancient lineage and noble stock" stuff after all. Take those two old aristocrats, pineapple among fruits and asparagus among vegetables. They are different from the rank and file of their kind. There is a certain subtlety, delicacy, refinement about them that one doesn't find in other fruits and vegetables.

Rome Liked Asparagus

Asparagus was a great favorite in ancient Rome—it still is a great favorite. Only then, it was just for the wealthy and noble. Now anybody can have it at the delicious best at any time of year, for even that dry, unemotional authority the Encyclopedia of Food, says that the canned asparagus is fully as popular as the fresh vegetable.

Asparagus comes canned in a number of ways—stalks or tips in ordinary or giant sizes. Take your choice—they are all good. And as a climax here's an extra good asparagus recipe!

Asparagus au Gratin: Heat one can asparagus tips; drain. Boil four eggs hard. Arrange in buttered casserole alternate layers of asparagus and sliced eggs. Make a cheese sauce of four tablespoons butter, four tablespoons flour, the asparagus juice, milk to make two cups, one-fourth cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Pour over asparagus and cover with buttered crumbs. Brown in hot oven, 400°—ten to fifteen minutes. "Serves six."

Home Accidents Claim Big Annual Toll, Figures Show

The home that supposed haven of security, is man's most dangerous habitat, according to figures compiled by leading insurance companies and organizations interested in accident prevention.

More than 35 per cent of all accidental deaths and even a larger percentage of non-fatal accidents happen at home, these figures show, the number of such deaths reaching 30,000 a year, with more than 4,500,000 non-fatal injuries.

"Darkness" or "lack of light," is the principal cause listed for home accidents, while other conditions observed were cluttered, broken or slippery stairs, burns and scalds, cuts, and injuries by animals.

It is estimated that at least fifty per cent of all home accidents can be eliminated by the use of adequate light when moving about the premises at night.

The hazards to safety lurking in the dark are numerous and are a constant source of danger unless the way is lighted either by ordinary electric light or by portable light, such as flashlights.

Pocket lights can now be procured which operate on batteries and are so compact that they can be carried in the vest pocket or handbag, while wall lights, also operating on batteries, can be procured for dark closets, cellar stairways and other places where for safety's sake no convenience

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

The Burlington High School baseball team won their second straight victory last Friday, April 27, when they routed out the fast Hebron team by a score of 4 to 2. Hebron was picked to win the game, after the trimming they gave us two weeks ago. But you know the old saying: "He who laughs last laughs best," and was old B. H. S. laughing after the game? Ryle, who stood all through the game on the mound for B. H. S. again showed that he had the making of a good pitcher, when he struck out 11 men and allowed one to walk. His opponent, Elliott, was also doing good work, but he allowed three men to walk. Voshell was the best hitter for B. H. S. getting two hits out of four times at bat. Elliott and Dolwick led the Hebron boys with one three bagger each. Wednesday of this week Walton will play at Burlington, and on next Friday May 13th Petersburg will be seen in action on the Burlington High School grounds.

The American History Class of B. H. S. are busy writing their semester term papers. Some are preparing war maps and others are writing themes.

The Seniors are busy practicing on their play, "Tea Toper Tavern," which will be given some time in May. Make your plans to attend this play. Watch for date.

Miss Lillie Cromwell, the State Secretary of Girl Reserves, visited B. H. S. last Thursday afternoon. The Girl Reserve was well pleased to have her and enjoyed her talks and songs. We will only hope that she will come again soon, as she gave us new interest in our club.

The Corncracker 4-H Club of Constance, met at the school house Thursday afternoon with H. R. Forkner and club leaders for the fourth meeting of the club. The club voted down a proposition to have a club picnic with other clubs of the county, but did not vote to prevent any club member from attending such picnic. The next club meeting will be just before "Camp Week."

PARASITE CONTROL DEMONSTRATIONS PLANNED

Seven stomach worm control demonstrations in sheep planned in five community programs of work will be conducted among Boone county farmers this year according to county agent H. R. Forkner. The entire flock will be treated once each month regularly from May until freezing weather in the fall in the above demonstrations.

Parasites probably cause more trouble and loss in sheep than any other one factor. A combination of Bluestone and Black Leaf 40 drench will be used. This combination under experimental conditions has given the most satisfactory results.

DAILY SUNLIGHT DEMONSTRATION

Although the Holy Sunlight Mission talks have had the honor of being to many different speakers, we have never felt as privileged as we have this last week.

Our great reason for gladness was namely Bro. Hitchcock with his wonderful instructive, enlightening messages.

His theme subject for the week has been "The Second Coming of Christ."

He has spoken on this subject in several ways for instance Sunday night he told us how greatly neglected this subject most always is.

Monday night we heard about the "Second Coming" in connection with the "Seven Dispensations."

Tuesday night Bro. Hitchcock endeavored to make us understand just "WHO" is coming.

Wednesday night the program was somewhat varied, the subject being foreign missionary work.

Bro. Hitchcock held the congregation spell-bound as our minds traveled over foreign fields.

Thursday night back again to the "Second Coming in Relation to the Eight Covenants."

Friday night the "Gentiles" and their relation to the "Second Coming" was most fully explained.

Saturday night we were again privileged to travel to foreign lands for Bro. Hitchcock had brought with him a magnificent map, showing all the places where he had traveled in his long years of work, relating to us many peculiar stories as well as several pitiful scenes.

Just another treat Saturday night was this Bro. and Sister Hitchcock had brought with them a suit case of articles from foreign lands, including kimono's, shoes, Chinese chop sticks, pictures, candle sticks and the like.

Now in regard to the special singing of the week allow me to say a few words voicing the heartfelt appreciation of all the folks who had the honor of hearing the "Trio" of young ladies from God's Bible School, who on last Sunday evening and again on Thursday night when two of the Trio returned to sing for us.

How many of you readers have ever heard anyone sing in the Japanese language?

It was an inspiration to say the least, for us to try to do our bit for foreign missionary work when we heard several old familiar hymns sung in Japanese by Bro. and Sister Hitchcock.

Among the songs they sang were "Glory to His Name" Tell It To Jesus and "Lord I'm Coming Home."

We have had other visitors from Covington and other places during this week for which we are indeed glad.

Sunday afternoon we are to have a Bible Study Hour in connection with our regular Sunday School Service.

Regular services Tuesday and Friday evenings at the usual hour, also preaching services Sunday evening and Sunday school services Sunday afternoon at 2:45.

Fathers and Mothers come and bring the children so you can have the pleasure of being in the adults class.

Children remember that next Sunday is Mother's Day.

How can anyone of us "Honor" our parents more than by trying to be a better Christian boy or girl for them?

RAISE QUALITY GRAPES

Boone county growers can raise excellent quality of grapes that will ripen on the vines and sell as a first class market product provided a proper spray schedule is followed. Spraying for control of black rot and insects is essential for the production of quality fruit. The spray schedule for grapes is simple as only one spray Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead are used.

Bordeaux mixture is used at the rate of 2 pounds of Bluestone, 4 pounds of slaked lime or 6 pounds of hydrated lime to 50 gallons of water. 1 1/2 pounds of arsenate of lead is added to the above mixture. The above spray should be applied at least four times during the season the first just before the blossoms appear, the second as soon as the blossoms fall, the third and fourth at two weeks intervals respectively.

Those farmers who are interested in growing grapes should secure Extension circular No. 209 from the county agent's office.

DELEGATE ATTENDS TRUCK GROWERS CONFERENCE

Mr. Frank Dolwick, of Constance, represented Boone county as executive committee member of the Truck Crops Growers and Farmers Alliance in a conference before the Cincinnati Council. The conference was arranged by the growers in an attempt to work out certain improvements in the marketing of farmers truck and fruit crops on the Cincinnati market.

STATE CLUB LEADERS TO JUDGE CONTESTS

Friday night the "Gentiles" and their relation to the "Second Coming" was most fully explained.

Saturday night we were again privileged to travel to foreign lands for Bro. Hitchcock had brought with him a magnificent map, showing all the places where he had traveled in his long years of work, relating to us many peculiar stories as well as several pitiful scenes.

Just another treat Saturday night was this Bro. and Sister Hitchcock had brought with them a suit case of articles from foreign lands, including kimono's, shoes, Chinese chop sticks, pictures, candle sticks and the like.

Now in regard to the special singing of the week allow me to say a few words voicing the heartfelt appreciation of all the folks who had the honor of hearing the "Trio" of young ladies from God's Bible School, who on last Sunday evening and again on Thursday night when two of the Trio returned to sing for us.

How many of you readers have ever heard anyone sing in the Japanese language?

It was an inspiration to say the least, for us to try to do our bit for foreign missionary work when we heard several old familiar hymns sung in Japanese by Bro. and Sister Hitchcock.

Among the songs they sang were "Glory to His Name" Tell It To Jesus and "Lord I'm Coming Home."

We have had other visitors from Covington and other places during this week for which we are indeed glad.

Sunday afternoon we are to have a Bible Study Hour in connection with our regular Sunday School Service.

Regular services Tuesday and Friday evenings at the usual hour, also preaching services Sunday evening and Sunday school services Sunday afternoon at 2:45.

Fathers and Mothers come and bring the children so you can have the pleasure of being in the adults class.

Children remember that next Sunday is Mother's Day.

How can anyone of us "Honor" our parents more than by trying to be a better Christian boy or girl for them?

RAISE QUALITY GRAPES

Boone county growers can raise excellent quality of grapes that will ripen on the vines and sell as a first class market product provided a proper spray schedule is followed. Spraying for control of black rot and insects is essential for the production of quality fruit. The spray schedule for grapes is simple as only one spray Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead are used.

Bordeaux mixture is used at the rate of 2 pounds of Bluestone, 4 pounds of slaked lime or 6 pounds of hydrated lime to 50 gallons of water. 1 1/2 pounds of arsenate of lead is added to the above mixture. The above spray should be applied at least four times during the season the first just before the blossoms appear, the second as soon as the blossoms fall, the third and fourth at two weeks intervals respectively.

Those farmers who are interested in growing grapes should secure Extension circular No. 209 from the county agent's office.

Massachusetts Results Long Ago Discounted By Roosevelt

(BY FRED BOLMER)
Washington, D. C., for The Boone County Recorder

Republicans and anti-Roosevelt are making much over the success of Alfred E. Smith in the Massachusetts Democratic primaries. Probably that is "good politics". If there is any such thing as goodness in politics, naturally, nothing would so warm the cockles of Republican hearts as a party split over Smith and Roosevelt—even if it did result in the nomination of a compromise candidate in extraordinary circumstances stronger than either of them. The Democratic anti-Roosevelt are cheering the outcome in the Bay State, but their cheers remind one very much of the shouts of the backers of a "long shot" that is trailing the field in a horse race.

As a matter of fact, conservative political observers here long ago discounted the result in Massachusetts. In the first place, that State was one of eight—one of two north of the Mason and Dixon line—to give its electoral vote to the ex-Governor of New York in 1928, and in Massachusetts Smith has been and is more or less the idol of his party. In the second place, the fight in Massachusetts was only secondarily one between Smith and Roosevelt. Primarily it was between those in control of the party organization and those who desired to usurp that control. As usual, the "ins" prevailed. True, a 3 to 1 victory for Smith was as unexpected as it appeared formidable, but there are those who maintain that had it been 10 to 1—or practically unanimous, so far as that is concerned—only fanatical worshippers could reduce any particular augmentation of the stability of the "stop-Roosevelt" dam, much less justify hope that Smith by any possibility could be nominated.

At this writing, returns from the Pennsylvania primaries are incomplete, but undoubtedly Roosevelt is leading and will have the votes of a majority of the delegates. It may be true, as claimed by many, that the results of the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania primaries have greatly intensified competition for the Democratic presidential nomination. They maintain that Smith by any possibility could be nominated.

At this writing, returns from the Pennsylvania primaries are incomplete, but undoubtedly Roosevelt is leading and will have the votes of a majority of the delegates. It may be true, as claimed by many, that the results of the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania primaries have greatly intensified competition for the Democratic presidential nomination. They maintain that Smith by any possibility could be nominated.

Those attempting to make political capital out of the result of the Massachusetts primaries further assert that the rejection of Roosevelt rather than the acceptance of Smith by the Massachusetts Democrats, and the indicated division of party voters in Pennsylvania, will probably give great impetus to the movement to look outside of New York for an acceptable candidate, and that the endorsement of Smith strengthens his hold as the actual leader of the Democratic party, calculated to make him dictator of the final decision of the Democratic national convention.

Well, maybe so. Republicans here are looking upon the performance with what is intended to evidence mild amusement, but undoubtedly coupled with not a little trepidation. Most observers are inclined to agree that Tuesday's primary contests, with their sweeping victory for former Governor Smith in Massachusetts and a split in the big Pennsylvania delegation, means that the New York delegation itself holds the power to "stop" its own Governor and perhaps to accomplish his defeat. However, it is also agreed that Roosevelt's defeat in one State out of a dozen or more in which he has battled for delegates in no sense has crushed the movement for his nomination. That movement may slow down, but nobody here argues that it has been blocked.

It is pretty well conceded here that if harmony is threatened in the Democratic National Convention, harmony will prevail in the Republican national gathering in Chicago, except for the prohibition issue, and even on that question the Republicans are seeking a way out satisfactory to all. President Hoover, it has been definitely determined by this time in the minds of practically all the Republican leaders, will have no real opposition for renomination.

Furthermore, some of the Republicans who were expressing a hope that something or some one would turn up to take the nomination away from the President are changing their minds. They are expressing the opinion that perhaps, after all, Mr. Hoover will make the strongest candidate the party can put forward. It has become increasingly evident, they say, that the Republican campaign in the year will lead down a blind alley. The Democrats have not advanced a "constructive" program to help the country out of the morass of business depression.

President Hoover, the Republicans urge, is the only leader to put forward a real program, and, furthermore, the Democrats in Congress have followed his leadership. In this way, the Republicans believe they can answer the Democratic charge that there has been no leadership evinced by the Hoover administration. So far as the vice presidential nomination is concerned, it looks as though, in the final showdown, Vice President Curtis will have no more real opposition than President Hoover.

WASHINGTON SNAP SHOTS

Taken by The Helm News Service

Addressing the Governors of the States assembled at Richmond, Virginia, President Hoover forcibly presented the most serious problem confronting the country. It is the mounting costs of all government, Federal, State and local, which are breaking the backs of the taxpayers. The figures are startling. Before the World War 8 per cent of the national income went for this purpose. In the succeeding period of prosperity the proportion jumped to 15 per cent. Incomes were greatly increased but they could not keep pace with the growing expense of government. Today, with business depressed and when the cry for economy was never more heartfelt and insistent, taxes are taking a toll of 20 per cent of the people's earnings.

Two of the nation's leading fiscal experts, Secretary of the Treasury Mills and Governor Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board led a smashing attack upon the $2,000,000,000 soldier bonus as an inflationary measure which would prolong the depression. Effect of issuance of $2,000,000,000 in currency to pay the ex-soldier's "will be to impair public and private credit to destroy confidence and to prolong drafted better calculated to destroy confidence and to prolong hard times." Mills told the House Ways and Means Committee. He declared: "No measure was ever drafted better calculated to destroy confidence than the one now before you. Enact it into law and you will stifle all hope of an early economic recovery and write the most lamentable chapter in American financial history."

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee were served with notice that women will fight to the last ditch against American entry into the League Court, by the National Woman's party. The committee held a regular meeting recently but did not once mention the court. There is general agreement to sidetrack the issue in the Senate until next session.

With galleries crowded by Government employees facing drastic pay slashes, the elimination of holidays and premiums and other curtailments the House engaged in a bitter battle over the omnibus economy bill, which, it is claimed, would save $200,000,000 in Government expenditures. The question of adopting a special rule, generally declared to be a "gag" rule, which would make in order in the legislative appropriation bill an amendment of 71 pages of highly controversial legislation affecting all phases of the Government, was vigorously debated. Leaders on both Democratic and Republican sides have broken party lines in vigorous appeals either for adoption of the rule or its rejection.

Secretary Stimson is leaving Geneva a sadder, but a wiser man. His mission of Franco-German mediation was wrecked at the eleventh hour by French Premier Tardieu's inability to meet the American Secretary of State, the British prime minister, the German chancellor and the Italian foreign minister under Col. Stimson's aegis. Instead of presiding over a "Big Five" conference, as he hoped to do, Secretary Stimson will leave Geneva and return directly to the United States.

Confronting his disappointment, he contents himself with the reflection that his trip does not represent wasted time, because it has given him first-hand knowledge of European leaders and their problems. Close acquaintance can hardly have strengthened Col. Stimson's faith in the Old World's peace protestations. The cancellation of M. Tardieu's Geneva visit was officially caused by the premier's attack of laryngitis. Europe has a word for the indisposition that overtakes statesmen at critical moments. It is known as "diplomatic sickness."

Recent appalling crimes against childhood and the home have aroused American women to the dangers attending the failure of law enforcement agencies to cope with organized crime. The demand that law shall be at least as efficient as its violators is rising in volume throughout the country. Vigilant and intelligent women are at work on the problem. In tens of thousands of homes the men are urged to attack this problem of suppressing modern crime. Out of the outraged souls of American women may come the organization of society in such form as to put an end to the regime of banditry, kidnapping, and murder which endangers American liberty.

The National Society, United States Daughters of 1812, concluded its 40th associate council after reports and adoption of resolutions. The policy of the Government in refusing diplomatic recognition to Russia was approved in one of the resolutions, which also opposed carrying on any trade with the Soviet. The resolution read, in part:

"We are not only unalterably opposed to recognition, but to any trade relations with the Communist dictatorship, as free American labor cannot compete successfully with the forced labor products of Soviet Russia." This resolution also urged "the strengthening of the immigration laws to prevent the admission of Communists into this country and providing for the deportation of alien Communists now in the United States."

An active newspaperman, man stood on the floor of the Senate and looked self-consciously at the press gallery and then was sworn in as the new Senator from Georgia. John Sanford Cohen, editor of the Atlanta Journal, stepped into the unexpired term of the late Senator Harris while a small group of prominent Georgians looked on from the members' gallery. Last Minute Luncheon Ideas That Have Genuine Appeal

Director, Home Food Institute

ONLY an hour until luncheon or supper time! How the hours have flown! And we have no plans as to menu, so we scurry about frantically to produce the best possible meal in the time remaining. Is there a housekeeper anywhere who does not have this experience occasionally? However, just a little extra thought and a well stocked shelf of prepared and semi-prepared foods, which keep indefinitely, enable us to serve, in a short time, interesting meals that the family welcomes. Below are a few recipes for quickly prepared dishes, especially appreciated at this busy season:

Deviled Rabbit: Two tablespoons butter; 2 tablespoons flour; 1 medium can Cream of Celery Soup; 1 5 oz. can deviled ham; 2 hard cooked eggs; buttered croutons or crisp crackers. Melt butter, add flour, and when blended, add soup and ham. Cook until soup thickens slightly; add diced hard cooked eggs and serve on croutons or crackers. Garnish with slices of Spanish Manzanilla Olives or parsley.

Winter Supper Salad: One medium size can Oven Baked Red Kidney Beans; 1 cup very finely diced carrots; 3 tablespoons India or Fresh Cucumber Relish; 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion; 1/2 cup Mayonnaise Salad Dressing. Place beans in strainer and run cold water over them. Drain. Add carrots, pickle relish, onion and mayonnaise salad dressing. Toss lightly together and chill. Busy Beans

CERTAIN foods are just chockful of energy—beans are one of them. It is pretty hard to get as much nourishment and downright "vital" from an equal quantity of any other food. A man can do a lot of work on beans, a boy can hike a long way on them, and a woman can withstand an avalanche of household wear and tear without jangled nerves if she has lunched well on this wholesome article of diet. Beans are economical, also, one of the most economical of foods.

All Varieties Canned You can buy them for so little, and the canned product is so good, that it is rarely worth while to spend time upon the preparation of the raw beans. There are canned baked beans, pork and beans, red kidney beans, refutge beans, beans with tomato sauce, and wax beans. Usually they may be just warmed, perhaps seasoned, and served, but there are many delicious recipes of which beans are an important ingredient, such as Hurry-Up New England Bean Pot: Dice one green pepper and fry for three minutes in two tablespoons fat. Add one No. 3 can tomatoes, and cook three minutes more. Add one 8-ounce can carrots, diced, one can New England oven-baked beans and one 16-ounce can corned beef, season and heat thoroughly.

The Family Garden

TOMATOES
(By John B. Gardner, Homebody
College of Agriculture)

Now is early tomato setting time, even though there may still be some danger from late frost. These gardeners who are fortunate enough to have started their earliest plants in a warm bed in February are in line to pick their first tomatoes in a late June or certainly in the first week of July. Others may still make up some of the time they have lost through not having been so provident by using plants shipped in from the south or raised by growers who have hot bed or green house equipment. The varieties Earliana or Bonny Best are the ones to use for the earliest tomatoes.

Some gardeners will use plants that have grown in corners of tobacco plant beds, and these will serve as the second-early crop on which to begin picking about August 1, or a few days before. The varieties to use for this crop are Bonny Best, Chalk's Jewel, and John Baer.

Still another crop of tomatoes should be raised, from which the canning supply should come. This may be started now, the seed sown in a row in the open garden. The seedlings will be ready to set about June 1, and picking should begin toward the end of August. This lot of plants should be of the typical canning varieties, Greater Baltimore or Stone, or, better still, Matchless, the reddest and meatiest variety of them all. Its only drawback is that its yield is somewhat lower than the others.

TOMATO WILT

In many gardens it is difficult, if not altogether impossible, to raise satisfactory tomatoes because of the wilt. The symptoms of this disease are the unthriftness of the plants and their dying at about the time that the first fruits ought to begin ripening. There is no help for this trouble but to use varieties that are not subject to it. Those varieties corresponding in season to those just given are: Bonny OTay and Bonnet Topper, for early tomatoes; Marglobe, for mid-season tomatoes; and Morton, for the canning supply.

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

Tomatoes need balanced fertilization. Some nitrogen is needed to grow the plant, but not too much, else fruit-setting and ripening are affected. To induce blooming and the setting of fruit, phosphorus is needed. Those gardeners who are in position to get stable manure may make it an efficient fertilizer for tomatoes by adding to each ton, 50 pounds of 16 per cent superphosphate, plowing it under or disked it in. Gardeners who have difficulty in securing enough manure to cover their gardens will have recourse to the use of complete fertilizer; analysis of 4-10-4, 3-8-6 are good. When complete fertilizer is used, it should be broadcast at the rate of 1 pound to 40 square feet of space, and disked or dragged in. It should be noted that fertilizer furnishes plant food only; the soil should be made workable and mellow by turning under humus material.

The earliest tomatoes should be set in rows 3 feet apart, and 2 feet apart in the row. They should be staked and pruned to single-stem, and plants should be beheaded at the fifth cluster. Later tomatoes should be spaced wider; 4 feet each way is usually right. To get around the loss from rotting of the fruits that touch the ground, it will be a move a gardener to spread a mulch of about 4 inches of straw about the plants. Mulching delays ripening somewhat, but except for the earliest crop, extreme speed of ripening is not of great moment.

ISAAC AND HIS WELLS
Genesis 26:12-25

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D. Isaac, the son of Abraham and father of Jacob, is just an average man in comparison. There is, however, much that is interesting in this patriarch. He was the son of promise and was born when Abraham was close to the century mark. The tragic event in his life is when he was about to be offered as a sacrifice by the father on Mount Moriah, in Jerusalem, which later became the sight of the Temple, Genesis 22:1-14. A fine love story is developed when a proxy is sent back to the old home country to get a wife for Isaac. Rebekah is the fair maid who was found by the side of the well. It is interesting to note that likeness to the love of Isaac and Rebekah is mentioned in the marriage service of today.

Great herds of cattle and flocks of sheep were the possession of this progenitor of the Hebrew race. These animals needed water and prolonged strife developed over this with the Philistines who were the earlier inhabitants in the land. Abraham had dug numerous wells in his day but the Philistines, out of pure contrivance filled up these sources of water supply. Thereby they endangered their own cattle. Now read through the lesson text and see how Isaac departed from Abimelech rather than create trouble by insisting on his rights at the water supplies. Then, in turn, three wells were dug as he migrated but in two cases the watchful enemy managed to fill up the holes. A name is given to each well which describes the trouble that took place there. Finally a well was dug at Rehoboth and the gentle patience of Isaac was rewarded for trouble ceased at that point. The Golden Text is rich in its meaning and declares: "A soft answer turneth away wrath; but a grievous word stirreth up anger," Proverbs 15:1.

Seats Now Selling
For 500-Mile Race

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — With more drivers on hand earlier than ever before and with race fans purchasing their seats with spirited alacrity, there is every indication that the Twentieth International 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, May 30, will be the most important of all the thrilling events in this spectacular and inspiring classic. Juan Gaudino, South American champion, already is here with his car, spending more time learning the way around the tricky Speedway corners than he is learning the language of the land. "If I can win the race speaking Spanish," he relates through an interpreter, "I'll spend the prize money in English." Gaudino is very popular with the American drivers.

Louis Schneider, last year's race winner, is at the track with his Bowes Seal Fast Special and will make every attempt to do that which never before has been done—win two 500-mile races in succession.

Billy Arnold, 1930 American champion, has entered and will have his car here again this year. Leading the race with less than thirty laps to go last year when an accident sent him out of the race. Several factories are making entries of teams under their own names this year.

Railroads are planning excursions with attractive rates to Indianapolis at attractive rates. Tickets are now on sale at the 444 North Capitol Avenue, Indianapolis, and T. E. "Pop" Myers, general manager of the track asserts that "mail orders receive the same prompt attention that customers receive when they purchase their tickets in person at the Speedway office."

Wayne county farmers will grow their first commercial acreage of strawberries.

A Jersey bull association has been formed in Boone county to secure good sires for dairy herds in the county.

ADD A LUXURIOUS TOUCH TO YOUR FOOD ECONOMIES

TO count our pennies, to keep food budgets down, and yet to provide tempting fare—that is real kitchen art.

That is why chocolate's popularity never wanes. For chocolate gives the simplest, most economical dessert a touch of luxury.

Petersburg, Ky.
Whereas, it was the Divine will of our Heavenly Father to call from our Woman's Missionary Society our dear Mrs. Kirkley whose sweet spirit entered the Haven of rest April 6th, 1932. Her life was like a beautiful flower blooming by the roadside sharing its beauty and fragrance with all that passed along. She was patient, loving and kind, rejoicing with the happy weeping with the sad and pointing all to the Saviour who she loved and served. When this dear one became ill she kept on smiling and praying and without a murmur or complaint answered her Master's call. Therefore be it resolved,
First, That in the passing of our beloved sister our Society loses one of its most loyal members and the community a friend who was ever ready to minister to the sick and needy. Her sacrificial life was a benediction to all with whom she came in contact.
Second, That the Society extends to the bereaved of her family our sincere love and sympathy, praying God's sustaining grace may be sufficient.
Mrs. Leland Snyder
Mrs. J. M. Grant

The subject of this sketch was the daughter of Rev. James A. and Margaret Kirkley. She was born July 26th, 1855, and passed away April 6th, 1932.

another try at the racing game this season, but it's all over now. In the meantime, the best three-year-olds in the country are lumbering up for the coming Derby at Louisville, and it looks like a real fight right down to the finish wire. There are still 20 candidates in the field, with Top Flight the favorite, followed by Tick On, Burning Blaze, Liberty Limited, and others. Personally, we're picking Barney Goetz's "Spark Plug" to win in a walk!

Redlegs Are Home Again!
You can't blame the Cincinnati Reds for being all pepped up over the prospect of meeting the eastern clubs on the Redland grounds first, rather than tackle the easterners away from home. The Reds are very partial to Redland Field this year, and expect to cop most of the games in the coming series here as a windfall against any accident that may happen when they go East. Boston in second place now, Philadelphia, Brooklyn, and New York will all be seen in action at Cincinnati during the next two weeks. The schedule:

May 4-8-7-8, Boston Braves at Cincinnati.
May 9-10-11, Philadelphia Quakers at Cincinnati.
May 12-13-14, Brooklyn at Cincinnati.

May 15-16-17-18 New York at Cincinnati.

This gives the fighting Reds two big Sundays at home, the first with the sensational Braves on May 8, and the second with John McGraw's Giants on May 15. If the Reds can punnel the eastern clubs on this first invasion, there'll be a merry old time in the National League race from then on!

Vines Has Fans Worried

Ellsworth Vines, national tennis champion, has the net fans really worried. The champ played marvelously last winter, winning title after title, and was seemingly invincible. Lately, however, Vines has slipped; and now, with the Davis Cup matches in the foreground, Americans are wondering whether the youngster is going to hold up under the strain. He appeared hard pressed in the opening rounds of the Canadian United States zone play for the Davis Cup last week, and although he finally came out of that contest with colors still flying, a tougher opposition may put him out of the running. Wilmer Allison is playing great tennis, and in all likelihood will prove the mainstay of the U. S. team.

Reds Are Recovered At Last

The Reds looked pretty bad for a few days last week, dropping five straight games, but they finally snapped out of it and everybody is fine once again. The club dropped from fourth to seventh place during the slump, but is now back up in the race where it should be. Manager Dan Howley had some tough breaks in the illness of catcher Lombardi, outfielders Crabtree and Herman, infielders Heath, Morrissey, and Grantham; but Herman, Morrissey and Grantham are in the game again, and Crabtree and Heath will be back in a few days.

The new Redleg batting order is a terror for opposing pitchers. Douthitt leads off, followed by Geo. Grantham, then Chick Hafey, Babe Herman, Heath or Shevlin, Wally Gilbert, Lombardi or Manion, Morrissey or Durocher. Incidentally, when Mickey Heath became ill, Jimmy Shevlin, a Cincinnati boy, took over the job of playing first base and came through in a large way!

Jack Sharkey Gets Mad

Jack Sharkey, heavyweight boxing contender, is fighting mad, and doesn't care who knows it. In fact, he prefers to have people know it, because that's good publicity. When Sharkey dropped into New York the other day, he heard that the Madison Square Garden, which is promoting his coming title bout with Max Baer, had announced that the fight will draw a million dollar gate and 80,000 people. "Phooie," says Sharkey! "That gate won't be close to a million dollars, and there won't be 80,000 people in the new stadium to watch me wallop that guy, either! In fact, the new Garden won't even be completed in time for the fight, June 16!"

Injuries Hit National League

So far, 1932 has been an unlucky season for many of the National League managers. Some of the outstanding players in the game are on the sick list, and their loss has just about ruined several of the clubs, at least for the time being. The temporary loss of Pepper Martin, World Series hero, to the St. Louis Cardinals, has hurt the champs a great deal.

Chicago, Boston, and Cincinnati, however, have managed to get along even though the injuries have hit the club in the solar plexus. The Cubs are playing without the services of Cuyler, English and Grimes; Boston has lost Art Shires, the first baseman; and Cincinnati is just recovering from the absence of a half dozen of its stars. When weather is expected to bring many of the injured back into the game.

Around The Roundup

Babe Ruth has given up golf this year to conserve his energy for the ball games. The Babe has a slight case of water on the knee, but that hasn't stopped him from hitting five homers already and batting .304 for the first few weeks. A lot of players would be tickled to death to have water on the knee at that rate!

The Chicago White Sox in the American League have bolstered their infield by acquiring Johnny Hodapp from the Cleveland Indians. Bob Seeds, young outfielder, also came in the deal. Cleveland received Chalmers Cissell, the $123,000 player, and Jimmy Moore, pitcher, in exchange.

A $5 fine has already been levied under the new rule prohibiting ball players from talking to persons in the grandstands. Gabby Street, manager of the Cardinals, paid that sum for the privilege of "gabbing" the other day.

To All Persons, Firms, Or Corporations Engaged In The Business Of Operating Trucks And Buses For Hire Over The Highways Of The State of Ky.

In order that operators of motor trucks and buses might know just what the bills passed by the last session of the legislature provided for, this letter is written.

Under the provisions of this Act, trucks regardless of size, engaged in the transportation of property for hire, either as a common carrier or contract carrier, must make application for a permit and accompany such application with a fee of $25.00 by June 18th, 1932, and arrange to file schedules of freight rates between different points.

Trucks weighing under 5,500 lbs., do not have to pay the mileage tax but come under all the other provisions of this Act, including the securing of a certificate from the State Tax Commission and depositing insurance covering personal liability and property damage as well as cargo.

Daily records should be kept by all persons, firms or corporations on all buses and also on trucks that weigh more than 5,500 lbs., as to the points made and the miles run that day and after June 18th, which is the day the mileage tax goes into effect.

Hearings will be held and permits issued as fast as possible after the 18th day of June.

Yours Very Truly,
CLIFF CLAYPOOL,
Commissioner.

Today, we're selling more and more of the new improved Fleet-Wing Ethyl!

There's value plus in the new gasoline. It's a better gasoline than we ever offered before. The anti-knock standard has been raised—but you pay substantially less for it, than you did for regular gasoline a few years ago!

Lower cost doesn't always mean economy. You pay pennies more than for regular gasoline, and save dollars in operation of your car, by using the new improved Fleet-Wing Ethyl.

You save in the engine wear—wear that cuts down car life and trade-in value. You save by less frequent carbon removals. And you save by getting more power from each gallon you buy. (And after all, it's the power you get out of gasoline—the real measure of its value.)

The next time you use your car, tank up with this better gasoline. Use it and watch the saving. See for yourself, if you don't get more power per dollar from the new improved Fleet-Wing Ethyl!

BURLINGTON S. S. WELL ATTENDED SUNDAY

A beautiful May Day was last Sunday. The sun rose in the morning earlier than most people and shed its bright rays on the trees turning green with foliage. Some people in the outlying communities around Burlington did their morning chores, ate their breakfast and got ready for Sunday school. The two school buses driven by Wendel Easton and Joe Huey made their round at the usual hour with pleasing result. Bringing in passengers from the four points of the compass to the two Burlington churches.

In attendance at the Methodist were 57, at the Baptist 163 making, a grand total of 220. This was fine but more than that should and will attend. The town, itself, should be represented with its full quota of membership at each of the Sunday schools. Those not affiliating with any church should attend these services. Church attendance will cause us to feel better both here and hereafter. So let's make plans to go very Sunday while the weather is good.

Judge N. E. Riddell, L. C. Weaver, Chas. Hughes, James Ogden, Ralph Maurer and Newton Sullivan, Jr., all of Burlington, attended the ball game between the Reds and Boston Braves at Redland Field Sunday afternoon.

CONSTANCE NEXT ON HARVEST HOME SCHEDULE

Harvest Home will have as their opponents next Sunday the strong Constance team under the management of Joe Murphy, who last year was at the head of the Ludlow club. He has rounded up such stars as Wilson and Petrie, who were formerly with Reading in the International League. Earl Miller the Babe Ruth of the Northern Kentucky League and Johnny Woods and Jack Reynolds, who are well known to Boone county fans. The pitching will be taken care of by Ellis or Vasing with Woods behind the bat, while either Braun or Braddy will twirl for the home team. Pepper Stephens will be on the receiving end.

Braun has been pitching nice ball and is very ably supported by a team of the best than can be obtained in the county.

There is a great rivalry between Constance and Harvest Home, as both are Boone county teams and a great game can be expected. The game will be called promptly at 3 p. m. (Eastern Time).

Hotter, and still more tepid grows the National League campaign, and if anyone should ask you, the Cincinnati Redlegs and the Boston Braves are supplying the fireworks! With the season already well under way, the surprising performances of these two clubs are giving the League do the most expert massaging in years.

The Braves, of course, are up to their old tricks again. Almost every season the Boston Bean-eaters start out in front like real pennant contenders and lead the pack a merry old chase for several weeks before dropping back into the second division. Right now, the Braves are hanging on like grim death, bidding for a permanent first division berth; while the Reds, working under cover, are nailing the opposition right and left.

Personally, we can't figure the Braves as a first outfit, for any length of time. After watching the Reds drub the easterners at Cincinnati last week, we quickly came to the conclusion that the Braves are battling way over their heads and are due for a stock-market drop at any time. Bill McKeekie has a fighting club, but apparently lacks the real class that must be in evidence for a full summer's campaign.

The Reds, on the other hand, look like the real McCoy, and there is scarcely an expert this side of Mexico City who won't tell you that the Cincinnati club is tough "hombre." The Reds have played some great ball and some poor ball so far, but the class is there, and any fan who takes the trouble, and no trouble, to journey out to Redland Field, will certainly see it. The deal for another pitcher which we prophesied hasn't materialized as yet but indications still point to such a move by the Reds management. One thing is certain, President Sidney Weil is watching the development of his club like a hawk, and when he decided that another twirler is essential, the move will be made.

So far, the pennant race in the National Loop is all topsy turvy. St. Louis and New York, the favorites, are being beaten regularly, while Brooklyn, supposedly a strong club, is also way down in the standings. Pittsburgh is hopelessly last, thanks to the drubbings handed them by the Reds. Philadelphia is fighting hard to stick in the first division, while Chicago quietly intrenches itself at the top while the others cut throats.

With warmer weather prevailing, the teams should soon begin to hit their normal strides. As we figure it, that means improved playing by New York and St. Louis, the dropping of Boston and Philadelphia, and a big spurt by the rejuvenated Reds which will make it a three cornered fight for the flag. Chicago isn't figured to stay at the top.

A Sporting Policy

President Sidney Weil of the Reds has adopted a good-will policy for Redland Field that other club owners might well imitate. Instead of taking advantage of bad weather and allowing the buyers of reserved seats to lose their money when the big Sunday games are rained out, Weil has ruled that all tickets bought for these games and not used due to bad weather, will be perfectly good for any subsequent game. In other words, fans who buy reserved seats in advance

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NEWS

On Wednesday of last week the Burlington High School base ball team won their third straight victory by defeating Walton 13 to 8. Ryle and Greenup were again batter-ies for the B. H. S. while Welsh, W. Williams, DeMolloy and Less Williams formed the battery for Walton. Ogden led Burlington with three hits and was at bat five times. Sebrree and Ryle made the longest drives of the evening, each getting a three bagger.

Friday May 13th Petersburg H. S. will play at Burlington.

The Seniors of Burlington High school have selected the "Tea Topper Tavern," a three-act comedy for their class play which is to be given May 21, at 7:45 P. M. The characters in first appearance are as follows: Marion Day—Myrtle Smith. Rosaman Reed—Hilda Aylor. Sally Lee Dixon—Mary Phillips. Ann Annesley—Zena Garrison. Barry Reid—Harold Kelly. Clare Harrier Annesley—Ruth Rice. Tess—Iva Mae Burcham. Mike Ryan—Jas. Ed. Stephens. Brian Pierpont—Jas. L. McNeely. Rev. Archibald Perry—Howell Hensley.

Dallas Thorne—Alvin Stephens. John Sedgwick—Wm. Greenup. Celeste—Pauline White. Gloria Sherwood Jerome—Allene Berkshire.

Three college graduates, Dixie, Rosamond, and Ann, wishing to aid their college endowment fund, decide to open a tea room for the summer. Through the efforts of Brian Pierpont, they secure a charming old home, property of Dallas Thorne, a wealthy young man who has been much in the public notice because of his engagement to Gloria Sherwood. She, on the eve of the wedding, eloped with a wealthier suitor at the time that the play opens, Dallas is supposedly traveling abroad, and Gloria is once more in evidence, now as a charming widow.

Dallas Thorne suddenly returned from Europe and comes to his old home. Dixie mistakes him for the prospective "bird man" and he impulsively accepts the position. The sudden illness of a maid, a protegee of Ann, is diagnosed as small-pox and the house is placed under quarantine. At the time of the ban, an old friend of Miss Day's is calling and Gloria herself, on the way to a nearby hotel, is resting while a punctured tire is being repaired. These two are not allowed to depart, and complications follow.

Gloria, discovering Dallas in the role of a servant, once more attempts to ensnare him but has little success.

Brian, in the meantime has voluntarily become a member of the family. Ann's social service has brought her in touch with a young rector of the town.

At a costume ball the house is on fire by some decorative lanterns. The fire is soon extinguished. Gloria's scheming is discovered and, as a climax, it is announced that after all, the quarantine has been unnecessary since the maid has only a bad case of chicken-pox.

The Mother's Day program given by the Epworth League of the Burlington M. E. church was attended by a large crowd. A splendid program was given.

SHORT SELLING

There are some people who think it is a terrible thing to sell something you haven't got in the hope or expectation that before you have to deliver it you can buy it at a price lower than you have agreed to sell it for. That is what so-called "short selling" on the stock market means. Nobody quarrels with the man who contracts to deliver a hundred head of cattle for example, at the present market price, because he believes that the price is going down and that he will be able to buy them for less and make a profit.

Congress has been investigating short selling on the Stock Exchange. It has not found any evidence that anybody engaged in short selling operations was doing anything more serious than betting that the prices of stocks would go down still farther. Sometimes they did and sometimes they didn't. Several million people lost a lot of money in 1929 by betting that stocks would go higher! That is all that most of the transactions on the Stock Exchange mean—betting that the market will go higher or lower. Percy A. Rockefeller told the investigators that he had lost "many, many millions," betting that the market would rise and had succeeded in winning only $550,000 of it back by betting that the market would go down. Mat C. Brush, probably the biggest of all the stock market operators, frankly admitted that the business of Wall Street is "racket like Al Capone's," and he confirmed what we have long suspected, that people who are not professional traders in securities are simply suckers when they dabble in stocks and are sure to lose in the long run, no matter which way the market goes. We think one of the principal troubles of the United States these days arises from the extension to every corner of the country of facilities for gambling on the stock market. Of course, there must be an open market for the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds, and we don't know any way to stop human beings from gambling, in one form or another. But we do think that it is just as reprehensible to tempt the unwary into speculating on the stock market, as it is to try to take their money away from them by selling them lottery tickets.

Sunday School Lesson

ESAU SELLS HIS BIRTHRIGHT
Genesis 25:27-34

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Here is a fine opportunity for character study as you size up those who occupy the stage in this lesson study. Dig out all the facts about Isaac, Rebekah, Esau and Jacob and you will note what a mess can develop in what should be a well regulated family. These boys were twins but they do not manifest the usual interest that such brothers have in each other. Both the father and mother had their favorites and this added much to the home difficulties. Rebekah thought more of Jacob and Isaac doted on Esau, the first born.

As the first born, Esau would normally come into his father's place as the priestly head in the home and would inherit a double portion. Much trouble is occasioned today when a will is made in which the children do not "share and share alike. But Esau did not look forward to the honor of succeeding his father as head of the family, while that was the very thing that Jacob was eager for, and plotted accordingly.

Esau was a hunter and came home one day with no bag with a tremendous hunger. Jacob was making some lentil stew and Esau pointed to it and begged for some of "that red." Wiley Jacob would not share his food until he had exacted a promise to turn over the birthright privileges. Later a trick was played on almost blind Isaac, when he would bless Esau, as Jacob conceived a stew that would taste like venison, put fur on his hands to make them feel like hairy Esau and obtained the blessing. This caused a break between the brothers and Jacob, with the conviction of his mother had to flee from the wrath of Esau. They did not meet again for twenty years.

Days of the Week

The week consisting of seven days is a unit of time which dates from prehistoric antiquity. Each of the seven days corresponds to one of the seven moving heavenly bodies then known. Sunday and Monday are named after the sun and moon; Tuesday was named for Mars (Tues in Norse); Wednesday, Mercury's (Wodan's) day; Thursday, Jupiter's (Thor's) day; Friday, Venus (Freia's) day, and Saturday, Saturn's day.

RHYTHM

Looking back, the record would be something like this: Unbounded optimism; "new era," everything going to be all right. Collapse; disillusionment. Fear.

Fear impels thought. "The fear of the Lord," says the Bible, "is the beginning of wisdom. Until we are thoroughly scared we do not start to recover."

Congress was thoroughly scared when it convened last December, and it has been the most sensible Congress in a long time. Business has been thoroughly scared, and more constructive business thinking has been done than for many years. Bankers have been thoroughly scared, and we shall have a sounder banking system.

The greatest impression that this experience has made on me is a fresh realization of the rhythm of human existence. The race does not move in a straight line forward and up, much as we should like to think so. It swings.

It swings too far to the left, bumps its nose, and swings back, too far to the right. In the course of these great swings it edges forward.

Put most of us fail to sense the rhythm. We are looking for a fixedness, a finality which does not exist. We do not realize that change is the one unchanging fact in the universe; that because a situation is so today is the one sure reason why it will not be so tomorrow. In these depression periods we question everything. We probe with doubts. We react. And the reaction is beneficent.

For twenty-five years we worshipped "scientific progress." Now we wonder whether a lot of this so-called progress did not consist merely of filling up the world and speeding it up. We begin to wonder whether less things and more thinking may not lead to the happier life.

In education we have been devoted to the practical, to training men and women to do things. We are swinging back to the old fashioned idea that education is an enrichment of the spirit and not a filling of the brain.

In government we have multiplied laws and bureaus and taxes. Now the worm is turning. The taxpayer rebels; government must simplify, deflate.

We had a great period of misdirected idealism, a passion for educating everybody, "improving" everything, enlightening the world. Now we are beginning to suspect that the older civilizations have fully as much to teach us as we have to teach them.

Action and reaction, ebb and flow, trial and error, change—this is the rhythm of living. Out of our over-confidence, fear, out of our fear, clearer vision, fresh hope. And out of hope—progress.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

"ALLERGY"

When questions come thick and fast from the asthma and hay fever patients, the doctor has at least one umbrella to get under, that of "allergy." Allergy may be described as the "kick" obtained from different sorts of food, different individuals obtaining not by any means the same sort of kick.

For instance, the Irish potato may awaken terrible consequences in certain sensitive persons. No certain law has been discovered at this time which is obeyed by food allergies. But we are studying.

Asthma of the "bronchial" sort, may be due to reactions of certain kinds of food in that particular individual. Fish will provoke asthmatic attacks in some; oysters in others.

When I am consulted by a confirmed sufferer from asthma, I have him write me a list of the articles he eats—and then require him to eat everything else but that; to keep the list before him constantly, and avoid every single item noted. In other words, to live on the things for awhile at least—that he don't like! This plan, with the line of remedies that relieve symptoms, sometimes works great good.

The advice is based on "food allergy" of course.

"Hay fever" is believed to be an allergy reaction. Its victims react to pollens on the nasal mucous membrane. If we inject pollen vaccine, it looks like the rational way to prevent hay fever. I have had success with pollen vaccines, but the patient usually waits till the season is on, and brings his sneezes to me when too late.

I had a patient, and they are common, who could not take quinine without developing a "rash" that was most annoying—a halt

DISCOVERING SUDAN FOR SUMMER FEED

Livestock farmers, especially the dairymen, will find Sudan grass the cheapest and best insurance against a shortage of summer pasture that can be provided, says Prof. E. J. Kinney of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

An emergency pasture crop is often needed during summer and early fall when the usual pasture crops produce little grazing. Sudan grass has proved admirably adapted for this purpose. No other crop provides so much for pasturage during hot, dry weather.

On fairly fertile soil, an acre of Sudan grass will easily furnish forage for a dairy cow from July 1 until the grass is killed by frost, and if moisture conditions are favorable, probably enough for two animals. Sudan grass is palatable and produces a good flow of milk.

Sudan grass should be sown only on well-drained soils. Like all sorghums, it will grow fairly well on thin soils, but for abundant pasture the soil should be fertile. If necessary to sow on poor land, it will pay to fertilize well. A top-dressing of nitrate of soda, after the crop is sown, will greatly increase the amount of grazing.

Sowing should be delayed until the weather is warm and settled, probably until after May 15th in Kentucky. A rather heavy seeding of 25 to 30 pounds to the acre is recommended, as this provides a thick turf which stands grazing better. Sowing should be done with a grain drill, if possible, as this method insures even covering.

Sudan grass usually may be pastured in about six weeks after sowing, when it should be 12 to 15 inches high. The best practice is to have two fields and graze them alternately.

Two or three cuttings of hay may be had, normally where the grass is not desired for grazing.

PROTECTION AGAINST TYPHOID FEVER

While typhoid fever may occur at any period of the year, in Kentucky it is most prevalent during the months of late summer and autumn. With the approach of the summer season, which is also largely vacation time, we may naturally expect this disease to increase in frequency, unless proper precautions are taken in advance.

"Typhoid fever," said Dr. J. L. Jones, Director of the Bureau of Epidemiology of the State Board of Health, in an interview given out yesterday, "is no respecter of age or sex, of social standing, physical condition or of wealth or poverty. In late years, there has been a marked reduction in both the incidence and the mortality of this disease in all well regulated communities. Only a few years ago typhoid fever was exacting an annual toll of more than 60,000 lives in the U. S.; today, it is responsible for the deaths of less than 10,000 each year. This improvement is due largely to improved sanitary measures and constitutes one of the many striking examples of the value of public health work.

"Typhoid fever is a communicable disease caused by a specific germ known as the typhoid bacillus. Every case comes from swallowing the germs or seeds of the disease. And these disease germs come, in turn, from just one source: Waste matter, that is, the bowel or kidney discharges of human beings who are sick with typhoid fever or else are carriers of typhoid germs. 'Carriers' are persons who, although not sick with the disease themselves, have typhoid germs growing in their bodies.

"When human wastes from typhoid cases or 'carriers' are disposed of in an insanitary way, they are likely to get into water, milk and other food products and so become agencies for transmission of the disease to well persons. Water is usually infected by sewage or surface drainage; milk and other foods are apt to be infected by fingers or flies contaminated with germs of the disease. If all wastes from human bodies could always be so disposed of as not to be accessible to flies, not subject to carriage on human fingers and not likely to get into sources of drinking water or into milk supplies and other foods, no person would have typhoid fever.

"It is evident, then, that prevention of typhoid fever may be largely summed up in the one word 'cleanliness.' And 'cleanliness' is meant not only clean water, clean milk and clean foods generally, but also cleanliness of person and surroundings. Typhoid fever has always prevailed where cleanliness has been neglected and diminished where cleanliness has been intelligently observed. Prevention of typhoid fever, therefore, resolves itself into observing the following rules:

"1. Drink only water which has been pronounced safe by the health officials.

"2. If there is any doubt about the purity of the water supply, boil all water used for drinking, for bathing, for washing hands and face and for washing uncooked foods and vegetables. Chlorination will also render water safe; ask your health officer as to the proper method of chlorination.

"3. Avoid shoes and underwear.

"4. Partake only of milk or milk products above suspicion or that have been pasteurized.

"5. Clean up the premises thoroughly. Get rid of all filth, manure and other breeding places for flies. Make all privies fly-proof and sanitary.

"6. Screen the home, especially the kitchen, dining room and sick room, especially the kitchen, dining room and sick room, against flies, which are constant carriers of filth and germs.

"7. Protect the cistern, well or spring from surface drainage.

"8. Avoid bathing and swimming in open and unprotected waters, as most of these are heavily contaminated with germs of filth-borne diseases.

"9. Carefully observe the simple precaution of washing the hands before eating and of keeping the fingers and other unnecessary objects away from the mouth and nose.

"In all cases where persons are unnecessarily exposed to insanitary conditions or where they can not be assured safe food and drink, as when travelling, or where they become endangered by possible typhoid carriers, immunization is urged as a wise procedure. Typhoid vaccine, while not intended to replace sanitary measures or to substitute for improvement of water supplies and sewage disposals, or for the proper supervision of milk and other foods, has been shown to constitute an effective protection against the disease for a period of three years.

"When any member of the family has a continued fever or other symptoms of typhoid fever, the family physician should be called. By so doing, an early diagnosis can be made, the proper medical care given and instructions in preventing the spread of this disease received. Furthermore, the physician can then report the case to the health department, which, in turn, will co-operate with both the family and the physician, in preventing and controlling the further spread of the disease."

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

Time sped so rapidly at Sunday school May 1st that one could hardly realize the closing time had come.

We were indeed glad to have Bro. Hitecock and Mrs. Hitecock with us.

Bro. Hitecock had charge of several classes, the study hour was taken up by Bible questions and was found to be most interesting and instructive.

Last Sunday evening marked the conclusion of a series of lectures when Bro. Hitecock used as a theme question, "How Far Have You Followed Jesus?"

Several folks from the Mission attended the revival held at No. 33 Pike street Covington last Thursday evening.

Mother's Day dawned clear and bright. How wonderful it would be if we could crowd all the devotion due to mothers into this one day.

This is impossible, however, so the next best thing we can do is to honor our parents every day. Then especially on the days which are set aside.

On Mother's Day, sweet thoughts!

Send,
To Father and Mother dear,
To tell you that I love you more

Better Breakfasts

DAY after day in every way they're getting better and better," remarks he complacently, surveying his breakfast.

It is a pleasant way for him to feed the first thing of a snowy December morning and a pleasant thing for you to hear.

Breakfast probably has a stronger mental reaction than any other meal of the day. Somehow the whole big, bright, sunshiny world seems against a man until he has a warm, comforting, sustaining breakfast tucked away under his waistcoat. After that every man is his neighbor, and it's a pretty good life after all.

It's Worth While

It's worth while to start him—and them—and yourself, yes, don't forget yourself—off right, to business, school, or the ordinary work and tear of a domestic day—and it is only a matter of foresight and a few minutes preparation.

In the following menu the foresight has all been foreseen. It just means a modest effort to the busy man and a slight advancement of your morning schedule.

"Better Breakfasts" are appearing frequently in these columns. Why not a scrapbook of "Better Breakfasts" with the illustration above on its cover?

BIRD A WEEK COLUMN

As a rule birds do not live very long, but they live fast. They breathe rapidly and have a higher temperature and a more rapid circulation than other vertebrates. This is a fortunate circumstance, since to generate the requisite force to sustain their active bodies a large quantity of food is necessary, and as a matter of fact birds have to devote most of their working hours to obtaining insects, seeds, berries, and other kinds of food. The activity of birds in the pursuit of insects is still further stimulated by the fact that the young of most species, even those which are by no means strictly insectivorous, require great quantities of animal food in the early summer months—the flood time of insect life—birds are compelled to redouble their attacks on our insect foes to satisfy the wants of their clamorous young. This is their manner of living. What they eat it is interesting to observe. Birds are hungry most of the time. They are not content to fill their stomachs with all kinds of insects, seeds and fruit, but after being filled until the stomach will hold no more, continue to eat until the crop or gullet is stuffed. Often times upon examination it is found that the food taken from the stomach and gullet and placed in a heap, is twice as long as the stomach and gullet due to the fact that it has been crammed to the utmost. Birds have great appetites. Man certainly is indebted to birds for the destruction of insects. It is astonishing to know the capacity of birds' stomachs. The following facts taken from a scientific examination of a Killdeer's stomach in autumn early in October contained 295 mosquitos larvae. The stomach of a night hawk's contained 42 May beetles, this is the adult white grub worm. A large grackle (common Black bird) had in its stomach 75 ball worms. The field sparrow in Kentucky annually eats approximately 500 tons of weed seed. Only the farmer who has to fight noxious weeds, knows what this consumption of seeds means in a saving of both cost and labor.

The Red Winged Blackbird (Agelaius phoeniceus) is about 9 1/2 inches. The male is black, with scarlet shoulders touched with a little buff. The female is not beautiful, she is brownish black above and streaked below. They usually live in pairs, sometimes in colonies. All ponds and wet swampy places, and marshy meadows are inhabited by them. Sloughs and along the edge of ponds furnish ideal nesting grounds. Out west where the prairies offer wet places for them to inhabit, great flocks of these birds destroy whole grain fields. Also marshes along the lake shore and the mouths of small rivers offer splendid breeding sites where they are much more abundant than they are here. They have been here about two months, due to the fact that we have few places suitable for breeding and rearing the young. Redwings are gregarious, living in flocks and breeding in communities. Their food consists chiefly of about 25 per cent animal matter and 75 per cent vegetable. Insects consist of one-fourth of their food which is weevil, flies, bugs and grasshoppers. The vegetable food consists of grain and seed weeds and small fruit. When they live in large flocks they are harmful to grain fields. Their note is a harsh "cack, cack" when he flies up before us as we approach his haunts. Also he has another pleasing note which he delights to pour forth at times usually when he first arrives in the neighborhood it is a pleasing liquid note "conk-err-ee, conk-err-ee," repeated in rapid succession. The nest is built in bushes not far from the ground, or in a swamp or around the edges of a pond. Sometimes they build in a wet meadow. They weave grass and rushes together. When built in bushes it is partially suspended from the sides. There are from three to five eggs—that are a bluish white—scrawled with black on the large end. There are other species known as the Florida Redwing and the Bahama Redwing but these never inhabit this region. Their habits are much the same.

LEON P. LEWIS

In the death of Leon P. Lewis the state of Kentucky loses a citizen who served her best and faithfully as a writer of laws. Always independently carrying out his convictions in the smallest as well as the largest matters with the same unflinching courage and integrity.

Leon P. Lewis represented a group never aligned with any sectional or partisan machine. His thoughts were on statesmanship rather than upon politics. An ardent advocate of those things that he believed to be for the best interests of Kentucky and her people, he was as ready to denounce any move of which he disapproved, regardless of its origin or authority.

For four consecutive terms he served in the general assembly from the Fifty-fifth district in Louisville. The dean of the college of law at the University of Louisville for five years, his legal knowledge and training added to his ledge and training added to his ability as a law maker. As a progressive he fought always to break down prejudice and lethargy and to prepare the way for betterment and change.—Lexington Herald.

INCONSISTENCY

To appreciate the importance of the reductions that have been made by the state administration at Frankfort it is necessary also to bear in mind that there has been no reduction in the road department. The reduction that has been made in other departments amounts to approximately 16 per cent.

Those who are saying that the administration "is running behind" do so without justification from the facts and without fairness. It must be remembered that Governor Flem D. Sampson and a Republican administration took over control of the state government with a debt of approximately six million dollars and managed to run it to the neighborhood of fourteen million dollars in a short four years.

Those who are criticizing Judge Laffoon, although he has accomplished a real saving and has made every effort to balance the budget, are defending a Republican administration in Washington that approved a budget that was more than a billion dollars out of balance and is now running the government into debt at a rate of more than seven million dollars a day.—Lexington Herald.

MAJORING IN MEDDLING

Group of eastern college students are traveling around over the South making a nuisance of themselves apparently for the reason that they have nothing better to do. They call themselves the National College Committee.

Why this high-sounding title should give them the right to investigate economic conditions, social problems, strikes and other matters we do not know. However, it appears that if their services are not desired and their presence is not wanted in a community they have a way of claiming that their constitutional rights have been violated.

We have too much of that sort of thing in this country. It has gotten so that when a man is told to keep out of business that does not concern him he resists on the ground that it is his constitutional right to meddle.

The governor of Kentucky and the governor of Tennessee have advised the group of eastern college boys to get out and stay out. It is good advice.

It is rather discouraging to observe that colleges permit this meddlesome attitude by allowing their students to wander over the country meddling in other people's affairs. Perhaps the colleges give them credits for such work. If the disposition to meddle is to be accredited on a college degree, there are a lot of people who have never been inside a college who should have diplomas.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Breakfast Hints

By Jane Rogers

BREAKFAST is traditionally a rich, hearty meal. In addition, it is one of the most important meals of the day. The breakfast of the housewife who is not a good cook, is a tragedy. The breakfast of the housewife who is a good cook, is a triumph. The breakfast of the housewife who is a good cook, is a triumph. The breakfast of the housewife who is a good cook, is a triumph.

A glass with a design inspired by an old china, or reproductions of early American glass in the thumb print or scroll designs, are particularly appropriate.

Pineapple-Apricot Marmalade

Boil one pound of dried apricots for one-half hour and then wash over salt. Save the water and put the apricots through the meat chopper. Put the apricots back in the water in which they soaked overnight and add one large can of crushed pineapple and ten cups of sugar. Boil for one-half hour, stirring constantly to prevent burning. Pour into sterilized glass jars. Cool and cover with paraffin.

won't have to gamble on the weather. In other words, the fans under the same circumstances, are simply out of luck.

In addition, Well has inaugurated an entirely new system of reserving seats that will save the fans a great deal of time and bother. No longer is it necessary to rush into Reel and Field for reserved seats, or to write far in advance of the game. Seats can now be reserved at any Western Union Telegraph Co. anywhere.

U. S. Boxers Not So Good

With the Olympic Games shortly in the offering, boxing fans are wondering whether the United States team is going to fare any better this year than in previous efforts. Boxing has been one branch of the Olympic sports which Americans haven't been able to dominate. Since 1904, only four titles have been won by the United States amateurs in the Olympics; with only two of these championships registered since 1920.

In that year, Fidel LaBarba and Paddy Fields, representing the Los Angeles Athletic Club, competed in the Olympics and came out on top. But nary a single title have we annexed since that time. As a matter of fact, even the American professional fighters are way below par. At present, only three titles, the lightweight, and the welterweight, and the light heavyweight, are held by Americans. The heavyweight champ is a German, the top-notch flyweight, altho not the champion, is a Frenchman; the junior lightweight star is a Cuban; and a Panamanian is head of the bantam weight division.

Just Another Alibi

Every major league ball player is equipped with at least two things—a flock of alibis, and a sense of superstition. Right now, the alibis are working over time, especially in the camp of the New York Giants, who are way down in the second division. The Giants agree that the reason why they aren't playing better ball is because the weather has been so bad in the East during the early weeks of the season.

Brooklyn feels the same way about her poor showing, pointing out that the pitchers aren't able to hurl their best in cold weather. Well, the alibi might pass inspection if it weren't for the showing of the Boston Braves, who have been playing in much colder weather than either the Giants or the Dodgers, yet have still managed to play great ball.

The weather has been made responsible for a lot of things because it is always a good alibi. However, there is no doubt that cold and rain have hurt base ball attendances. The Reds, for example, have played to their largest crowds in years, but might have drawn 50,000 more fans during the early weeks had the weather been at all warm.

Shoes Are Shoes

Most of us would never think of taking a chance on missing a transatlantic liner just to rescue a pair of shoes, but that's exactly what Virginia Van Wie, nationally famous woman golfer, chanced in New York last week. She discovered at the last moment just before sailing for England to play in the British championship, that she had forgotten her pet shoes. Back to the hotel she dashed found the precious foot-wear, and hurried to the boat again just in time to sail with the other 14 feminine stars. When asked why she placed such importance on a pair of shoes, Miss Van Wie stated that there were plenty of boats, but only one pair of shoes in which she could play golf.

More Superstitions

Virginia Van Wie's anxiety for those shoes probably amounted to superstition more than anything else. Superstition is part and parcel of all athletics. For instance, Red Lucas, the star hurler of the Cincinnati Reds, refuses to walk across a baseline on his way from the dugout to the pitchers box, always jumping over the white lines. It seems to work out rather well, because Red is one of the outstanding pitchers in the league. Babe Herman, the Reds' slugging right fielder, always touches second and third base on his way in to the bench after each inning. He touches second with his left foot, and never deviates from this procedure. The "Babe" is having great luck with his superstition also.

Base Ball At A Glance

When Hughey Critz and Ethan Allan played with the Reds, neither were able to hit well enough to star on the club. This season, as members of the New York Giants, both are playing sensationally. Critz is one of the leading batters of the National League with an average of over .400, altho he never hit better than .275 for the Reds.

When Brooklyn sold Babe Herman to the Reds, they figured on Hack Wilson to replace him in the capacity of the club's slugger. So far, Wilson isn't walking the ball for the Reds, but Wilson is doing very little for the Dodgers.

As far as attendance goes, St. Louis is the poorest drawing town in either league. Even the champion Cardinals play to only a few thousand persons, daily. Usually, the champions in any league always play to large crowds. The St. Louis fans have seen so many pennants flying in Sportsman's Park, that they're "soured" on the team. Ah, such is fame!

JUAN GAUDINO

HELLO THERE OLD PAL

INDIANAPOLIS, IND. — Juan Gaudino, racing champion of South America, came to the Indianapolis Speedway to compete in the 500-mile race with some misgivings about American sportsmen—but he has remained to praise the spirit of automobile racing.

Gaudino, a close friend of Luis Figo, the heavyweight boxer, was told to keep a sharp eye open for sharp practices. But the Yankee speedway pilots have been so kind to him he doesn't know what to make of it all.

Even the American champion Louis Schneider, is helping Gaudino with his racing problems.

KENTUCKY 8TH AMONG STATES IN NATIVE-BORN POPULATION

Only five states have a higher percentage native-born population than Kentucky with 186 of every 1,000 population native-born, according to the 1930 U. S. census. These states are South Carolina with 92 per cent; Maine, 91 per cent; North Carolina, 90 per cent; Georgia and Mississippi, 89.6 per cent. Kentucky's total population in the 1930 Federal census was 2,589,907 and of this total 2,295,545, or 88.6 per cent were native born.

While Ohio has more native Kentuckians within its borders than has any other state, a larger percentage of Indiana's population was born in Kentucky. Indiana reports forty-nine out of every thousand and of its population born in Kentucky; Ohio, thirty-four out of every thousand. Kentucky born. Ohio has 206,353 native Kentuckians; Indiana, 150,113. Congress Not Circus? Says, Washington Writer

(BY FRED HOLMES)
(Washington Cor. for The Boone County Recorder)

A couple of years ago, when Congress was indulging in prolonged vocal gymnastics over the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, your correspondent received a letter from a modest editor cancelling the service for the reason that he did not want his readers to get the impression that "Washington was a 3-ring circus." Of course, when he said "Washington" he meant "Congress."

If at that time there were sane and thoughtful observers who did consider "Washington" fairly comparable with a 3-ring circus, and all one might be justified in wondering just what was the degree of intelligence of the afore-said readers who could not be trusted to look a situation in the face and form their own conclusions. However, be that as it may, while the writer never made reference to a "3-ring circus" the inference drawn by this self-constituted censor of political comment may have been warranted. If so, your correspondent stands corrected. Washington—that is to say, Congress—is not a 3-ring circus. Taken as a whole it is a cross between a hippodrome, extravaganza-burlesque and a clinic of quacks desirous of demonstrating how to inoculate an anaesthetized body politic with cancer virus.

A few experienced, tried and proven physicians diagnosed and prescribed for an unfortunate and possibly fatal malady. A bunch of prosaic internes promptly proceeded to repudiate the prescription—known to laymen as the economy bill—eliminating therefrom the last items which promised relief and ultimate cure to the patient—the overburdened taxpayers. Fortunately—aye, it might be said providentially—the patient seems to be coming out from under the anaesthetic and there is now hope that he may be in full possession of his senses before the order for vivisection is finally and formally confirmed. Even now, in a condition of semi-consciousness, the convalescing public is observing the antics of the pseudomedicos with mingled feelings of pity and disgust. The patient may not yet be fully restored to normalcy, but he even now is conscious enough to recognize that revolting beyond description is the sight of representatives (?) clamoring for recognition to move the continuance—fi not the perpetuation—of fasteful and ruinous extravagance in behalf of special classes while the whole Nation is staggering under the greatest financial depression of modern times.

The press of the Nation, irrespective of partisanship, is practically unanimous with caustic and often scathing animadversions on the disgusting performance now being staged by our House of Representatives. Says the Republican Washington Post: "The Government faces a deficit of nearly $2,500,000,000. A crushing tax burden must be imposed upon the people to pay for past extravagances. No one has advocated reduction of expenditures in any way comparable to the fall in revenue. The House was asked to strike only $200,000,000, less than 10 per cent of the deficit, from wasteful appropriations. It responded by penalizing underpaid Government workers, but in virtually every case left pork barrel items undisturbed. The few reductions left in the economy bill are utterly insignificant in comparison with the millions that are squandered for political influence."

Says the Democratic Baltimore Sun: "The action of the House was tantamount to an announcement to the nation and to the world that the supposedly popular branch of our National Legislature, in which all fiscal measures are required to originate, refuses to lay down any effective method of fiscal economy in the most serious emergency our Government has faced since the war. The refusal does not wreck the whole economy movement, for the way is still open to make the ten per cent slashes in appropriations upon which the Senate has been insisting and to which the House has shown a disposition to accede. But the course of the House in the fight just closed does endanger that program, both because it shows that the lower chamber has no stomach for the distasteful business of saving and because it leaves a number of issues as to how to save up in the air."

Says the Republican Philadelphia Public Ledger: "So the Senate is saddled with a doubly serious responsibility. Its task of putting the tax bill into some kind of reasonable shape is complicated by the utter failure of the House to do its duty. The trouble with the House requires no explanation. It is just another chapter of the sorry story of this session, the complete breakdown of party discipline and the rise of the black-robed power, a combination of little pernicious politics-playing groups has the House by the throat. It did not get all it was after in the way of taxes, but it did a lot of mischief. And now it has succeeded in making economy a joke. Giving credit where it is due, it may be said that the ten per cent slashing of appropriations bills started by the Senate should do some good. But sticking a knife into the swollen Federal payroll would do much more. The House has shown itself the friend and defender of costly bureaucracy. Its "economy bill" is a sham and a fraud."

Says the Republican New York Herald-Tribune: "However, the result is really more disgusting than important. What the House has enacted in this instance is by no means final, and no doubt this fact has had a strong influence on its behavior. Here are a lot of political poodles who must face re-election next November. Their $10,000 jobs are at stake in a period of depression, when a place at the public crib is at a premium. Their normal fear of organized minorities is multiplied, and they have seen a chance to 'pass the buck' to the Senate for legislation that might win them enemies. So, with the cunning which they substitute for character, they have taken this course, repudiating their leaders and their responsibility to the country."

Says the Independent New York Times: "This is what comes of long accustoming the nation, and especially Congress, to making laws for the benefit, or at the demand, of what President Hoover calls 'sectional or group interests.' Instead of on the broad principle of what is best for the greatest number of citizens. The Government has been going too far, dangerously far, in that direction. All the way from making protective tariffs in order to insure or enlarge the profits of manufacturers, down to the special and continually swelling appropriations for new Federal agencies, the process has been going on, until today the idea seems to have become implanted in the minds of many different classes that they have a sort of vested right to draw money or obtain privileges from the Government. It is the existence of this strong conviction which makes so hard the way of those who would levy new taxes or enforce fresh economies in order to balance the budget. Every proposed means of raising added revenue is bitterly fought. Every attempt to reduce public expenses is resisted. Unless something is done by Congress to break this hostile blockade we shall get neither a satisfactory tax measure nor a bill for effective and even-handed economy."

The Herald-Tribune most aptly concludes its comments as follows: "The duty of the electorate is plain. It is to see that as many as possible of these scoundrels are identified for what they are when they appear for votes in the fall and that they are retired to private life. Let them join the ranks in the struggle against hard times which they have done their best to prolong."

WASHINGTON SNAP SHOTS

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS
Taken by The Helm News Service
A feeling of elation swept thru Washington when the commutation of sentence in the Hawaiian manslaughter case was announced. This satisfaction was immediately tempered by a wide demand that the "stigma" of a one hour's imprisonment must be removed by a full pardon for the defendants.

Despite the doubts of other leaders Senator Charles L. McNary, assistant Republican leader of the Senate, renewed his prediction that the session of Congress would end before the national conventions. He said he had not given up hope of adjournment June 12, which is two days before the Republican convention opens at Chicago. Possibility of a prolonged tariff fight in connection with the tax bill is giving concern to Senator McNary. Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, however, has indicated he is skeptical whether the session can be ended by the time the Republican convention meets. Senator McNary indicated he would endeavor to have sessions three nights a week.

The sensational run made by Speaker John N. Garner at the preferential primary election in California gave the Roosevelt Presidential boom a setback even more serious than the sweeping victory won by ex-Governor Smith against Governor Roosevelt in the Massachusetts primaries. Friends of Mr. Roosevelt have admitted as much. In some quarters unfriendly to Governor Roosevelt as a candidate the prediction was ventured that his defeat in California would prove a death blow to his Presidential aspirations. This view, however, is not generally shared in Democratic circles in this city.

Alfred E. Smith, who selected John J. Raskob as his national chairman when he was the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1928, has appealed to the party to rid itself of the financial obligation to Mr. Raskob, which the party has incurred since its defeat of four years ago. He based his appeal on the ground not only that the party justly should pay Mr. Raskob the same $320,000 which it still owes him, but that it should free itself from obligation to any one individual so that it might be able to function as an untrammelled organization. He said he made no plea for Mr. Raskob personally.

Once more reversing itself, the Senate Finance Committee voted in the $1,000,000,000 tax bill tariff duties not only on oil and coal, as the House did, but on lumber and coal, as the House did, but on lumber and copper. This was done over the protests of Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, and other tariff opponents. Decision to put in the tariff items was reached after numerous votes and a series of maneuvers which the opponents led the fight for the tariff rates.

More than five hours of debate on a bill providing for government operation of Muscle Shoals was insufficient for the House to reach a vote. This debate consisted of numerous short speeches, usually of a bitter nature, with proponents of government operation and opponents about equally divided. The measure, introduced by Representative Hill of Alabama, provides for operation of the power projects by a Muscle Shoals Board composed of three members.

It is the money handout type of legislation for special groups that has contributed most heavily to the tremendous cost of running the Federal Government. It is the futility of efforts to curb this mounting cost by cutting off subsidies to one favored group or another that accounts for the economy fiasco now being witnessed by a debt-ridden and tax-burdened people. And for these reasons this jealous and blind coddling of special groups by politically-minded legislators has become the real menace, beside which the probable feature, now threatened, of striking a balance budget for the next fiscal year is of relative inconsequence.

While both parties are split down the middle by sectional and class conflicts, it is impossible to see how order can be restored in the House. The fundamental trouble is that both Republican and Democratic parties have their conservatives and their progressives. In a time like this it is hard for a party thus divided to enforce discipline. It is said that the best thing that could happen to the country would be the kind of realignment of parties that took place in 1896 when the silver men went generally over to the Democratic party and the gold men generally to the Republican party.

Thousands of professors, instructors and other employees of State universities were relieved of the necessity of paying Federal income taxes by a decision of the Board of Tax Appeals, made in a recent case. The government has recognized for many years that compensation paid by States is not subject to tax when the compensation is in connection with the performance of an essential State function. The decision would not apply other than State and not to institutions which are only partially supported by the State.

The Family Garden

CELERY

(By John A. Gardner, Kentucky College College of Agriculture)

Now is celery starting time. There are two ways. One is to sow the seed in a well-prepared seed bed and transplant the seedlings as soon as they are large enough to handle; the other is to sow the seed thinly in the row where the celery is ultimately to stand, and thin the seedlings to 8 inches. Each method has its advantages, but the former is better in the long run.

There are two distinct kinds of celery. One includes such varieties as Golden Self-blanching, Easy Blanching, Silver Plume, and Golden Plume. These, as their names imply, are pale colored and require very little effort in the rows they stand. They are early sorts, and cannot be stored much beyond Christmas.

The other class of celery varieties includes the so-called "winter" sorts, of which Giant Pascal and Winter Queen are the best known. They are intensely green, and require special procedure to blanch. Blanching may be begun in the row, but most of it takes place in storage in trench. When the time comes for blanching, an article covering, will appear in these columns.

Going back to the transplanting method of celery culture, the seedlings are set about 6 weeks after the seed are sown. By this time there will be from 4 to 6 true leaves. These should be cut back, but the central bud should be left undisturbed. The roots, too, should be cut back lightly and all soil washed from them. Setting should be no deeper than the plants stood in the seedling row. Celery requires extremely "rich" soil, high in nitrogen. Heavy manuring is recommended.

The spacing in the row and the width of the row depend on the sort of celery grown. If it is of the easy-blanching type, very little earth will be needed for blanching, and the rows may be as close as 34 inches. For the green sorts, the rows should be at least 36 inches apart, and 42 inches may not be too much. The spacing in the row is 8 inches in all cases. Some gardeners, wishing to save space, set their celery in pairs of rows 8 inches apart, and the pairs at the width of the type of celery being grown requires. Blanching does not progress so rapidly when this method is used, but it commends itself, nevertheless.

Another way to save space is to set the plants in coldframes, six inches each way, the blanching effected by the plants shading each other. A very distinct advantage is using either of these space saving schemes is that if additional feeding and watering are needed, they may be done with a minimum of effort.

Celery is subject to a host of rots, particularly in storage, but most of these follow the presence of leaf spot during the growing season. To anticipate leaf spot, spraying should be arranged for. The material is Bordeaux mixture, 4-4-50. Three and perhaps four sprayings should be given; the first, 3 weeks after the celery is set; and the rest at 10-day or 2-week intervals. To forestall the Zebra caterpillar, arsenate of lead should be added, at the rate of one tablespoonful to each gallon of Bordeaux mixture.

Cultivation should be frequent enough to keep down all weeds, the soil cultivated to the rows to make just enough ridge to induce up-right growth, until blanching time comes. But, that will be covered in a later article.

wool dealer and manufacturer, will be their wool with steel or bladed twine. The tying of wool with these loose fiber twines degrades its value since fibers from these twines become entangled with the wool, cannot be easily separated and being of vegetable origin do not take the same dye as wool and show up as a serious defect in the finished cloth. Few, whether lamb, ram and black, curly, steady, taggy, and dead wool should be packed separately.

TELLS HOW TO HAVE MORE TURKEY POULTS

Ways whereby three-fourths of the turkey poult hatched may be saved were discussed recently by Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department at the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Only half of the poult live in many instances, especially where insufficient care is given them. Prof. Martin makes the following suggestions for the benefit of turkey raisers:

Set eggs from strong, mature hens which have been mated to a vigorous tom.

Provide hens with a good dry maah, in order to increase the production of eggs during the hatching season.

Set the eggs in an incubator or under a chicken hen, so that turkey hens can be kept laying throughout the hatching season.

Make sure that the setting hens are free from lice. When a hen is set she should be thoroughly dusted with sodium fluoride.

It is best not to keep turkey eggs more than two weeks before setting them. Keep them in a cool place, preferably a cellar or milk house where the temperature does not drop to freezing nor go above 65 degrees.

Haphazard methods should be abandoned and partial confinement, combined with the necessary sanitary precautions, be adopted, if one is to make a success of turkey raising, in the opinion of Prof. Martin.

NATIONAL HONOR TO KENTUCKY BOY

George M. Harris, a senior in the College of Agriculture University of Kentucky, has won the National 4-H Club fellowship contest and will receive $1,000 to provide for a year's study and research work in the United States Department of Agriculture in Washington, D. C. Mr. Harris brought this high honor to Kentucky in competition with hundreds of the highest 4-H boys in America. The Payne Fund of New York provides two $1,000 fellowships for a boy and a girl in the United States each year.

The award is based on activities in 4-H Club work and as a high school and college student.

Mr. Harris was active in 4-H Club work for eight years. He was a member of the Kentucky stock judging team at the National 4-H Club Congress and International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago in 1923, and represented Kentucky at the first National 4-H Club camp in Washington, D. C., in 1927. His outstanding work won him a 4-H Club scholarship to the University of Kentucky when he entered the College of Agriculture.

Mr. Harris was a member of the Kentucky College of Agriculture stock judging teams at the International Live Stock Exposition in Chicago and the National Swine Show in Indianapolis in 1930. As a member of the Kentucky dairy cattle judging team he was the best judge of Jerseys at the National Dairy Exposition in St. Louis last year and received a $600 scholarship from the American Jersey Cattle Club of New York.

At the College of Agriculture Mr. Harris is a member of the Alpha Zeta honorary agriculture fraternity; the Block and Bridge Club; honorary animal husbandry organization; the University 4-H Club and the University Scholarship Club. He is a first lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Training Corp.

Mr. Harris' home is in Carroll county. He will be graduated from the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, in June, and is planning to go to Washington in October.

DAIRY SCIENTISTS MEET IN KENTUCKY

Scientists from all over the U. S. will gather at the University of Kentucky June 28-30 for the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association. Between 300 and 500 scientists, investigators, manufacturers, teachers and others interested in the dairy industry are expected to be in attendance. Forty universities and experiment stations, as well as a large number of manufacturing concerns, will be represented.

There will be a daily general session as well as meetings for the dairy production section and the manufacturing section of the association. Approximately 75 speakers will appear on the programs, where subjects pertaining to various practical as well as technical phases of dairying will be discussed. Some of the most noted scientists in America will speak.

Dr. R. L. Anthony, head of the dairy department at the Michigan State College, is president, and Dr. R. H. Graves, of the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture, is secretary of the association.

The program committee consists of Prof. Martin Mortenson, head of the dairy department at Iowa State College; Prof. C. L. Roadhouse of the University of California; and Prof. Furdye Ely, head of the dairy division at the College of Agriculture and Experiment Station, University of Kentucky.

Prof. Ely prevailed on the scientists at last year's annual meeting to come to Kentucky this year. They were attracted by the rapid development of dairying in this state, by the new dairy building at the Experiment Station, and by the work which the University of Kentucky is doing to build up a sound dairy industry in this state.

The worst outbreak of San Jose scale in seven years is reported by Boone county fruit growers.

Five thousand acres have been seeded to Korean lespedeza and 1,000 acres to alfalfa, in Nelson county.

Only half as much tobacco will be grown this year as was grown last year in Magoffin county.

Ninety per cent of the lambs in Carroll county will be standardized this year.

REPORT OF RED CROSS NURSING SERVICE FOR APRIL 1932

Quite some time was spent at the New Haven school during April, general physical inspection of the children was done throughout the school, and the same routine of inspection was started at Verona to be completed during May. In all 273 children were seen in regard to their individual health, finding that a great number need defects corrected. Even this soon I am glad to report that some are already under treatment, and others have plans for early corrective measures during the coming vacation, also I found that 63 had bad corrections since last inspected. These included dental work, operations for removal of tonsils, glasses fitted, and underweight brought up to normal weight.

New Haven school has the larger collection of schools brought into one unit of any of our Consolidated schools in the county, making all branches of its work, HEALTH included, problems exacting more concentrated attention than schools that have more gradually reach out and embraced other districts.

I am trusting and believing that the two Home Hygiene classes being taught in the High school there shall prove quite helpful in sowing seed of Health Knowledge throughout the school district and thereby greatly assisting in making a healthier, happier people in the entire community, who will in turn make possible facilities and means for promoting the health of the children of the school.

Miss Mary Dietzler, Chapter Field Representative of the American Red Cross very unexpectedly called on one of our Home Hygiene classes at New Haven, and highly complimented the interest being evidenced by the students.

HOME-GROWN FEED MAKES FARM PAY

R. C. Moore, a Boyd county dairy farmer, believes that growing more feed will enable him to make a profit from his cows, even at present low prices of milk and cream, according to Hugh Bernard, tester for the Boyd County Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

Mr. Moore feeds his twenty cows crushed corn, cracked wheat, and ground oats and cotton seed meal, with soybean hay and silage as roughage. All the grain feed but the cottonseed meal and all the roughage is produced on the farm. If this season is normal, he will have an abundance of alfalfa hay and plenty of home-grown grain for his herd next winter.

Bernard wrote to the College of Agriculture that "Mr. Moore believes that by careful culling and then growing plenty of good feed for his best cows he will be able to make money. He also thinks a herd of good cows well cared for is one of the best markets for grain and roughage produced on his farm."

CO-OP ADVANCES 75 PERCENT OF MARKET VALUE OF WOOL CROP

The Kentucky Wool Growers Cooperative Association, which is a member of the National Wool Growers Marketing Association, has announced advances on a basis of 75 per cent of the present market value of Kentucky wool. On this basis it has been advancing up to 11 cents a pound. This is said to be the highest advance by any state association, and is due to the low shrinkage and high quality of Kentucky wool.

Richard C. Miller of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, says that fully 45 per cent of Kentucky wool grades high enough for the 11-cent advance, and approximately an equal amount will command a 10-cent advance.

Mr. Miller urges farmers to prepare the wool clip in the most acceptable form possible. Shearing should be done on a clean floor, tarpaulin or bluegrass sod. This is important, since on a filthy floor dirt and other foreign material will become attached to the fleece and lower its value.

The appearance of the fleece has much to do with its value. All tags and filthy locks which were not removed before shearing should be removed before the wool is rolled and tied. After the fleece has been removed from the sheep, it should be spread out flat, side down, the sides should be turned in and rolled in a compact bundle. The rolling should start at the breech part and proceed toward the neck. The fleece should then be tied with paper twine using only enough twine to hold it intact. The average fleece will require about 3/4 lb. of twine. Some sheep raisers, despite the vigorous protests of

Age Signs Mark Youthful Driver

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Baby face of Billy Arnold, famous race driver, has aged since his first appearance at the Indianapolis track in 1927. Arnold, with the appearance of a high school boy, came here first as a relief driver. He was seventh in 1928, a position higher the following year and in 1930 he scored a sensational victory.

But as champion the weight of competition began to place speed lines in his previously unfurrowed brow. While leading the race by a four lap margin last year, with less than 100 miles to ride to a repeating victory, his car lost a wheel and before it stopped spinning was boosted through a concrete retaining wall by another car.

But Arnold is back ready for another twirl at fate this year. He will ride one of the entries of Harry Hartz in the race May 30.

Miss Nell Stephens entertained the Bridge Club last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Shinkle and children and Miss Maud Berkshire spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Berkshire and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Berkshire.

Where Quality Tells and Price Tells Moving Quicker

There are few mortals in existence that their efficiency cannot be gained by wisdom, their conduct by courtesy, their hatred by scorn or respect—Kimpson.

Believe in Yourself

Nobody ever did anything until he had faith in possibility. It is faith in something which makes life worth living—Country House.

Jockey "Dubouche"

The famous Joe Miller, an English actor, whose collection of books has earned for him the title of "Father of Jests" is said by historians to have been incapable of even a single joke and that the book going under his name was written by a Mr. Motley.

Nomenclature

A very considerable number of names arise from the animal world. Examples are: Bullock, Bull, Lamb, Kid, Colt, Badger, Hog, Hare and Wolf. In several of these the old spelling is still preserved.

First Through Canyon

The first man to make the passage of the Colorado River canyon was Maj. John Wesley Powell in 1891.

Chinese Phases of Moon

The north side of a room is always the honor side among Chinese and the host always sits there facing the south.

Commemorative Stamps

The number of commemorative stamps to be issued is specified by the Post Office department. The number is not always the same as there is a greater demand for certain types of commemorative stamps.

World's Forest Area

The present forest area of the world, in round figures, is about 7,000,000,000 acres, which is 22 per cent of the total land area, exclusive of the polar regions. The area of actually productive forest, however, is probably one-fourth less than this amount, or 5,000,000,000 acres, which is 16 per cent of the land area.

Early Peace Eviction

The first peace evictions of the world was effected by David Low Dodge of the United States, 1815. The Massachusetts Peace Society was founded the same year and the American Peace society by William Lloyd in 1816.

Corruption of Nature

In the Mount National forest of Utah there are to be found huge spheres of stone which have been formed naturally in some unaccountable manner. The stones are perfectly round and are as regular as if they had been turned in a lathe.

Water for Goldfish

A temperature between 50 and 60 degrees is best for goldfish. Avoid any sudden change in temperature. If water is above 60 degrees in summer watch the fish and if they seem distressed reduce the number of fish in each aquarium and be sure the water is aerated. Do not put ice in the water. Cooled water may be fed in gradually if temperature is dangerously high.

Panama Canal's length The Panama canal is 50.37 statute miles from shore line to shore line and about 50 statute miles from deep water in the Atlantic to deep water in the Pacific.

Treat in Abundance

It is estimated the 200 Rocky mountain lakes and streams of Glacier National park contain the richest trout population of any area in the continent. In twenty years the government had stocked more than 50,000,000 fingerlings of all varieties.

Limited Appreciation

A small girl in the north end received from her grandmother in Cleveland, the other day, a pin cushion for a birthday gift. The girl didn't even great rejoicing but the child's parents insisted that a letter of thanks be sent to grandma. Suitable expressions of gratitude were suggested. As finally written, the letter read: "Dear Grandma—I thank you very much for the nice pin cushion. It was just what I needed, but not very much."—Detroit Free Press.

ACTIVITIES

OF COMMENCEMENT WEEK
START WITH JUNIOR-SENIOR PARTY AND CLOSE WITH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT ON MAY 24-CHAUTAUQUA LEOTURNEY TO DELIVER CLASS ADDRESS

Sixteen prospective graduates will bring into a fortnight of strenuous commencement activities at the Boone high school beginning with the junior and senior party on Wednesday night of this week.

A coincidence is noted in the personnel of the graduating class at Boone high this year in that there are an equal number of graduates from Bellevue and Burlington. It will be recalled that the Bellevue high school was consolidated with Boone high school at the beginning of the last fall term and it is a pleasure to relate the fact that the eight members of the class from each town have been highly congenial throughout the year. Professors Kirkwood and McMillan and Miss Anderson, composing the high school faculty, say that it is a very capable class and that the entire school year has been a success and a pleasure to them.

Following the junior-senior party on Wednesday night will come the senior class play on Saturday night, May 21, at 7:45. A great deal of time and labor has been put into this dramatization, the title of which is "Tea Toper Tavern," and it is hoped that the high school auditorium will shelter a capacity crowd for the performance.

Sunday evening, Rev. Raymond Smith, of the Bellevue Baptist church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon. One of the most entertaining nights on the program will be class night on May 24th at 8 o'clock and the commencement will climax the season on Thursday night, May 26.

Roscoe Gilmore Stott will deliver the commencement address and those who hear him are promised a rare treat. Mr. Stott is a speaker of wide experience on the lecture platform, having successfully completed a number of chaquetaqua campaigns.

All of the commencement activities will be held in the school auditorium.

HOPEFUL AID SOCIETY

Ladies of Hopeful Aid Society met at the church Tuesday May 10th, for an all day meeting with 35 members present. After noon hour supper was discussed and final arrangements were made for Saturday evening, May 14th.

The quilt show and chicken supper was a wonderful success and attended by a crowd estimated at about 500. The quilts were hung on lines across the church and were judged as the most beautiful ever on display.

The supper was served in the dining room in the basement, and the people were standing at the tables while others were eating, waiting their turn, until it was nearly impossible for the girls to serve the supper. People came from all parts of Boone county and several from Ohio.

The ladies wish to thank each and everyone that was present for their liberal donations and also their patronage at the supper, hoping to see each and everyone at a similar occasion again in the future, also to the ladies that entered their quilts for display that helped make that a success.

The city was considerate of the farmers requests and conceded most of the improvements asked for.

MELON INSECTS

Melons are beginning to come up in many places in the county. Many farmers are asking again for a remedy for control of the striped cucumber beetle and melon bugs. Best results have been secured by using a repellent composed of 30 pounds of gypsum (which may be secured at most any of the supply houses in Cincinnati at around $1.50 per 100 pounds) and 1 pound of calcium or lead arsenate. The above mixture is kept sprinkled over the hills from the time just before the melons or cucumbers come up and over the vines from then on until after they are large enough to resist injury.

COUNTY LEAGUE

TO OPEN SEASON WITH FOUR TEAMS PLAYING NEXT SATURDAY—NEW ORGANIZATION FORMED AT MEETING HELD MONDAY NIGHT

Next Saturday afternoon will witness the opening of the league season in Boone county.

After several weeks of delay, thru some good base ball weather, the boosters of amateur base ball in four towns in the county finally decided that the most entertaining and effective way to put the national pastime before the people was to be thru a league organization.

So it was that a four-team league was organized at Burlington Monday night. The four teams are Constance, Bellevue, Petersburg and Walton. The opening games will be played next Saturday with Petersburg playing at Walton and Constance at Bellevue. Further games and a complete schedule will be announced later.

Last Saturday afternoon Walton went down to Bellevue for a preliminary game and suffered defeat at the hands of the latter team. Joe Brady was in the box, while Yealey and Glenn did the mound duty for the visiting aggregation. The score was 5-0.

THREE MEN

MEMBER UNLAWFUL SERVICE ON FARMERS CREDIT LOAN COMMITTEE—C. L. CHOPPER, NUBEST CORNER AND BENJAMIN DOANE CLOSE LABORS LAST OF APRIL

The Boone County Farmers Seed Loan Committee completed their work on May 1st and have rendered a patriotic and efficient service to agriculture and citizens of the county according to County Agent H. R. Finkner. The committee during the period for receiving applications for Federal aid for the purchase of seed, fertilizer and other expenses for crop production were ever ready to give of their time, talent and energy in service to the county. For this service their only return was the feeling that they were rendering a necessary service to agriculture.

The work by the committee involved a large number of conferences with individual farmers and the filing of twenty-three applications of farmers for a total of $2,137.00. The work of the committee represented not the service to the 23 farmers but a service to the county as a whole of a committee ready to serve in their capacity when called upon. The County Agent on authority of the Regional Manager of the U. S. Department of Agriculture Division and with permission of the citizens of the county wishes to thank the committee for their abundant, unselfish and patriotic service in this work.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

There are people who can predict pennant races, and then again, there are people who are foolish enough to try to figure out the current pennant race in the National League, which is entirely different for the simple reason that base ball hasn't witnessed a more complicated mix-up in years!

The consensus of opinion before the season opened figured like this: St. Louis, New York, Chicago, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh. As things stand, New York, St. Louis and Brooklyn are way down the ladder, while Chicago leads the league and the Boston Braves and Cincinnati continue to make life miserable for the other clubs.

Chicago's inexperienced team wasn't expected to do much at all, but Rajah Hornsby and his crew have reversed the dope by playing the best ball in the league. The raw infield with Heck, Herman, and Jurgas has functioned like clockwork, and the Cub's heavy hitters have punctured the ball timely in very game. Boston, after taking four straight drubbings from the Reds, proved their strength by staging a come-back against the other western clubs.

To Cincinnati goes the most credit of all. The Reds have met every conceivable variety of tough luck so far and have still managed to improve their hold on the first division. Their home stand against the eastern clubs, starting with four straight victories over Boston and two wins in three games from Philadelphia, has been the surprise of all base ball.

It is hard telling just where the Reds would be now had Lady Luck smiled even a little bit on the Cincinnati team. Injuries have piled one upon another until genial Sidney Weil, President of the club, has just about concluded that his team is going to have to beat the breaks as well as the other seven clubs. So far, the Reds are doing it in great style.

At one time or another since the opening of the campaign, Ernie Lombardi, Babe Herman, Mickey Heath, George Grantham, Leo Durocher, Joe Morrisey, Estel Crabtree, Owen Carroll, and Ray Kolp, all have been out of the game for some reason or another, while Chick Hefner and Benny Frey only recently joined the team. Lombardi broke his finger, was out for ten days, returned to the game and then hurt his digit again. Grantham sprained his ankle, Morrisey acquired a charley-horse, Durocher was suspended for three precious days, Herman was out with a lame leg, as was pitcher Kolp, while Heath, Crabtree and Carroll were hit by the cold weather. If that isn't the height of tough luck, then what is?

What Did We Tell You!

Remember our prediction about the Reds making a trade for another hurler? Benny Frey has been returned to the Reds by the St. Louis Cardinals and will take his regular place on the mound for Cincinnati this week. Frey should do a lot to bolster the pitching staff, and if he can keep pace with Red Lucas and St. Johnson, the Reds should be very well fixed in that department. Lucas and Johnson are among the leading twirlers in the league. Lucas has won five games, and Johnson four.

ASSOCIATION SHALL PURCHASE

The Boone County Seed Association No. 1 purchased another ball for the block the past week. The animal was purchased from Mr. Edgar Aylor of near Florence, and is a double grand grand son of Folsie the 10th of Round Farm and has close up high production records. The ball was bred by Mr. Charles Tanner and some of the Burlington-Florence sires.

CORNCRACKERS AND X-LL-ALLS WIN IN COUNTY 4-H CONTESTS

The best 4-H Club Officers and Leaders Training Conference and county 4-H Demonstration Contests and girls sewing club Style show held today was held at Burlington High School building Saturday, May 14th according to the County Agent. A number of important 4-H Club problems were decided upon during the morning program and the array of Farm Practice Demonstration Teams, Home Practice Demonstration Teams and sewing club girls Style Show work were some of the best presented in club work today.

"Three Ways of Testing Seed Corn" demonstrated by Melvin Kenyon and Milton Rodamer of the Corncracker 4-H Club of Constance defeated by a narrow margin the "Five Point Clean Chick Program" demonstrated by Woodford Crigler and Allan Kenyon of the Norbeh Champion 4-H Club. Both teams did an excellent job in the contest. Prof. R. V. Lents, leader trained the Corncracker team.

The X-LL-ALL team of Florence with their demonstration "Bed Making and Care of the Sick Patient" was awarded first place among four well planned and well presented home practice demonstration teams. The team was represented by Marian Sullivan, Jane Taylor and Alice Sarah Lucas and was trained under the leadership of Miss Lucille Taylor and Mrs. Lewis Sullivan and with the valuable assistance of Miss Eunice Willis, Red Cross Nurse. "Preparing Grapefruit for Breakfast" presented by Londa Lee Jarrell and Martha Bots Rhythe of Mrs. Walter Brown's 4-H Foods project group, "Short Cuts in Bed Making" presented by Louise Kinsinger and Gladys Reeves of the Corncracker 4-H Club trained under the leadership of Mrs. Henry Kottmyer and Mrs. Will Zimmerman and "Making Stitches according to the Cloth" presented by Lucille Hensley and Cordelia Surface of the Good Will 4-H Club of Petersburg and trained by Mrs. Alberta Stephens were all well planned and creditably demonstrated.

Miss Jane Taylor of the X-LL-ALL 4-H Club of Florence was awarded first place in the unit 111 and girls sewing club Style Show. Miss Ruth Kottmyer of the Corncracker 4-H Club, Miss Margaret Johnson of the Waltonians 4-H Club and Miss Marian Sullivan and Alice Sarah Lucas of the X-LL-ALL as a group presented one of the best arrays of sewing club girls work.

The winners in the county contest will receive prize scholarship trips to the contest held during Junior Week at Lexington, June 7 to the 11th. The L. & N. Railroad is offering two prize scholarship trips and the Southeastern Consolidated Greyhound Coach is offering another trip.

The 4-H Clubs represented in the county meeting and contests were the Blue Ribbon, True Blue, Good Will, Norbeh Champion, New Haven Boosters, Waltonians, Corncrackers and X-LL-ALL.

4-H CLUB

The demonstration team for the county representative was held at Burlington. The winner will journey to Lexington. Although Burlington was not fortunate enough to win anything, we are pushing the other teams to win something for Boone county.

ORGANIZATION

OF FARMERS TO COUNTRY FOR RIGHTS OF YEARS OF SERVICE BY AL DOONES IN LETTER TO DOUGHER LOWE TAKES SHOULD BE ONE AIM, HE SAYS

The time has come when the farmers must organize and not only demand a lowering of their taxes but see that their taxes are fixed on a level with the prices they are getting for the produce sold from their farms. According to statistics there are thirty-four million farmers in his country and if they will organize they will be in a position to say to both State and Federal Government that we are willing to pay taxes in proportion to our incomes, and if you are not willing to enact legislation to that effect we will not pay any taxes at all. It must be conclusive to the farmers that all of this talk coming from both State and Federal officials is nothing but hot air. In the last gubernatorial campaign in this state the farmers were promised relief from taxes. What did we get? The Federal Congress has been in session for four months and quite a good deal has been said in both branches of Congress as to the deplorable condition of the farmers but not one single constructive thing done. The Federal Congress has passed legislation to help the banks, railroads and insurance companies but not one single thing has been done to help the producers of this country. Unless some constructive measures are enacted into law whereby the farmers can sell their products for a reasonable profit the lands of this country will be concentrated into big farms and operated by peasant labor. I appeal to you red blooded farmers of this country are you going to sit idly by and allow the officials of both State and Federal Government, and I call them parasites, to sap the last shilling of your earnings without a fight? The time has come when you have got to fight your battles, you cannot send a substitute, they will betray you. You are in a position to write the platform and dictate the terms. Have you the guts to do it? I feel that the farmers of this country have reached the point where patience ceases to be a virtue. The price for their products grow less day by day and taxes more day by day. Don't sit around and fuss about it, but go to the ones who are entrusted to transact your business and tell them that they are the servants of the farmers as well as for the banks and railroads, and if they don't give you legislation in the same proportion there will be hell in Denmark. There has been such a tremendous concentration of wealth brought about by favoritism displayed in legislation that the great common people have been left in the shade. I wonder if in order to break that up will we be forced to have another "Broken Tea Party"? The farmers must demand a reduction in the operation of both State and Federal Government. Do away with Bureaucratic Commissions and lower the salaries from jailer to president. You farmers tell them that you will pay them in proportion to the service rendered, and if that be the criterion the bulk of them won't draw enough salary to pay the price of a sandwich. Every law that has been enacted for the last decade from the prohibition law to the school law has increased the burdens of the farmers, while their products are commanding such low prices that it would bankrupt any business on God's green earth.

There is no other alternative but action, you must organize. Self preservation is the first law of nature. If you will organize and demand your rights they will be headed off. If not this is your portion. During the Civil War Stonewall Jackson wanted to run up the black flag, by that more farmers would ask no quarters nor give none, fully realizing the suffering would be more intense but sooner over. The farmers have reached the stage where they should act pretty much along those lines. They have pled for legislation placing them on equality with other industries, but their entreaties have been ignored. The time is at hand when you farmers should arise en masse and tell the world what something is done to make your business return a reasonable profit that you will call mass meetings in every county in the State and every State in the Union and say, "I am a farmer and I am a man."

SHORTENING THE WORKING DAY

A general shortening of the hours of labor in all branches of industry may come about as one result of the present business depression. An increasing number of large business concerns are operating on a five-day week. There is a great deal of discussion among business men of the possibility of making the six-hour day the standard. A bill has been introduced in Congress for the reduction of the working day on government work, with a corresponding reduction in compensation to each worker, and for the adoption of a general five-day week in all industries. We don't expect very much to come out of that, because we have given up expecting Congress to do anything to bring about the millennium. But we hear encouraging reports from industries that have adopted the shorter day and the shorter week, and it wouldn't surprise us to see this movement grow very rapidly.

Of course, the earnings of workers are necessarily less, individually, when they work shorter hours; but it takes more workers to operate the business and, on the whole, it seems a better thing for the nation at large to have everybody earning something than to have a few earning big pay and a lot earning nothing. Fewer people are going to be able to buy luxuries in the next few years than were able to buy them in the few years preceding the big slump. But even if everybody earned twenty-five per cent less for the next ten years than they did in the years from 1920 to 1930, our average income and buying power would still be much higher than that of the people of any other nation in the world. And if the five day week and the six hour day will result in putting everybody back to work, then we are for it.

PENSIONERS

The United States has always been the most liberal country in the world in providing pensions for the men who have served in its army and navy. Recently, there has been a good deal of discussion of this pension situation, which is costing the taxpayers of the United States considerably more than a billion dollars a year.

We have no quarrel whatever with the principle that a man who has been wounded or disabled by illness while risking his life for the defense of his country should be taken care of, so long as he needs it, at the expense of his country. But we have no sympathy for the able-bodied, self-supporting man who thinks that he is entitled to a pension merely because he was under arms for a while in a training camp. And we have still less sympathy for the man who tries by fraudulent means to obtain a pension by special act of Congress.

President Hoover put his finger on one of the weakest spots in our pension system when he vetoed the Omnibus Pension Bill. This is an annual affair which usually has a great many meritorious claims on it, but frequently also contains claims of would-be pensioners who are not by any stretch of the imagination entitled to be supported by the public. As Mr. Hoover pointed out, the people of the U. S. should not be taxed to pension a man who was court-martialed for drunkenness and conduct prejudicial to good order and was finally discharged without honor for the good of the service, or for a man whose injuries were incurred in attempting suicide, or for a soldier whose only injury was the loss of a leg by being run over by a street car when he was lying on the track intoxicated. Those are only a few of the fraudulent claims for pensions which were included in this year's Omnibus Pension Bill.

By all means, we think, every man who has ever proved his willingness to die for his country has a special claim upon the nation's gratitude. But we feel, also, that the greatest care should be taken at all times, and especially now, to protect the nation against fraudulent pension claims.

"FIELD NOTES"

One of my friend-patrons came into the office this morning. He is a fine specimen of manhood, a good family and a reliable citizen. But, he came to me ten days ago with ACUTE ALCOHOLISM. Some earnest advice—a medicine to take the place of the stuff that MUST be let alone—and he was on the road to recovery; rapidly becoming himself again. Very well. Almost ready to return home to his wife and grown-up daughters. Yesterday, he told me this morning, he met an acquaintance, a traveling salesman, a "hale fellow well met." This fellow was equipped with a real arsenal—a quart of bootleg liquor, that he kept to treat his customers. My man "broke over," and today is entirely off the mineral water wagon. Not drunk, not at all maudlin, but just a little extra steam on. Of course he is sorry and repentant, but he must not go home for another week to face that trusting wife and daughters.

I mention this for my readers, so that they may know how we physicians have to struggle with the "noble experiment" that we have, and which some hug to their breasts as bearing the sprouting seeds of the millennium, when they fondly expect a "DRY" world will emerge from its moonshine coils. It is all well enough to talk about, but its practical working is another thing, or it is so here.

There is not a minute of the day or night when the victim of dipsomania can't go out and help himself to liquor, if he has the price—not bonded liquor, but bootleg! Why don't I stop it? My dear sir, I'm not a federal officer; if I were, that traveling salesman is probably 200 miles out of town this morning, charging some other man's battery. No folks, we shall have to devise some other way.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT AS OF MAY 1, 1932

Kentucky's prospective wheat and rye crops this season promise to be somewhat smaller than in 1931, according to the May report for Kentucky issued by the Louisville office of the U. S. Division of Crop and Livestock Estimates. Conditions of the Kentucky wheat crop May 1 indicates a probable production of about 3,653,000 bushels this season, compared to 4,840,000 bus. harvested last year and a 5-year average of 3,635,000 bus. 1924-1928 inclusive. Kentucky's probable rye production this season is estimated at 276,000 bus., compared to 360,000 bus. last year and a 5-year average of 200,000 bus. 1924-1928.

Wheat and rye in Kentucky came through the mild winter in good condition as a whole, but some fields were damaged by the severe March freezes. Abandonment of wheat acreage has not been severe up to May 1, or 6% of the sown acreage. An unusually large number of farmers report they intend to pasture or hog down their wheat. Condition of wheat in Kentucky May 1 was reported by farmers 87 per cent of normal, compared to 93 per cent May 1 last year and 83 per cent the previous 10-year average for May 1. Rye conditions May 1 was 88 per cent of normal, compared to 89 per cent May 1 last year and 79 per cent the previous May 1 10-year average.

Condition of pasture in Kentucky May 1 was reported by farmers as somewhat backward in some areas but improving rapidly, averaging 79 per cent of normal compared to 82 per cent of normal May 1 last year and the May 1 5-year average 1924-28 of 83. Some hay meadows were reported somewhat irregular due to effects of the severe March freezes and the backward spring weather, averaging 81 per cent of normal May 1 this year compared to 88 per cent a year ago and a 10-year average 1919-28 of 87. Hay stocks left on Kentucky farms May 1 this year were reported by farmers as 337,000 tons compared to only 58,000 tons May 1 last year and an average of 232,000 tons May 1 1924-28.

Early Lamb Situation, May 1, 1932

Weather during April was about normal in the early lambing areas in the native sheep states and the developing of the early lambs was average or better for the month. While there was abundant moisture in the North Pacific states and Idaho, April weather was cold and the spring season is from two to three weeks late. With range feed late and other feed short lambs did not make normal growth during April. In California lack of rain until the end of April caused feed to dry rapidly with resulting heavy shipments of lambs after the middle of the month. Feed conditions in Texas in April were unfavorable for growth of early lambs or fattening of mutton sheep.

Moisture conditions in all early lambing sections, except California, about May 1 were quite favorable for abundant supplies of pasture and range feed during the next two months and early lambs in the native sheep states will probably be marketed somewhat earlier than usual. Good feed in other areas can bring the early lambs to about normal condition by the middle of June.

Kentucky—During April, pastures improved materially and the condition of ewes and lambs was good with mortality light. An extra early movement of excellent quality lambs is expected with marketings in some volume under way by May 1 and the peak of the movement indicated as earlier than last year.

THE OBITUARY PAGE

Once I was talking with Kent Cooper about what interests people in the newspapers.

He said: "When a man gets to be about forty-five years old he discovers the obituary page."

I certainly am not a gloomy minded person, but I have always thought more or less about death. The attitude of a large portion of the human race toward it seems to me infantile and silly.

It isn't a pleasant subject, but certainly it is an inevitable one. Why dodge and pretend and act like children? Said Caesar:

"Of all the wonders that I yet have heard,

It seems to me most strange that men should fear;

Seeing that death, a necessary end,

Will come when it will come."

All of which leads me to remark that there is a certain advantage in discovering the obituary page comparatively early in life. The tragedy is that some men never discover it.

I have seen a doting old millionaire, with one foot in the grave, fighting with a taxi-man over a nickel, or trying to beat down the price of a neck-tie.

I once sought a contribution to charity from a millionaire who was well over sixty and notoriously tight. He told all the reasons why he couldn't give up a cent, and as he warmed up to the subject he began to act as if my call were an insult.

Finally I said: "Why are you so mean? Why do you deny yourself pleasures and squeeze every nickel? It isn't your money; it's your children's money, or it will be in a few years. Why let them have all the pleasure? Why not have the fun of giving some of it away?"

This rude remark shocked him. I think it started a line of thought that made quite a change in his life.

Moses prayed: "So teach us to number our days that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

I assume that to mean that, when we get along toward middle life and note by the papers that men of our age, or a few years older, are dropping off, we ought to stop and take stock.

We ought to say: "As life goes I have maybe ten, fifteen, or, at the most, thirty years. Therefore, I ought to quit thinking—How much money can I pile up? and begin thinking—How can I be sure to do all the things I want to do, see all the places I want to see, and leave behind me a reputation for having been a reasonably good and generous individual?"

It would help if the papers would print at the top of the obituary page every day this quotation from Rousseau:

"The dead take to the grave, in their clutched fingers, only that which they have given away."

Writer Says United States Has Made Two "Noble" Experiments

(BY FRANK SPENCER)
Washington (C. for The Boone County Recorder)

Speaking of noble experiments, it has now become apparent that the United States has made two, not one. Noble Experiment No. 1 might be described as a trial of the merit and value of Federal control of individual habits at times inimicable to good citizenship but not inherently any crime against the union of the States. There are those who maintain that Noble Experiment No. 1 is on its way to ultimate triumphant vindication. There are others who insist that it has already demonstrated itself to be a most colossal failure.

Once upon a time Representatives in Congress were nominated by conventions, Senators selected by State legislatures. Both systems undoubtedly opened the door to bribery, corruption, undue influence and at times manifest political rottenness. So we—at least a majority of us—decided to try Noble Experiment No. 2—the direct primary. Supporters of the movement held that its adoption would in purifying national politics.

In spite of the somewhat significant results in recent State primaries, particularly that in Ohio, let it be admitted that there still exists some reasonable doubt about the wisdom, efficacy and progress to date of Noble Experiment No. 1. But no impartial observer any longer doubts the complete and dismal collapse of Noble Experiment No. 2. Old and discarded systems of selecting our Senators and so-called Representatives may have been and undoubtedly were far from perfect, but in the main we were served by statesmen in those days; statesmen whose renomination and reelection did not depend upon the clamor of organized minority blocs; statesmen who dared to vote in accordance with their principles and for the welfare of all instead of tremblingly submitting to the dictates of what President Hoover called "the locust swarm of lobbyists who haunt the halls of Congress seeking selfish privileges for special groups and sections of the country, misleading members as to the real views of the people by showers of propaganda."

Noble Experiment No. 2 has created a condition in which each member of Congress has to face the fact that back home there are a lot of voters ready to revenge themselves on him if he supports any particular proposition to which they object. In his State or in his district there are always active—sometimes powerful—opponents for his job. Give any one of them an opportunity to capitalize discontent and the ambitious incumbent has a hazardous fight on his hands. It is not surprising that the primary concern of all congressmen is their own political lives. Under our Noble Experiment No. 2 such measures as tax increases, pay-roll slashes and veteran legislation are looked upon as placing political lives in jeopardy.

Strange to say, partisanship does not enter into the question. The public condemns both parties and Congress as a whole. In fact, the injection of politics into the problems with which Congress is confronted has operated to the political disadvantage of both parties by starting an avalanche of public condemnation upon the legislative branch of our government for its delays in tax and economy legislation. Unprejudiced observers here maintain that not a single political speech or political maneuver made since Congress convened has benefited the partisan who made it. Mutual recriminations and grossly exaggerated claims of credit for the modicum of really constructive effort already exercised are treated with contempt by the public. There is so much blame that both parties get their full measure of it, and so little credit that neither receives much.

However, it may be that there is a little balm in Gilead, for non-partisan consideration of the Government's emergency economy program by a bi-partisan subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Appropriations has been advanced by Republican and Democratic leaders as a sensible way of dealing with this vexatious problem. It is considered a reasonable plan, worthy of being carried into effect. But unless the program adopted by such a bi-partisan committee in a non-partisan way is backed up by both Republicans and Democrats in the Senate it will be futile. It may be remembered that the House Ways and Means Committee, acting in a non-partisan manner, brought in a revenue bill calculated to balance the budget and that no sooner had the bill been presented to the House than members dodged this non-partisan measure, forgot their leaders and scrambled for what they considered safety in a storm.

The congressman who is duped by lobbyists is a greater menace than the lobbyists themselves. Lawmakers who trust to special interests merely because they make the most noise cannot be trusted to represent any one. While there can be intelligent discussion there can be no intelligent definite action on taxes until it is known whether the Senate is resolved to institute real economy in place of the sham and pretense put forth at the other end of the Capitol. Let the taxpayers see that Congress has turned over a new leaf and started to cut expenses in earnest and then they will be more reconciled to the higher taxes essential to the balancing of the budget.

WASHINGTON SNAP SHOTS

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

Taken By The Helm News Service

With a 2,000-word attack on the futility and harmless and harmfulness of the Democratic tariff bill, President Hoover returned it to the Capitol with his disapproval and within an hour the House, divided substantially on party lines, sustained his veto. A slender majority of 178, as against 166, favored passage of the bill over the President's veto, but a two-thirds majority was required to override the White House action. Twelve Republicans, mostly from the farm belt, and one Farmer-Laborite joined with the Democrats, and two Democrats deserted their side to uphold the President.

In one of the most emphatic messages of his Administration, Mr. Hoover told the House that if Congress wanted a wholesale tariff revision it should undertake to make that revision directly; that if it was proposed to abandon the traditional American principle that the fixing of American tariffs is an exclusive prerogative of the American Government, Congress should say so definitely and not by implication; that he was unwilling to embark upon any negotiations for reciprocal tariff concessions with other nations which have been the fruitful breeding ground of trade wars and more serious controversies, and that "there never has been a time in the history of the United States when tariff protection was more essential to the welfare of the American people than at present."

The wet victory in the Ohio primary was regarded here as foreshadowing, more than any other pre-convention development, the adoption of a prohibition referendum plank in the Republican National Convention. Not only was David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, a wet member of the Hoover sub-Cabinet, nominated for Governor in a clear-cut test on the prohibition issue, and with the backing of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, the President's campaign manager, but the resubmissionists in the President's official family have been banking on such an outcome to clinch their argument for his acceptance of a referendum plank.

A Democratic program for legislation on unemployment relief before the end of this session was put forward in the Senate by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic leader, and immediately encountered expressions of strong Republican opposition. The program would advance $300,000,000 of Federal funds, raised by bonds, to the states and municipalities, and would authorize a huge construction program financed by an issue of $2,000,000,000 in government bonds, to go to states and cities. In part the program would be based on a bill by Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, of New York, for cooperation between the Federal government and the states in relieving unemployment.

Fast on the heels of the declaration of Senator Robinson, that Congress, before adjourning, should authorize a $2,000,000,000 bond issue for public works, ten Democratic Senators pledged themselves to fight for the legalization of 2.75 per cent beer as a revenue source to pay the interest and amortization charges on such a bond issue. The ten Democrats jointly signed a statement pledging "every resource to have adopted" the Tydings amendment to the revenue bill to legalize 2.75 per cent beer subject to a tax of 24 cents a gallon. This tax would raise $500,000,000 annually, the group estimated.

Senator Hiram W. Cawley, Democrat of Arkansas, only member of the United States Senate, elected up a new record for the day by being the first senator who ever presided over the upper House of Congress. This was called to the chair by Vice-President Curtis and held the gavel for about 15 minutes. The honor happened to come to the gentleman from Arkansas on the same day she announced her candidacy for a regular term in the Senate, to follow the unexpired term she is now serving as the appointed successor of her late husband.

The War Department has one of the most efficient fingerprinting systems in the world, the details of which are carefully kept secret. A young man walked into the Department the other day and announced to the guard that he did not know his name. All he could remember, he said, was that he had been in the army at one time and he thought perhaps the army might have some records by which he could reestablish his identity. His finger prints were compared with those of enlisted and drafted during the World War, and after a short time the man with the misplaced name was told that he was Ben Ispai, of Norfolk, Virginia. The Department took the precaution to write his name down so that he would not forget it again.

Representative Woodrum of Virginia caused the House to laugh loudly when he displayed photostatic copies of pages from the Congressional Record containing excerpts of almost identical speeches credited to Representative LaGuardia of New York and Representative Buchanan of Texas. The speeches, printed in the "Extension of Remarks" section, where undelivered oratory appears, were identical except for minor changes.

Mr. Woodrum "brought down the House" when he suggested "amending" that "Congress ought to do nothing about this," saying: "It has become so that it is dangerous for a member to go out in the open market and buy a good speech and read it, and in his mind's eye picture how his constituents will thrill with ecstasy and pride when they see how their Congressman has risen to the heights of logic and risen in the defense of their interest, when on the next page he may pick up the same speech by some other member. We really ought to take cognizance of this fact and try to pass a law. For instance, have some clearing house here so that when we want a good speech we could be sure we would get it the next day, delivered by some other member of the House."

Comparative trivialities, such as $1,500,000 deficits and $1,000,000 appropriation bills, were shoved aside while the House spent two hours and fifty minutes considering a Senate resolution to change two letters in the official spelling of Porto Rico. The Committee on Insular Affairs had reported that the present name of the island was an "impure idiomatic compound," and after prolonged discussion the House agreed that such things should not be permitted. Accordingly, the resolution was passed changing the name "Puerto Rico" to "Porto Rico." Blanton, Democrat, of Texas, said "Puerto Rico" was all right if that was what the inhabitants of the island wanted, but he served notice the House had better not try to change the name of Texas.

As one Washington political narrator, America's financial woes are responsible for an entirely new crop of stories, all indicative of the country's determination not to lose the treasure too soon. There's a change here: A Washington daily states today that after a session from 2 to 3 p.m. at the office, England into the money to spend his 4-year-old hospital and said to the governor, "Well, has my previous been good as gold today?" The governor replied: "Well, not altogether. He went off the gold standard about an hour ago!"

KENTUCKY DRAINAGE PROJECT ATTRACTS NATIONAL ATTENTION

A cooperative drainage project whereby nearly 22,000 acres of rich bottom land along Kinkaid creek in Franklin County, Ky., were brought back into production, has attracted nation-wide attention, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Encouraged by County Agent E. M. Beall, and assisted by Earl G. Welch, agricultural engineer from the College of Agriculture, five farmers cooperated to blast a ditch with dynamite. A manufacturer of explosives sent an engineer to do the actual blasting.

A mile of new channel was added and nearly two miles of old channel straightened and deepened. The completed ditch averaged 100 feet wide at the bottom and five feet wide at the top and three feet deep. The cost was about 3 cents per foot. The reclaimed land, much of which had not been farmed for years, produced 30 to 40 bushels of corn and 1,000 pounds of tobacco to the acre. In some instances last year's crop more than paid the cost of the ditch, which should last for years.

Fifteen farmers owning 1,500 sheep cooperated in building a dipping vat in one community in Nicholas county.

The Casey county Board of Health has voted to cooperate in selling cattle for tuberculosis.

Twelve Morgan county farmers are growing an acre of potatoes each, using methods of cultivation and fertilizing recommended by John S. Gardner.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

May the Holy Sunlight Mission of Constance, Ky., take this opportunity of inviting everyone to the evening services on May 29, 1932, at 7:45. Our reason for this most cordial invitation is that the "Trio of Girls" and several others from God's Bible School will be our guests.

Since Sunday marked another day upon which to honor "mothers" the special at both the afternoon and evening services were about mothers.

At Sunday school Miss Filda Rodamer read a poem entitled "My Mother." A group of girls sang the beautiful song "Mother" and another poem called "Mother" was read.

We were very glad to have a number of visitors with us for the evening service.

It seemed as though the congregation heartily enjoyed the special of a vocal solo by Mrs. Mary Layton, accompanied by Avalon Hood with the violin and Vivian Hood at the piano.

"Tell Mother I'll Be There" was sung by a trio of girls, then "My Mother's Prayers" was sung by Evelyn and Laura Milson.

"The Old Arm Chair" a poem read by Bro. Joe Milson could not fail to bring fond memories to us. Everyone who listened to Bro. Joe Milson's sermon found it so enjoyable that a short outline of it might prove interesting to the readers. The text used was John 3:16.

As everyone knows this proves God's great love for us. Man has the power in his heart to love for sin, whatever we love most is in our hearts.

Therefore if God dwells within our hearts, peace, joy and happiness will be ours.

There is only one love on earth to compare with God's and that is a "Mother's."

God through His great abiding love for us gives us everything but He never will do for us that which we are capable of doing for ourselves.

These main points of the sermon were very well illustrated by different instances—thereby making the whole a very effective and appropriate sermon.

Tuesday night we were credibly lead at "Praise Service" by Mrs. Layton.

We enjoyed Mr. Hood's reading and explanation of the Scripture verses.

A Trio of young men favored us with a special song. Bro. Johnson and another young man from Pike Street, Covington, visited us Friday night for our regular Bible Study.

Time sped rapidly as we listened to one after another of Bro. Johnson's explanations of certain passages of Scripture.

Don't forget our visitors May 22.

The Family Garden

By John B. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture

There is probably not a garden in Kentucky in which greens have not already played an important part; in fact the season for harvesting spring greens is almost over. Greens would be a welcome addition to the diet the summer thru if only to provide variety, to say nothing of their value otherwise, but quite too many of us associate "greens" only with spring. There are two hot-weather greens, Swiss Chard and New Zealand spinach. They are both easy to grow, but, to have them, arrangements must have been made in time. That time is now.

SWISS CHARD—Swiss Chard belongs to the best family, resembling somewhat the stock beet or Mangel Wursel, but bred to produce topgrowth. Its flavor and method of preparation are much similar to those of red-tops, which some persons are already accustomed to use for greens. To those who are not acquainted with this excellent green, a welcome surprise is in store.

The seed should be sown now, dropped in a drill at a spacing of about two inches. When the plants are about 3 inches tall they should be thinned to a stand of 12 inches, the thinnings used as greens. The plants that remain should be allowed to produce about 6 leaves, when harvesting may begin, two-thirds of the large leaves being broken off, the rest left to grow out again. This characteristic of Swiss Chard has given it the name of "cut and come again" for it will furnish greens all summer long and even past the first few fall frosts. A thirty foot row, as one packet of seed will produce, will furnish at least two servings of greens for an average family the season through.

Few insects bother chard, but even if the blister beetle destroys the leaf tissue, the fleshy midrib may be trimmed and used. The variety is Leucella.

NEW ZEALAND SPINACH—This is a green of slightly different nature, in that the "greens" consist of the growing tips of the branches of the plants, which grow in even the driest, hottest weather, furnishing more and more greens as the season progresses. The seed should be sown in lots of 3 or 3 at a spacing 3 feet apart and 3 feet away from any other row. Only one seedling should be left in each "hill," for the plants finally become as large as tomato plants. The amount of "spinach" produced is enormous, for when one terminal shoot is removed two replace it. The flavor is similar to that of ordinary spinach; in fact, many persons consider it better. Table preparation is the same as for ordinary spinach. The only variety is "New Zealand."

No insects bother New Zealand spinach seriously, except that the black flea beetle is sometimes troublesome at the seedling stage. Thorough dusting at this time, but not after harvest is begun, with a 1-to-6 mixture of lead arsenate and lime, will prove effective against the flea beetle.

seed of red clover seems almost may infest fields on which clover is sown at the rate of 1,000 plants of dodder or sorrel to the acre.

A new seed law which becomes effective in Kentucky July 1st requires all lots of agricultural seeds in containers of a pound or more to have attached tags showing the purity, germination, percent of weed seed and number of noxious weed seed per pound. These tags will enable farmers to know the true value of the seed which they buy.

A fair apple crop is in prospect in Boone county, but most of the peaches were killed by the March freeze.

One hundred Monroe county 4-H club boys will grow high quality tobacco according to directions of the county agent.

Six car loads of certified seed potatoes have been planted in Laurel county.

A BIG PYTHIAN EVENT

The Knights of Pythias Lodges of Greater Cincinnati, which comprises all lodges of Hamilton County, Ohio, as well as Kenton and Campbell counties Kentucky, are making preparations for an immense meeting at the Castle Hall of Myrtle Lodge, Covington, Ky., on Saturday evening, May 28th, 7:30 P. M. At this meeting the Rank of Page will be conferred on a class of candidates by the Miami Lodge of Dayton, Ohio. Miami Lodge will bring its entire equipment and team consisting of 70 men. The new ritual will be used in conferring the work. Miami Lodge will bring its famous drill team which ranks among the best in the country. Those who have never had an opportunity of witnessing this wonderful work should visit Myrtle Castle Hall, Covington, Ky., on the evening of Saturday May 28. All Kentucky Knights of Pythias lodges have been invited to attend. Pythians are coming from all sections to witness the wonderful Page Rank as conferred by Miami Lodge and an immense crowd is expected. This meeting will be one of the most enthusiastic gatherings held in Kentucky for some time.

KENTUCKY DAIRYING HIGHLY EFFICIENT

Figures made available by the dairy division of the College of Agriculture indicate that a number of Kentucky farmers are developing highly efficient herds, through the use of records and other information accruing from their membership in dairy herd improvement associations. Statistics are given for eight herds that made averages of 300 or more pounds of butterfat a cow last year. Production per cow in the Fwing-Von Allmen herd in Oldham county increased from 330 pounds of butterfat in 1929 to 471 pounds in 1931, an addition of 141 pounds, or more than the average farm now produces in Kentucky. L. R. Jones, Bourbon county farmer, added 136 pounds of butterfat per cow in the same time, increasing production from 225 lbs. to 361 pounds per cow. At the Monroe Dairy Farm in Jefferson county production per cow increased 145 pounds in 1931.

Cotton & Sons, of Fayette county, last year made an average butterfat production of 365 pounds per cow, against an average of 225 lbs. in 1929.

Calhoun Hill, Shelby county, Walnut Hill Farm, Fayette county, and Henderson, Ky., Shelby county, each increased their cow production by 50 pounds.

The improvement of these herds to their present high efficiency came about as the result of cooperation of testers and herd owners in the use of records, according to the dairy division of the College. Some of the increases were the result of better feeding. In other instances the herds were closely culled of low producers, while in some improved breeding an important part.

LESPEDEZA GAINS IN FAVOR AMONG KENTUCKY FARMERS

Three million pounds of Korean lespedeza seed were sown in Kentucky this year, according to estimates made at the College of Agriculture. Hundreds of farmers increased their acreages of this new and improved hay and pasture crop, while many more are trying it for the first time.

Practically all of this seed was produced in the state. Farmers Cooperative Associations formed to sell seed have disposed of most of last year's production. The largest association reports a carry-over of less than 10 per cent.

R. R. Giltner, Eminence, Ky., president of the Kentucky Seed Improvement Association, says that he expects that practically all of the seed grown in the state last year will be sold this spring. Mr. Giltner received inquiries about seed from all over the United States, and made sales to nearly every state in the central west and the south half of the country. Two hundred pounds were sold in the Hawaiian Islands.

Mr. Giltner pointed out that the low price of seed made it possible for large numbers of Kentucky farmers to sow Korean lespedeza seed this year. "We know of a large number of farmers who sowed several thousand pounds of seed each, in mixture with other grasses, for hay, pasture, and fertility," he said.

More Korean lespedeza was sown in the Bluegrass counties this spring than ever before. Large quantities of seed went into several central counties for sowing in pasture and hay mixtures.

Volunteer Korean lespedeza promises full stands, in most regions, despite the March freeze.

RECOMMENDS DRY MASH FOR POULTS

Feeding dry mash during the first few weeks practically eliminates the danger of overfeeding turkey poults. Any one of the dry mash mixtures used for chicks will do for poults, provided it contains dry milk and bonemeal.

When skim milk or buttermilk is available it should be fed to poults from the very first, and a special mash on in protein be mixed at home. Skim milk can be fed either sweet or sour, and should be given as soon as the tepidals are removed from the incubator or as soon as the setting hen is removed from the nest. Skim milk is considered better than cottage cheese or clabber because it contains the milk sugars. Feed skim milk sweet during cool weather, but when warm weather comes sour milk should be fed continuously.

"Turkey Talk," a circular issued by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, recommends the following dry mash turkey starter: 20 pounds of ground yellow corn, 15 pounds of wheat bran, 20 pounds of middlings or shorts, 10 pounds of finely ground or pulverized oats, 15 pounds of meat scrap, 10 pounds of dried buttermilk or skim milk, 5 pounds of alfalfa leaf meal, 2 pounds of steamed bonemeal, 2 pounds of cod liver oil and a pound of salt.

Thirty-five pounds of mixed wheat feed or shipstuf may be used in place of the bran and shorts.

Place this mash before the poults in self-feeders when they are removed to the brooder. Start feeding grain after the first week. Place a mixture of equal parts of wheat and cracked corn in open hoppers and the poults will gradually increase the amount of grain consumed. As soon as the poults will eat corn it need no longer be cracked. If skim milk or buttermilk is available omit the dried buttermilk from the mash and keep it liquid milk constantly available in place of water.

JACOB AT BETHEL

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Those who think that the Bible is a dull book will do well to learn the action, intrigue, love-making and accomplishments in this portion of the life of Jacob. He had to leave home because he had gained the bitter hatred of his twin brother Esau by reason of the two infamous tricks that he played on him. The favoritism of both father and mother made the plot thicker. Then a real hike was entered upon as a 400 miles journey was undertaken that would lead to Mesopotamia where family relatives would be found.

A few nights out the tired young man camped at Bethel. During the night he was granted a wondrous vision in which he beheld the angels descending from heaven and returning by what looked like a great ladder. Jacob was mightily impressed and realized that Jehovah was speaking to him through this manifestation. At once an altar was set up and dedicated with oil and prayer. Turn to the hymn "Nearer My God to Thee," and you find how the author gave a beautiful poetic setting to the events of that night. Such manifestations relate heaven and earth vitally. The spirit world is an actual world and mortals are in intimate relation thereto. The Bible is clear in its teaching of angelology and one of the finest descriptions of their work is found in Hebrews 1:14.

Note that this vision was accompanied with the same promise that had already been granted to Abraham and Isaac. Jacob could see that his descendants were to be a mighty race and have a reaching influence, and this is the glorious record of the Hebrews. Further, this promise was given before the twenty years away from home were entered upon. Jacob in turn was tricked a plenty by his uncle Laban, but in the midst of all the trials he could think back to the promise of God at Bethel.

WEEDS CAUSE BIG LOSSES ON FARMS

Losses on Kentucky farms due to weeds are enormous, declares Eric C. Vaughn of the College of Agriculture, who has been making a study of this problem. There is no way of estimating this loss in terms of money, but it probably runs into millions of dollars every year.

Weeds increase the cost of production, reduce yields and lower the quality of crops. Weeds detract from the appearance of farms and so reduce their selling possibilities. Certain weeds are poisonous to stock and others impair the flavor and quality of dairy products.

Mr. Vaughn says that most of the harmful weeds found in Kentucky are not native of the state but were introduced from other states or countries. They have come here chiefly in common farm seeds. One seed of dodder or sorrel to 22,000 this year wasn't up to par, and thousands of lovers of the "Sport of Kings" feel that way about it. The victory of E. E. Bradley's Burgo King was a deserved one, but the field in the classic was not nearly as imposing as in previous runnings. On top of that, the depression made a big difference in the sentiment of the crowd at Louisville on Derby Day, and it made a big difference in the size of the crowd also. Racing is one of those sports which is best served in prosperous times, apparently. With millions of Americans out of work, it does seem futile to spend money on such a pastime as racing, and that is how most of the Derby followers must have felt about it.

Can't Blame Leo

We've had some inquiries from Red fans asking for the lowdown on Leo Doercher's fight with Bartell of the Philadelphia Quakers at Redland Field last week. The writer saw the game in question and is of the opinion that Leo got all the worst of the deal, when he was fined $50 and suspended for three days for striking the opposing player. The fiery little shotstop had stolen two bases earlier in the game and attempted to steal another when he slid into Bartell at second, slightly spiking Bartell's hand unintentionally. Bartell made a derogatory remark, calculated to arouse Leo's ire, and it certainly did exactly that. Leo socked Bartell on the jaw and then threw him to the ground before the umpires could separate the two. Leo should not have hit Bartell, but Bartell should not have directed any remarks at Leo either. As any ball player will tell you, if you allow an opposing player to get away with something like that, he will more than likely do it again and continue to hound you during the entire season. As things stand, Bartell probably won't speak out of turn again.

Olympics Hard Hit

The depression is affecting all sports severely, as evidenced by the latest decision of the Olympic Games Committee to curtail minor sports in the universal classic at Los Angeles because of lack of funds. This is greatly to be regretted, but can't be helped. One of the fine features of the Olympic Games always been the wide variety of sports played, and now with the elimination of the lesser competitions some of the flavor will certainly be lost. For Americans, the Olympic Games are always exciting because so many of the sports are strange to them, and therefore fascinating.

Welcome, Ladies!

President Sidney Weil of the Reds certainly knows feminine psychology. He has arranged a large number of ladies' days at Redland Field this year, and has set aside whole blocks of seats for them on those days. The women are admitted absolutely free on ladies' days, and so far the feminine fans have responded in large numbers. The most recent ladies' day attracted 9,000 women.

On other days, the fans may reserve seats by the simple process of going to the telephone and calling Western Union or by dropping in at any Western Union telegraph office anywhere. The Reds complete their defense of the first eastern invasion at Redland Field this week, and follow those series with games at home against Chicago, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis. The schedule:

May 19, 20, 21, and 22—Reds vs. Chicago Cubs, at Cincinnati.
May 24, 25, and 26—Reds vs. Pittsburgh at Cincinnati.
May 29—Reds vs. St. Louis, at Cincinnati.

Call Him "Bombard"

Reddie fans are seriously thinking of re-christening Ernie Lombardi as Ernie "Bombard". The mammoth Red catcher, one of the greatest finds of the 1932 campaign, has fairly murdered the ball game at home against Chicago, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis. The schedule:

Both amateur and professional golfers who intend to qualify for the National Golf Championship in the sectional trials at the Hyde Park Country Club course in Cincinnati, June 6, must be certain that their entries fees were received by the United States Golf Association before the closing date, May 14. The qualifying at Cincinnati is open to southern Ohio, southern Indiana, and Northern Kentucky golfers. Entrants will play 36 holes of medal golf.

BURLINGTON HI SCHOOL NOTES

Last Friday afternoon the B. H. S. Base Ball Team won their fourth straight victory when they defeated the strong Petersburg team by a score of 18-4. Ogden and Greenup were the battery for Burlington while Bradburn and White formed the battery for Petersburg. Ogden struck out 14 men and walked one man. His opponent, Bradburn struck out 7 and walked 3 men. Home runs were numerous in this game, being made by Bradburn, Greenup and Hensley. Seebree, Ogden and Voshell marked their batting average up a little more by getting three base hits each. The entire team played the best base ball they have played this year.

Friday, May 20th, the Burlington High School base ball team will play the Walton High School at Walton. This will probably be B. H. S. last game during the spring season. As many as possible should attend this game.

The U. S. History class conducted by Prof. McMillan, is very busy working on their History theses and maps. This thesis consists of 1500 words about subjects that are significant in our American life. The map will portray historical happenings of the American people. These will leave a lasting impression upon the minds of the students in finding themselves among the many vicissitudes of life.

His Biology class is also making great progress. They are planning to hand in their note books next Monday, which consist of different experiments and drawing.

PLANT LIFE ON FLOWERS, SHRUBS ETC.

Plant life or tiny bugs on the tender parts of flowers, shrubs and etc., are controlled by a contact spray. Care must be taken the spray is not strong enough to kill the plants. Nicotine sulphate of Black Leaf 40 is generally used. Evergreen is also generally used, and maybe not quite so strong. Black Leaf 40 is used at the rates of three fourths to 1 teaspoon per gallon of water. 1 ounce of soap may be added to make more effective. Further information see County Agent. Note—Nicotine sulphate may be used at home.

CONTINCE TAKES GAME

Harvest Home suffered its first defeat last Sunday at the hands of Constance in a very poorly played game, marred by many misplays on both sides. The game went into the fifth inning with the score tied at 3 all, when Harvest Home's defense went entirely to pieces, and four runs crossed the plate. There will probably be several changes in the starting line-up for next week as the West Side Hotel team will be the next on the schedule, and are considered the best road club in the league, and are given good at this time, having given Ludlow a trimming in their last game.

Soothing the Lyon

BEN LYON

WHEN Ben Lyon, of Hollywood, wakes up at a morning feeling somewhat less than 55 per cent perfect, something must be done about it right away, for a movie star with a stony countenance cannot afford to be grumpy. Doesn't look well in the movies. So Mrs. Ben Lyon, who is well known as Bebe Daniels, does something about it. She puts Mr. Lyon in close proximity to a cup of coffee almost immediately, and that makes the difference. On a recent vaudeville tour Mrs. Lyon went along just to make sure that her popular husband would not appear with a yellow tie, and a hole in one sock, and no coffee right quick in the morning.

Pat Ward spent the week-end with relatives in Louisville.

Miss Mary Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Smith, spent a few days last week at the home of her mother in Lexington.

DEPUTY SHERIFF

SUSTAINS SCALP WOUND WHEN STRUCK ON HEAD BY BOTTLE—ROBERT HOPPERTON INFLICTS BLOW AND IS LODGED IN JAIL AT WALTON

Deputy Sheriff Frank M. Walton, of Walton, was suffering from a severe scalp wound Sunday morning when he visited Burlington to make a report to officials here of an attack made upon him by Robert Hopperton on the evening before.

Mr. Walton said that he had been informed by the operator of a Walton restaurant that Hopperton was intoxicated and troublesome and Mr. Walton told Hopperton that it would be better for him to leave the place.

A short time after Mr. Walton entered with his brother and told him that they wanted to talk to him. Mr. Walton said that before he could get to his feet that Hopperton threw a soft drink bottle at him, inflicting a scalp wound of several inches in length.

Walton was taken to the office of Dr. R. E. Ryle, where the wound was dressed. Hopperton went to his home and went to bed, where he was arrested a short time after by Deputy Sheriff W. B. Cotton, who was called from Burlington. Hopperton was lodged in the Walton city jail to serve a suspended sentence before being brought to Burlington to answer whatever charge may be placed against him.

COMMITTEE FARMERS ATTEND CINCINNATI MILK MEETING

Messrs. Earl E. Walton, Howard Huey, M. L. Aylor, C. L. Hemphill and O. C. Hafer of the Hebron Local of the Farmers Alliance and County Agent H. R. Finkner attended the Cincinnati territory milk producers conference held at the Court House in Cincinnati last Wednesday. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss and work out means of improving the producers marketing of milk in Cincinnati.

The milk marketing problem represents one of immense size, Boone county alone producing more than half a million dollars worth of milk annually in normal times. While the above committee labored long and seriously no one can tell what the results will be until some plan can be worked out and put into execution.

Mr. and Mrs. Orls Rouse, of Petersburg, spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Porter here.

RESIDENCE

OF JAMES DYE, OF CONSTANCE AND TAYLORSPOUT, IS COMPLETELY DESTROYED BY FIRE MONDAY—CONTENTS OF LOWER FLOOR SAVED BY NEIGHBORS

The residence of James Dye, located on the Taylorsport road, between that town and Constance, burned to the ground Monday.

The fire was caused from flying sparks from a fire in the kitchen stove. The alarm was given by telephone and neighbors rushed to the scene and succeeded in saving everything on the first floor of the dwelling.

Furniture and other articles on the second floor, however, were destroyed with the house, which burned to the foundation.

It was not learned whether or not the loss was covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Lassing, Jr., daughter Mary Lina, and Mrs. J. M. Lassing, Sr., returned last week from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they lived during the winter season. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Lassing's father, W. F. Hensley, who will spend the summer with another daughter, Mrs. Walter Gaines, of the Petersburg community. Judge Lassing is expected to return to Boone county within a week or two.

Ed. Hawes, of near Moores Hill, Indiana, was a Saturday and Sunday visitor with relatives here.

FERTILIZING TOBACCO WOODS

Disperse 1 pound of nitrate of soda or ammonium sulphate in 1 gallon of water, sprinkle over from 20 to 25 feet of a 9 foot bed and wash off thoroughly with 5 or more gallons of water.

Peach leaf curl is quite noticeable all over the county this year. Spraying with lime sulfur before the buds swell will give good control. February was too late this year in most instances. Fertilizing the trees will help keep up the vitality.

RAY CRAVEN

DIES FROM SELF-INFLICTED PISTOL WOUND THURSDAY MAY 19—SURVIVED BY WEDDOW AND TWO CHILDREN—BURIAL AT HEBRON

News of the death of Ray Craven, which reached this community last Thursday evening, was the cause of great consternation and grief among his many friends here.

The report that he had met death from a pistol wound inflicted by his own hand was the cause of further intense sorrow to his relatives and closest friends. Relatives were utterly at a loss to attribute his rash act to any particular cause, as he had not shown the slightest indication prior to his death that he might be entertaining any such thoughts.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Craven, of Latonia, and formerly of Boone county, and is survived by his widow and two children. He was forty years old. Funeral services were conducted from the home in Constance last Monday afternoon with burial at Hebron.

The Recorder almost held "open house" Sunday evening. In fact the only intervening obstacle was our outside repair men. About 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon this office was equipped with a substantial front stairway. Shortly after that hour they were lying in an alley near the building, while a Chrysler roadster, slightly damaged, was being driven to a nearby garage. A few minutes later the owner, of African extraction, was reposing in the local bistro.

The reason was that an automobile, operating at a high rate of speed and in a direct line, cannot make a 90 degree turn without disastrous results.

Harold Conner left late Saturday night with his kennel of greyhounds for Akron, Ohio, where a race track will open next week. L. A. Conner accompanied him and will remain for the first week of racing. Mr. Conner has a fine string of hounds, headed by the crack Dry Agent, which is reputed to be one of the best dogs in the country.

W. C. Weaver, one of Burlington's brush artists, is nursing a bone felon on his right hand.

BORDEAUX MIXTURE

Bordeaux mixture may be mixed at home for 20 per cent or about 1-5th the cost of the commercial mixed Bordeaux when Bluestone is purchased at 5 cents per pound and lime at 1 cent per pound. The powdered Bluestone will dissolve much quicker and the new finer ground lime will go thru the sprayer better. Neither the finer ground Bluestone or lime cost more when purchased from spray material dealers. Bordeaux mixture is made from stone, lime and water. It want only a small amount, of B it more practical to take and mix Bordeaux. All lumps should be strained out before putting in sprayer.

Henry Quilek, of Ludlow, was renewing old acquaintances in Burlington last Monday morning. Quilek formerly lived at Hebron where he was a carpenter. Base ball fans will remember him as an outstanding catcher.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Cress entertained the following guests from Lawrenceburg, Ind., last Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Molten, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and son, and Miss Cress.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Glines returned from St. Petersburg last Saturday and are now comfortably lodged for the summer in their attractive country home on the Petersburg pike.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

Back in those dear, dead, pre-depression days, gone beyond recall, conservative folks inquired as to just what was sustaining the stock market, and why. Sport fans are asking the same question about the Chicago Cubs, who are making a run-away start of the National League pennant race. On paper, there is no more logic to Chicago's sensational drive than there was to an Opener Preferred selling for $100.00.

Each just goes to show, you never can tell about base ball. The Cubs opened the season with a "green" infield, and with two of their star players out of the game, Kiki Cuyler and Burleigh Grimes. No one figured the Bruins to have a chance because young infielders are always speculative ventures; and when the veterans are injured at the very outset, that in itself is enough grief for any club.

with no likelihood of being unseated for several weeks at least. The Reds are having a tougher fight to hold third place, but considering the terrible luck which the club has met this far, are certainly playing the most inspired ball in the circuit. Last week we hopefully stated that the Reds were about recovered from their epidemic of injuries, but such is not the case now, for a brand new lot of ailments has arrived to impair the efficiency of the team.

At the risk of making a pot guess, we are going to predict again that the Cincinnati Reds, given any kind of breaks at all, will make a game fight for the pennant. An ball club that can stick in this place after losing the services of nearly every one of its players a some time or another is definitely a club that must be figured.

The return of Bennie Frey to the Reds last week was not very auspicious because Frey was battered hard in his very first start. However, the young pitcher recovered; he form a few days later and pitched a great game. Ray Kolp is the real surprise and is proving an invaluable asset to the club by his work on the mound. Red Lucas is the league's leading twirler with six victories against one defeat. St. Johnson has had a couple of be-

APOPLEXY

IS CAUSE OF DEATH OF R. L. RICH, WHICH OCCURRED RABBIT LAST SATURDAY AT HIS HOME NEAR BIG BONE—SURVIVED BY WIDOW, TWO SONS AND THREE DAUGHTERS

The long and active career of R. L. Rich was brought to an abrupt ending early last Saturday morning when death came very suddenly from apoplexy. He was sitting in a chair on the porch about five o'clock awaiting a call for breakfast when he was stricken.

R. L. Rich, who was better known as "Tun" by all who were acquainted with him, was a living example of what perseverance and energy will accomplish. Starting as a very poor tobacco tenant he became a large landholder before his death, altogether due to his energy and will.

He is survived by two sons, three daughters, four grandchildren and his widow. Funeral services were held at the Big Bone Baptist church near where the deceased lived, by Rev. Roy Johnson, with burial in the cemetery near the church. Scott Chambers, of Walton, was in charge of the burial arrangements.

HOLMES HIGH

TO FURNISH ORCHESTRA FOR R. E. A. COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES THURSDAY NIGHT—BELLEVUE PASTOR COMPLIMENTED FOR BACCALAUREATE SERVICE SUNDAY NIGHT

Patrons of the local school are looking forward with a great deal of interest to hearing the splendid Holmes High school orchestra, which will play at the annual commencement exercises here tonight (Thursday).

While the audience is large, yet it is a certainty that the seating capacity will be taxed to the limit for these exercises. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. Reuben Gilmore Stott, of Cincinnati, who comes here with a fine reputation.

Prof. Kirkwood, principal of the school, states that he is highly gratified with the interest being shown by the patrons of the school and the general public in the class activities. ALLIANCE NOTES

Everyone present at the meeting of the Farmers' Alliance last Saturday evening at Hebron, was greatly pleased with the article published in last week's Recorder, written by Mr. Al Rogers. It was the consensus of opinion that Mr. Rogers hit the nail squarely on the head in a very forcible way. This is something that the Farmers' Alliance has been trying to do for four or five months.

The Farmers' Alliance extends a special invitation to Mr. Rogers to join the Alliance. The organization needs men like him, and they especially want him to continue his good work and to publish more articles of a similar nature in the county paper.

It was decided at the meeting Saturday evening to hold meetings at Hebron on the second and fourth Saturday evenings in each month, beginning the second Saturday evening in June. The remaining Saturday evenings of each month the Hebron Local will hold meetings at other places in the county and adjoining counties.

The time has arrived when every milk producer and farmer should belong to a strong, powerful, and potent organization. There never was a time in the history of the country when the farmers were in greater need of an organization to fight for the protection of their rights than there is today. The farmer's present condition is due largely to the fact that he has been the victim of organization in every branch of industry outside of agriculture. The farmers being unorganized, the members of these other organizations knew that they were unable to protect their natural, inherent and constitutional rights, and as a result these organizations have curtailed the farmer's rights and deprived them of many privileges that naturally and constitutionally belong to them.

If there was a good, strong, powerful, and potent organization, it could wield tremendous power for the benefit of the farmers, because nearly one-third of the population of the United States is engaged in agriculture. If that number was thoroughly and completely organized solely for the purpose of asserting and protecting their rights, the farmer's position in life would be entirely different than it is today.

Come to the meeting next Saturday night and join the organization. By that time arrangements will be made to hold meetings on some Saturday night in other parts of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown, Misses Martha Blythe, Ethelyn Ryle, Londa Lee Jorrell, Lucille Ryle and Messrs. Franklin Maurer, Jas. Ogden and Frank Rouse, enjoyed a Wiener roast on Gunpowder creek last Friday evening.

WEST SIDE HOTEL, BURLINGTON

Harvest Home went down for its second defeat before the hard hitting West Side Hotel nine last Sunday, and now have a record of two won and two lost for the season.

Brady made his first start of the season and hurled a very creditable game, the boys being 3 to 1 when he was taken out. The home boys are in a batting slump, and seem unable to hit any kind of pitching in the last two games.

Next Sunday the situation will be the Gold Medal Oils with Cliff Born as their pitcher and a good game can be expected. The management are hoping to have a larger attendance next week as the crowd so far have been very small, and in order to put a team on the field that will really give the county a good representative in the league it must have a better following to do so. If you want a winner come out and give the home boys some encouragement.

THE MEXICAN BEAN BEETLE
(By John B. Goodson, Ky. College of Agriculture)

Already gardeners concerned about insect injury to their beans, are beginning to write in to learn whether any new method for controlling the Mexican bean beetle has been developed. Not all of the injury is the work of the Mexican beetle, but most of it is caused by the spotted cucumber beetle and the southern bean beetle. The way to determine the culprit is by the shape of the holes in the leaves, the Mexican beetle making angular holes, the leaf veins intact, the other two, roundish holes, with the leaf tissue eaten clean.

Generally the cucumber beetle and the southern beetle are not dangerous pests, for they stay only a while, and the beans grow out of danger. In a slow season such as we are having it may be advisable, however, to check them. This is done by dusting or spraying with the controls about to be described. No particular pains need to be taken to apply the control materials on the under side of the leaves, for these insects feed generally on the top side.

The Mexican bean beetle, on the other hand, feeds only on the lower side of the leaves, and it stays until the entire plants are destroyed.

Most of the trouble experienced in controlling the Mexican bean beetle results from starting too late. The time to begin the application of the dust or spray is when the first egg-clusters are seen. These will be found about a week after the first over-wintering adults have been observed. The adults come to the first beans after the weather has gotten consistently warm, though it is well to keep a sharp lookout as soon as the beans come up.

Definitely stated, this is the procedure on any planting of beans: Watch closely for the first adults; then, look for egg-clusters and dust or spray immediately, covering the under sides of the leaves. TEN days later, whether the beans seem to need it or not, dust or spray again. The dust or spray must have an unwarmed nose, so that the under sides of leaves may be covered. Two dustings given on such a schedule have given 93 per cent control in demonstrations many times repeated.

Because of the tenderness of bean foliage, special dusting and spraying materials should be used. Of many combinations tried, this is the best dust: calcium arsenate, 1 pound; sulphur, 1 pound; and fine lime, 4 pounds.

Twenty-four pounds will dust an acre of beans; 1 pound will cover from 300 to 300 feet of row, as applied with a hand duster.

The safest spray material is magnesian arsenate, used at the rate of 1 pound to 50 gallons of water, or 1 tablespoonful to 1 gallon. Fifty to 75 gallons of spray are needed properly to cover an acre of beans; 1 gallon will spray approximately 175 feet of row.

Those who do not care to mix their dust, will find it for sale already mixed. Most of the prepared bean beetle dusts follow the proportions given above, but it is well to scrutinize the formula, always printed on the container, to see that about one-sixth of the mixture is calcium arsenate, to insure killing power and safety from leaf-burning.

THE FARMER

The farmer is a man who everybody says he wants to help, but who does more to help himself than any other citizen. He is given more advice than any other citizen and needs less and takes less of it than his advisors do.

The farmer is called a poor business man, but, on the average, his income on his investment is greater than the majority of merchants can boast. The reason for this is he minds his own business and lets the other fellows alone. That characteristic alone marks him as a genius.

The farmer is the only citizen who sells at the other fellow's price. No wonder he is called the backbone of the South—it takes spine to stand up under such a condition.

PLEAD GUILTY TO ADULTERATING FEED

Official of the Hermitage Mills, of Nashville, Tenn., recently pleaded guilty in the Federal court in that city to charges of adulterating dairy cattle feed sold in Kentucky. Charges against the concern were instituted by the Department of Feed Control at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky, through a commission from the United States Department of Agriculture held by J. D. Turner, head of the department. The information in the cases was based on the analytical findings of Howell D. Spears and L. V. Amburgey, experts in the department. The charge of adulteration and misbranding was due to the addition of oat hulls, screenings refuse and other high-fibrous materials without stipulating them in the registration of the feed and having same printed on the State official tag.

TO OFFER SHORT POULTRY COURSE

Five days of practical instruction in poultry raising will be offered by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, in the eighth annual short course June 27 to July 1. Among the speakers will be Dr. L. E. Card of the University of Illinois, who will discuss, among other subjects, cross-breeding and its possibilities, efficiency in production and ways to compute costs. Many subjects of interest to farmers and poultry raisers will be discussed during the week. Persons attending will obtain practical experience in culling, judging and other handling of birds in the Experiment Station flock. The course will be free to all men and women.

RECORDS REVEAL

FARM SITUATION

Approximately half of the 300 farmers whose bookkeeping records were summarized at the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, made a net income last year greater than 5 per cent on an average investment of $15,000.

The 300 records gathered by the college revealed successful farmers in every section of the state last year. Some were general farmers, while others were dairymen, poultry raisers, truck farmers and fruit growers.

One poultry raiser made 5 per cent on his investment and $600 in addition, last year. A dairy farmer who made $700 in 1930 increased his earnings to $1,200 last year, after allowing 5 per cent on his investment. A poultry and fruit grower who made $1,300 in 1930 only made $1,100 last year, above 5 per cent interest.

Farm records show that in most sections of Kentucky heavy losses were fewer and net earnings slightly higher in 1931 than in 1930. In some sections of the state, however, farmers made less money last year.

In 1930 the group of farm account keepers with the highest net earnings was located in the dairy truck and small fruit section of Northern Kentucky. They made 5 per cent on conservative investments and about 50 cents a day for their labor and management. In 1931 they received about $1 a day above 5 per cent on the farm investment.

MANY WILD PLANTS POISON LIVESTOCK

Inquiries received at the Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky indicate that this spring has been no exception in the number of losses of livestock from eating poisonous weeds. Several cases have been diagnosed by the department of animal pathology as plant poisonings, while reports from farmers in other instances pointed to the eating of hemlock, young cockleburs, jimson or other weeds as the probable cause of deaths among cattle, sheep, horses and dogs.

A list of poisonous plants issued by the Station includes larkspur, white snake root, wild cherry leaves, black locust, jimson weed, buckeye sprouts, hemlock, dutchman's breeches and cocklebur.

Losses in early spring are usually more numerous than in summer and fall, due to the fact that many weeds make their appearance before grass and thereby tempt livestock to eat them. Some weeds become poisonous after they have been subjected to frost, drought, wilting or severe trampling.

When an animal is found sick or dead, without any apparent cause, the owner may well suspect that it has eaten poisonous weeds, and make an investigation of the grazing ground, suggests the department of animal pathology.

Twenty-two hundred bushels of seed potatoes were shipped into Lawrence county, where there is an increase of 20 per cent in the acreage over last year.

Figures gathered from seed dealers indicate that 50,000 pounds of Korean lespedeza were sown in Garrard county this spring.

Twenty-six Clark county farmers will grow root-rot resistant tobacco developed at the Experiment Station.

WASHINGTON SNAP SHOTS

A sub-committee of the House Judiciary Committee voted to report the Cochran bill making it a capital offense to transport a kidnapped person across a State line. This is the first action by a Congressional body since the child of Colonel Lindbergh was found dead and is expected to be the forerunner of several equally drastic measures. Mr. Cochran said: "The bill is something that is being demanded by every mother in the nation, and if enacted will cause future kidnappers to think deeply before committing such another crime as the Lindbergh tragedy."

(b) (b)

All records for counterfeiting were broken in the past year. Book-keepers are joining in the fraudulent-money game and there is now more counterfeit money in circulation than at any time within his memory, William H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, said. The Secret Service, he added, has its hands full, but is making good progress in its campaign to put the counterfeiters out of business. He also stated that "to date in the fiscal year 1932, 1,524 persons have been arrested for counterfeiting United States money. This is a new record."

Advocates of real beer for taxation were routed by a dry Senate in the first test of legislation of the beverage. Hopes of those who say economic conditions would be improved and tax burdens lessened by approving good beer, well taxed, went wafting away from the billion-dollar tax bill, gently but firmly on foam of not more than one-half of 1 per cent. Two votes were taken. The first on 4 per cent beer, a second on 2.75 per cent. The votes were 60 to 23 and 60 to 24.

Republican Congressional leaders have decided that there will be no adjournment or recess of Congress until the appropriation tax and economy bills and probably the relief legislation are enacted. Announcement to this effect was made by Senator Watson, Republican leader in the Senate, Speaker Garner and Representative Snell, the Republican leader in the House, had insisted that it was imperative to pass the first three measures before adjournment or a recess on June 11 for the national conventions. While Mr. Garner and Mr. Snell did not mention relief legislation in a statement they issued, it is understood they favor its early enactment.

Representative Maas of Minnesota introduced a bill to abolish the office of postmaster in all first-class postoffices, and in second-class offices having receipts of more than $100. The measure provides that the postmaster be taken by the highest ranking civil service employee immediately under the postmaster in each office. Mr. Maas said the bill would bring about greater efficiency, remove postmasters from political activity and result in economy. The salary proposed for the new official would be the maximum now paid to the highest ranking civil service employee.

The son of a Negro cavalry officer in the United States Army is to be the second accepted West Point appointee of Representative OSCAR DE PRIEST, Republican, of Illinois, the only Negro in Congress. The West Point announced that Benjamin O. Davis Jr. had passed his examination and had said he would accept appointment. He has been ordered to report at West Point on July 1. He is the son of Colonel Benjamin O. Davis, now on active duty as an instructor at Tuskegee Institute for the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

The average American taxpayer now has a clear idea of how Congress has been wasting his money and then calling upon him to make increasingly heavier sacrifices. He knows how the House made a joke of economy and struck $170,000,000 out of the plans and specifications for saving $200,000,000. And he is prepared to hold the Senate also to a strict accounting if it now fails in its plain duty to use tax on governmental expenditures, beginning with the overloaded Federal payroll.

It is impossible to guess who will be nominated for President by the Democrats at Chicago, if some other than Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is named. Ex-Governor Smith may have some candidate in mind, but not even ex-Governor Smith would be able to say now whether his first choice or his second choice or his third choice, if he has that many, will win, if Mr. Roosevelt is rejected by the convention.

On the radio was a good hour of the speech of the late President Hoover. It was not less a good Democratic speech. Only the single element in either party could object to it. For it raised no issue that could properly be regarded as partisan. It amounted to the essential simply to the emergency application of common sense to the acute financial problems of the country.

There are differences in the programs of Mr. Smith and Mr. Hoover, as well as similarities. Mr. Smith reiterated his demand for a huge public works program to be financed by a bond issue, a program which has been so far resisted by President Hoover. Mr. Smith is out in favor of legalization of and a tax on beer. If President Hoover has any such plan in mind, it has not been revealed. And Mr. Smith renews his recommendation that the payment of war debt to this country be suspended for twenty-five years, with a chance for the debtor nations to reduce their indebtedness in the ratio of their purchases of goods from the U. S. during the moratorium period. President Hoover has taken a stand against debt cancellation.

games lately, but is sure to be in form very shortly.

All in all, the Reds' pitching staff is greatly improved since the start of the campaign, and with the Reds' tremendous batting power behind it should turn in some mighty good efforts from now on.

Reds to Play Macks

The Reds begin their first eastern invasion of the season on June 7, but that won't mean that Cincinnati fans will have to do without base ball during the three weeks or so that the team is away. President Sidney Weil has announced two very important games at Redland Field, arranged especially for the local fans. The Reds will play an exhibition game with the Philadelphia Athletics at Redland Field, Monday, June 6; and will follow this tilt with a Sunday game against the Philadelphia Quakers, June 12. The Reds will come all the way from Philadelphia on the evening of the 11th for this game, and it will be their last appearance at Redland Field until June 26th.

President Weil received word from Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, that the regulars will play in the exhibition game on June 6, and that both Geo. Earnshaw and Lefty Grove will pitch. Jimmy Fox, Mickey Cochrane, and Al Simmons will play the entire game against the Reds. Reservations for seats for both the June 6 and 12 games can be made at any Western Union telegraph office. The schedule:

Monday, June 6—Reds vs. Philadelphia Athletics at Cincinnati (Exhibition game).

Sunday, June 12—Reds vs. Philadelphia Nationals at Cincinnati.

Vines Shows Poorly

The writer had an excellent opportunity to inspect the U. S. Davis Cup tennis team last week when the four stars, Ellsworth Vines, Frank X. Shields, Wilmer Allison, and John Van Ryn played in Cincinnati on their way east to meet the Australian team in a zone match. Probably the most important angle to the play was the failure of Ellsworth Vines, national champion, to display anything like his 1931 form when he cleaned up scores of titles. Vines has slipped a bit, and that bodes ill for the chances of the U. S. in the Davis Cup play. The old stellar form that thrilled thousands last year was not in evidence when Vines played in the Queen City. He lost his match to Shields and failed to convince local tennis enthusiasts that the old fire and zest are still with him. The Americans should have no difficulty in beating Australia, but may find the going much tougher later on.

Yankies Tie Record

Joe McCarthy's league-leading New York Yankees almost established a new American League record for scoreless innings last week, but the powerful bat of Earl Eversall of the Cleveland Indians smashed their hopes just when the new mark seemed assured. Yankee pitchers held opposing teams scoreless for 49 consecutive innings, whitewashing the St. Louis Browns in the last four innings of the third game of their series, and then shutting out four consecutive shut-outs. They beat St. Louis in the final game, 3 to 0, then trimmed Chicago, 4 to 0, and took two shut-outs from Cleveland, 3 to 0 and 4 to 0. The Yanks needed only two more scoreless rounds to set a new mark, but Averill hit a homer in the first round of the third Cleveland-New York game and spoiled everything. The Boston Red Sox compiled a run of 40 scoreless innings in 1933, and the Cleveland Indians set the present mark of 41 in 1906, 26 years ago.

Go Ahead and Talk Boys

The National League rule prohibiting ball players from talking to persons in the stands or to opposing ball players on the field has been revoked by league officials, so now the players can play as much as they want without risking a $5 fine. The players raised such a howl about the rule when it was first put into effect, that the idea never really had a chance. Now, the league is willing to call quits and revoke the rule rather than listen to the many complaints that have arisen from its enforcement. From now on, the boys can gossip to their hearts' content, and the fans won't mind as long as they don't neglect their base ball.

Open Qualifiers To Practice

Golfers in southern Ohio, northern Kentucky, and eastern Indiana who have entered the qualifying round for the National Open Golf Championship and who intend to qualify at the Hyde Park Country Club in Cincinnati June 6, will be given an opportunity to practice over the Hyde Park course several days before the event. Reservations for play during the practice days can be made by writing to BEHIND THE NEWS, Press Interpretative Services, 615 Maple Avenue, Cincinnati. Only entrants in the Cincinnati district qualifying will be extended this privilege by the Hyde Park Club, however.

Hagen Is Worried

Walter Hagen, four times British Open champion, is worried about whether or not he will be permitted to play in the British Open this year. Hagen, as usual, was late in sending his entry, and as a result, may not be allowed to play in the event. Being tardy is an old story with Walter. One of his favorite tricks, when hard pressed by an opposing player in a tournament, is to delay the match and make his opponent so nervous that all Hagen has to do to win is walk around the course. Among the important figures in American golf who will be seen in action during the British Open this year are Tommy Armour, MacDonald Smith and Gene Sarazen.

Hafey Leads League

One of the most gratifying things about the playing of the Cincinnati Reds thus far is the sensational hitting of Chick Hafey, champion batter of the league in 1931 and one of the stars in the Cincinnati lineup. Hafey is among the six leading batters in the major leagues with an imposing average of well over .400. The great thing about Hafey is that he is a consistent and timely slugger, hitting in almost every game and at exactly the right moments when runs are needed. "Chick" has the range of the left field at Redland Field and has been bouncing 'em off the wall regularly. Ernie Lombardi, also has been connecting and driving tremendous drives to the left field wall; while Babe Herman and George Grantham have shown preference for the right field bleachers. That combination of sluggers is enough to make a pitcher pine for the safe and peaceful seclusion of retirement.

KENTUCKY PIONEERS

(BY N. LOUISE LODGE)

There is something very satisfying in being able to name the founder of your family, and for the benefit of those who are interested in the subject, a society has been formed for the purpose of bringing to light much valuable information that is lacking in our limited Kentucky records. This society is named "Kentucky Pioneers," and the privilege of becoming members is open to all subscribers to the Boone Family Recorder. There is no expense to members of the society, the only obligation being the subscription price of the Recorder, and we hope we have your valuable co-operation in bringing to light these much needed records.

All correspondence in connection with the society to be addressed to N. Louise Lodge, in care of the Recorder, and in sending in your notes please give the progenitor of your family in Kentucky, and from what state or country, following up with descendants in Kentucky. Give all married names, number and names of children, in such case, as well as all dates of births, deaths, marriages and places where such events took place. We will have to depend upon these records for accuracy, so please be sure of your ground before sending your notes. Members may ask questions which will be answered whenever possible. Perhaps another member may have your answer.

Winston—Frances M. Smith tells us that Samuel Winston with four brothers and a sister were from Winston Hall in Colonial days and settled in Virginia. This upon authority of the Winston family.

The founder of the Kentucky branch of the Winstons was Joseph Winston, born in North Carolina in 1794. He was a son of John and Sibella (Mosby) Winston, and enlisted in 1813, when only 19, serving throughout the War of 1812. He was in the battle of the Thames in General Shelby Deshay's Brigade. Joseph's wife, Sarah Grant Lamond, was a daughter of Elizabeth Boone, sister of Daniel Boone, their parentage "Uncle Sam" and Sarah Marquis. The latter was the son of George Boone, born in Bradwell, England.

The record has it "Sarah Grant Lamond" and we take it that she was the "widow Lamond" when she married Joseph Winston, as her mother was Grant. If we are wrong in this supposition will some one please put us right? Dolly Madison was of Winston ancestry. The Coles, Henrys, Merediths and Russells are some allied families. The family of President Zachary Taylor is another connected line. Colonel Joseph Winston died in 1815 will some one kindly furnish us with the Winston line in Kentucky? No. 3—

ARLY—William and Mary Early settled in New Jersey when their son Thomas was born in 1743. At about 30 years of age he married Euphemia Carr, they went to Hampshire County, Virginia to live, removing to Kentucky in 1790; and settled in Mason County. Here they mated with the Mills and the Drennans.

The coat of arms used by descendants of William Early and wife, Mary Marquis, is a chevron between three martlets, with a bend holding a stag by crest.

Friday afternoon the bold pro-not girls met at our leaders home and enjoyed another afternoon of working. We were very glad to have two visitors with us. We planned to have our fifth meeting June 1st at 3 P. M. O'clock at the home of Mrs. Walter Brown.

SELECTED AS CAMP SITE FOR 4-H CLUBS OF FIVE COUNTIES THIS YEAR—JULY 24-26 ARE TENTATIVE DATES FOR GATHERING

Alexandria will be the 1932 4-H Club camp site according to County Agent H. B. Forkner. The above site was decided upon last Friday afternoon at a district county agent's conference held at Alexandria Fair Grounds. Boone, Kenton, Campbell, Grant and Gallatin counties will take part in this event. More than 125 4-H Club members are expected to take part.

District 4-H Club camp is held each year for the benefit of those club members who keep their project activities and records up to date and in addition wish to take part in extra club events. The instruction this year will be conducted by the County Agricultural and Home Agents assisted by Mr. E. E. Fish, club agent from the College of Agriculture. The instruction program will include studies in farm craft, home craft, insect control, spray materials, poultry production, sheep production, nature and health study.

The tentative date for camp has been set for July 24th to the 30th. There is a possibility of a change in the above dates to August 8th to 12th. The expenses of camp have been set at $1.50 worth of food to be brought from home and $1.00 for general camp expense.

DIXIE PARK GOING WELL

Manager Harry Forbes, of the Dixie Amusement Park, reports that large crowds are attending each Saturday and Sunday evening. Mr. Forbes is especially emphatic about the good order that prevails at his stand Jack Kreuger and his ten-piece orchestra furnish the music and a fine floor show is on tap during each evening's program.

RUSHING THE SEASON

Boone county has some hustling farmers and many who are willing to pioneer in what may seem a plants that were several inches or had the latest wrinkle of some of our truck crop growers particular Earl E. Walton, of Petersburg, and Mr. Elmer Peeno of Constance, is to start their cold frames in individual containers under cold frames early in the spring and thereby get a month's jump on the regular practice.

Mr. Walton the past week put out 500 hills of Lima beans around 18 inches tall and 3,000 healthy melon plants that were several inches high and ready to start going immediately. Mr. Peeno is also trying the same proposition on Lima beans. We are anxious to see what the results will bring.

FARMERS ALLIANCE MEETING AT GRANT

The Boone County Farmers Alliance will hold a meeting at Grant Saturday night of this week, June 4th at 7:30 p. m. A large delegation of farmers from the Hebron Local and others locals of the county are expected to attend.

Those in charge of the meeting extend a hearty invitation to all farmers and others interested in farm work to be present. The meeting is being held at the request of farmers in and around Grant.

On Wednesday evening Mrs. J. P. Brothers of Limburg, entertained with a farewell party in compliment of her guest Miss Lucille Ryle of Petersburg, who has attended school at Burlington the past season. The guests enjoying the evening included the following: Miss Elaine Dickerson, of Union, Miss Ethelyn Ryle and Miss Londa Lee Jarrell, of Burlington, Miss Marie Jorlie Hensley and the Misses Anna Lea, Elizabeth, and Hazel Burton, of the Bellevue pike, and Mrs. Virgil Mattox, of Limburg.

DEPRESSION PRICES ON RAMS

In our classified column C. L. Renaker of Grant county, Ky., is advertising some Pure Bred Cheviot Rams at depression prices.

Mr. Renaker has one of the best flocks of Cheviot sheep in that county and has taken much pains for the past several years in breeding up these sheep to the present standard.

Excellent results are being attained by many farmers in crossing their grade ewes with one of these Cheviot Rams as they produce many strong twin lambs, topping the market.

BROWN RECTOR

Friends of Miss Laverne Brown and George Rector, of near Waterloo, are congratulating them upon their recent marriage, which ceremony was solemnized at Bellevue last Saturday by the Rev. Raymond Smith, pastor of the Bellevue Baptist church.

The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown, while the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William (Bud) Rector. Mr. Rector is employed on a U. S. Government boat and is located at present just south of Louisville.

SCHOOL GRADUATES

The young people in Boone county who are numbered among the high school seniors, should have some definite plan for the future, and not take the chance that so many do of pushing the responsibility off onto the college to decide for them what their life's vocation will be.

College education will not help the boy or girl who will not use his own initiative to develop a particular field of interest.

A great many young people today go to college not because they want to learn, but for other reasons. Some want to avoid real work and have a good time. Many of them forget the things that were taught them in the common schools and they forget because they were not interested.

Thomas A. Edison urged all young people before they reach their 20th birthday anniversary to discover something that they would like to do. This great inventor made his decision when he was 15 years of age. He declared that any person 20 years of age, who does not know what to do, confesses that he is wasting time.

The world today is filled with interesting things to do that the longest human life could not exhaust more than a small fraction of them.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Slekmann had as guests for the week-end Mr. and Mrs. John Methven and daughter of Madisonville, Mr. and Mrs. Urban Wahoff and daughter, of Price Hill.

County Judge N. E. Riddell returned Monday evening from a visit of a few days in Atlanta, Georgia. While on his trip he visited several points of historic interest in the South.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rouse of Burlington and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Tanner, of Erlanger, left Tuesday for a few days fishing trip near Lexington, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Rouse will have charge of the County Infirmary while the Rouse's are away.

Mrs. Laura Martin, Misses Nell H. Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Cowen, of Wyoming, Ohio, spent from Saturday until Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Furnish and family at Golden Pond, Kentucky. Miss Pink did not return with the others of the party, but remained for a longer visit.

INDIANA CARS

COLLIDE AT JUNCTION OF DIXIE HIGHWAY AND NO. 42 AT FLORENCE—BROOKVILLE WOMAN SUFFERS INJURIES—NEW ALBANY MAN FINED

Another automobile collision occurred at the junction of the Dixie and 42 highways at Florence early last Friday morning, when two Indiana cars collided at that point.

A large Buick car driven by a Mr. Lake, of Brookville, Indiana, was going south on the Dixie when another car, driven by I. E. Berlin, of New Albany, Indiana, is said to have failed to stop when coming from 42 onto the Dixie.

Mr. Lake's wife suffered a severe cut on her head and arm and sustained minor bruises as did the other occupants of the car. Mrs. Lake was taken to Dr. Gladys Rouse, of Florence, for treatment after which she was removed to the home of relatives in Erlanger. Property loss to the car was said to have been covered by insurance. The Lake family were on their way to visit relatives in Richmond, Kentucky.

Deputy Sheriff W. B. Cotton, who was called to the scene, arrested Berlin, who was immediately arraigned before Judge N. E. Riddell on a charge of reckless driving. Judge Riddell entered a fine of twenty dollars and costs against him, which was promptly paid.

22 MILLION

WILL BE SPENT ON KENTUCKY HIGHWAYS DURING 1932, ACCORDING TO AUTO CLUB OFICIAL—INCLUDES CONSTRUCTION OF 900 MILES

That the State of Kentucky will spend more than twenty-two million dollars on constructing and maintaining her highways during the current year is credited to Glen F. Weinman, secretary-manager of the Blue Grass Automobile Club in a recent news dispatch in the Lexington Herald.

Mr. Weinman, who declared that the nation's highway bill will be approximately $1,350,000,000 during the present year, based his claim on figures said to have been secured by the national motoring body from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Kentucky's road building program includes the construction of approximately 950 miles and maintaining more than 6,000 miles, it is said.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Boone County Woman's Club met Thursday May 19th, at the home of Miss Pearl Botts. Mrs. Lulu Huey had charge of the program.

The members were present as follows: Mesdames Lulu Huey, Susie Walton, Eliza Voshell, Clara Seebree, Pearl Hughes, Anna Huey, Missouri Rice, Miss Mabel Mitchell, and the hostess Mrs. Bertha Rice, was a visitor.

The following program was given: Scripture reading, 81st Psalm—Miss Pearl Botts. Minutes of April meeting read by Secretary, Mrs. Voshell.

Quartet—"In the Garden" by Lulu Huey, Anna Huey, Mabel Mitchell and Missouri Rice. Roll Call was answered with a quotation from a famous woman.

Next were the one minute speeches by each member. This proved very interesting. Guitars music and singing by Miss Mabel Mitchell.

Poem, "Friendship"—Mrs. Beatrice Huey. Yellowstone Canyon Lives—by Mrs. Lulu Huey.

Article, "Taxes and Women's Rights" by Franklin D. Roosevelt, read by Mrs. Susie Walton.

Poem, Bruce Barton—by Mrs. Avalon Walton.

This completed the program. During the social hour which followed we had music which everyone enjoyed very much.

The hostess served delicious refreshments. The club will meet with Mrs. Susie and Avalon Walton in June. Club Reporter

FINE ADDRESS

The commencement exercises at Boone High School auditorium were witnessed by a capacity house last Thursday evening.

Sixteen graduates were presented diplomas by County Supt. D. H. Norris, after the class had been presented by Principal E. E. Kirkwood.

The class address was made by Roscoe Gilmore Stott, of Cincinnati, who kept his audience in a state of tense interest from his first word. It was Mr. Stott's second appearance before a Burlington audience, he having made a similar speech here some years ago.

The invocation was delivered by Rev. F. E. Walker and the benediction by Rev. F. H. Politt, both local ministers. The music, which was an outstanding feature of the program and greatly appreciated by the entire audience, was rendered by the Holmes High School orchestra, of Covington.

The commencement brought to a close one of the most successful school years this community ever has experienced and the entire faculty, headed by Mr. Kirkwood, deserves praise. The latter will return here again next year, as will Miss Mildred Anderson. Prof. Don McMillan will be situated elsewhere next year, his place being assumed by Mr. C. G. Lamb. Prof. McMillan made a fine record here, both as a teacher and a gentleman.

Mr. Smith, head foreman of the Standard Oil Company's Service Erecting Department, is now in Florence ready to begin the station which will be located the junction of U. S. 25 and U. S. 42.

Mr. Wm. Taylor and daughter spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Jarrell and family.

SUDDEN DEATH

OF KIRBY CLORE, 31, OF WATERLOO, IS SOURCE OF GRIEF AND CONSTERNATION TO RELATIVES AND FRIENDS WEDNESDAY MORNING—FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS NOT YET MADE

Particulars of a very sad death have not been obtained by the Recorder as we go to press.

News of the untimely departure of Kirby Clore, of the Waterloo neighborhood, reached this office Wednesday morning shortly after the deceased was reported to have shot himself with a shot-gun just over the heart.

The deceased was one of Boone county's most highly respected citizens and was widely connected by both intimate friends and close relatives. He was 31 years of age and is survived by his widow, Mrs. Bess Clore, and one daughter, Miss Frances, age sixteen.

He also is survived by one brother, Earl Clore, and two half-brothers, Stanley Clore and Wallace Clore; three sisters, Mrs. T. W. Rice, of Burlington, Mrs. John Maurer, of Bellevue, and Mrs. Andy H. Cook, of near Petersburg, also one half sister, Mrs. A. S. Burcham, of Bellevue. He was a son of Perry and Cynthia Kelly Clore.

LOCAL TEAM WINS

The Burlington Baptists defeated the Bellevue Baptists in an exhibition game here on Decoration Day by the decisive score of 11 to 3.

These two teams are dead-locked for first place with two other nines, Hughes Chapel and Buellville. The Bellevue team was unable to use its first string pitcher and their claim is that they otherwise would have made the game a much closer affair. The Burlington boys have suffered but one defeat and that at the hands of Warsaw.

FARM NOTES, HERE AND THERE

Majesty's Raleigh's Jolly, the 4-H Club cow owned by Carol Rice of near Burlington, produced 799.5 pounds of milk and 40.77 pounds of butter fat during April. This cow is entered in the State Butter Production Contest. The winner of this contest will receive a prize trip to the National Dairy Show this fall.

The dairy herds of Ben Nichting of near Hebron, Robert Youell of near Hebron, and W. G. Kite of near Popeville, have been leading in the Northern Kentucky Dairy Herd Improvement Association since their start in February. The herd of Ben Nichting averaged a net return of over $12.00 per cow during April.

Cull cows rather than rations is recommended under present prices. When pasture dries up so does milk. It takes 70 pounds of grass for an 800 pound cow to produce 2 gallons of 5 per cent milk per day. When pasture gets short extra feed must be supplied to keep the cow in her milk. All dairymen agree that it is easier to keep a cow up than bring her back after she has gone down.

Wool is being reported sold to speculators in the county at prices from 11 to 12 cents per pound. "Orange Rust" a disease of blackberries is appearing in most cultivated patches and also in wild patches. Cutting out the affected plants is the most effective method of control.

The 17-year locust is due to appear in some parts of the state this year. A mimeographed circular on insect control of various garden pests is available at the county agent's office in limited numbers.

Charles L. and John Rich, of Union, were business visitors at the county seat Tuesday afternoon and while in town paid the Recorder office a business call. The former has been appointed the administrator of the estate of his father, the late B. L. Rich, whose legal notice may be found in other columns of this issue.

Ray Begerman and Harry Dittinger, of Cincinnati, were entertained last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott and family, of the Florence pike. Mr. Dittinger is in the market for a small farm in Boone county.

SILVER TROPHY

FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL BASE BALL LEAGUE—DONATED BY MOTCH JEWELRY COMPANY, OF COVINGTON—WILL BE DISPLAYED IN BUSINESS HOUSES IN THE COUNTY

Rev. Harlow Edgar Haas, Boone county Lutheran pastor, and president of the Boone County Church base ball league, announced this week that he had obtained a splendid donation for the league in the form of a beautiful silver cup trophy to be given the winner of the league championship. The cup donated by Motch, the Jeweler, in Covington.

Rev. Haas also said that each team and its followers will have ample opportunity to view the trophy for which they are striving before the season is much further advanced. The cup will be placed on display this week at the Florence Deposit Bank and the following week at the Peoples Deposit Bank in Burlington. The next week will find it at some other bank or store in the county and so on until it has been displayed in each community that is represented in the league.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cotton entertained the following guests last Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Walker Renaker and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Renaker and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Ransom and son, all of Verona, and Prof. E. E. Kirkwood.

TWO HITS

ALL THAT ARE ALLOWED BY HARVEST HOME HUNTER, THEY HE LOSES CLOSE GAME—LATONIA MERCHANTS AT BOONE GROUND NEXT SUNDAY

Gold Medal Oils scored a victory over Harvest Home Sunday by the small score of 3 to 1 in a real pitchers battle between Joe Braun and Cliff Born with the latter getting the better of the breakers.

Braun held the winners to two hits, one of which was a scratch single but his support faltered and the winning run was put over without the aid of a hit. Kalenkotter was at short and Red Robinson in right field for the local boys and the general play of the whole team showed decided improvement. Aylor and Miller each rapped out two hits while Hartman handled 17 putouts on first, several of which were very hard chances.

Next Sunday the Latonia Merchants with one of the hardest hitting teams in the league will be the attraction.

Joe Brady will probably get the call to start this week with Fischer pitching for the Merchants.

DUCK HEAD CHANGES

The Duck Head filling station, located near the Boone-Gallatin county line on Highway 42 has changed hands. The former owner, E. E. Emral, recently purchased the fine farm of J. J. Smith containing 165 acres and located near Union and included in the purchase price the Duck Head Inn and 72 acres of land adjacent. John Dehunting, realty dealer of Florence, promoted the transaction.

BUILD NO MORE PYRAMIDS
We would like to see the Government of the United States, the Government of every state, every county and every town, start right off on a program of public improvements that will put a lot of people to work and put a lot of money into circulation. But we don't want to see that sort of work done if it is just going to sink taxpayers' money where it won't come back.

Among the greatest public works of all time are the Pyramids of Egypt. Under the direction of successive Pharaohs they gave employment to practically everybody in Egypt, but they consumed practically all of the money and resources of Egypt. And once, all of that labor and money had been built into the pyramids, there wasn't any way of getting it out again, and that is what ruined ancient Egypt. We have built enough pyramids, in the form of non-productive public works in America. We do not think the government, or any part of the government, ought to go into business in competition with private capital, but we can think of a lot of things, to build which it would be perfectly sound business for the government to borrow money, because eventually the money would come back to pay for those enterprises, and they are not the sort of thing toward which private capital has ever been greatly inclined. We have in mind such things as the building of toll bridges over rivers, of developing great water power sites like the Boulder Dam, which will pay for itself by the sale of power and of water rights for irrigation. We understand that the Washington Monument, although it was only partly built by government funds, more than pays for upkeep by the fees charged for taking visitors to the top of it. We think the principles of democracy have been carried too far in assuming that what ever was paid for out of public funds should be free for the use of everybody who wants to use it.

By all means let Uncle Sam sell a billion or five billion dollars of bonds to get money for public works, provided it is not to be spent for pyramids but for projects so safe-guarded that the money will come back with interest without putting an added burden upon the taxpayers.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

ABOUT AN OLD FRIEND
In my paper this morning I read that more coffee has been used in the past year than for some years before—that coffee-drinking is on the increase.

This item did not distress me at all. It did not mean to me that our people are determined to commit suicide, but that people are coming back to the honest old heart tonic in these days when hearts are taxed.

Many folks blame coffee for fatalities that are caused by their excessive indulgence in highly-seasoned foods, excesses of sugars and rich cakes, and ponderous quantities of half-rare meats. Overloading at six o'clock dinners and feasts, gormandizing to the point of gluttony—these activities play the deuce with arteries and "blood-pressure," and honest old coffee too often gets the blame.

I never read a syllable against coffee until the advent of substitutes for it at the hands of enterprising manufacturers. They are the loudest criers against the old friend, in beverages that adorn the American table. "Deadly caffeine" is one of the finest heart-tonics we possess, whatever propagandaists may say.

Too much Irish potato will wreck the ship fully as quick as too much coffee. Of course from three to half a dozen cups of coffee three times a day is excess—we do not need so much; but a good cup of coffee at breakfast is harmless. The substitute has the one difference, that it does no good whatever.

People get the meat habit, the potato habit, the sugar habit, and so on, fully as often as they get the "coffee habit," yet no one rails against those things that are equally "deadly."

HUMAN NATURE
Some nights I go home emotionally tired out.

Not by work, but by repeated revelations of the meaner side of human nature.

All sorts of unpleasant characteristics come to the surface under the stress of hard times. Partners quarrel; husbands and wives snarl at each other; companies throw their "codes of ethics" into the discard; bluffers and cheaters, who have "got away with it" for years, are shown up in their true colors. All this is depressing.

BUT...

When in human history has there ever been a time when so many million people were acting generously and sympathetically as now?

I can name dozens of concerns that have continued to operate at a loss because their owners felt a responsibility to their employees, and other dozens that have fought off any reduction in salaries to the last possible minute and then made the heaviest cut at the top.

I know one large city where twenty-five hundred volunteers have each adopted an equal number of destitute families and are carrying their members thru the winter. I can name a struggling little college whose underpaid teachers voluntarily asked a ten per cent reduction in salaries in order that certain poor students might not be compelled to leave school.

The action of the railroad men and executives gave me cheer. It brought back a vivid memory of a certain Sunday morning when I was seven years old.

My father, a clergyman, had never purchased a Sunday newspaper. On this particular morning he came down to breakfast looking deeply concerned, and said to Mother: "I feel today that I must know the news before I go into the pulpit."

The news that he felt he must know was about the railroad strike in Chicago, where men were killing each other, and Grover Cleveland had ordered out the Federal troops.

We have made a lot of progress in the intervening years.

A wise old professor in my college used to quote the following verse from the Psalms: "What is man that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man that thou visitest him?"

Most people, he said, interpret that to mean: "What does petty, little man amount to, that you (God) should give him any thought (God) should give him any thought?"

A better interpretation the professor argued, is this: "What a wonderful creature man must be that even God is mindful of him and likes to visit him."

We can get almost any view we choose of human nature. Man is either "a little lower than the angels" or just a little higher than the beasts.

Sunday School Lesson

JOSEPH THE DREAMER

Ray, Samuel D. Price, D. D.
Four lessons of unusual interest are devoted to the life of Joseph. He was the son of Jacob and the beloved wife Rachel. A second son of Rachel was Benjamin and the mother died in child birth. We have seen her reputed tomb, just a short distance below Jerusalem toward Bethlehem. It will save a lot of trouble at the start if you will commit to memory the names of the twelve sons of Jacob, following the order of their birth; such as Reuben, Simeon, Levi, Judah—sons of Leah, etc.

Again we find favoritism in the home, for Jacob makes more of Joseph than of the other sons. This favoritism, especially when the father bestows a coat with sleeves to Joseph, suggesting that he is more of a gentleman than the others, for one who wears sleeves is not a man of physical toil. However, we do find Joseph in the fields with the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah, concubines of Jacob.

Here we have the first record of dreams by this man who later prophesied through dreams in Egypt. First, the sheaf of Jacob moved from the shock and received the obsequence of the sheaves that represented the eleven brothers. Later the same purport was expressed in the dream in which the starry heavens honor was done to Joseph and in this the father, represented by the bowing sun, participated. This doubling of the dream added fire to the flame of envy and jealousy already so well started. While God can still make His will and ways known to us in dreams we must not declare that each dream bears a message from God. The source may be surely a matter of indigestion. It is wise to weight each impression and be ready to be taught where there is a lesson to be gained.

VACATION HAZARDS

As summer approaches, the minds of the young and old begin to turn to the great outdoors. Some plan to take the open road and travel by automobile as far as varying means will permit; others are arranging to camp in the heart of still others anticipate tenting by some mountain stream and whipping its pools and rapids for members of the finny tribe. In each and every case are involved health hazards against which only proper precautions will avail to safeguard; for life in the open is usually a season of relaxation, when sanitary discipline is all too apt to be neglected.

In recognition of this, Dr. A. T. McCormack, State Health Officer, has issued a timely warning, which should be heeded by all automobile tourists, prospective campers and summer vacationists generally. The warning relates to the potential dangers to health incident to changed and changing environment, with special reference to the diseases which may be transmitted through food and water supplies and by means of insects.

"Typhoid fever," said Dr. McCormack, "is a disease whose incidence is greatest where environmental sanitation is lowest. It is unnecessary, because it is preventable. It is spread from person to person by means of water, milk, fingers, flies and food. Every case is contracted by taking into the mouth some substance contaminated with typhoid organism, which occur in nature only in the bowel or bladder discharges of persons ill with the disease or who, having had typhoid fever, have become carriers still harboring the organism. Persons who contemplate a summer vacation, or recreation where sanitation may not be rigidly enforced, or where food products are not regularly examined, should protect themselves against infection by being vaccinated against typhoid. Three inoculations with typhoid vaccine, a week apart, will assure protection against the disease for two or three years."

"All vaccinationists, not already protected, should also be vaccinated against smallpox and diphtheria. Smallpox vaccination is a good for several years, the diphtheria immunization protects for life."

"Campers should be careful to protect themselves against mosquitoes. Malaria is transmitted only by certain kinds of mosquitoes that have become infected by biting persons contaminated with malaria parasites. These infected mosquitoes bite other persons and infect them in turn, thus spreading the disease. Campers living in cottages should screen all doors and windows; if tents are utilized, mosquito bars should be used.

"Care should also be taken not to come in contact with poison oak, poison ivy or other poisonous plants. These plants do not transmit disease, but their infection is often as painful and debilitating as disease, and, if very severe, may have serious results."

The automobile tourist would do well to observe the following precautions:

"Patronize only tourist camps bearing the approval certificate of the State health authorities."

"Look over the place where you propose to eat before ordering your meal. Unkempt surroundings usually mean dirty people; dirty people are apt to sell dangerous food products."

Beware of wayside water supplies and farm house wells unless they bear a safety sign from the State health authorities."

"Unless you can obtain milk from sources which have the approval of the State health authorities, it is safer to boil all milk before using."

"Don't stay in a place where flies are prevalent, for the presence of flies means the place is not being kept clean."

"If these precautions are carefully observed; and the tourist or camper takes the required amount of rest and does not overindulge in food or drink, there is no reason why his vacation should not prove what it was primarily intended to be—a period of rest and recreation, designed to refresh and invigorate for the better performance of the duties awaiting upon his return."

SAYS BEAN BEETLE CONTROL NOT HARD

The control of the Mexican bean beetle is not difficult if the recommended treatments are thorough and timely, says a circular just published by the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Spraying or dusting should be started as soon as beetles or signs of their injury first appear in the field. Either a poison dust or spray may be used effectively. The poison should be placed on the undersides of the leaves where the beetles feed. This requires the use of dusters or sprayers with upturned nozzles.

If it is possible to spray, magnesium arsenate should be used at the rate of one pound to 50 gallons of water. In smaller quantities one ounce or five level tablespoonsful is used to three gallons of water. One gallon of the spray covers 125 feet of row; 100 gallons covers an acre."

If dust is used, either of the following will be found effective: Calcium arsenate one pound and hydrated lime 7 pounds; or calcium arsenate, one pound, sulfur, one pound, and hydrated lime 4 pounds. The dust must be mixed well before using. It should be applied at the rate of 20 to 25 pounds to the acre or one pound to 500 feet of row. To avoid injury to the plants, dust should be applied only when the plants are dry.

The number of applications of dust or spray necessary to assure protection depends upon the amount of rainfall, thoroughness of application and the growth of the plants. As beans grow, the new foliage must be covered with the poison; therefore treatment should be repeated at weekly or ten-day intervals. Often 3 or 4 sprayings are necessary, but usually two thorough applications are sufficient.

The insecticides mentioned are poisonous to man and for this reason care should be taken in using them. If string beans are fully protected until the first beans are three or four inches long, or until the time of full bloom, usually, the crop will mature without further spraying or dusting. If spray or dust applications are made after the beans have formed, the beans should be washed thoroughly in at least two changes of clear water before they are sold.

WRAP AND WATERNEWLY SET TREES

Shade trees set this year in commemoration of the Washington Bicentennial will require attention or many of them will die points out N. R. Elliott of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

It is advisable to wrap trunks of young trees with newspaper or burlap from the ground to the lower branches. Tying with string is preferable to the use of wire, which may be forgot and eventually do injury. This wrapper should be left on the tree through this season, and will do no harm if left for next year.

Watering through the first summer is essential in getting young trees established in new locations. Applications of 10 to 15 gallons every 10 days or two weeks is better than the use of a small amount of water every few days.

Lawn clippings or partly decayed straw make good mulch for trees. Mulch should not be more than two inches deep, and should be kept two or three inches from the trunk. Spread it evenly over the ground, including the area dug when the tree was set.

INSULATED MILK TANKSREDUCE COOLING COSTS

An insulated concrete milk cooling and storage tank can be built at a reasonable cost which will reduce the cost of cooling and storing milk to meet the grade A and B milk temperature requirements. This tank can be used for wet or dry storage and for cooling, using running water, ice or mechanical refrigeration.

In order to sell milk for distribution in Louisville, about 1,000 farmers in that region have built milk houses and cooling tanks from plans designed by the agricultural engineering department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Plans for the milk house or the concrete tank can be obtained from county or home agents or from the College at Lexington.

ENCOURAGE 30,000 FAMILIES TO GROW HOME FOOD SUPPLY

Thirty thousand families in industrial communities in Kentucky have been encouraged to grow gardens as a partial means of self-support this year, through a cooperative work conducted by the College of Agriculture of the University, and national and local relief agencies and industrial concerns.

Practically every industrial community in the state has been reached, according to J. Yost Bailey, who is acting as a special agent for the College of Agriculture. A total of 18,715 families of miners in sixteen counties in the coal fields have been instructed in garden growing, he said.

The work is conducted largely through garden clubs, which serve as a medium for dispensing information about the kind of vegetables to grow, their growing and their cooking, canning and drying. Coal companies and other industrial concerns have furnished garden land free of charge, provided for contests, exhibits and other means of recognizing individual achievement, and otherwise encouraged and assisted employees in their efforts to help themselves. Many concerns, in addition, furnished teams, manure, seeds, supervision, suspended house rent and other help.

The American Red Cross has provided seeds for many families in industrial communities, and some local chapters have taken charge of distributing seeds, organizing garden clubs, arranging meetings and availing themselves of other services of the College of Agriculture. Representatives of the American Friends Service Committee have given valuable assistance in similar capacities.

Mr. Bailey recently conducted 30 garden club meetings in mining communities, with a total attendance of more than 5,000 persons. The work will be continued through the season, and families encouraged to grow vegetables for the summer and fall and some to can, dry or otherwise preserve for winter.

GOVERNOR LAFFOON TO SPEAK AT JUNIORWEEK AT UNIVERSITY

Governor Ruby Laffoon will be the principal speaker at the annual Junior Week at the University of Kentucky June 7-11. He will address the 500 club boys and girls and 100 local leaders and county and home agents in Memorial Hall Thursday morning, June 9.

Boys and girls from three-fourths of the counties in the state will attend Junior Week. They will be delegates from local clubs and represent the 22,000 club members in the state.

Transportation companies and other commercial concerns are assisting by giving trips and prizes. Teams from 20 counties will demonstrate correct agricultural practices and teams from 31 counties will demonstrate improved home economics. Other events of the week will be contests in baking and canning and a style show.

While not engaged in the various contests the 500 junior farmers and homemakers will attend classes conducted by members of the university faculty, in which subjects relating to agriculture and home economics will be studied. Music, games and other forms of recreation will be included in the program.

The boys and girls will be housed in the university dormitories and eat at the university cafeteria.

TOBACCO CONSUMPTIONCONTINUES TO DECLINE

Twenty percent fewer cigarettes were manufactured in April, 1931, than in April a year ago, according to the department of markets and rural finance of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. For the past 10 months the consumption of cigarettes has been about 11 per cent below that of the previous year, based on figures of tax-paid withdrawals just issued by the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue, but in April the decline was nearly twice that large.

The large decrease in April is particularly significant to burley tobacco growers because the manufacture of cigarettes furnishes an important outlet for their product. Partly as a result of lower consumption stocks of burley tobacco held by dealers and manufacturers on April 1 were the largest on record, and any decrease in consumption makes such stocks relatively even more burdensome.

Manufactured tobacco, into which much burley and other Kentucky types of tobacco go, also declined sharply in output from April a year ago. For the past 10 months, the tax-paid withdrawals of manufactured tobacco have been equal to or greater than those of a year earlier. This has been explained by the fact that cigarette smokers turn to pipe tobacco and home-made cigarettes when their incomes are reduced through unemployment. In April, 1931, however, the withdrawals of manufactured tobacco were 9 per cent below those of April, 1931, which suggests that present economic conditions may have reached a point where they affect even pipe smoking.

Mrs. G. M. Hayscraft of Crispens county produced eggs at a cost of 3 cents a dozen, from her flock of 25 hens from Nov. 1 to April 1, and sold them for an average of 15 cents a dozen.

The Triumph of Beverage Perfection

The New NuGrape

U. S. Pat. 2,222,222

MADE WITH WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE

From Maine to California millions are enjoying today the supreme achievement of the makers of NuGrape. Truly this is a gala day in the history of beverage making. It marks the final victory of science over the ancient King of all Fruit Juices—King Grape Juice!

After years of expensive research our labors are rewarded. Our laboratory working in conjunction with the Welch Grape Juice Company, has produced a New NuGrape . . . A delicious, carbonated beverage deriving its entire flavor and color from Welch's Grape Juice.

Adding Zest to Daily Menu New Ideas to Aid Housewife

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Home Food Institute

EVERYWHERE busy women are on the lookout for dishes that are flavorful, substantial and practical to help them in the task of planning nutritious and varied meals. At times the housewife may feel that her supply of ideas is exhausted, and the planning of menus becomes a problem, even though she has much more in the way of ready-to-serve foods and fresh fruits and vegetables throughout the year than any generation of women before her. But we can find much in recipes that will be different and unusual. These suggested below are excellent, savory, main dishes that will form the "backbone" of economical dinners about which your family will enthuse.

Shepherd's Pie—New England Style: 2 cups mashed potatoes, 1 medium can Oven Baked Red Kidney Beans, 1 tablespoon minced onion, if desired; 1 tablespoon Prepared Mustard, 1/4 cup grated American cheese, paprika. Line a buttered casserole with well soaked mashed potatoes, saving out enough for top. Place in prepared casserole, kidney beans combined with onion, if desired. Spread beans with mustard. Cover with remaining mashed potatoes. Sprinkle top with grated cheese and paprika. Bake in a moderate oven (375° F.) for 15 minutes or until brown. Serve hot. Serves 6.

American Chow Mein: 2 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup onions, coarsely chopped; 1 1/2 cups celery, coarsely chopped; 1/2 cup water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 medium can Oven Baked Red Kidney Beans, 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons molasses, 2 cans chow mein noodles. Melt butter in large saucepan, add onions and cook until lightly browned. Add celery, water and salt and simmer gently 10 minutes. Add kidney beans and simmer 5 minutes longer. Blend together flour and molasses and add to bean mixture, stirring until mixture thickens. Pour over crisp noodles on a large platter. Serves hot. Serves 6.

Brised Veal and Vegetable Dinner: 1 1/2 lbs. veal steak, 1 inch thick; flour, salt and pepper, 2 cups water, 4 medium sized potatoes, 4 medium sized onions, sliced; 4 carrots, 2 stalks celery, 1/4 cup Chili Sauce, 1 teaspoon Prepared Mustard, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce. Flour veal on both sides and saute in butter in skillet to a golden brown. Season with salt and pepper. Add water and cook, covered, for 15 minutes. Add vegetables cut in quarters, cover and bake in moderate oven for about 45 minutes, or until they are tender. Add sauce made of chili sauce, mustard, Worcestershire Sauce and 1/2 cup water. Uncover and cook just enough to heat sauce and to brown vegetables very slightly.

THE CELEBRATION AND THE CAMPAIGN

In view of the fact that a number of newspapers have editorially questioned the wisdom of continuing the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration on June 11, 1933, it is interesting to recall an important reference to this matter recently made by Honorable Sol Bloom, Associate Director of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

It is assumed by some of these writers that the Presidential Campaign, with its raucous outpouring of propaganda and the "whirling billiard of manifestoes, challenges, defiances and appeals" will blanket the celebration itself.

Upon this point Congressman Bloom said:

"It must be remembered that the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration is the greatest undertaking of its kind in history. It is impossible for the average person to conceive the far-reaching nature of this activity and the tremendous popular response which has been given to it. Instead of a political campaign blanketing the celebration, I have an idea that the celebration will more likely blanket the campaign itself, because of this tremendous response among the people and because of the magnificent scale of the celebration, which would not possibly have been encompassed within the space of a few months, or even six months."

"The opening of the Celebration on February 22 last, was indeed a marvelous demonstration, but it was only the beginning. While thousands upon thousands of cities, towns and communities observed the opening day of this great celebration period, in practically all cases those were merely the initial activities."

"Today throughout the nation there are many more local Celebrations being held than at any other time in the period mentioned. This Commission is receiving notification of the appointment of new George Washington Bicentennial Committees to the number of several thousand per day. Already there are nearly 800,000 such commissions at work and the majority of these committees are planning celebrations that will take place after July 4.

"Some of the states are only beginning their celebrations. An outstanding instance is the State of New York which is preparing a series of events upon a most elaborate scale and which will continue until Thanksgiving Day."

"There will be many thousand farmers' fairs taking place on or subsequent to July 4th. Boy and Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs, and patriotic organizations everywhere are taking advantage of the summer period to put on plays, pageants, and demonstrations of various kinds as part of the celebration activities."

"Not only has the wisdom of carrying the celebration period on to Thanksgiving Day been demonstrated over and over again, but it has been shown that the activity of the Commission in supplying programs and celebration material is increasing and much of this material is for use during the latter part of the summer and in the fall months."

"Thanksgiving Day is the logical end of the celebration period. It is the day when the nation and the world will have reached the climax of their tribute to the First American. It is the day when all over this land and all over the world, people will bow their heads in devout thankfulness that George Washington lived and that thankfulness will be more sincere and more intelligent because they have learned the greatest history lesson ever given to a people. They will have learned what George Washington stands for in the life of this nation. They will have learned the debt of humanity to this marvelous man."

"The wisdom of continuing the Celebration until Thanksgiving Day will only be questioned by those unfamiliar with the spirit and purposes of the Celebration itself, and especially those who are not familiar with its real significance."

Nothing has occurred in our history that has made such a deep and solemn appeal to the patriotic spirit of our people. Nothing has so revived, at a time when such a revival is most needed, the faith, the confidence in, and the love of, the people for their country."

"Believe that this Celebration has done more to aid in maintaining national sanity during these distressful times than anything else could possibly have done. I believe that this Celebration was an inspiration in its origin and has been a revelation in its progress. Instead of questioning the wisdom of devoting a few months to fundamental Americanism, I believe that the United States of America should continue on forever with some great educational and patriotic service to the people. They deserve it and most emphatically our country needs it—needs it now as never before—and the people demand it. To continue the Celebration until Thanksgiving Day was no mistake. I am not sure that the big mistake will be in stopping it, even then."

WASHINGTON SNAP SHOTS

Joseph L. Scott, Los Angeles attorney, will make the speech placing President Hoover in nomination at the Chicago convention of the Republican party. Announcement to this effect at San Francisco was confirmed at the White House, where it was said that the nominator was naturally chosen from California, which the President's home state.

Statements that President Hoover was helping to draft a plank for the Republican platform which would indicate a leaning toward re-submission of the 18th Amendment to the States has brought down upon the capital a tremendous number of inquiries and the foreshadowing of protests. A delegation of drys prepared to ask the President in person for his views next week.

The general economic situation was the subject of a conference at the White House between the President and thirty-eight newspaper publishers from States east of the Rocky Mountains. Not all these invited were present. The conference was general in nature and was strictly along non-partisan lines, said a statement from the White House.

In calling the conference the purpose of the President was said to be to bring about closer cooperation between the government and the newspapers of the country in creating a better understanding of the people of the economic problems the government is seeking to solve. The need of balanced budget, the application of rigid economy in government expenditures, State local as well as Federal, and the evil effects of hoarding and unemployment were understood to be among the subjects discussed.

The problem of choosing a chairman of the Republican National Committee was discussed at a conference between President Hoover Postmaster General Walter Brown, Charles Dewey Hilles, of New York, and James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh. A new difficulty has arisen in the opposition of the Negro Republicans to Mr. Brown as chairman. Unfriendly to the Administration flared up in the recent meeting of the Association for the Advancement of the Colored Race when the secretary of the association, Walter White, attacked the Administration for what he said was its attempt to set up white Republican organizations in the South.

Senator Borah, should be, if he isn't the most puzzled man in Washington when he reads militant interpretations of his decision not to attend the Republican National Convention at Chicago. Particularly, the Senator must marvel at the reasoning processes of those who see a third party threat in his plan to stay away from the convention.

The House of Representatives passed to honor the members of Congress who have died since the election in 1930. Tribute was paid three Senators and sixteen Representatives who, Representative Bankhead of Alabama said, had been "summoned by a very grim sergeant-at-arms." Wives and relatives of the deceased members, except for members of the family of Senator Dwight W. Morrow, were seated in the House, together with Representatives of the army and navy.

Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, widow of Speaker Longworth, sat in the front row. At her side was Representative John B. Hollister, who was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Speaker Longworth. It is the custom of the House for the succeeding member to act as escort to families of deceased members.

As the clerk read the roll of deceased members Representative Effigene Wingo placed an American Beauty rose in a huge vase for each name. After the ceremony one of the roses was given to the widow or another member of the family.

One wonders if it is because the Senators are so dry politically the United States has to buy them so much water? The annual report of the secretary of the Senate for the year July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1931, shows the Government paid $3,374,20 for water for the Senators to drink. Congress was in session four months in that fiscal year. The average cost of the water each Senator drank in those four months was $35.

At a conference of police officials and representatives of the charitable organizations it was decided to do whatever possible to discourage the march on Washington of nearly 400 World War veterans now on their way here to demand immediate cash payment of the bonus. The men are to be warned there are not sufficient facilities available to provide for their lodging if they come. But if the warning proves ineffective they will be permitted to march into the city, if orderly, and go their way as did the two bodies of unemployed that marched to Washington last year.

The consensus of the conference was that the veterans should be care for as well as were the hunger marchers last winter, but every effort should be made to prevent their stay in Washington more than 24 or 42 hours. Chief of Police Glassford said he would issue notice to all known leaders of the marching veterans that the National Capital is without facilities or funds to care for the veterans and that they face privation here if they persist in coming.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland in an address aligned himself uncompromisingly against "socialistic relief panaceas" now emanating from "high places," some of which are in his own party in the Republican party. In particular he denounced the proposal suggested by President Hoover for "pumping some hundreds of millions of dollars through Government channels into private industry."

Governor Ritchie refused to believe in the "self-liquidating" loans which the President would make to provide interests to accept private interests. To accept that scheme, the Governor said, is to make the Government a "partner" in such enterprises, make it a competitor of other enterprises of a similar nature and lead directly to "discriminations and political favoritism in doling out Government aid."

Something New Under the Sun

ADVANCE fashion information indicates that bathing suits will be scarier than ever this year—more wisp compared with the billowy garments worn on the beaches only a few years ago. Pictured above are two of the very latest styles in bathing suits which suggest that coats of tan will be more extensive this summer. And in these modern days, of course, while enjoying the sunshine between swims, both men and women bathers will be reaching for cigarettes and inhaling the toasted smokes that are as kind to their throats as these 1932 bathing suits are to the eyes. The modern garments, however, are not only ornamental.

Fashion experts say that the 1932 bathing suits are designed with an eye to utility as well as to beauty.

For example, Miss Dorothy Shaver, vice president of Lord and Taylor, one of New York's greatest department stores, and an acknowledged authority on styles, says, "The modern woman wants to swim when she goes to the beach and she can't do much swimming if she is burdened with yards and yards of cloth. The 1932 suits, therefore, are swimming suits. The new strap back design illustrates this. Solid colors will be popular this year, as usual, although the new suits offer many striking color combinations."

Just as soon as the weather gets a little warmer, the new styles in swimming suits will be making their appearance on sun-kissed beaches from the Atlantic to the Pacific and it looks as if it would be an interesting summer.

READ A WEEK COLUMN

The acquisition of a sufficient knowledge of birds for personal enjoyment and study in the field is no doubt a matter of the most serious attention or energy, while some have found it more important than it seems. To come in close touch with the very life of our natural birds that live and move in the dense forest, and the many delights it unfolds to the student, to feel the quickening thrill of all nature under heaven's great dome is thrilling. A genuine love of nature in its broadest, deepest, highest development—a love which reaches with wide and eager vision and extended hands toward the stars above is brought about by the study of the Owl, Whippoorwill, Night Hawk and many others of our nocturnal birds.

The Barred Owl (Strix varia varia) has no ear-tufts, the upper parts grayish brown, facial disk is gray and dusky barred, under part white, yellow bill, legs and feet feathers. The nest is usually in a hollow tree. The writer has seen it in an old crow's or hawk's nest. The eggs from two to four pure white. This is often called the "Hoot Owl" or "Muley Owl" recognized by its large size and by the absence of horns or ears and large brown eyes. Its call is a very loud call of "Who, who, who, who whoo too-who-who!" It sometimes varies its call by changing its voice to a weird shrill shriek, when two or more birds are together. They produce mirthless laughter, when there are several together, they hold a nocturnal concert. Besides uttering the above mentioned nocturnal midnight notes, they produce a demure call, he, he, he, hi, hi, hi, ha, ha, ha, ha. Then become quite hilarious for a short time. Their laughter is almost like that of a human being, and then dies away on the midnight air when the solitude of the night again rules supreme. When they are some distance away their voices seem to say "who-who-cooks-for-you-all!"

There are other species common in a forest that may be easily mistaken for the Barred Owl, but the following characteristics will identify them. The deep toned questioning voice, they have no "horns," their dark brown eyes are different from those of any other owl. They inhabit large tracts of dense woodland and live in certain localities. They utter their cry throughout the entire year, usually on moonlight nights, just at twilight, and before sunrise and are more frequently at nesting time. On beautiful moonlight nights they may be heard all thru the night.

The writer has heard them call during the day. The savage Indians often imitated the call to mislead the white settlers, as in the days of Boonsborough and Bryant Station. They will respond to an imitation of their cries. They may be heard at a distance of half a mile under favorable conditions. Some times the sonorous call is just whoo, whoo, who-who-to-who. This is a cry of both question and response. When two rival males meet there is a melody of who-whos mingled with who-ahs. Thus reminding one of mirthless laughter. The Owl's vision is so affected during the day that they can sometimes be captured alive. They are not wild and will allow itself to be closely approached. Its flight is slow and undulating, yet buoyant. Its eyes are so fixed in their sockets that they cannot look from one point to another by "rolling" the eyeball, but must turn their heads.

Its food consists of small birds, mice, rats and other mammals. They are one of the most beneficial of the birds of prey, since it feeds almost exclusively on small mammals that injure farm products, nursery and orchard stock. It occasionally captures a few birds and insects. He is a hermit dweller and may be seen at dusk or early dawn, they do not fly very much only when the occasion demands it. They like the solitary forest and their name has been immortalized by the poet Gray in his famous elegy. They like to appear when the moon is in the height of its glory, and sending its flooding silver light from an almost cloudless sky, and near a stream of water where thru the distant trees beyond the sloping hillsides, may be glistening and flashing at times making the landscape almost bright as if it were day.

These are his nature haunts. It was from the top of an ivy-covered oak that stood sentinel over the graves of the fore-fathers of a small English village, that he complained to the moon that his ancient solitary reign were being molested. This was the setting for Gray's elegy, the most beautiful and touching elegy ever written in any language. These birds are soon to become extinct as the forest and densely wooded streams are fast giving up their tall gigantic trees where they nest and breed. They thrive very well in captivity and may be seen in most Zoological Gardens.

The Family Garden

Bordeaux Mixture Controls Potatoes Diseases of Vegetables

It is a check for the bean pod spot and bean anthracnose, troublesome diseases, particularly in cool, moist seasons. Blight of tomatoes and potatoes is also controlled, or at least warded off for a time, by spraying with Bordeaux. Celery leaf-spot, the forerunner of the serious rot that interferes with trenching and storage, may also be guarded against by timely spraying with Bordeaux mixture. Bordeaux serves as an insecticide against the black bean-bugs, the small lively insect that plays havoc with potatoes and tomatoes, particularly in their early stages. Combined with calcium arsenate at the rate of a tablespoonful to each gallon, the result is a control for chewing insects and spot-diseases on any vegetable.

Bordeaux mixture is a combination of bluestone or "blue vitriol" and lime. The usual formula is 4-4-50, by which is meant, 4 pounds of bluestone, 4 pounds of freshly slaked lime, or 5 pounds of hydrate, and 50 gallons of water. Those who wish may use the prepared form purchasable from most druggists and seedsmen. To make 4-4-50 Bordeaux, the directions are to dissolve 1 pound of it in 6 gallons of water. There is economy, however, in making it of the original ingredients; home-made Bordeaux, too, is better.

Because the equipment most gardeners mean to use is the 3-gallon knapsack sprayer, the directions to follow have been worked out on the basis of making 2 gallons of Bordeaux at a time. These are the directions:

In a wooden tub, or bucket or in an earthenware crock (never metal) place 4 quarts of water, and in it dissolve 1 pound of bluestone. An easy way to do it is to put the bluestone in a salt sack and suspend it over the water in such a way that the bottom is just submerged; thus it will dissolve with no stirring, and in about 3 hours. This is the "bluestone stock."

Now, in the sprayer tank put 1 gallon and 3 quarts of water, add a small handful of hydrated lime, and shake it well to dissolve it. Then pour in 1 quart of the bluestone stock, and shake again, so that the whole is thoroughly mixed. This is 2 gallons of 4-4-50 Bordeaux mixture ready for use, except that in the event chewing insects are to be guarded against, 2 tablespoonfuls of calcium arsenate should be stirred in.

No more Bordeaux mixture should be made than is to be used immediately, for it will separate on standing. The bluestone stock will remain good indefinitely, except that water may need to be added to take care of evaporation. The bluestone stock solution should be stirred every time any is taken out.

It has been intimated above that metal containers should not be used for the bluestone stock; Bordeaux mixture is not so violent, but it corrodes the galvanized iron of which the tanks of the sprayers are usually made. The tank should be thoroughly washed out each time the sprayer is used or, better, the tank should be brass. A brass tank raises the price of the sprayer, but the extra expense is well warranted.

Three sprayings are recommended, for all crops. They should be applied about 2 weeks apart. Complete covering is essential.

should explain that the method of selecting presidents for private corporations differs from that of electing mayors. The head of a corporation is not chosen from a group of self-booster who take a notion they would like the job and proceed to put themselves in by campaigning. He did suggest, however, in his recent speech before the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, that the time has come when we must, if we are to save our property from confiscation, give more of that intelligence and industry which we have manifested in the development of our great business and commercial enterprises, to the administration of our governments.

With apologies to the immortal Burns:

"Oh wad some power the giffie gie 'em
To see themselves as others
See 'em."

WHAT COUNTS

(By Fred Holmes)

It aint that once a ne'er-do-well you get some common sense; It aint that you have come to stop old Mr. Consequence; It aint that people speak to you who used to pass you by; It aint that once a grub-worm, just now you're flyin' high. It aint that when they called you "out" you proved you weren't "down;" It aint you grabbed Depression's neck and put the skunk to route. It aint from whitlin' toothpicks you go down to sawin' wood— It's lettin' your old mother know at last you're makin' good.

BELL COUNTY CLUBS

HELP MAKE CLOTHING

Bell county homemakers' clubs have been conducting two classes a week to instruct wives of miners in making clothing. Materials were donated by the American Friends Service Committee. Members of the hom-makers' clubs met at school houses to assist in cutting and fitting garments, which were taken home to finish. A large amount of clothing has been provided in this manner, according to Miss Ruth Eberhardt, county home demonstration agent.

One of the worst weed pests of the year is sorrel, variously called field sorrel, sheep sorrel, redtop sorrel, sourweed, sourdock, and other similar names. This is a perennial plant, introduced from Europe, which is very hard to control because it propagates from underground running rootstocks as well as from seed. It is conspicuous in pastures and meadows because of its yellow and rust-red appearance, and the fact that it grows in patches, so that a badly infested field shows in the distance as a green background disfigured with yellowish and reddish blotches. The plant seems to thrive best on soils of low fertility where there is not much competition from the grass in which it usually appears. Such soils are generally acid and deficient in nitrogen. Soils that will grow vigorous clover and grass usually smother out the sourdock.

In order to prevent the contamination of grass seeds and grains with the seed of sorrel, the top growth should be destroyed in May or early June. This may be done by cutting and removing the plants from the field, by spraying heavily with a 20 per cent solution of iron sulphate (2 pounds to 1 gallon of water) or by burning. The best way of burning out patches of sorrel is with straw. The straw-burning method has been used successfully in controlling dodder and will work equally well with the top growth of sorrel. In order to completely eradicate the plant, it is necessary to plow the field and grow a clean-cultivated crop for one or preferably two years. The soil should then be limed and fertilized as needed and sown to a mixture of grass and legumes which will serve as a soother crop to complete the eradication.

WHEN THE PAPER

ROBERTY COME

My father says the paper he reads ain't put up right. He finds a lot of fault, he does, perusin' it all night. He says there ain't a single thing in it worth while to read. And that it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people need. He tows it aside and says it's strictly on the bum— But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come. He reads about the wedding and he snorts like all get out. He reads the social doin's with a most derisive shout. He says they make the paper for the women folks alone. He'll read about the parties and he'll fume and fret and groan; He says of information it doesn't have a crumb— But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come. He's always first to grab it and he reads it plumb clean through. He doesn't miss an item or a want ad—this is true. He says they don't know what we want, the darn newspaper guys, I'm going to take a day sometime an' go an' put them wise; Sometimes it seems as though they must be blind and deaf and dumb But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.

Holmes "Raps" Extravagant Ways Of Many Congressmen

By Fred Holmes

Washington Cor. For The Boone County Recorder

Always have there been and probably always will there be blather-skies in every elective legislative body. Until quite recently, however, they have constituted such an insignificant minority that outside of causing a waste of more or less valuable time and providing relaxation in the form of mild amusement, tinged with contempt, they have been patiently tolerated. They were more to be pitied than scorned.

Astounding beyond relief are some of the measures advocated by these selfish, self-opinionated, shortsighted ignoramus who could not successfully run peanut stands if thrown upon their resources. More astounding is their intensive opposition to all safe, sane and constructive measures—even in an emergency—unless each of such proposals has a pork-barrel strapped to it. Still more astounding is the somnambulism of a supposedly watchful electorate which not only continues destructive obstructionists in office but submits to such an increase in their number as to make a positive national menace out of a mere nuisance.

After all government is only big business and subject to all the rules of business. It is axiomatic that no business, big or little, can endure if expenses long continue to exceed income, and it is just as axiomatic that income can never exceed the resources of those who supply it. Yet there would seem to be congressmen—an inconceivably large number of them—who retain faith in the inspiration which led the peasant to kill the goose that laid the golden egg. The most acceptable and profitable appropriation for public works to relieve depression would be one for the erection of a chain of federal insane asylums for legislative incurables.

Facing a possible treasury deficit of two billion dollars, and with no concrete and acceptable proposal for meeting this deficit, certain Democrats have completed their governmental relief bill carrying a total of $2,300,000,000 with a $600,000,000 item for a public works bond issue, and Senator Cutting, Insurgent Republican, has presented a resolution calling for a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for the same purpose. In the House, Mr. Lo Cardia called, meeting of his fellow Insurgents and those Democrats who are demanding "immediate help in the form of more public works," and Speaker Garner has intimated that he still clings to his idea of a billion dollar issue to be amortized by a tax on gasoline.

Senator La Follette never a $5,000,000,000 bond issue to provide employment. Then came the Costgan-La Follette bill to appropriate $750,000,000, and when that was miraculously defeated Senator Black offered a substitute to lend, not give, this sum to the States. Senator Couzens wanted to distribute $375,000,000 among those states the governors of which should apply for aid. Patman, of Texas, wanted more than two billions for the World War veterans, anticipating the ultimate redemption of their bonus certificates. Senator Wagner, of New York, appealed for a two billion dollar bond issue for Government and semi-public works. Senator Hayden, of Arizona, thinks his State, which already draws far more in Federal bounties than it pays in taxes, ought to have $135,000,000 more for highways.

And that is by no means all. A complete list of the proposals that have been made at this session of Congress for dealing with unemployment through drafts on the United States Treasury would make a rather terrifying exhibit for the American taxpayer. And yet we laugh at Soviet Russia.

William Allen White stepped in to the national time-light when he told us "What's the matter with Kansas." He could not add to his laurels by telling us "What's the matter with Congress?" for we already know that, but we would certainly appreciate a little advice from the Sage of Emporia on the subject of what to do about it. The howls of wolves on Capitol Hill have so far failed to get more than a grunt out of apathetic taxpayers. A salvo of artillery in sundry and divers back-yards may do the trick. It's coming.

"Hit 'em where they ain't," was the response of a well-known base ball slugger to the question of how he accounted for his swollen batting average. "Hit 'em where they are," is the advice to give overburdened and grossly mulcted taxpayers.

"The conduct of affairs of Government too frequently is left to those who have no qualifications for the job; to men who frequently have no education, who know nothing about Government finance, budgetary control, economics, sanitation, city planning or anything else that is vital to the government and financial soundness of a great city and the welfare of its citizens."

This speaketh Silas H. Strawn, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Mr. Strawn goes on to ask: "How many mayors of our cities measure up to the task, and how many of them would business men select as the president of a private corporation?"

In answer to which the Detroit News aptly observes, "Mr. Strawn, out of a wealth of his experience,

TEXAS EDITOR

LIKES DEPRESSION

Comes Down Off High Horse and Now Lives Like A Real Man and Enjoying Depression

Recently Henry Ansley, editor of the Amarillo (Tex.) Globe-News told why he likes the depression. His reasons appeal to us—here they are, told in Ansley's own words: "I like the depression."

"No more prosperity for me. "I've had more fun since the depression started than I ever had in my whole life. I had forgotten how to live, what it meant to have real friends, what it was like to eat common every-day food. Fact is, I was getting just a little high hat."

"Three years ago, only one man on the News-Globe organization could be out of town at a time and he had to leave at the last minute and get back as soon as possible. Many times I have driven 100 miles to a banquet, sat through three hours of hum in order to make a five minute speech, then drive 100 miles back so as to be ready for work the next morning."

"Nowadays, as many News-Globe employees as are invited make those trips and we stay as long as we want to. The whole outfit could leave the office and it wouldn't make any difference."

"I like the depression. I have time to visit my friends, to make new ones. Two years ago when I went to a neighboring town, I always stayed at the hotel. Now I go home with friends, stay all night and enjoy home cooking. I have even spent the week-end with some of the boys who have been kind enough to invite me."

"It's great to drop into a store and feel that you can spend an hour or two or three or a half day just visiting and not feel that you are wasting valuable time. I like the depression."

"I am getting acquainted with my neighbors. In the last six months I have become acquainted with folks who have been living next door to me for three years. I am following the Biblical admonition, 'Love your neighbors.' One of my neighbors has one of the best looking wives I have ever seen. She is a dandy. I am getting acquainted with my neighbors and learning to love them."

"Three years ago I ordered my clothes from a merchant tailor and three suits at a time. All my clothes were good ones. I was always dressed up. But now, I haven't bought a suit in two years. I am mighty proud of my Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes. When I dressed up, I am dressed up and I don't mean maybe. I like the depression."

"Three years ago I was so busy and my wife was so busy that we didn't see much of each other, consequently we sort of lost interest in each other. I never went home to lunch. About twice a week I went home to dinner—at 8:30 o'clock. I never had time to go anywhere with her. If I could never locate her, since there was always a 'red-head' or a 'blonde' available, I didn't much worry about it."

"My wife belonged to all the clubs in town. She even joined the young mothers club. We didn't have any children, but she was studying and between playing bridge and going to clubs, she was never at home."

"We got stuck up and halfhearted. We even took down the old family bed and bought a set of twin beds on the installment plan."

"When I would come home at night, if my wife was at home, she would already be in bed and I would crawl in mine. If she came in first it would be vice versa."

"We like the depression. We have come down off the pedestal and are really living at home now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back just like she used to."

"I haven't been out on a party in eighteen months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are falling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with my wife. Think I will keep her until she is forty and if I feel like it I do now I may trade her for two twenties."

"I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise; I walk to town and lots of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression."

"My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to. 'I am getting real honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago we had filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak with flour gravy. Then we had roast breast of guinea, now we are glad to get sow-bosom with buttons on it."

"I like the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all the damfoolishness which has killed more men than the World War."

"I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a preacher in West Texas who could tell me anything."

"Now, I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday. "And if this depression keeps on, I will be going to prayer meeting before long. I like the depression."

CINCINNATI ZOO

The summer entertainment season at the Cincinnati Zoo is now in full swing. The attractions provided, under the direction of Charles G. Miller, business manager, already are proving their popularity with the public.

There will be another week of A. F. Thaviu, noted bandmaster of AA. F. Thaviu, noted bandmaster starting Sunday Solists to be heard at the free, afternoon and evening performances include Luella Feilberg, soprano; Chauncey Parsons, tenor; and Walter Merhoff, baritone. In addition, there are a number of instrumental soloists.

"A Night on the Rhine," a hilarious take-off on the night life at Cincinnati's famous "over-the-Rhine" district in the gay nineties, will immediately follow the concert season, on Sunday night, June 12, with an all-star cast. Popular prices will prevail. The opera season will open on the following night, with "Aida."

Harry Wilsey's Orchestra continues to play for the diners and dancers at the Zoo Clubhouse. A floor show will be provided on Saturday and Sunday nights. At the Zoo dancant, Dance in Russland, Charles McClure's Russian Steppers are making "jitney" dancers happy with their rhythmic offerings.

Free Punch and Judy Shows, Kid-dland, Fun House, merry-go-round and pony track are attractions promised the children visiting the Zoo.

Susie, the gorilla; Glimpy, the pigmy elephant; the many baby animals and new birds and animal specimens are sources of great interest to Zoo visitors.

Automobile parking is free inside the Zoo grounds.

The Kentucky Crippled Children Commission announces a new plan for the location, examination and treatment of crippled children in the central part of the state. Beginning Friday, June 3 an orthopedic clinic will be held every Friday at the Good Samaritan Hospital. Free examination, diagnosis and advice will be given to crippled children under 18 years of age. The clinic will be open from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m., every Friday, and Lexington orthopedic surgeons will alternate in making the examinations.

Dr. Charles C. Orr will conduct the clinics on the first and third Fridays in the month, and Dr. W. M. Brown will be in charge of the clinics on the second and fourth Fridays.

Miss Anna B. Quim, Asst. Director of the Commission is making her headquarters in Lexington for several months until the weekly orthopedic clinic is established. She will make special effort to promote attendance of crippled children from the following counties: Bath, Boone, Bourbon, Bracken, Breathitt, Carroll, Clark, Edgill, Fayette, Fleming, Gallatin, Grant, Harrison, Jessamine, Lee, Lewis, Madison, Meade, Mercer, Morgan, Nicholas, Owen, Owsley, Pendleton, Powell, Robertson, Scott, Wolfe and Woodford.

The state appropriation for the care and hospital treatment of crippled children has been greatly reduced for the next two years, and the Commission feels that the establishment of a weekly clinic in Lexington will be in the interest of economy, because many cases can be brought to the clinic, have braces or casts applied on the same day, and can return to their homes in nearby counties without remaining in the hospital for a long period of time. Weekly clinics in Ashland and quarterly clinics in Covington and Owensboro have already demonstrated the efficiency of regular clinics in the physical rehabilitation of crippled children.

Support of the county health departments and civic clubs in various communities is being sought in the promotion of the weekly orthopedic clinic at the Good Samaritan Hospital, Lexington.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MISSION

Without a doubt some readers will be interested to learn just how many folks from God's Bible school visited the Mission May 22nd.

Three young ladies and three young men came over. It was most interesting to learn where their homes had been. They came from various places in the United States while one young ladies home was in Canada.

Of course the entire service was in their hands. Miss Harlan led the singing in such a manner as to make each one enter it with plenty of enthusiasm.

The special singing of the evening consisting of several selections including "Near to the Heart of God" by the young ladies Trio. Next Brother Willhoite from Kentucky sang "Jesus Can Make you Whole," playing his own accompaniment on the guitar, and last but not least Miss Kirkendall and Mr. Willhoite sang.

Tuesday evening "Praise Service" was very nicely led by Miss Vivian Hood.

Songs, various readings, special singing and testimonies made the evening pass enjoyably for all.

It has been decided to discontinue the Tuesday meetings during the summer months in order that the folks may have a little more time to visit other places.

Our regular Bible Study hour has been changed to Thursday evening. Have you ever felt that you were standing on consecrated ground?

This will be true if you have the opportunity of visiting God's Bible school during their camp meeting. You will have the privilege of not only listening to Bro. Stanley whom many of you hear over your radio, but also of seeing him.

Bro. Babcock the Evangelist asks questions during his sermon which would be well worth our while to meditate over.

How would you answer such questions as these?

What would be the result of preachers everywhere would proclaim a day of "prayer and fasting?"

What does the world want today?

One goes from this wonderful place feeling calm, peaceful and rested, appreciating anew the beauties given us by God, also the things which we see and know were made by man.

Often one hears folks say they would like to understand more of the Bible.

Opportunity for fulfillment of this wish awaits you at the Mission Sunday school.

Water for Goldfish

A temperature between 50 and 80 degrees is best for goldfish. Avoid any sudden change in temperature. If water is above 85 degrees in summer watch the fish and if they seem distressed reduce the number of fish in each aquarium and be sure the water is aerated. Do not put ice in the water. Cooled water may be fed in gradually if temperature is dangerously high.

Junction Of Dixie And Federal Highways Sees Another Auto Smash-Up

Four young people from Carrollton narrowly missed being killed early Monday morning when their car crashed into a telephone pole at the junction of the Dixie Highway with No. 43 at Florence. The accident occurred shortly after midnight.

The young folks were in a coupe and were driving to Cincinnati. Upon approaching the Dixie they did not realize that they had reached it until they had dashed across the concrete. Before they could bring the car under control they had crashed into the pole.

Robert Kipping, one of the party, was graduated from the University of Kentucky with this year's class and was one of the stars of the Wildcat football team for the past two years. His sister, Miss Frances Kipping, and Miss Ethel Sharp and Howard Sharp were the others injured.

The Kippings were son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kipping and are related to the W. L. Cropper family in Burlington. Miss Kipping is a prominent funeral director, while Mrs. Kipping is postmaster at Carrollton.

Three of the injured were rushed to Covington hospital by motorists who arrived at the scene immediately after the wreck. Miss Ethel Sharp, the fourth and most seriously injured, was a nurse at the Good Samaritan hospital in Cincinnati and was taken there. It was necessary, however, to call an ambulance for her.

This is the fourth accident of more or less serious nature that has occurred at this intersection since the opening of the Louisville high-

ILLNESS

Boone county's star little south-paw pitcher, Clifford (Lefty) Sprague, who was recently stricken by illness at Davenport, Iowa, is slowly, though steadily, recovering at his home in Newport, according to the latest reports.

Lefty's physical condition became bad several weeks ago while in training at Davenport and his physician advised the pulling of several teeth and the removal of his tonsils.

This operation disclosed a very poisonous condition, which at first was thought to be dangerous, and relatives were notified immediately. When those who went to Davenport arrived there, his removal to his home was at once advised. According to the latest advice, however, it is reasonably certain that he soon will regain his complete strength.

During the season of 1930 Sprague pitched for the Burlington team in the Boone county amateur league and hurled so creditably that he was recommended to the Cincinnati club for trial at their Peoria farm. The Peoria team, however, failed him to Davenport in the Mississippi Valley League, where he had a great season in 1931, winning 14 games and losing 7 for a last place club.

His friends and admirers here felt sure that he would reach faster company before the end of the 1932 season, but his present illness no doubt will militate against his rise this year. It probably is a question whether or not he will be able to return to Davenport before late in the summer.

Mrs. Fay Castleman, Ward of Tulsa, Oklahoma, was a pleasant visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Riddell last week.

Clinton Hemphill, the Taylorsport apple king, was a pleasant visitor at the Recorder office Monday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Carpenter of Walnut Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Kelly were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cropper Saturday evening.

L. A. TANNER

DROPS DEAD IN YARD AT HOME OF J. B. ROUSE SATURDAY AFTERNOON — WAS 81 YEARS OLD — TWO NIECES AND ONE NEPHEW SURVIVE

L. A. Tanner, aged 81, dropped dead in the back yard at the home of J. B. Rouse on the Florence pike, near Burlington, last Saturday near noon. He had gone to the chicken yard to assist his niece, Mrs. Rouse, with her chickens when he complained of feeling ill. As he started to return to the house he fell to the ground and died instantly. He had been in failing health at intervals for some time.

Lewis Andrews Tanner, who had been known as Uncle Lute by most of his friends and relatives in late years, was recognized in this section of the county, where he was so well and favorably known as a splendid citizen. He represented a type of man so common to this community many years ago, but which is rapidly fading out with the toll of death.

He was the last of a family of ten children and a son of Llewellyn and Elizabeth Deere Tanner, both of whom came to this part of the country from Virginia. His wife, Fannie Delph Tanner, passed away about five years ago, since which time he had made his home with his niece, Mrs. J. B. Rouse and Mr. Rouse. He is survived by one nephew, Kirk Tanner, of Florence, and one other niece, Mrs. Fannie Utz, also of Florence. No children survive, an only child having died in infancy.

A short funeral service was held at the grave Monday afternoon in the I. O. O. F. cemetery at Burlington. The service was conducted by Rev. F. E. Walker, assisted by Rev. Stith, of Milan, Indiana, and a former pastor of Gunpowder Baptist church, of which the deceased was a faithful member. C. Scott Chambers of Walter, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Mary Louise Renaker, a Kentucky alumnus, attended the commencement exercises at her alma mater last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Rouse, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Galen Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Cropper and Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Carpenter enjoyed a pleasant evening at Horseshoe Garden Saturday.

Rising Sun Prepares For Mammoth Fourth Of July Celebration

Rising Sun folk, assisted by their rural neighbors, are making plans—careful plans which are to be capably executed—for the biggest Fourth of July celebration that has ever been staged within the borders of Ohio County, Indiana. Older readers of the Recorder will recall some rousing Fourth of July celebrations held in Rising Sun many years ago—celebrations marked with "earthquake" features which put them in a class by themselves. But this particular celebration is to be of the kind which truly may be designated as "bigger 'n' better than ever."

A fact that will arouse the interest of the public and will add dignity to the occasion is that the celebration is being held by way of observing the George Washington Centennial.

The major attraction of the day will be a parade which will move promptly at 10:30 a. m. The parade will be headed by the Rising Sun High School band of more than fifty pieces. This band is generally conceded as being one of the best school bands in Indiana.

Immediately following the band will come all Ohio county survivors of the Civil War—and they are but few—and widows of other brave men who followed the flag in the stirring days of '61 and '65. Mounted veterans of the Spanish-American war will be in line to remind spectators of "Teddy" and his "Rough Riders." World War soldiers will have a goodly representation and they will be followed by Boy Scouts.

Sunday schools of the county, fraternal organizations, women's clubs and private individuals will be represented by handsome floats, many of patriotic design and others of a miscellaneous nature. An old-time string band, staged with the proper "atmosphere," will be an attraction which will appeal to many. This feature is to be sponsored by John S. Durbin, city mayor.

The school band will give a concert on the court house lawn at 10:30 a. m., this to be the initial feature of the day. Following the parade, there will be an intermission from 1:30 a. m., to 2 p. m., when a thirty-minute address will be made by a speaker who is widely known. A male quartette will be heard and there will be several selections by the band.

An executive committee, including six energetic persons, is in charge of all arrangements for the day. The personnel of the committee is as follows:

John S. Durbin, city mayor; the Rev. J. T. Redmon, pastor M. E. church; Mrs. Grace Pate Will, retired newspaper woman; Mrs. Geo. Elliott, County Project Chairman; Professor Jonas Hall, High School instructor; Ernest A. Bodey, postmaster.

Kentucky folk in general, according to Mrs. Will who is chairman of the publicity committee in addition to her other duties, are cordially invited to be the guests of their Hoosier neighbors on the nation's birthday. Mrs. Will adds this convincing statement:

"We desire it to be plainly understood that the object of this celebration is not for the purpose of any one's deriving any financial profit therefrom. The celebration is NOT to be commercialized. It is to have a two-fold purpose, that of honoring the memory of The Father of His Country and of proving means for a 'get-together' meeting for all who may care to avail themselves of the splendid opportunity thus to be afforded."

BOONE POST

HAS FINE ATTENDANCE AT MEETING HERE MONDAY NITE — MEMORIAL SERVICE CONDUCTED AT CLOSE OF BUSINESS — REV. JOHNSON IS THE SPEAKER

Boone Post No. 4, American Legion held its regular meeting in Burlington Monday night with the largest attendance it has had for several months, having about 35 members and ex-service men present, who came from all parts of the county.

After the regular business session of the meeting was completed a Memorial service was conducted in remembrance of those who gave their all for their country.

The Post was very fortunate in having Rev. Roy Johnson as a speaker in this Memorial service, as he brought a message in remembrance of those who gave their lives in the great fight for liberty and peace, that caused all to pause and reverence them. Rev. Johnson is well qualified to speak on this subject as he spent many months on the battle fields of France and witnessed the death of many of his comrades. He is pastor of the Big Bone Baptist church.

The next regular meeting of the Post will be held on the 5th of July, instead of the 4th, as this date is a holiday, and all veterans of the country are urged to meet with the Legion whether you are a member or not.

Immediately after the splendid commencement address, delivered by Lieut. Gov. A. B. Chandler, the graduates of Florence High School were entertained by Miss Dorothy Sullivan, a graduate herself, at the home of her parents on the Burlington pike. Those in attendance were Messrs. Pat Ward, Lawrence Aylor, Bob Groger, Forest Ferguson, Larry Klemen, Stanley Kearns, Carlton Crisler, Misses Virginia Miller, Dorothy Sullivan, Catherine Bethel, Helen Elliott, Mary E. Higgins. Delicious refreshments were served and a delightful occasion was the verdict of all attending.

L. A. Conner returned the first of the week after two weeks spent in Akron, where his son, Harold, is racing a string of greyhounds. Mr. Conner brings fine reports of their success thus far at the meet.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Greenup and family, and Misses Thelma Greenup and Mary Congelton, of near Lexington, spent the past Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Congelton of the Petersburg pike. Mrs. Greenup remained for the week's visit.

NATIONAL HOLSTEIN MEETING ATTENDED

Mr. Hubert Conner of Burlington, R. D. 1 and Mr. J. F. Cleek, of Walton, R. D. 2, represented Boone county at the Holstein-Friesian Association of America meeting held the past week at Madison, Wisconsin.

Both of the above farmers are breeders of purebred Holstein cattle and are interested in the advancement of the breed. The Holstein Association holds an annual meeting each year to study means of improvement and development of the breed.

4-H CLUB PICNIC AND TOUR The Willing Workers 4-H Club of Verona is planning for a tour of project activities and a picnic on Thursday, June 16th. All members and leaders have been requested to be present at the school house at 10:00 a. m.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bennett and son, Roy, of Ludlow, were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Sullivan, Jr.

WOOL CROP

OF 1932 IS SOLD BY BOONE COUNTY POOL TUESDAY — DELIVERY ON JUNE 16, 17, 18 — PRICE NOT YET DISCLOSED

The 1932 clipping of wool was sold Tuesday afternoon to M. Sabel and Sons, of Louisville, according to L. T. Clore, secretary of the Boone County Wool Pool.

The price was not made public this week, at the request of the purchasing company, but it will be announced in the next issue of the Recorder and at the various receiving places. It was reported, however, that the price was very satisfactory and somewhat higher than had been anticipated in view of the present depressing conditions.

The dates for receiving the crop and the places were announced as follows:

Walton, Thursday, June 16.
Burlington, Friday, June 17.
Petersburg, Saturday, June 18.
Four Louisville firms competed in the bidding, including the Sabel company. The remaining three were Goodman and Sons, Dinkelspiel, and Rosenbaum.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Oldham and daughter have returned to Mt. Sterling after a visit with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Goodridge.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

Far be it from us to insist that there is anything really logical behind superstitions. The old fears about walking under ladders and giving the right of way to black cats simply don't have foundation in fact. Sometimes, however, events conspire to make us wonder whether there really isn't something to all this superstition; and right now the Cincinnati Reds are in the same mental chaos about the St. Louis "Jinx."

The "Jinx" is just about the most remarkable one that has ever been recorded in base ball records. In four years the Reds haven't won a dozen ball games from the Cardinals while taking a series of the most ruinous trimmings ever inflicted on any self-respecting ball club. Red fans have long since given up trying to figure why it is that the Queen City team can't beat the Cardinals. They accept as fact that the Reds don't whip the Cards and let it go at that.

Way back in 1928 the Reds won several series of games from St. Louis, finally annexing the season's 12 games to 10. In 1929, 1930, and 1931, the Reds won only five games out of 66 played, a frightful beating, and this year have been able to take only a few games with a ball club that is immeasurably better than the outfits of previous seasons.

What's the answer? Are the Cards as vastly superior to the Reds as the records would indicate? Not at all. St. Louis never defeated any other club as badly as it whipped Cincinnati; and Cincinnati frequently beat teams who in turn defeated the Cardinals. Figure that out if you can. All that we know, and the Red management is all too aware of the fact also, is that St.

Louis has made life exceedingly miserable for the Reds since 1928.

This year the fans expect the Reds to revenge themselves upon the Cardinals; but to date the team has proceeded in the same old slump. Against every other club in the circuit the Reds have played great ball. In eighth place last year the Reds are making a great bid for a higher position. They're the sensation of the National League and the terror of every club in the circuit—except St. Louis.

The Cards, greatly weakened by the trade of Chick Hafey and Burleigh Grimes, are the smashing, driving club that won the world's championship in 1931. The Reds are tremendously improved. Logically, then, Cincinnati should take more games from the Cards this year. We confidently expect them to do so, but the old "Jinx" hangs around and it is hard telling just when the Reds will get started against their nemesis.

This much is certain—if the Reds can hold up in the face of all their recent defeats at the hands of the Cards, what can they do when they break their streak of bad luck? The Cardinal pitchers can't hold Hermand, Hafey, Lombardi, Hendrick and Grantham in leash forever. Hafey particularly is anxious to beat the Cards because he is good and sore at that club for the way they treated him on the salary question this year. There's another factor to figure, too—President Sidney Hill has assembled a team that is fighting mad and wants to go places. It will take more than a "Jinx" to stop them.

DICKERSON-GREENUP

The marriage of Miss Elaine Dickerson to Mr. William Greenup came as a distinct surprise to their many friends last Saturday afternoon, June 4. The young couple were united in the holy bonds by Rev. Don McMillan, one of their high school instructors during the past year, at his home in Bellevue. They were accompanied to Bellevue by James Ogden and Miss Ethelyn Ryke.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Dickerson, of Union, the groom the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Greenup, of Burlington, with whom the newly married couple will make their home for the present.

KENTON COUNTY

MEN ARRESTED AS RESULT OF CRASH WITH OHIO AUTO NEAR RICHWOOD SUNDAY MORNING — RELEASED UPON SETTLEMENT OF DAMAGES

Harvey and Charley Trinkler, of Bracht Station, Kenton county, were arrested Sunday morning by Deputy Sheriff Frank Walton following an auto crash near Richwood on the Dixie Highway.

Their car crashed into a large Cadillac driven by A. A. Hertenstein, of Columbus, Ohio, which was seriously damaged. The car driven by the Trinkler boys also was damaged.

The Trinklers, who were arrested on a reckless driving charge, were dismissed when they agreed to pay the damage to the Ohio car. The owner of the car considered the damage to be approximately one hundred dollars.

Injuries to the occupants of the automobiles were said to have been slight cuts and bruises.

STAY ON THE JOB, CONGRESS

Sombody whose familiarity with figures on a larger scale than ours has estimated that the uncertainty as to what Congress is going to do about taxes and economics is costing the people of the U. S. a hundred million dollars a day. It isn't costing us, personally, that much, but we would feel relieved, as everybody else would, if we could get something definite out of Washington as a guide to chart our business course for the future.

Any decision is better than no decision. The nation has been kept in suspense too long already. We know of some and hear of many more industries and businesses enterprises which are merely marking time until they find out what the new tax bill is going to be like. If it puts on one kind of a tax, they will have to do business this way; if it is another sort of tax, then they'll have to do it another way. Meantime, it is only the part of prudence for business men so situated to sit tight and do nothing rather than take the chance of doing the wrong thing.

We hear that the bankers are complaining that there is not enough demand for business loans for productive enterprises to enable them to lend out safely the money they are holding. We are afraid there won't be much of a demand until business knows where it is at with respect to taxes. Our observation is that Congress is showing a pretty good spirit, considering that this is a presidential year and most of the members are usually concerned more with the election than they are with the public welfare. Many of them, in both houses, actually seem to be trying to represent the people who sent them to Washington. This is refreshing and hopeful, and we think the good work ought not to be interrupted by an adjournment merely to take in the Presidential conventions.

We want Congress to finish its work at one sitting, without taking time out for play. If it can't get a constructive program completed before the conventions, let it stick in Washington until it can. We are tired of losing our share of that hundred million a day that delay is costing us, and we think we are speaking for everybody in our part of the country in saying that it will do more harm than good to its chances for reelection for any member of either house to do anything more to drag the session out into the summer.

Folks are getting peevish and there's no telling what they might do if things don't come to a head pretty soon.

things I want to learn, so many places I want to see, that I hope to feel the old rear and kidneys for quite a while. And so, I trust, will you?

Sunday School Lesson

JOSEPH THE WORKER

Genesis 41:41-47

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Joseph, the son of Jacob, had a great variety of trainings. The eleven brothers thought they were thru with him and the indications of his dreams when those Midianite merchants led the Canaanites onward from Dothan in upper Palestine to far away Egypt. He had seen the caravans proceed around to Egypt and had longed to know what might be the outcome. It is fine to see how plain, practical common sense can work out to real personal advantage.

There was no trouble in marketing such a slave. He finds himself in a better class home. The Hebrew lad soon rose to local prominence but this very success from hard work caused him to become the center of a plot by the designing wife in that home (Genesis 39:1-20).

Whatever Joseph sought to do it was done well. When the two prisoners that were also confined were discussing their dreams, Joseph gave them the interpretations. One would be free, while the other would meet death. The butler promised under these circumstances that he would say a good word for Joseph. Follow this promise made to its final conclusion.

Joseph now stands before Pharaoh. Leaving he tours the land. Egypt was to have seven plenteous years when an abundant harvest would be gathered. He now assembled all the food, which were as the seed of the seed.

Duty, honor, and faith kept Joseph pure and true. It carried him through and will accomplish the same for you.

2,800 ACRES LAND

SOLD IN OWEN

Carrollton, Ky., June 1.—John H. Perry, New York, president of the American Press Association, and owner of daily papers in Reading, Penn., and Jacksonville and Pensacola, Florida, has purchased 2,800 acres of land in Owen County near Balls Landing, on the Kentucky River. This land includes the old Adams, Minor, McDowell and Perry homesteads and has six miles of water front on the Kentucky River. It is opposite the famous old Drennon Springs.

The sale was closed in Owen on this afternoon by the First National Bank of Owen, Ky., Joint Stock Land Bank, Lexington, and individuals.

There are about 1,500 acres of fine river bottom land in the tract.

Mr. Perry expects to improve this body of land and convert it into a first class modern stock farm. The Minor home known as "Glenwood Hall," is one of the beautiful old Colonial homes of Northern Kentucky. It will be remodeled.

Mr. Perry is a brother of N. A. Perry, owner of the Carrollton News-Democrat, and was born in Owen County on the McDowell farm.

J. Lyter Donaldson, Carrollton, represented Perry in the transaction.

Five thousand fruit trees were purchased cooperatively by Knott county farmers.

THE AMERICAN FLAG

June 14, Flag Day, has ever carried the deepest meaning to every true American. This year the day will carry a tenfold significance, as the nation celebrates the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington. For to General Washington, tradition credits a leading part in the very designing of the flag, and what he did to give it meaning is and will be known to every American as long as our country lives.

On June 14, 1777, Congress resolved: "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, that the Union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation."

In these simple words, authority was given to General Washington to design the flag, and on the same day tradition has it that he went to the house of Betsey Ross on that visit, which has become one of the finest pages of American folklore. With him, according to the account, went Robert Morris and George Ross, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and the uncle of Betsey Ross, deceased husband.

On entering her modest house in Arch street, Philadelphia, they are said to have found Mistress Ross busy at her needlework and humming a tune—softly, however, so that she might hear the tinkle of the bell on the door of her shop at the front of her house—and General Washington thus simply stated his errand.

"Mistress Ross, we have come to ask you to help in making a flag for our country. We do not feel pleased with the present union flag because of the King's colors in the canton, so we have planned another."

The "grandunion" flag referred to by Washington was the one he himself had designed and first flung to the breeze on January 1, 1776, during his siege of Boston. This was at a time when the Revolutionists still felt they were fighting, not the British king, but his ministers; hence Washington's flag consisted of the thirteen alternate red and white stripes, but bore in its canton the King's crosses of St. George and St. Anthony. By 1777 the Revolutionists were fighting solely for an American nation, and they wanted an American flag.

Mrs. Ross, it is said, undertook the making of the flag eagerly, and with an exalted sense of the unusual honor conferred upon her. Not only that, she even suggested to Washington a slight correction in the design, which bore six-pointed stars instead of the five-pointed type of heraldry. With a snip of her scissors she cut a folded paper and held forth a perfect five-pointed star to show what she meant. For a few minutes longer the design was discussed, and as quickly as nimble fingers could execute the task, Mrs. Ross had the flag in being.

So in this homely fashion which so well became the American spirit, was born the emblem designed by Washington, coming almost like a direct gift from him, to fly ever since over the nation that he also designed. Today, every American is privileged to ponder on the stupendous human events and influences that have flowed from this simple incident at the house of Betsey Ross a century and a half ago.

When that flag was designed and made there was not a true Republic in existence. Since then the principles set in motion by George Washington and his fellow patriots have extended themselves to the uttermost parts of the earth. More than an emblem of sovereignty, the flag that Washington planned has been a symbol of human freedom, of equal opportunity, and political liberty—wherever mankind has fought for these things.

Flags have flown for the vanity of kings. Flags have been hated by millions of people, as representing nothing but conquest and oppression. Many of the cruelties, prejudices, injustices that men have forced on each other have been wrought under the sanction of some similar emblem. The flag that will fly from thousands of masts today, is the one given by George Washington, to float as the first bright banner of unstained honor, over a people for whom he prepared a great destiny.

It drew the early patriots from comfortable homes, from the security of their occupations and from the love of their families, to fight for the larger world which we inherit. What to them was a far ideal is to us the great reality. No good American will neglect to ask himself how well he preserves the courage, the spirit of sacrifice belonging to those men and women who gave us their priceless heritage, on this returning anniversary of the day when their flag was born.

Hardly had the American flag appeared when it began to play an immortal part in our history. It first was flung in the face of the enemy less than two months after its creation, at Fort Stanwix, on August 3, 1777. It was first carried into battle by George Washington's troops at the Battle of the Clouds, September 11, 1777. It was first raised by the British at the surrender of Mifflin, October 17, 1777. On February 14, 1778, John Paul Jones took the first salute to the flag as a naval emblem when he sailed the "Ranger" into Quiberon Bay, France. On April 24, the same year he sailed the first striking of colors to the American flag by the British ship "Drake," in a British port. In 1787 the flag was first carried around the world by the ship "Columbia," sailing from Boston. It was first flown in battle in the Pacific by the U. S. Frigate "Essex" in 1812, and in the next year it inspired Francis Scott Key to "The Star Spangled Banner."

Once, in 1794, when Vermont and Kentucky joined the Union, the stars and stripes were increased to 15; but in 1812 Congress fixed the final form of the flag as of thirteen stripes, with a star to represent each State. On April 6, 1896, Admiral Peary planted the first American flag at the North Pole. Since then Admiral Byrd has carried it to both poles. Wherever it has gone it has meant honor and achievement, but this year it floats in honor of the greatest of Americans and the greatest of achievements—George Washington, and his creation—of the United States.

BICENTENNIAL COMMISSION TO PUBLISH A SERIES OF COMMEMORATIVE VOLUMES

The work of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission will be handed down to posterity, according to Congressman Sol Bloom, Associate Director of the Commission.

Plans are being made for all the publications issued by the Bicentennial Commission in the past two years to be combined in a series of Memorial Volumes. These volumes, Congressman Bloom explained, will be deposited with the libraries of the country for reference in connection with future George Washington birthday celebrations.

The Commission has already published a series of sixteen historical pamphlets entitled, "Honor to George Washington." Each pamphlet deals with a different phase of Washington's life and activities. Besides this series, the Commission has published booklets on music, a series of plays and pageants including the full length folk masque entitled "Wakefield," written for the Commission by Percy MacKaye; a handbook for teachers; a series of twelve program pamphlets; a special Colonial Costume book; a book on the highlights of Washington's Writings for use in the classroom; and at patriotic gatherings; a collection of sermons on George Washington prepared especially for the Commission; a 4-H Club booklet for farm organizations and many other smaller pamphlets and booklets.

The Commission has collected a library of several thousand historical pictures of George Washington and people and places intimately connected with him. This collection is of great historical and financial value. Besides, thousands of pictures sent in from all corners of the world, portraying events connected with the Bicentennial Celebration, have also been assembled. The most important of these pictures will form a separate volume of the Commemorative series.

Another volume will be devoted to a comprehensive report of the works of the Commission as they actually have the world celebrated the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the Birth of George Washington in 1932.

These Memorial Volumes, along with the twenty-five volume set of the Writings of Washington, now being edited for the Commission by Dr. John C. Fitzpatrick, and the Washington Atlas which was prepared for the Commission by Colonel Lawrence Martin, will form the permanent contribution of the U. S. George Washington Bicentennial Commission to historical Washington.

"When America gets ready, in 2032, to celebrate the Three Hundredth Anniversary of Washington's Birth," commented Congressman Bloom, "the people will have more to work with than we had. We, for the most part, had to feel and make our own way. The material which we will leave behind, will be of great help to future American citizens desiring to honor the memory of the Father of our Country."

"This thought is a great consolation to me," continued the Congressman. "We know that the work we have done in the past two years will not have been done in vain but will continue through the years as a living monument to the memory of the man we are now honoring."

The Memorial volumes, it was explained, will not be ready for some time; but in view of the tremendous amount of work necessary to compile these volumes, the Commission's staff will begin work on this project within the next few months.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

FROM THE WORK BENCH

A stout lady came in complaining of hemorrhoids. She weighed 190, which was not bad, considering she was five feet ten in height. Age, 52. Blood pressure, 135/70. Past health record good, except a very distressing constipation.

Here was a case of "lazy colon" to begin with. I removed the offenders from the rectum; then set about to correct her diet and habits. This was of far more importance than the trifling operation.

I stopped her from taking irritating cathartics, which she had been using for a long time. I forbade her taking saline injections; I prescribed all SOFT, SMOOTH, easily-digested food. I stopped her from the "roughage" idea which she had indulged in to the limit.

I forbade all worthless items in her previous dietary; no indigestible stuff whatever; no tough skins of fruits such as cherries, plums and raisins; no bran or bran products; no skins of baked apples; no grape-skins; no seeds, such as blackberry or raspberry; stewed prunes carried the only skins permitted.

No tough fried steaks were to be allowed. Tough trier steaks were taboo, meats once a day, but they must be soft and tender; eggs once a day, and butter and cream urged within reason, all nerve foods, Green leafy vegetables and stewed fruits in plenty. Citrus fruits, especially the juice of oranges were urged—but no fibers. Wilting lettuce specially advised—and cooked onions. If onions at all.

I forbade all "dressings," such as come with baked chicken; they are bad for lazy colons. And especially "combination salad." Eat vegetables singly, not mixed up in mass combinations. The patient is almost well—feels better than she has for years.

It just occurred to me that this advice might be worth while to my stout lady readers.

WHY MEN DIE

Among the men whose friendship I enjoyed was the late C. W. Barron, owner of the Wall Street Journal.

One day in Boston I received a message that he was sick in New York and wished to see me before he died.

I hurried home by the fastest train, but when I reached his hotel I discovered that he had given up all idea of dying. He was in bed, but he was telephoning, dictating, receiving visitors, and having a glorious time.

He had been close enough to eternity, however, so that the experience left a deep impression. When his secretary went out of the room, we talked about Death.

He told me two stories. The first was about a man who accumulated a large fortune, built a house on Fifth Avenue, put his feet on the window-sill, and said: "Now I am going to enjoy myself." But he was like a watch spring which has been wound up tight for a long time, and being suddenly released, snaps in pieces. After only a few moments of idleness he died.

The second story had been told to Barron by a noted surgeon. A woman, taken to the hospital for a slight operation, died almost before the anesthetic was applied. The surgeon could not understand it. On looking into her history, he discovered that from the minute the operation was decided upon she had begun to prepare for the worst. She had made her will, given away her jewels, and divided her personal property.

The surgeon said: "That taught me a lesson. I shall never again operate until I find out what preparations the patient has made. If any person cares so little about holding on to life that he makes all preparations to let go, then some other surgeon can have the job."

Barron said that by the degree of their courage and faith men themselves determine how long they will live.

I believe that is true—that those live who want to live; that when interest ceases, the heart stops. Montesquieu remarked that "the love of duty is almost the sole passion that is perpetual in us; all the others fail as this miserable machine which sustains them falls more and more into decay."

None of us can escape the process of decay; but there are many

Democratic Presidential Race Rapidly Becoming Less Complex

BY FRED BOLLES
Washington Correspondent for
The Boone County Recorder

While the campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination continues to be the most engrossing and intriguing political puzzle here in Washington, from a general outlook it must be admitted that it has gradually become less and less complex through a process of elimination. Week before last Owen D. Young, of New York, with an impressive although far from noisy following, voluntarily eliminated himself from the picture. Last week Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, who early demonstrated such qualities of constructive leadership as to make him a most formidable candidate, harmed or helped—as you prefer—by intensive support of the Hearst publications and William G. McAdoo, of California, is said to have completely smothered his own "boom" under a blanket of inexperience.

However, it must be remembered that the elimination of a candidate, voluntary or involuntary, is one thing; preserving that state of elimination is quite another. The unprecedented and disastrous defeat of Alfred E. Smith in 1928, augmented by his subsequent declarations, was supposed to have definitely eliminated the Happy Warrior from the 1932 Democratic steeplechase, but New York's ex-Governor eventually concluded not to stay eliminated, and, as a matter of fact, it would now appear that maybe, after all, he hasn't been. Owen's Young announced conclusion not to become a candidate in any circumstances was looked upon here as his final elimination from the race. It was believed that it removed from the list of possible contenders a man who might have strongly appealed to the convention. In fact, it would seem to have developed that there is much more sentiment for Young for President now that he has taken himself out of the list of Democratic possibilities than there was before his self-elimination. If they should get panicky out in Chicago over a Smith-Roosevelt deadlock, Mr. Young might find it exceedingly hard to stay eliminated.

As for Mr. Garner, no one—not even his political adversaries—questions the Speaker's good faith and sincerity in sponsoring a $2,309,000,000 measure for direct relief "of starving and suffering people in this country." At the same time, President Hoover has labeled the Garner bill "the most gigantic pork barrel ever proposed to the American Congress." Secretary of War Hurley adds his criticism to that expressed by the President, insisting that the Garner proposal would substitute "wasteful extravagance for intelligent well-balanced, productive construction." Secretary Hurley spoke with authority, re-inforced by the opinion of his expert advisers. President Hoover showed clearly how few men would be put to work by enactment of the Garner bill and Secretary of the Treasury Mills gave facts and figures.

Those in high places in both the financial and the industrial worlds insist that the proposed legislation would utterly fail to afford appreciable relief. Taking the unprecedented course of testifying before the House Ways and Means Committee in behalf of his bill, Speaker Garner made a vigorous plea for the governmental leadership he holds, but he failed to tell the American people how it is possible to balance the budget and at the same time impose this new burden on the Federal Treasury. Whether or not his bill if enacted would afford the measure of relief he claims for it, it is unfortunate for Mr. Garner that it comes at time when the country is demanding in no uncertain manner a balancing of the Government's budget so that financial stability may be restored and a real return to business begun; at a time when Congress is attempting to frame a revenue bill which will raise more than a billion dollars of additional revenue from the people, and at a time when Congress is at work on the "economy program" part of which cuts the wages of Government workers.

Intensive criticism of the Garner bill, by the President, by his Cabinet, by the few remaining real statesmen in Congress, by the press irrespective of partisanship, by outstanding financiers and industrialists, by the thinking public generally, had its effect upon the involuntary candidacy of Mr. Garner for the Democratic presidential nomination, but it did not go so far as to destroy faith in the purity of his motives. But Mr. Garner is thought to have fallen into the common error of not being willing to let well enough alone. Naturally he may have been a little stung by President's Hoover's severe arraignment of his plan to enter upon a vast program of Federal Building all over the country, but it is not felt that this excuses him for the language he used in reply. After considering an President Hoover's opposition as "not unexpected," he remarked acidly: "The Democrats did not expect to receive real cooperation from the President in any matter benefitting the masses and those who might be termed the middle class of American people."

We are undoubtedly in the midst of a complex and unprecedented emergency, and it is not surprising that options in Congress and in the Administration differ regarding what should be done. There are accredited prescribers of impossible measures, provoking but a smile of tolerance, but there is no reason to question the motives of or to fling gratuitous suspicions at those who are honestly, even if mistakenly, striving to do what they believe to be best and right. But for Speaker Garner to intimate that the President is secretly hostile to measures that will benefit the great mass of Americans is an unseemable political presumption that has hurt its author more than his intended victim.

Right or wrong, that settled Mr. Garner. Someone should have reminded him of an old, old story. When the cat got through with the parrot, Polly solemnly scrutinized his entire wardrobe, transformed into a green, red and yellow mat at the base of his pedestal, and indulged in the semi-historic remark: "I guess I talk too damn much."

TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR

As you say, "She may be empty, but I'll tell the world she's clean!" But when the sheet is printed and is out upon the mail, On its way to the subscribers, I have never seen it fall—

In the center of the front page, in a most conspicuous place, Some typographical error fairly kicks you in the face.

For the typographical error is a slippery thing and sly, You can hunt till you are dizzy, but it somehow will get by. Till the forms are off the presses it is strange how still it keeps, It shrinks down into the corner and it never stirs or peeps.

That typographical error is too small for human eyes, Till the ink is on the paper, when it grows to mountain size. And you see the blasted error, far as you can throw a dog, Looming up in all its splendor, like a light-house in a fog! That glaring blunder juts out like an ulcerated tooth, Where it dodged the eagle vision of the napping comma sleuth.

It is sure too late to mind it, but it fills your soul with rage. As you see it swelling loudly in the middle of the page. The boss he sits with horror, then he grabs his hair and groans, The copy reader drops his head upon his hands and moans—

The remainder of the issue may be clean as clean can be, But that typographical error is the only thing they see.

It was down among the six-point till the copy was all read, When it shifted into blackface or a two-inch banner head— Then when the sheet was printed it jumped up and hollered, "Boo!" You never saw me, did you? This is sure a horse on you?"

MOTHER'S SONG

Mothers, sing your children to sleep. It may be more modern to turn on a bedtime story on a radio, but it is less valuable. "Go Tell Aunt Rhody," and "Hush a Bye Baby," sung in the tender tones of mother's deep affection, is worth all the rest.

A young mother told me recently that she kept her children up till a rather late hour to hear certain entertainers before she put them to bed. I said, "Why rob your children of their most priceless memory in later life? That of having been sung to sleep by their mother?" I saw her three months afterwards and she said: "I'm having the time of my young life learning my own mother's cradle songs and singing them to my children. The children are also getting to bed an hour earlier."

One tragedy of our machine age is that we allow mechanical contraptions to take the place of the deep vital things which must always have the free expression of our hearts.—Farmer's Wife.

CONCERNING YOUTH

For a good while it has been the fashion among certain writers and speakers to condemn young people of the present, charging them with being wild, frivolous, immoral and what not. The escapades of the small minority have been held up as representing the tendencies of the entire body of modern youth. Many thoughtful persons who are in position to observe real conditions do not take this view, however, but incline to the belief that the younger generation will compare favorably with those of "the good old days."

President James R. Angell of Yale University is one who believes that the students of today seem on the average to be distinctly superior to those of former times in "breadth of outlook, sincerity, range of vividness of intellectual interest and essential stability of character." As an educator for 35 years, President Angell had the opportunity to observe many thousands of students. His views concerning the present day youth is therefore entitled to respectful consideration. The chances are that he is right.

The record was broken in a New York town when a used automobile was sold at auction for 66 cents. But it may prove to be not so cheap at that.

Limited Appreciation

A small girl in the north end received from her grandmother in Cleveland, the other day, a pin cushion for a birthday gift. The gift didn't evoke great rejoicing but the child's parents insisted that a letter of thanks be sent to grandma. "Suitable expressions of gratitude were suggested. As finally written, the letter read: "Dear Grandma—I thank you very much for the nice pin cushion. It was just what I needed, but not very much."—Detroit Free Press.

4-H CLUB DELEGATES ENTRAIN FOR STATE MEETING

The Boone County 4-H Farm Practice Demonstration Team, the 4-H Home Practice Demonstration Team and the Sewing Club girls style show champion left early Tuesday morning for the state 4-H Club contests being held this week during Junior Week at the University of Kentucky at Lexington. The members enroute will be under the supervision of County Agent H. R. Finkner.

The members and leaders while at Junior Week will not only compete in the state contests but will receive four days intensive training in agriculture and home economics work. They will also receive one-half day off in which to visit the historical sites in and around Lexington.

The County Farm Practice Team is composed of Melvin Kenyon and William Rodamer of the Cornsucker 4-H Club of Constance, who will demonstrate "Three Practical Methods of Testing Seed Corn." The Home Practice Team is composed of Marian Sullivan and Jane Taylor of the X-LI-All 4-H Club of Florence. They will demonstrate "Bed Making and Care of the Sick Patient." Miss Jane Taylor will also represent the county in the 4-H Club sewing girls style show contest. All the above are winners in the county 4-H contests held at Burlington on May 14th.

Miss Lucille Taylor and Mrs. Lewis Sullivan, adult leaders in the X-LI-All sewing club will act as chaperone for the girls and at the same time attend the state 4-H Leaders Conference. Miss Taylor will also represent Boone County Utopia Club No. 2 in the state meeting. The members expect to return Saturday morning.

Harvest Home got on the winning side last Sunday by trouncing the Latonia Merchants by the score of 7 to 2. The home boys scored six runs in the first inning and Brady had an easy game, scattering eight hits and the visitors never threatened in a scoring way.

Next Sunday Rosedale A. C. will make its second visit to Harvest Home park and will present Wilson as their twister. This boy has pitched some mighty good ball this season, having lost a 2 to 1 decision in 11 innings at Ludlow last Sunday, and will be out for revenge next week.

Braun will probably be the starting pitcher with Brady ready in any emergency. The home boys have won 3 and lost 3.

HOLY SUNLIGHT MESSAGE

A Bible Quiz of about twenty minutes is part of the regular Sunday school program each week. The quiz inspires us to do a bit more Bible reading than many of us would otherwise.

Due to the fact of the "Camp Meeting" which has been in progress at God's Bible School, our regular Sunday evening service was more in the form of a lecture than a sermon.

Mr. Louis Brown, a student from God's Bible School, delivered a very worthwhile lecture on "The Prodigal Son." He also rendered a solo, "The Grand Excursion" which was heartily enjoyed.

No doubt many of us would have spent an enjoyable as well as educational day, had we been present Thursday for the Missionary Day services held at God's Bible School. The returned Missionary workers all wear the native costumes of the country from which they have come.

Just imagine what a picturesque display this must be, as we first see a lady and gentleman in Chinese costume, next a somber black kimono clad man, with his wife in a beautifully colored kimono, and we hear some one say they are from Korea.

Much can be learned from seeing a sight like this, however we are very apt to be more than thankful for being able to wear our own simple, comfortable apparel.

Thursday evening Bible Study Service was well attended.

A number of Miss Grace Peeno's friends spent Friday evening with her, all wishing her many more "Happy Birthdays."

"TAX THEM TO THE GATES OF HELL"

The following was taken from the Congressional Record:

Mr. Schall: Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to publish in the Record a poem, "Advice on Taxation," by H. A. Goetch, of Wadena, Minn.

There being no objections, the poem was ordered printed in the Record and is as follows:

Advice On Taxation

Tax the people, tax with care;
To help the multi-millionaire;
Tax the farmer, tax his fowl;
Tax the dog, and tax the howl;
Tax the hen and tax her egg
And let the bloomin' mudsill beg.
Tax the pig and tax his squeal,
Tax the his boots run down at heel;
Tax his horses, tax his lands,
Tax the blister on his hands.
Tax his plow and tax his clothes,
Tax the rag that wipes his nose;
Tax his house and tax his bed,
Tax the bald spot on his head.
Tax the cat, tax the ass,
Tax his "Henry," tax his gas;
Tax the road that he must pass,
And make him travel over the grass.
Tax his cow and tax his calf,
Tax him if he dares to laugh;
He is just a common man
So tax the cuss just all you can.
Tax the laborer—be discreet—
Tax him walking on the street;
Tax his bread and tax his meat,
Tax the shoes clean off his feet.
Tax the payroll, tax the sale,
Tax his hard earned paper kale;
Tax his pipe and tax his smoke;
Teach him government is no joke.
Tax his coffin—tax his shroud;
Tax his soul beyond the clouds;
Tax the farmer, tax his flocks,
Tax the servants, tax his socks.
Tax the living, tax the dead,
Tax the unborn ere they're fed.
Tax the water, tax the air;
Tax the sunlight if you dare.
Tax them all, and tax them well,
Tax them to the gates of hell,
But close your eyes so you can't see
The coupon-clipper go tax free!

Days of the Week

The week consisting of seven days is a unit of time which dates from prehistoric antiquity. Each of the seven days corresponds to one of the seven moving heavenly bodies: then known. Sunday and Monday are named after the sun and moon; Tuesday was named for Mars (Tuesday in Norse); Wednesday, Mercury's (Woden's) day; Thursday, Jupiter's (Thor's) day; Friday, Venus' (Freia's) day, and Saturday, Saturn's day.

Dressing Up the Hamburg

By Jane Rogers

TODAY on every hand we are urged to be thrifty—to give more thought to simple menus, in which the less expensive dishes predominate.

In this connection let us consider hamburger steak. True, this particular meat offering has been much maligned—been made the butt of countless jokes—but perhaps the fault really lies with the way it is prepared and offered to the family.

Hamburger steak, properly garnished and carefully seasoned, can easily be lifted from the list of just-so close to a main dish with real appetite appeal.

In the seasoning, salt, pepper and sugar play an equally important part. Recent culinary research has shown that a dash of sugar, used in the preparation of meat dishes, not only ripens and mellows the flavor but imparts a wonderful zest and savor by acting as a blending agent for the other seasonings. Here is a recipe for hamburger that should appeal to the most exacting gourmet.

Hamburger On Toast

Mix one pound of hamburger with one teaspoonful each of sugar and salt, ¼ teaspoonful of pepper and make into flat, loosely mixed cakes, or leave in the bulk. Cut rounds of bread 1 to 2 inches in diameter and toast on one side only, spread the ground, seasoned beef on the other side and broil five minutes. Drop a bit of butter on each hamburger and serve fully garnished with sliced tomato or parsley.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Cason, of Bellevue, and Wendell Phipps, of Lawrenceburg, Indiana, were calling on friends in Burlington Saturday evening. The latter is a son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Phipps, formerly of Burlington. Mr. Cason, who was the Grant mail carrier for many years, during which time he made daily trips to Burlington, has charge of his brother, Carl Cason's farm this year. Tom's daily visits here are missed by his many friends, especially the early risers.

Friends of Prof. C. G. Lamb learned Monday that he had undergone an operation for appendicitis at Mason's hospital in Murray last Friday. The operation was a very serious one and the attending physicians despaired of his life all day on Sunday. A letter to friends here from Mrs. Lamb, however, written Monday states that his condition was much improved on that day. Mr. Lamb was in poor health for several weeks before leaving Burlington and it is to be hoped that this operation will improve his condition. He has a host of friends here who are pulling strongly for him.

There's a daughter who misses you sadly
And finds the time long since you went;
And I think of you daily and hourly
But try to be brave and content,

And I breathe a sigh of regret;
For you were mine and I remember
Though most of the world will forget.

There are two vacant chairs by the fireside,
Two loved ones are gone from my side,
I hope to meet you soon in Heaven
And with you I never abide.

BIRD A WEEK COLUMN

Kentucky Warbler (Oporornis formosa) The finest woodland singer in my neighborhood, and one of the most lavish with his splendid store of song is undoubtedly the Kentucky Warbler. He waits until the cherry blossoms have in fact appeared, and fill the thicket with their fragrance, and the golden spirewood clusters warm and brighten the woods with gold, which adds all the more to the charm of his wonderful voice. He comes along with the Chimney Swift and Wren. We find him handsome in appearance when we finally get a good glimpse of him. His crown and ear coverts are black, underpart and line over eyes yellow; no white in the plumage. These birds are found about such localities as are frequented by the—birds, but with a preference for woods which are low and damp. They frequent many of the southern states. They are active gleaner of the underbrush, and keep themselves well within the dense part of tangled thickets. His habits are very much like those of the Maryland yellowthroat.

They are very inquisitive and oftentimes come very close to the observer when he is holding an investigation. He can scold and storm too. The song is a loud musical Wren-like warble. His call note "tur-dle tur-dle" repeated in quick succession which may be marked by many minor inflections and variations. No month in the year is so valuable for bird study as the month of May, no month is quite so rich in results as the first two or three weeks in May. Birds divide themselves into two general classes—those that nest and make their home in our own fields and woods, and those that are migratory visitors. Therefore we must look for the migratory birds while they are passing and loitering on the way. The trees are again in full foliage, nesting time is here and the masses of fragrant foliage that has by this time accumulated for our winged friends of earth and air, is being widely sought and furnishes an ample rendezvous for them from May on until October. Now that June is here the woods are fragrant with spring wild flowers, white violets, quaker ladies, cowslips, butter cups and mountain pinks. The Kentucky Warbler keeps up his glorious melody throughout the long summer days. They appear to be much more rare in the spring than in the fall. They frequent wild tangled thickets for nesting purposes, and rarely seen unless attention is drawn to them. They are among the liveliest of the warbler family, being very active in catching insects on the wing like a true flycatcher. They rarely remain still more than a few seconds, before they must dash after some tempestuous morsel that is flying by. Oftentimes they feed among the blossoms and tree foliage. They usually make their presence known before one can see them. They are well distributed throughout the state and also in Virginia and Tennessee and one of the earliest warblers to appear.

How Birds Migrate

Most birds seem to return over the same route year after year. To most of us they are a living calendar. The sight of the first Blue bird upon the old apple tree is a sure sign of spring. According to nature of their occurrence the birds of the temperate zones may be grouped seasonally as follows, permanent residents, summer residents, transient visitors, and winter residents. To the permanent residents belong the Bob White, Hoot Owls, Screech Owls, Snow Bird, English Sparrows, House Wrens and many of our native song birds oftentimes remain as permanent residents. The winter residents are among Juncos, Grosbeaks etc. There is less movement among birds in the month of January than any month in the year, at this date the regular winter residents have come, the fall migrants that may have lingered until December have gone, the earliest spring migrants will not arrive before the latter part of February or early March. January being the only month in the year in which no birds arrive or depart.

You See, It Was Like This

By Albert T. Reid

Snow may fall and blizzards rage but so long as birds find plenty to eat they are not much disturbed by weather conditions. If there is a period of mild weather any time in February one may expect birds, Sparrow, Blue birds, Robins, Purruch as the Meadow Lark, Song Sparrows and Redwing black birds. These birds pass the winter only a short distance south, and the first signs of spring brings them home.

During the month of March there is a great northward movement among birds. As the ice leaves the ponds and rivers here come the ducks and geese on their way to the Canadian waters to nest among the reeds that fringe the splashy brins of the Northern Lakes. Also the Woodcock comes when the thaw is sufficient to make the ground soft enough for him to probe, the Pheasant will come with the advent of insects, as he is a great enemy of insects. The weather hastens many of our residents from the south and sends our winter residents northward. During the month of April when the development of the plant world begins we may expect daily arrivals. The early arrivals in April are the seed eaters, while those who come later are the insectivorous, such as the Swallow, Swifts, and Night Hawks. As May arrives great changes in temperature are less likely to appear and migration becomes more regular and continuous. In May birds usually arrive

FRUIT SANDWICHES FOR SUMMER

WHEN you want to go for a drive and park and picnic—when you want to just plain picnic in nearby woods—when you want to eat out on the lawn or on the porch—when, in fact, you want to eat outdoors, it is both wise and convenient to make a selection of sandwiches part of your meal.

It's so easy, too, nowadays when we have ready-prepared sandwich spreads and all sorts of delicious cold meats and fish in cans ready to be put between buttered slices of white, brown or whole wheat bread. But there is one kind of sandwich, in particular, that it is wise to include in your menu, and that's a sandwich including some fruit.

So here are a few suggestions for fruit sandwiches for the summer months when outdoor eating is so popular.

From the Tropics

The following two sandwiches include fruits from the tropics—coconuts, bananas and pineapple.

Tropical Sandwich: Spread thinly sliced and buttered white bread with peanut butter. On one slice spread drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple and on the other sprinkle moist canned coconut. Put the two slices together, and cut in small sandwiches.

Fruit Sandwiches: Crush two bananas slightly, and add one-fourth cup drained crushed pineapple and one-fourth cup chopped nuts. Use as filling between white or whole wheat bread. This makes eight full slice sandwiches, but it's more fun to cut them into fancy shapes. Be sure to save the syrup drained from the canned pineapple.

apple to use as an ingredient of almost any cold fruit drink.

Containing Cheese

Cheese is both nutritious and sustaining in sandwiches. Here are three which contain it.

Pineapple Jam Sandwich: Mash one package cream cheese, and add two tablespoons drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple and one tablespoon blackberry or black currant jam. Spread between thin buttered slices of Boston brown bread. This makes from four to six whole slice sandwiches which can be cut up as desired.

Nippy Sandwich: Spread white bread with butter, and then with a very soft sunny yellow cheese. Cover one slice with drained pineapple, and put the two slices together.

Cream Cheese, Pineapple and Nut Sandwiches: Mix one package cream cheese, two tablespoons chopped nuts, two tablespoons drained crushed Hawaiian pineapple and a few grains of salt. Spread on thinly sliced, buttered white or whole wheat bread. This makes four full slice sandwiches. Cut into smaller sizes.

Nuts and Things
Nuts combine well with a number of other things beside cheese. Here are a couple of happy combinations.

Fruit and Nut Sandwiches: Mix one-half cup thick sour cream, one-half cup drained crushed nuts, and one-fourth cup drained crushed pineapple. Spread between thin slices of buttered raisin bread. This makes eight full slice sandwiches.

Meat Sandwiches
Chicken Salad and Pineapple Sandwiches: Mince the contents of a 6-ounce can of chicken, and combine with one-eighth cup chopped celery, one-fourth cup chopped pimiento and mayonnaise to moisten. Split the slices from a No. 2 or a No. 2½ can of Hawaiian pineapple in two thin rounds. Cut bread in same size rounds as the pineapple. Lay a round of pineapple on buttered bread, spread with chicken salad, lay on a leaf of lettuce, cover with another round of pineapple, and top with bread. This makes eight whole slice sandwiches.

Ham and Pineapple Sandwiches: Mix together one-half cup minced ham, one-fourth cup mayonnaise, two tablespoons grated horseradish and a few grains of salt. Add one-fourth cup crushed Hawaiian pineapple, well drained, and spread between buttered bread or between split and buttered finger rolls. This makes four whole slice sandwiches.

Don't forget to save the syrup drained from the canned pineapple in these recipes to use as an ingredient for a fruit drink.

within a day or two of a certain date. Birds are now more abundant than at any other time in the year, sometimes a dozen species arrive on the same day. This is a good time for the student to be in the woods equipped with a field glass and note book, for the study of both permanent residents, summer residents and migratory birds. After the middle of the month birds begin to decrease in number, the migrants move up north.

A LAZY DAY IN JUNE
To Editor of The Courier-Journal.
Mayhap you've been to Egypt,
And walked along the Nile;
Or traveled in a caravan
For many a weary mile.

You may have lived in Venice,
Under an azure sky,
And watched the gay gondolas
That floated idly by.

Perhaps you've called the seas,
Felt the magic of the moon;
But have you seen Kentucky
On a lazy day in June?

Why, it's a very Paradise
When roses are in bloom,
And you hear the bees a-hummin'
On a lazy day in June.

A soft breeze goes a-wandering
Across the clover hills;
A vagrant butterfly sails by—
On a lazy day in June.

Then sunset glows, and fireflies—
Gullbat sig-sag by;
A mockbird is singing—
A whippoorwill replies.

A fox barks harshly somewhere;
A hound-dog wags his moon—
And you have a perfect ending
For a lazy day in June.

Richmond, Ky., May 30. The Golden Age is not a thing of yesterday, but a thing of tomorrow, Dr. Homer J. Carpenter, pastor of the First Christian Church, Louisville, told the 47 graduates of the Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College in his baccalaureate sermon "The Romance of Youth," in the Hiram Brock Auditorium here last week. The address was heard by more than 2,000 persons who crowded the auditorium beyond its capacity.

"The romance of the youth of today must possess a prophetic element," Dr. Carpenter said. "Our youths must be able to look into the day after tomorrow and must be able to interpret what they see. This involves the obtaining of wisdom." "The romance of the youth of today must possess a sacrificial element," he continued. "Life isn't easy. It is perhaps more difficult today than it has ever been. But this in itself should grip the imagination of youths and must stir within them a passion for achievement."

"There must be an element of adventure in the romance of youth today. There is something hidden. Go find it. We who have been in this generation longer than you have merely been gathering the materials for you to build with on the day after tomorrow. They are great materials, yes; but there is even a greater work to be done. We lay the materials at your feet."

"The youth of today is educated, cultured, capable, self-assured, and fit to fight the battles of life, but is still confused and perplexed by a multitude of questions. The answer to all of these questions," Dr. Carpenter said, was given by Jesus nearly 2,000 years ago: "Come and follow me."

The Cynthiana Democrat says that one of the hardest problems the country newspaper encounters is to impress folks with the importance of sending in copy early. The Democrat implores their friends who want articles published in its paper to get them in early, as it is humanly impossible to handle all the news that comes into the office at the last minute. This same mule kicks the Recorder every week and the practice has almost blurred our mind. We would not mind our friends waiting every week to bring in articles for publication if they did not burst out in a laugh and invariably say that they "had been putting the matter off for three or four days." We have tried everything except praying to get these friends to realize that we are not superhuman, but all pleadings have failed.

"July" Potatoes
By John B. Gardner, Ky. College of Agriculture

The general name "July" potatoes is given those varieties whose seed can be kept in good condition until planting time, without resorting to cold storage. Quite a few such varieties are in use, some of them having been used for so long a time that their original varietal name has been forgotten. Especially is this true of the Mountain section of the state where seed potatoes were brought from England, by way of Virginia, at the time the first settlers came. Not all of these commercial sorts, for some of them are rough and deep-eyed, but because their yields are uniformly high, they are valuable to grow for the home potato supply.

A common variety grown quite generally all over the state is McCormick, known by upwards of a score of local names. It, too, yields heavy crops under a variety of soil and cultural conditions, but because of its being prone to turn green when exposed to light for only a short time, its market value is limited. Properly stored, however, its quality can be preserved, and it should not be overlooked by those to whom a dependable winter supply of potatoes is an object.

The culture of "July" potatoes is much the same as that for the early crop, except that because dry soil and hot weather contribute to potato scab, precautionary measures must be taken to conserve moisture, especially. Late potato land should have been broken early, and a mass of humus material turned under. A heavy coat of manure would have served; so would a green crop of some kind. Fall-sown rye, or even a crop of weeds are examples. Better, would have been a heavy sod, preferably one of clover.

At intervals of from two weeks to a month, the land should have been disked and dragged to discourage weeds. If this is consistently done, weeds will not be bothersome after the potatoes are planted. No exact date for breaking can be given to apply all over the state, but the last-date limit is May 1.

The seed should be treated for scab. This treatment has been described in these columns previously and merely to say that the material is corrosive sublimate is all that is necessary. Those who missed the article in which the method was described may secure full directions by making request of the writer.

The seed should be properly cut. Especially for the "July" crop it is necessary to use seed pieces large enough, and of the proper conformation, in order to remember that the pieces should be as large as a pullet's egg, that they should be blocky, and that they should have at least one good eye. A greater number of eyes is not objectionable, for the seed piece regulates the number of sprouts, if the seed is healthy.

The proper planting date cannot be fixed for the state, but it ranges from June 15 in the "Cincinnati" counties to August 5 for those counties that abut on the state of Tennessee.

Planting should be deep; four inches below level is acceptable, though five inches is not too deep. Not all of the soil should be drawn back into the furrow at planting time, but just enough to cover the pieces well, and the rest of the soil dragged toward the furrow in cultivation. The seed pieces should be dropped 15 to 18 inches apart; there should be only one piece at a place. Fertilizer should be used in the bottom of the furrow, but mixed with the soil previously to dropping the seed. A good potato fertilizer is 3-8-6, and the rate of use is 1 pound to 20 feet of furrow.

Cultivation should be adequate to controlling the weeds as they start, and the surface should be left level. Always, if there is a likelihood of the potatoes cracking the soil and their being exposed to sunlight and air, the cracks should be closed, but no more soil should be drawn to the row than is absolutely necessary.

Potato beetles may be a factor, depending on how thoroughly they were fought on the early crop, but their control is so simple as not to need repeating. Potato blight, too, may come; its control is spraying with Bordeaux mixture, whose making was described just a few weeks ago.

EXPERIMENT DEMONSTRATES VALUE OF SOIL FERTILITY

The Experiment Station of the University of Kentucky cities results obtained at its soil fields over the state as demonstrating possibilities in increasing fertility.

At Mayfield, land treated with ground limestone and phosphate fertilizer produced 37 bushels of wheat to the acre last year, while untreated land, though otherwise handled the same, made only 24 bushels.

At Greenville, the lime and phosphate treatment resulted in 33 bushels of wheat, compared with 11 bushels where there was no soil treatment.

Land improved with limestone and superphosphate in Laurel county yielded 24 bushels of wheat to the acre, and untreated land produced only two bushels.

Applications of superphosphate and limestone, in the corn, wheat and clover rotation at Campbellsville, resulted in the production of 37 bushels of wheat to the acre, whereas untreated land alongside it made only 21 bushels.

At the Western Kentucky Substation at Princeton, on land of limestone origin, the limestone and superphosphate treatment yielded 36 bushels of wheat to the acre, and untreated land 15 bushels. On another part of the farm, where the soil is derived from sandstone, the comparable yields were 19 bushels on treated land and less than one bushel on untreated land.

At all the experimental fields, the phosphate and limestone treatments made a yield of wheat nearly double that of the land not fertilized or limed, being 32 bushels for the treated land and 17 bushels for the untreated land.

LOCUST DUE IN SIX KENTUCKY COUNTIES

Seventeen-year locusts are due this year in Clinton, Grant, Green, Hardin, Letcher and Wolfe counties in Kentucky, W. A. Price, state entomologist, announces. They may injure young trees in laying their eggs, he says, as they puncture twigs and limbs and give trees the appearance of having been struck by blight. Otherwise he expects no damage.

The locust swarms in late May or June. The singing of the males usually attracts attention to the arrival of this 17-year pest. They fill the air with their loud and continuous shrill calls.

About two weeks after emergence from the ground the females begin laying eggs. Each deposits 300 to 500 eggs by puncturing twigs and limbs of trees. The twigs wither and sooner or later drop off. In large trees this damage amounts to little more than a light pruning. Injury may be serious to young trees.

The eggs deposited in the fallen branches incubate in six to eight weeks and the young nymphs immediately enter the ground. There they feed upon the roots of trees and such nutriment as may be obtained from the soil. They change their position from time to time, sometimes going into the soil to a depth of 10 or more feet. Usually, however, they are found within two feet of the surface of the ground. They live and develop in the soil from 13 to 17 years, depending on the particular kind of locust they represent.

In order to obtain more definite information on the appearance of locusts, Prof. Price is asking that all persons observing the insect send specimens to the Experiment Station at Lexington. In this way the State Entomologist will be able to map he regions in which they appear this year.

DEMONSTRATE GOOD TOBACCO GROWING

Sixty Calloway county farmers who cooperated with County Agent C. O. Dickey and the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, in demonstrating the growing of good fire-cured tobacco received an average of $11.71 per hundred for their best leaf, $9.88 for the second grade and $1.50 for the lug. The average price of all of last year's tobacco grown in the county and sold to date is $4.05 per hundred.

Fourteen Calloway county farmers who entered a two-acre production contest grew 1,400 to 1,700 pounds to the acre.

M. L. Rogers produced 2,800 lbs.

on two acres. Eighteen cents a lb. was received for 2,800 pounds, 3 cents a pound for 419 pounds and 3 cents for 505 pounds on 2 acres, for which he received $230. C. C. Roberts produced 2,800 lbs. on a two-acre tract and sold all but 500 pounds for 13 cents a pound, getting $303 for his crop.

PLANS SHOW HOME STORAGE OF FOOD

Inexpensive methods of providing storage places for home-grown fruit and vegetables are described in a circular published by the agricultural engineering department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Plans are given for making mound, bank and barrel storages, pole and board cellars, and for arranging basements into suitable places to keep products in winter. Publishing these suggestions and plans for free distribution is a part of the live-at-home program being conducted by the College of Agriculture to encourage the growing and preservation of large amounts of garden and orchard products for home use. Copies of the circular may be obtained from county or home agents or by writing to the College at Lexington.

HOMEMAKERS SHOW ATTRACTIVE HOUSE

A farm home that had been made convenient and attractive at small cost was exhibited by the Graves County Homemakers' Association during better homes week this spring. It was built by Mrs. Pryor Overby three years ago, following the burning of her home. The house was arranged and furnished according to ideas which Mrs. Overby gained as a member of a homemakers' club. Much of the furniture was purchased second-hand and refinished, and most of the rugs were home-made.

Each room was planned for convenience and beauty, according to Miss Florence Cobb, county home demonstration agent. Special attention was given to an attractive kitchen, which contained many conveniences, including sink and pump.

KENTUCKY FARM RADIO PROGRAM

The College of Agriculture will broadcast the following farm radio program from the University of Kentucky extension studios of W. H. A-8 the week of June 13. Each program will begin at 12:45, central standard time.

June 13—Jim and Mr. White in the red clover and alfalfa seed.

June 14—Handling the hay crop.

E. G. Welch.

What it costs to produce milk, G. B. Byers.

June 15—Care of dairy products by the consumer, H. B. Morrison.

Community team work, Fred Boyd.

June 16—Timely chats with the furrow growers, C. O. Eddy.

Homemakers at play, Miss Zelma Monroe.

June 17—What farm folks are asking, L. C. Brewer.

COOPERATION COORDINATES PRODUCTION AND MARKETING

An important service that cooperative marketing associations may render is to coordinate the marketing of farm products with agricultural production. Farmers frequently do not produce the kinds, the quantities or the amounts of products best suited to consumers' needs and preferences, with the result that there is inefficiency in marketing and loss in returns to growers.

The strawberry industry of Kentucky is cited by Dr. H. B. Price, head of the department of markets and rural finance of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, as a good illustration of unified community programs for production and marketing. From the very beginning of the industry in this state farmers have almost invariably planned for cooperative shipping when they had once decided on growing strawberries. During the past year, farmers in Pulaski county and Ohio county agreed upon a cooperative marketing association as soon as they had accepted a project on production, although they knew that there would be no strawberries to be shipped for a whole year.

An important advantage of these associations is the lower cost of marketing that has been realized through the general agreement among farmers to produce enough berries for shipping in car lots. Better berries are marketed as a result of adoption of a single variety and the observance of similar methods of picking, sorting and packing fruit for markets. Substantial savings are also effected through the purchase of growers' supplies.

The advantages of community planning for production and marketing are more and more commanding the attention of farmers as one of the means for improving the agricultural industry.

Fifty thousand pounds of Korean lespedeza and large amounts of red clover and alfalfa seed were used in Montgomery county this spring.

In the belief that the prohibition controversy will not be prolonged and that the drive against re-nominating Vice-President Chas. Curtis has collapsed, Republican leaders have agreed with President Hoover on a program to put thru the business of the Republican National Convention in three days, a day less than usual. The plan was made known on Capitol Hill after Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General, the President's pre-convention campaign manager, had said upon leaving the White House that a plank on prohibition was being developed "to which we all can subscribe."

Prohibition was the subject of three important White House conferences. President Hoover's attitude was represented by key leaders meeting with the National Prohibition Board of Strategy as favorable to the plank proposed by Senator Borah. The President was reported to have said that he hoped the party would adopt this plank and that it would become known as the Borah plank. This report became current while the White House conferences were in progress and the dry spokesman asserted Senator Borah would consent to go to the convention and back his plan if the proposal met with the final approval of the President.

Administration leaders let it be known that they are working on a model prohibition plank—one upon which all interests may stand; that they expected to remove ahead of time all major controversial matter. In other words, they propose an exhibition of convention harmony and efficiency rarely if ever achieved in the history of party conclaves. They believe such a program will impress the country favorably.

But the promises of Republican platform-makers that a prohibition plank all hands—Mr. Nicholas Murray Butler and Bishop Cannon, for example—may embrace with equal enthusiasm, appeared rather hollow after a sweeping manifesto had been issued by the organized dries against any change whatever, and after equally militant declarations by strongly placed party wets.

Nine days before those who will attend the Republican convention in Chicago must leave Washington, leaders of both parties in Congress continued to express conflicting views over the possibility necessary legislation will be completed in time for an adjournment. Senators Reed and Vandenberg expressed doubt. House leaders still contend, but with weakening emphasis, that "the House will be ready if the Senate will not put on steam." All banking legislation, it is generally conceded, will die in the Senate; the Philippine Independence Bills and Farm legislation, excepting that which is likely to be embraced in the relief program, are also regarded as dead. Nothing is expected to be done toward building up the Navy at this session.

The Senate plunged into its struggle over the economy phase of the budget-balancing problem, taking up the bill proposing $238,605,000 of savings, chiefly thru a payroll cut, while two members of President Hoover's Cabinet prepared to present the Administration's arguments against the Democratic bonded public works relief proposals. The economy bill, with its general 10 per cent pay-cut provision accounting for more than half of its total, was not announced until about the same time the Senate was passing its billion-dollar tax bill, which forms the larger part of the budget-balancing program. Nevertheless, the full force of organized government employees was being marshaled in opposition to the pay cut.

A bill by Senator Glass to make all United States Government bonds available for temporary currency inflation to the extent of $1,108,000,000 was substituted by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee for the Goldsborough bill, which seeks to stabilize the dollar on a 1921-29 average purchasing level, and was reported to the Senate by an unrecorded but overwhelming vote. Mr. Glass later said that he did not believe his, or any other "legislative device" was necessary for such an end at this time, but that he had offered the plan in order to stop the Goldsborough bill, which he opposes. The Goldsborough bill was passed in the House by a 5-to-1 vote some time ago. If the Glass bill passes the Senate, both programs will be thrown into conference between the two bodies.

The readiness of the U. S. to attend an international conference in London on commodity prices and other economic questions short of war debts and reparations threatened to develop into a controversial political question when it became known that Great Britain yet hoped to work out the projected meeting through the attendance of the United States at the Lausanne conference. There were signs of restlessness over the question among influential Republicans in Congress.

American adherence to the World Court, but with a qualification that in effect reiterates the original Fifth Reservation, was recommended to the Senate in a report from the Foreign Relations Committee, written by Senators Walsh, of Montana, and Foss. That part of the resolution of adherence which brings up the question of the Fifth Reservation is a reservation by Senator Moses recently approved by the committee. The Moses reservation provides that the signature of the United States shall not be attached to the protocol until the other signatories accept the reservations and understandings of this government.

Official interference with Cupid's perennial campaign at the United States Naval and Military academies would be banned, under a bill introduced in the House by Representative Cochran, Democrat, of Missouri. The Superintendent of the Naval Academy last week promulgated a marriage ban for graduates for a period of two years after graduation. Mr. Cochran's bill provides that "no order, rule or regulation of the War Department or the Navy Department or any military or naval authority shall prohibit the marriage of any graduate of the United States Military Academy or the United States Naval Academy, or in any matter restrict or limit the rights or privileges of such graduates by reason of his marriage after such graduation." Mr. Cochran said: "I do not think it is in the interest of either the morale or the morale of young officers for departmental officials to meddle in their private lives. To deny them the right to lead normal lives under peace-time conditions is unjustifiable."

Possibly the greatest buyer's strike in the nation's history is now on and it is adding fuel to the depression. Farmers who are working at reduced salaries are refusing to spend their money for high-priced manufactured goods that are selling at war time prices. The manufacturers do not realize that the World War is over.—Falmouth Outlook.

The prospects for the price of tobacco next winter are not very encouraging at this time. The manufacturers have the greatest supply of tobacco on hands in the history of the industry and the sales of manufactured tobacco and cigarettes are falling off day by day. However, every tobacco grower is going ahead raising a reduced crop and hoping that this depression will be over and business will pick up by the time the crop is marketed this winter. The farmers are the gamest set of people in this country and will take more punishment than any other class. They never cease to die in the face of adversities.—Lancaster Central Record.

The time to set tobacco is here and some of the farmers in the county have found while some have plants not large enough yet. Quality is what is needed, and to get this, the ground must be good and the tobacco set closely on the ground and worked early and weeds kept down afterwards. Boone county farmers have an abundance of plants.

Strawberry farmers are again gathering in a fine harvest of berries in Kentucky and will do well with this line for a money crop.

A few thousand strawberry vines planted will pay on black locust land.

REMARKS BY THE School Commencement Mark Achievements Made by Boys And Girls Who Enter World's Practical Affairs

Colleges and universities, new point to their annual commencement exercises, a point at which thousands of young people will graduate and take their places among business men and women.

A high school commencement is that season when the proud parents rejoice at the achievements made by their boys and girls. Any commencement carries a time of sadness, yet a sense of relief that the hard work of the school year is over.

Commencement for the average student means entry into the world of practical affairs and to the small majority the beginning of a new experience in college that may make or mar their lives. The event with its stimulating contact of youth and those who are older occupies a place worthy the distinction which it receives.

All of the elements that are a part of education have never been classified. They are too difficult and too numerous to analyze. The process does not end on commencement day as the term implies. It is only the beginning of a larger and fuller life.

We have grown to know better, though, what education means and the great purpose it serves. The mastery of one's mind and a sound and wholesome view of life are the great ends sought. Education has been defined as "the determined and long-continued effort of a serious minded person to train his powers of observation, thinking and reflection thru gain in knowledge." Success in the endeavor makes character.

We are apt to judge education by its by-products which, of course, are essential. Efficiency in one's work in life is a manifestation. Certainly efficiency is made more probable with a good education as a groundwork. This hope is high—and a commendable hope it is—at the end of the academic course. Those who have had the commencement experience, however, think less of that outcome than the purpose which it serves in character building and providing a sane perspective, which is increased as the years pass.—Central Record.

Tobacco Consumption CONTINUES TO INCREASE

Twenty per cent fewer cigarettes were manufactured in April, 1932, than in April a year ago, according to the department of markets and rural finance of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. For the past 18 months the consumption of cigarettes has been about 11 per cent below that of the previous year, based on figures of tax-paid withdrawals just issued by the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue, but in April the decline was nearly twice that large.

The large decrease in April is particularly significant to burley tobacco growers because the manufacture of cigarettes furnishes an important market outlet for their product.

REFRIGERATED MILK TANKS REDUCE CHILLING COSTS

An insulated concrete milk cooling and storage tank can be built at a reasonable cost which will reduce the cost of cooling and storing milk to meet the grade A and B milk temperature requirements. This tank can be used for wet or dry storage and for cooling, using running water, ice or mechanical refrigeration.

In order to sell milk for distribution in Louisville, about 1,200 farmers in that region have built milk houses and cooling tanks from plans designed by the agricultural engineering department of the College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky.

Plans for the milk house or the concrete tank can be obtained from county or home agents or from the College at Lexington.

Beans, Spaghetti Form Basis For Children's Quick Lunches

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
Director, Home Food Institute

"WHAT shall I have for the children's lunch?" This is a winter long problem confronting busy mothers. The morning speeds away almost before we realize, and it is time for the children to come romping in, hungry and ready for a good substantial lunch. The menu must be well-balanced and appealing, yet for mother's sake it must be simple and not require too much time for preparation. Main dishes should be nourishing, and may frequently be varied by giving a few simple touches to familiar and often served foods. Children enjoy unusual touches just as grownups do, and the school-day lunch should be a gay, cheerful affair so the child will go back to school refreshed and happy.

The following simple menus contain dishes that children enjoy; they offer an abundance of milk and are planned with an eye to ease of preparation.

Grape Jelly	Purée of Oven Baked Beans*	Whole Wheat Bread Toast
	Baked Apple with Milk
	Cooked Spaghetti in Tomato Sauce
	Apple, Nut and Celery Salad
	Whole Wheat Bread
	Peanut Pudding*
	<small>*Indicate recipes are given below.</small>
Purée of Oven Baked Beans: 1 small can Oven Baked Beans (with Pork and Tomato Sauce), 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour,	Serve very hot with crackers or toast. An easily prepared, nourishing and flavorful main dish for the children's school lunch.
Peanut Pudding: 3 tablespoons honey, 3 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons Peanut Butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 cups milk. Scald milk. Blend other ingredients and add to scalded milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened; place in double boiler or over hot water and cook for 15 minutes. New Peach Recipes

EVERY good housewife has her own pet ways of serving peaches—little tricks she turns when she is in a jam—with unexpected guests or a desert gone wrong. She has learned that peaches don't let one down. You can count upon people liking them, and nearly anything one does with peaches gives a thoroughly satisfactory return for the time invested. And if there isn't time to do anything with them, they are delicious just as they come from the can.

Add These To Your Recipes
Peach Trifle: Beat one egg till foamy, add one and one-half tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon cream and one tablespoon sherry flavoring. Then add flour until stiff enough to roll—from seven-slightly to one cup should be about right. Roll very thin, cut in squares and put a drained piece of peach in center of each, sprinkle with nutmeg, fold over diagonally, moisten edges slightly and press together. They should now be triangular in shape. Fry in deep fat. Drain on paper.

Peach Rice Pudding: Mix together one and one-half cups of rice, one-third cup sugar and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg. Add one-pound can sliced peaches cut in pieces and enough peach syrup to moisten. Pour into but one tablespoon butter. Bake in moderate oven, 350° to 375°, for twenty-five minutes. Serve warm or cold with thin cream flavored with nutmeg. Serves six.

CINCINNATI ZOO

The Cincinnati Zoo has the distinction of being the only place in America that is offering a season of grand opera this summer. The season will open with "Aida" to be presented Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, June 13-15 and 17, and "Marta" to be given Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. All-star casts are announced by Charles G. Miller, manager, for both productions.

"A Night on the Rhine," a hilarious burlesque of night life in Cincinnati's famous "over-the-Rhine" back in the "gay nineties," will be presented Sunday night, June 12. The locale will be an old-time beer garden of the period. Members of the opera company and the Zoo opera-ballet will appear in the various comedy roles.

Concert programs will be presented every Saturday and Sunday afternoon during the opera season, by the Zoo Summer Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Reuben Lawson.

The policy of reduced prices will be maintained at the Zoo Club-house. Harry Willes's Orchestra provides the rhythms for dancing every evening, and there will be floor show features Saturday and Sunday nights. "Jenny" dancing is popular at the Zoo, and "Dance in Russland," where Charles McClure's Russland Steppers provide the music.

Free Punch and Judy shows, Kiddleland, the Fun House, merry-go-round and pony track are special entertainment devices for the children. The Zoo's great animal, bird and reptile collection is always a great attraction with Zoo visitors. Automobile parking is free inside the Zoo grounds.

Putt Well to Win, Says Jim Barnes

Jim Barnes, famous golf professional, giving a lesson on the green.

PUTTING is such an essential part of golf that it is a wonder that all players do not study more how to improve their short game, declared Jim Barnes, golf pro at the Crescent Athletic Club, Huntington, Long Island. Barnes, it will be recalled, won the U. S. Open in 1921, the British Open in '22, besides many sectional titles, and is picked by many to repeat in the U. S. Open this year.

The correct stance and proper grip, naturally, come first when one is holding out, continued Barnes. But there are a lot of other things that enter into championship form, or even good playing. Every golfer likes the spectacular long game and concentrates most of his work on the driving end. They do not stop to think a sensational drive can be neutralized by dubbing on the green. One should be in the "pink" when hitting out, for then is the real test. More than half of all matches are lost right there.

Outside of the grip and stance, I should place correct dressing as the main element to good putting. Many golfers wear a hundred buttons they handicap themselves by tight clothes and improper shoes. I demand a loose sweater, slacks, in spite of the fact that many other players prefer flimsy, flimsy, and solid but comfortable shoes.

Time was when the golf links was a place where old clothes were worn. Few people follow that rule now, but many of them stick to old, dilapidated games, a mistake in my opinion. Shirts have to carry one over the long, tiring round, and if they do not afford comfort in addition to a non-skid hold on the grass, one's calves are going to tire quickly. Then, a proper stance on the putting green becomes almost impossible. The shoes I am wearing above were made by Thom McAn and fully conform to my requirements.

A city editor once told me that he never heard a man without asking him if he had good feet. When I asked him what a good pair of feet had to do with respect, he told me a man was no good if his feet were tired. Since then I have adopted the same principle for golf, especially in the short game where the whole body apparently plays a smaller part than in the long driving tain, probably is a lot better satisfied with English boxing enthusiasm than he was with the American broad. Carnera fought in London last week before a crowd of 60,000 people, one of the largest throngs that ever witnessed a fight in that country. Apparently the Englishmen are more gullible than Americans, or else they just haven't caught on to Carnera's peculiar style of steering clear of fighters who can really fight. Over here Carnera enjoyed a good prosperity for a time by boxing "set-ups" and building a reputation among the minors. But the fight public tired of the Italian's exhibitions after a while and demanded that he quit claiming things and begin to fight for them. That was Primo's cue to hasten away to more hospitable climes where set-ups are still set-up and a man can fool the public and get away with it. Carnera has never really beaten a good man in the prize-ring. His huge bulk gives an ominous impression, but actually he is rather slow and awkward, and none too good a boxer. A match with one of the leading American fighters would probably mark the last chapter in Primo's ring biography.

Reds At Home, June 12

We can remember when the base ball fans didn't care whether the Reds were playing at home or in Kokomo; and wouldn't have walked across the street to see the team play. That was way back in the days before Sidney Well demonstrated how to organize major league ball clubs that could win games. Now, the fans resent the fact that the Reds can't play all of their contests at home, instead of only half of them as the National League schedule requires. President Well, cognizant of the fact that the team was scheduled to play on foreign fields for almost a month without any games at home for the local fans to enjoy, ordered a special tilt with the Philadelphia Quakers at Redland Field, Sunday, June 12. Both clubs are slugging outfits. Herman, Hafey, Lombardi, and Grantham of the Reds will match war-clubs with Chuck Klein, Don Hurst, and "slugger" Whitney of the Phillies.

Frame Does Good Job

Just about the time that the Memorial Day auto races at the Indianapolis Speedway were beginning to lose interest for the public, along came Freddy Frame in the 1932 classic to revive the excitement and elevate the sport to new and greater heights. Frame didn't create a sensation by winning it was by the way he won in record time.

For the past several years, the Indianapolis event had been slowly but surely losing its zest. Too many accidents of a particularly dreadful nature had slowed up the competition. Winners were chalking up times far below the record marks, and a speed-loving public was becoming irked at the general change in pace. Then Frame, daring and yet at the same time extremely capable, pushed his Miller-Hart at an average speed of more than 104 miles per hour over the 500 mile route to smash the old record and interest went soaring once more.

Hey, Reds, Get Going!

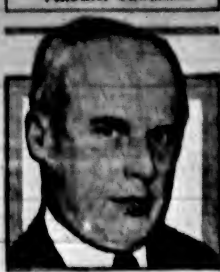

You can never satisfy a base ball fan no matter how hard you try to please him. Manager Dan Howley of the Reds knows that. Howley has made a ball club out of a 1931 last place outfit and still fans wonder why he hasn't got the club in first place. Well, maybe Howley will put the Reds on top yet. More surprising things have happened. However, the reason why the Reds are not leading the league at present is self-evident in a good look at the records of the campaign to date.

Up to last Friday, the Reds had played 48 games, winning 24 and losing 24 for a 500 average. In those 48 games, the Reds made 436 hits as against 420 for opposing teams. 13 Reds were hit by pitched balls, while only 5 opposing players were struck by Cincinnati twirlers. The Reds drew 156 passes, while the local pitchers handed out only 99 in return. In other words, the Reds got 605 men to base, exclusive of errors; while the opposition placed only 524 players on the sacks.

Here's the sad part, however. The Reds left 372 men on base while the opposition stranded only 296 players, a big difference of 76 potential runs that might have won several games had the Reds hit in the pinches. Cincinnati scored only 189 runs to 203 for other clubs; stole 23 bases to 24 for the opposition; and out sacrificed their opponents, 24 to 23. The Reds completed 37 double plays, but sadly hit into 50 double-killings and one triple play that cut off rallies. Red batters hit 78 doubles, 26 triples, and nine home runs. Opposing batsmen walloped 85 doubles 26 triples, and 12 home runs.

TWO CENT TAX

ON ALL CHECKS IS EFFECTIVE ON JUNE FIRST—MAKER OF CHECK MUST PAY TAX, WHICH WILL BE DEDUCTED FROM BANK ACCOUNT AND REPORTED BY BANK

A number of new tax laws go into effect on June 1st, among which is the law providing for a tax of two cents upon each check written. The tax is to be paid by the maker and is not a stamp act, but the two cent tax is to be deducted from the account of the payor, or writer of the check, and remitted monthly by the bank to the Government.

Another important feature that must be borne in mind is that the check is due and payable upon the presentation of the check for payment at the bank. In other words, if you write a check on the 15th of June and mail it to Chicago it probably will not be presented for payment at your Boone county depository before the 21st. In that case your bank will be compelled to deduct two cents from your account.

If you write a check for twenty-five dollars to John Doe and have exactly twenty-five dollars in the bank your check may be returned marked "insufficient funds," since you do not have two cents deposited in addition to the check. The point is that the bank is compelled to deduct two cents from your account each time that you write a check and there is no alternative for them.

The burden, after all, will fall upon the bank for the reason that the small depositor will be tempted to withdraw his funds and pay in cash.

To the customer who borrows a hundred dollars and pays six per cent interest, then writes his checks one dollar at a time his money will be costing him ten per cent.

Bankers always have encouraged the small depositor to transact his business by check, employing the argument that it was safer and better business. The argument certainly was sound. However, the bankers now point to the fact that deposits already have been decreasing and that, instead of the Government lending aid, by this tax they have worked a pronounced injury.

It will simply be a test of patriotism for the depositor, as withdrawals to any large extent might prove at least annoying to the borrower. If deposits are withdrawn it necessarily will cause banks to call loans to meet whatever deficit might be created.

SHOW BOAT AT CINCINNATI

Who does not know something about Billy Bryant and his famous show boat performances in this part of the country? The veteran of the river stage is now at the foot of Lawrence street in Cincinnati for the season with a series of characteristic plays. Cincinnati people flock to the river each evening responding to the "call of the calliope." It is within easy access of most Boone county people and Billy Bryant invites both old and new friends to visit him at the foot of Lawrence street.

MUSICAL HUMMING BIRD

Our friend, James Hendrix, living near Napoleon, in Gallatin County, has a pet humming bird. Jim says, when, after a hard day's work, he gets his old accordion, goes out on his veranda at the supper and starts playing "Turkey in the Straw," the bird will appear but will not stay long. But, Jim says, as soon as he changes the tune and plays "Old Kentucky Home" the humming bird will appear and accompany the accordion by "humming" the tune. — Gallatin County News.

TROPHY ON SLIDING

MRS. ELIZA WALTON

Funeral services for Mrs. Eliza Walton were held at the Burlington Baptist church Friday afternoon. Rev. F. E. Walker, the pastor, assisted by Rev. Smith, of Bellevue, and Rev. Campbell, of Bullittsville, had charge of the services. Mrs. Walton had been a member of the Bellevue Baptist church for years and was buried in the Bellevue cemetery.

The deceased was 57 years of age and before her marriage to Thos. Jackson Walton in 1896 she was Eliza Helen Hunt. She was raised in Boone county near where she was laid to rest. She was preceded to the grave by her husband, who died in 1911. Six children were born to this union: Joseph E., William C., Thomas J., Mrs. M. A. Yellon, Mrs. Elbert Clure and Helen, who died six years ago. Eleven grandchildren survive. She also leaves a sister, Miss Emma Hunt, of Hyde Park, Cincinnati, and two brothers, Henry J. Hunt, of Covington, and Carl E. Hunt, of Englewood, Kansas.

Throughout her life the deceased was a splendid Christian and a beautiful character. After her marriage her life was exemplary of a typical wife and mother, devoted, sympathetic and considerate of every desire of her loved ones.

Bearers at the funeral were the following nephews and grand nephews: Frank M. Walton, Edward Hunt, Edward, William, Hualpha and Allen Rogers.

W. W. Craddock, of Maple Grove addition, has been a very painful sufferer from lumbago recently.

The editor of the Recorder is in receipt of an announcement of the graduation of Chas. W. Riley, of Hebron, from the Y. M. C. A. Law School at Cincinnati. The commencement was held on June 1. Mr. Riley, however, is the cashier of the Hebron Deposit Bank, and, therefore, is not able to devote his entire time to the practice of law.

We are very grateful to our friends and kinsmen, Edgar and Rex Berkshire, for their most elegant and acceptable gift of two fine quarts of strawberries. Mrs. Dolpha Seebie, of Pleasant Valley neighborhood, is reported ill at this writing.

Mrs. Ella Jacobs, of Illinois, is visiting Mrs. Bess Kelly and family.

Lynn Miller, of Shelbyville, Ky., is spending a few days with Geo. B. Miller, Jr., of Florence-Burlington pike.

Headquarters are in charge of Keen Johnson, recently elected Secretary of the Committee, and Miss Margaret B. Parrish, who has been chosen as Assistant Secretary.

EXTRA INNINGS

NECESSARY TO DECIDE ISSUE IN THREE BOONE COUNTY GAMES LAST SATURDAY—99 INNINGS PLAYED AT TAYLORS-PORT—COLORED TEAM COMING TO BELLEVUE

Extra inning games were highly in vogue in Boone county last Saturday afternoon when three contests went past the nine-inning regulation distance.

Possibly a record was established in the game between Taylorsport and the Bellevue Baptists in the church league. This contest went twenty innings before a decision finally was reached, the Bellevue team winning 6-5.

In a ten inning game the Bullittsville Christians nose out the Burlington Baptists after a brilliant tussle that ended 3-1. Adin and Roberts, the latter winning 3-1. This defeat temporarily knocked Burlington out of the race for first place in the church loop. Bullittsville, Bellevue Baptists and Hughes Chapel now are tied for the leadership.

A second ten inning affair took place at Bellevue between the Bellevue and Petersburg independent nines. This game also ended 2-1, with the home team, the winning end. Bradburn, of Petersburg, opposed Joe Brady and Bill Rogers for the winners. Next Saturday, June 18, a colored team from Cincinnati will play at Bellevue. They call themselves the Lion Tamers.

W. W. Green and wife are in receipt of the announcement of the commencement exercises at Montgomery High School, Montgomery, West Virginia, where their nephew, William Dean Williamson, "graduated" May 30. He is the only grandchild of the late W. R. Moody.

The Recorder desires to enter an apology to Alexander Yelton thru these columns. Several weeks ago we gave the credit for the laying of the stone walk at Dr. Yelton's residence to the doctor, himself. Since that we have learned that "Doc" was simply an interested spectator and his son, the versatile "Alec," was the real boss of the job.

Bert Sullivan is reported to be improving from a recent heart attack.

The Spice In Sport

by Bill Leach

"Here today, gone tomorrow," and so it is ever in the ball world where nothing is assured and least of all, victory. One week ago the Cincinnati Reds were comfortably settled in third place in the National League pennant race and appeared to be on their way up the ladder. Then, suddenly, along came one of those inexplicable slumps that frequently strikes the best of teams, and the Reds skidded neatly out of the first division and on down to the bottomless pit of oblivion. As one witty song-writer has so ably stated, life is just a bowl of cherries. And how those Redlegs dislike cherries.

It is extremely difficult to ascertain exactly the factors that have caused the Reds to slip as they have so ignominiously in the past few days. Better clubs than the Reds have suffered the same fate, and the history of the national pastime is filled with similar episodes. Only one fact is reasonably certain—the Cincinnati Reds are a better club than their recent games have indicated and they are certainly not figured to continue for long in the present detritus. As a matter of fact, the Reds are very few games out of the first division and can regain their former lofty position in quick order.

Redleg fans who are worried over the club's showing—and what Tan is not? We must inspect the puzzling lack of batting punch for an analysis of the club's ailments. The Reds are rated among the hardest-hitting teams in the league, yet to date their batting has been of extremely light color. The absence of Chick Hefey from the line-up is partly responsible. Hefey has been ill for almost two weeks, a tough break for the Reds but characteristic of the bad luck which has met the team at every stand.

Ernie Lombardi continues to hit hard, while George Grantham and Babe Herman are also doing their share. Unfortunately, however, the remainder of the team has been as weak at the bat as these men have been powerful. Hence the lack of balanced power and the tragic inability of the Reds to score in the pinches. Manager Dan Howley is trying every conceivable experiment in a Herculean effort to lift the club out of the morass. Sooner or later these efforts are going to bring results, but they must arrive soon or the team will have a hard task to climb up again.

FORMER CITIZEN

PASSED AWAY AT ERLANGER AFTER SEVERAL MONTHS ILLNESS—SURVIVING HUSBAND IS VICE-PRESIDENT OF PEOPLES BANK—FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. A. W. CORN THURSDAY AT ERLANGER

Boone county friends of Mrs. A. W. Corn were grieved at the news of her death, which occurred at her home in Erlanger early Tuesday morning after an illness of several months.

Mrs. Corn was formerly Nannie Watts, of Bullittsville community, where she was married to Allie W. Corn, who survives her. She was eighty-four years of age and had been a member of Sand Run Baptist church since 1884. One child, Mary, preceded her to the grave several years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Corn were valued and prominent citizens of Boone county throughout their active lives. After Mr. Corn's retirement from active farming a number of years ago they moved to Erlanger. However, neither forsook their attachment for their native county and its people. Mr. Corn still is vice-president and director of the Peoples Deposit Bank, in Burlington, and never misses a meeting of the board, if at all possible to attend.

Funeral services will be held at the home Thursday afternoon 3:30 (eastern time). Burial will be in Highland cemetery with arrangements in charge of C. Scott Chambers, of Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lamkin, of Warsaw, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Berkshire and family. Mr. Lamkin is the interesting editor of the Gallatin County News, which is published by the owner of the Recorder and printed in Burlington. Mr. Lamkin assisted in the founding of the News in 1925 and has been the editor since its foundation. It is a pleasure to be its associate.

W. W. Woodward, enterprising and progressive all-around man of Devon, paid this office a hurried call Tuesday morning.

J. J. Maurer, of Bellevue, was the successful bidder to supply the Boone county schools with coal. The price was not learned by the Recorder.

RESIDENCE SOLD TWICE

8TH GRADE COMMENCEMENT

The commencement exercises for the graduates from common school will be held in the auditorium of the Boone County High School Friday evening, June 18. Approximately one hundred students from every school in the county will receive diplomas that night. 4-H TEAMS MAKE GOOD SHOWING

The Boone County 4-H Farm Practice Demonstration Team, the 4-H Home Practice Demonstration Team and the sewing club girls 4-H Style Show entrant each made a good showing in the state 4-H contests held the past week at Junior Week the University of Kentucky. The Home Practice Team and the girls Style Show entrant each placed fourth in their respective contests and the Farm Practice Team in which contest only first and second awards were announced according to the premium award was in the upper third of the winning teams. Approximately eighty-five counties were represented in the contests.

Messrs. Melvin Kenyon, Milton Rodamer and Misses Marian Sullivan, Jane Taylor, Dorothy Sullivan and Lucille Taylor and County Agt. H. R. Forkner represented the county in the event. While being a depression year the representatives thru the cooperation of the L. & N. Railroad, Southern Coach Corporation and the Early & Daniels Feed Company together with their premium awards were able to pay all expenses incurred on the trip. A splendid agricultural and home economics educational program was enjoyed by those attending.

SUPPER BRINGS PROFIT

A tidy profit of near one hundred dollars was realized from the chicken supper given by the Ladies Aid of the Florence Baptist church last Saturday evening. The supper was served in the basement of the church and the menu consisted of fried chicken, green beans, mashed potatoes, slaw, cottage cheese and pie.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Keffer, Paul McNeely and daughter, and other relatives from Gallatin county, spent the day Tuesday of this week with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McNeely, of near Waterloo.

Messrs. Henry Clure and John "Pepper" Smith, of Bellevue, were Burlington visitors Monday. Mr. Clure's health is very much improved.

BIG WAREHOUSE

TO BE CONSTRUCTED BY NORTHERN DISTRICT W. H. CORPORATION AT LEXINGTON—C. O. HEMPHILL, PRESIDENT, TO SUPERINTEND ERECTION. AT LEXINGTON SIX ACRES OF FLOOR SPACE PLANNED

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Northern District Warehousing Corporation, today permission was given C. O. Hemphill, President, to go ahead with plans for the erection of a mammoth warehouse in Lexington, Ky.

The proposed plant, will cover approximately six acres on Anglin Avenue, in the heart of the tobacco district, be in every respect a modern loose leaf sales house.

In line with the progressive spirit of the Northern District and for the convenience of their many patrons it is planned to provide parking space under shelter for 150 trucks of tobacco.

MORE WRECKS

ON HIGHWAY 42, AT UNION—BOONE COUNTY CAR COLLIDES WITH LOUISVILLE AUTO—SHELBYVILLE TRUCK OVERTURNS WHEN DRIVER FALLS ASLEEP

Two more wrecks took place on Highway 42 since the Recorder last reached its readers. This time, however, the scene was diverted from the junction of 35. Both wrecks took place at Union.

Early Monday morning as Mrs. Thos. Huey and Miss Sue Kathryn Bristow were driving north near the residence of Harry Dickerson their car was crowded from the highway by a car from Louisville occupied by a man.

The Louisville car struck the rear fender of the local car, as a result of which the former careened into a ditch. The Louisville auto was almost completely demolished and the occupants were severely cut and bruised. Their wounds were dressed by Dr. O. E. Senour. Mrs. Huey and Miss Bristow were uninjured, according to the report.

Monday afternoon about one o'clock a truck, driven by Tom Green, of Shelbyville, turned turtle between the home of Tom Craddock and the filling station of L. R. Barlow. The truck was loaded with fruit and vegetables and was going south. The only reason for the wreck, according to the driver, was that he fell asleep. The truck was not damaged, nor driver injured, seriously.

A third smash-up was reported near the Wayside Plaza, at Beaver, Sunday-afternoon. Particulars however, were not learned by the Recorder.

FARMERS ALLIANCE EXPANDS

LOCAL NO. 4 ORGANIZED AT WALTON

The Farmers Alliance following its program of expansion and organization for the promotion and protection of agricultural interests saw its fourth consecutive local organized at Grant last Saturday night. Sixteen farmers enrolled in to a strong local organization, elected officers and adopted the Constitution and By-Laws. Mr. Lee R. McNeely was elected chairman, Al Rogers, vice-chairman and Edward Rogers, secretary and treasurer.

The organization has one purpose in mind—the building up of agriculture on equality of other industries. It has no radical ideas in mind as some have been prone to believe but has adopted a conservative dynamic policy of finding facts, public discussion and intelligent cooperative or collective action. The organization at the present time has a membership of approximately 25 per cent of the farmers of Boone county and since its beginning has been rapidly growing. The local meetings have served as important places for the studying and understanding of many of the major local and state agricultural problems. Remarkable accomplishments have been made during the short time its work has been in force.

NURSERY STOCK INSPECTION

All nursery stock shipped must pass state inspection this year. The state inspector will be in Boone county in the near future. All those expecting to sell nursery stock and who have not filed application with the state department should file application with the County Agent this week if possible.

Misses Kathryn Maurer, Virginia Yelton and Nell Sine and Messrs. William Rudicell, Stanley Ryle and Bailey Greenup enjoyed a very pleasant outing near Warsaw last Sunday afternoon.

Lee R. McNeely and family spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Smith and family, of the Petersburg pike.

THE COST OF GOVERNMENT

We have always felt that taxpayers do not object to paying reasonable taxes, provided they get something for their money. Lately there has arisen a widespread outcry against the steady increase of taxes. Federal, State and local. We think that outcry has its roots in the general feeling that our government units are not giving us value received for the taxes we pay.

Almost all of our government units have been taxing, borrowing and spending beyond the means of the people to pay. Taxes are remaining unpaid. That causes forced sales of property and destroys values. Nothing but drastic retrenchment can possibly restore our governmental units to financial health. And one way to retrench—the best possible way as we see it—is to stop spending money on fads, on things which benefit only a few and particularly upon the effort to regulate everything by law.

As a nation we are dedicated to the principles of individualism and a minimum of governmental interference in private affairs, and yet we have built up the biggest and most expensive governmental machinery ever created. We object to government business, and yet we spend more money on governmental promotion and regulation of business than any country in the world except Russia. We talk loudly about the vast expenditures for armaments in Europe, and yet we spend more on armaments than any country in peace time in the world's history. Likewise, we spend more than any other country in the attempt to enforce the laws, and at the same time we have more crime of all kinds than any other nation.

If the editor of this paper knew the perfect answer to all the problems of government and finance, he would not be running this paper, but might be running the government. We think that there is an answer, but we think also that the answer will only be found when everybody who contributes a cent in taxes to local, county, state or national administration devotes a lot more time to thinking about these things and expressing his thoughts than most people do now.

THE BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION ABROAD

Extending far beyond the boundaries of the United States, the celebration of the Two Hundredth Anniversary of George Washington's Birth has reached into sixty-seven countries to find enthusiastic participants in this unprecedented observance, according to official reports received by the U. S. George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

With a listless gain tangible expression in every possible way, the people of these foreign countries have cooperated wholeheartedly with America abroad in honoring the First President of the United States. In many instances citizens of foreign nations have planned and carried out programs and other patriotic manifestations on their own initiative.

Many streets and public squares abroad have been renamed for Washington. Monuments are being erected to him by the members of patriotic societies and Americans in foreign countries, and numerous gatherings have echoed to his praises. In his honor the legislature of a great nation, the Reichstag of Germany, was assembled in special session, and for the first time, in history, the strains of America's national anthem rang through this historic hall.

Not only have special exercises in honor of Washington taken place all over the world, but even more lasting manifestations of the esteem in which he is held have been given. Outstanding among these are the establishment of a George Washington Memorial Library in the college in Stuttgart, Germany; the naming of a municipal apartment house in Vienna, Austria, in honor of Washington; the building and naming of a park and avenue in Latvia in his honor; the issuance of a commemorative postage stamp in Poland; and other similar projects.

Never, in the history of civilization have so many Nations united to honor the hero of a foreign land. This tribute shows, clearer than all the biographies on Washington ever written, the feeling of reverence and respect with which the Father of our Country is held throughout the world.

The United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission issued no formal invitation to any foreign government to participate in the Bicentennial celebration. Through the Department of State, American embassies, legations and consulates were reached, while American chambers of commerce and other organizations were contacted directly by the Commission. As a result, Bicentennial committees were set up not only in practically every foreign country, but also in the principal cities of the world.

The celebrations have all been financed by Americans living abroad and by the friendly citizens of foreign countries. In no case has the United States government or the Federal Bicentennial Commission supplied funds for that purpose.

Reports received by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission indicate that foreign interest and activity in the celebration will continue until the official close of the observance next Thanksgiving Day. Programs have been planned for many of the dates which will be observed in the U. S., such as Memorial Day, Flag Day, Independence Day, Constitution Day, Armistice Day and other similar occasions during the year.

TURNIP SAUERKRAUT IN NEW FARM FOOD

The farmer who used to put down a barrel of cabbage sauerkraut each fall may add another product to his list. Turnip sauerkraut is a new appetizing food suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The department finds that a good sauerkraut can be made from medium sized, purple-top turnips. They should be firm, sweet, and juicy in order to allow proper fermentation and flavor. The fleshy part of the root is ground or shredded and mixed with salt at the rate of 4 ounces of salt to 10 pounds of turnips. The mixture is then packed in storages, weighted down, and allowed to ferment.

Turnip sauerkraut may be stored at a low temperature for some time, the department says. It has a sharp flavor, closely resembling good cabbage sauerkraut. Most of the turnip flavor is lost when the kraut ferments.

Sunday School Lesson

Genesis 4:18-34

JUDAH THE TRUE BROTHER
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.
Children's Day observance will interfere with the lesson study on this particular day, but the general facts of this portion of the life of Joseph should be taken up either Sunday or in connection with the Review two weeks hence.

The Egyptians were being supplied from the stored up granaries. Many grave questions relating to social service are involved in the problems that arose at the time. When all these matters are adjusted between man and man it will be only as the principles enunciated by Jesus Christ are worked out in all human relationships. Every injustice is solvable when the Gospel-declared order is really put into practice.

Joseph assigned grain could be given to the brothers, who had received authority from Pharaoh over the famine stricken country. Before him stood the brothers who had ridiculed him, who were now in his power. His direct question always sought all valuable family information though he appeared to be taking about general events.

One of the ten finds that his money has been returned in the several bags of grain. Then a condition of receiving any further sustenance is that Benjamin must be in the party next time. We notice the length people will go in search for food to avoid starvation.

Joseph appreciated the return of the purchase price for the first lot of grain, enjoying to the full the amangement of the eleven (Gen. 43:3).

The brothers are told, "I am Joseph." Fear takes hold of them but Joseph said (Genesis 45: 4, 5), "God sent me." Love is making its expression today. Compare the Golden Text with (Romans 8:26).

PRESERVE FOR NEED NEXT WINTER

"Preserve this summer to help the needy next winter," is a slogan that condenses into a few words a description of a movement which is gaining momentum appears to provide a practical means whereby housewives throughout the country can perform a real service in relieving distress among the unemployed.

Nothing more elaborate or complicated is involved than the putting up of preserves for distribution to the needy throughout the winter months. A great deal can be accomplished by individual women working in their own kitchens and distributing the results of their work to families with whose needs they are personally acquainted. An even more important contribution to preserving activities among their friends, or women's organizations of which they are members.

The small expenditure required is small. Fruits and vegetables promise to be unusually cheap and abundant throughout the summer. Sugar is cheaper than it has ever been in all history. Another great point in favor of the movement is that preserves are of particular value in maintaining health and vitality. The fruits and green vegetables are the best possible sources of vitamins and mineral salts. The sugar content of the preserves is an unequalled source of energy. A supply of preserves put up by the conscientious housewives of the community can go far toward providing distressed families with a balanced diet that will go beyond the point of merely sustaining life on a make-shift basis.

The procedure of organizing group preserving activities is an easy one. The woman willing to take the initiative can suggest to a number of her friends, perhaps to her bridge club, that one day a week they meet by turns in each others' kitchens, each contributing her share of the small amount of money required to purchase the necessary materials and supplies. Those who are officers or members of women's community or church organizations should find a hearty welcome for the suggestion that the organization as a whole devote a day a week to such worthwhile activity. Many community centers and churches have kitchens where the preserving can be done, and a group of women working together will make the work and time fly with astonishing rapidity. Materials and supplies bought in the larger quantities required will be even cheaper than when purchased on a strictly retail basis.

It is estimated that the Calhoun county tobacco acreage will be only half as large as it was last year.

The Family Garden

WORKING THE GARDEN

(By John S. Gardner, Kentucky College of Agriculture)

Weeds are extremely poor company for garden vegetables. They rob them of plant-food and moisture. Worse, weeds attract insects that prey on them, and these insects spread to the vegetables. Too, because weeds serve as "bridge-heads" for many plant diseases, the vegetables may become infected.

The obvious way to get rid of weeds is to "work" the garden, that is to say, to cultivate it. Cultivation means many things to many gardeners.

Some gardeners understand cultivation to mean a deep, violent stirring of the soil, to "give the roots air." It is true that the soil should be loose enough for the roots to have no difficulty in spreading, but the time to prepare the seed-bed properly was before the seed was sown. If the garden was planted somewhat wet, and the millions have become tramped, deep stirring, immediately, is advised, so that the soil will have settled by the time the roots reach it.

Another common aim in cultivation is to make the soil capable of receiving moisture. As before, proper preparation in the first place would have insured this, but deep working of tramped middles may be advisable, sometimes.

The only real object in cultivation, provided the garden has been properly prepared and correctly handled, is the control of weeds. The best time to go about controlling them is before their moisture has become heavy, while they are still small. Then, deep stirring is not needed, but simply shallow scraping.

There are several ways of doing this.

One is, with a hoe, holding the blade almost flat with the surface of the soil, so that it skims it a quarter of an inch deep, as the hoe is being drawn to the hoe. This method of hoeing requires less work than "chopping," and it makes no clods, but leaves the soil surface dusty and level. The uprooted or shaved-off weeds cease bothering immediately.

A better way to cultivate a garden is with a wheel-hoe, or "grip-hoe." The attachments to use are the scrapers, or "beet knives," as commercial gardeners call them. These are so adjusted as to skim the soil lightly, shaving off or uprooting the weeds that may have started. Best of all, the soil is put into excellent condition to absorb rains, and the surface is left level. This last is important, for evaporation of moisture is much less rapid from a level garden than from one in which the rows are kept ridged.

Soil should never be drawn to the rows of any vegetables except possibly potatoes, and then only enough to close the cracks that the swelling tubers make.

CO-OPERATIVELY MARKETING OF LIVESTOCK

The marketing of livestock co-operatively throughout Boone county has greatly increased this year compared with previous years. Farmer-owned and directed livestock selling agencies serving the Kentucky producers of livestock are located at the Cincinnati, Louisville and Evansville markets, as well as the eastern markets where some Kentucky livestock is sold. The Producers are receiving a large increase in volume. A report from this farm-owned agency shows that in March last year they received 17 decks of livestock, and in March this year, 29. In April last year the volume was 21 decks and for 1932, 48 decks. The Kentucky producers during May 1931 sold 52 decks co-operatively at Cincinnati, while for the month of May just closed, this was 143 decks. The largest increase came in the consignment and sale of lambs and cattle.

This Co-Operative Selling Agency is regularly handling a third or more of the total business at the Cincinnati market. With a greater volume of livestock going out of this county each year to Cincinnati being sold co-operatively, there is a higher net gain to be received by the livestock producers. The May report of the Cincinnati Producers states that the total volume of business handled was 688 decks of livestock. This was far in the lead of any previous volume ever handled by the organization.

There have been many misunderstandings regarding the co-operative movement and many false reports have been circulated regarding same.

Membership in this livestock co-operative is available to every producer of livestock in Kentucky who desires to sell his livestock at the terminal. There is no cost to this membership and no obligation in becoming a member. Livestock producers who are members are free to sell their livestock when and where they desire. Membership in the Producers permits sharing in the savings in marketing expense. During the seven years that the Producers have been organized they have made a savings of more than $300,000.00 in operating expenses. These savings have already been refunded to members of the organization. Added volume of business has been brought about by services rendered through improved market practices, sales made and values returned to the owner, as well as economy in lowering the expense of marketing livestock.

A SWITCH OF THIRTY-NINE MILLION DOLLARS

Congress has passed and the President has approved the tax bill framed to balance the budget. It imposes the heaviest taxes ever imposed in times of peace. When it was passed by the senate it contained a provision imposing a tax of three per cent on the amount paid by the users of electricity to be paid by the company furnishing the electricity, which is estimated to produce $39,000,000 revenue.

In the conference between the committee representing the senate and the committee representing the house of representatives the provision was changed so as to relieve the companies from paying this tax and imposing the burden on the users of electricity. It required a change of only a few words to take the tax of thirty-nine millions off of the utility companies and place it on the users of electricity.

When the bill was reported back to the senate a number of senators protested against this change, but their protests went for naught. A number, including Senator Logan, of Kentucky, voted against the bill with the hope of forcing it back to conference that this burden of thirty-nine millions, that the senate had imposed on the utility companies and the conferees had switched to the consumers, should be reported in the form in which it was originally passed by the senate.

Some voted against the bill because of the inequitable inclusion of a tariff on coal oil, copper and lumber in its provisions. It was, however, passed and has been approved by the President and is now the law.—Lexington Herald.

Boone County Livestock Producers are becoming familiar with the co-operative plan of selling livestock. The CINCINNATI PRODUCERS is truly co-operative. It is owned by livestock producers. Membership is open to all livestock owners without cost and with no obligation. Kentucky livestock in increased numbers is being sold co-operatively through your Producer agency.

In April last year the Cincinnati Producers sold 21 decks of Kentucky livestock, while this year in April, 48 decks. In May last year 52 decks were sold co-operatively, while last month, May-1932 this volume was 143 decks. PRODUCER SERVICE, and NET RETURNS COUNT.

IT MAKES THE WORLD GO ROUND

A young man burst violently into my office.

His face was somewhat haggard, and his clothes disheveled, as tho he had been up all night, which, in fact, he had.

But there was electricity in his walk, and sunshine in his eyes.

"Have you heard the wonderful news?" he cried.

I told him I had not heard any wonderful news since 1929.

"Well, you're going to hear some now," he exclaimed. "I have a boy. Yes sir, seven and a half pounds, born at five-thirty this morning. Think of it....me....a son."

Whereupon he became almost inarticulate, waving his arms and emitting sounds that were half laughter and half tears.

At length he gained sufficient control to impart the information that the baby had blue eyes. "I hadn't the heart to say that all babies have blue eyes. He wouldn't have heard me anyway." "When I looked down at him the first time, the little rascal looked up and smiled. And he reached out and grabbed my finger, and say....well, I don't know how to express it, but when I felt him grip my finger, so trusting and everything....well, say, if I were worth five thousand dollars to my boss yesterday, I'm worth ten thousand today."

Did I treat his enthusiasm seriously? You bet I did. Any man who himself has passed through that experience and does not feel a reverent sympathy for a younger brother in the same situation has some serious lack in his soul.

One night in 1856, Thos. Huxley, the great scientist, sat alone in a quiet room awaiting the birth of his first child. His spirit was on fire with great new resolves.

"In 1860 I may fairly look forward to fifteen or twenty years," he wrote in his diary, "and with the comprehensive views my training will have given me, I think it will be possible that time to give a new and healthier direction to all Biological Science."

"To smite all humbugs, however big; to give a nobler tone to science; to set an example of abstinence from petty personal controversies, and of toleration for everything but lying; to be indifferent as to whether the work is recognized as mine or not, so long as it is done—are these my aims? 1860 will show."

"Half past ten at night. "Waiting for my child. I seem to fancy it the pledge that all these things shall be."

"Born five minutes after twelve. Thank God."

Every night, somewhere in the world, hundreds of thousands of men sit waiting for their children. Thoughts come into their young minds, which never were there before. New purposes; new earnestness.

Not all of this impulse is permanent, of course, but a part at least remains of the urge to do something and be something worthy of these children.

It is a greater force than personal ambition. It makes the world go round.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

MALARIA

I believe that many of my readers will be interested in my topic this week, especially the great number living in the damp lowlands of our southern districts. The mosquito is the malaria-carrier. Our broad policy of education of the masses will, in time, conquer the little demon that has wrought so much of unhappiness to our race.

Typical malaria is manifested by its periodical chills, and fever that follow immediately. Its paroxysms occur with the regularity, almost of the clock. Remember, irregular chills and fever point to septicaemia—pus somewhere—and NOT malaria. Your physician must decide for you; and a chill, of any kind, should send you post-haste to the doctor for investigation.

Science has identified the malarial poison, which is now easily
